Womanly Wisdom

The fastest flying machine is gossip.

There is always room on the sunny side of the road: let us walk there.

When the spare rib is put to roast, sprinkle it lightly with powdered sage and minced onion.

It is an easy matter to size up a man if his dog crawls under the house when it sees him approaching.

Sifted coal ashes, mixed with a little vinegar, makes a splendid mixture for polishing faucets, brass kettles and the like.

Tack pieces of rubber, cut from overshoes, to the bottom of the step-ladder legs, and they will not slide on a slippery floor.

The cork in a bottle of cement or glue is apt to stick and break when it is opened for the second time. To prevent this, grease it lightly when first taken out.

If housewives would have rubber heels and soles on their every-day shoes, they would find that much discomfort from aching, tired feet would be avoided.

After boiling salt ham or tongue, remove it from the fire and plunge it at once in cold water. This instantly loosens the skin, which then pulls off without any trouble.

Have buttons, or hooks and eyes, for the slips you use on the sofa-pillows. Then you can often take the pillows out and wash the slips. Saves a lot of sewing and the slips are apt to get washed a good deal oftener.

When anyone is taken ill in the night and needs a quick application of heat, light a lamp. The chimney will be hot in a moment and will answer until water or a brick can be heated. It can be slipped into a stocking leg and applied at once.—From January Farm Journal.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy never disappoints those who use it for obstinate coughs, colds and irritations of the throat and lungs. It stands unrivalled as a remedy for all throat and lung diseases. Sold by all dealers.

Notice of Appointment of Executor

Notice is hereby given. That the undersigned has been by the District Court of Hancock County, Iowa, appointed Executor of the Estate of CARL SCHLICHTING, Deceased, late of Hancock County, State of Iowa and has duly qualified as such Executor.

All persons indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment to the undersigned; and those having claims against the same will present them, duly authenticated, to said Court or to the undersigned, for allowance.

Dated, Garner, Iowa, Dec. 13, A. D. 1910. HENRY SCHLICHTING, (21-3) Executor.

Cats Wanted

A novel request has been sent to a Pennsylvanian by a prominent citizen of the state of Washington. He asks for 1,000 cats, which are desired to take part in a campaign of extermination against gophers, which have been ruining the fields of the western state. He writes that he will visit Pennsylvania within a few weeks to pick up all the stray cats that can be delivered to him, for which he is willing to pay a fair price. All manner of methods have been used in the Northwest to drive away these pests, but the annual hunts participated in by the great crowds have been unavailing and feline re-enforcements have now been summoned. It is expected that Pennsylvania will deliver a choice assortment of cats and will be fully as glad to get rid of its surplus stock as Washington will be to secure it.—Homestead.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is not a common, every-day cough mixture. It is a meritorious remedy for all the troublesome and dangerous complications resulting from cold in the head, throat, chest or lungs. Sold by all dealers.

Do You Want a Home?

If you do, let us help you find it. Here is what we have to suggest:—

Along the K. C. S. Railway in Southwest Missouri and Northwest Arkansas there are many idle acres of the most fertile and productive land in the United States. It is being divided into 5, 10 and 20 acre farms and sold on easy payments. It is exceptionally well adapted to fruit, truck and poultry raising. Strawberries, apples and poultry are the big money makers, and many men who have located on these lands have made as high as $450.00 per acre. You can do the same. The money you are paying for rent will buy you a home.

The water, the climate and the general health conditions of the country are ideal. No long, cold winters; no extreme heat in summer; no swamps; no malaria, and no mosquitoes.

You can buy these lands at from $15 to $25 per acre. Write us for more detailed information and your letter will receive careful attention.

$3.50 RECIPE CURES WEAK KIDNEYS, FREE

RELIEVES URINARY AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, BACKACHE, STRAINING, SWELLING, ETC.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a QUICK RECOVERY, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K-255 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

His Ruling Passion.

The young man waited for the millionaire s reply.

"I don't blame you for wanting to marry my daughter," said the latter. "And now how much do you suppose you and she can worry along on?"

The youth brightened up.

"I—I think," he cheerfully stammered, "that $200,000 well invested, would produce a sufficient income."

The millionaire turned back to his papers.

"Very well," he said, "I will give you $100,000, providing you raise a similar amount."

And the young man went away sorrowing.

THE APPLICATION OF KNOWLEDGE

For the Relief of Suffering Is a Cardinal Principle of Philanthropy.

Before the discovery of Resinol, thousands of persons were living lives of torture and affliction who are now well and happy, and are doing what they can by telling others of their wonderful and complete cure with the use of this great remedy. Their experience and other data show that Resinol has cured numerous cases that were thought incurable. No matter what may be the nature or condition of the skin trouble, whether Eczema, Psoriasis, Herpes, Common Pimples or any eruption, a few applications will show improvement. Itching and irritation will cease immediately and a complete cure follow. The relief this remedy has given to sufferers from Itching Piles has caused thousands to write that they consider it worth its weight in gold. It gives relief instantly and cures permanently in a very short time.

If your face is easily irritated by shaving, use Resinol Medicated Shaving Stick. Its healing lather will be your greatest comfort.

These preparations are recommended and sold by druggists everywhere in all countries. Resinol Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

A Discouraging View.

"We must investigate this affair," said the rural official.

"What's the use?" responded Farmer Corntossel. "I never saw an investigation that changed anybody's personal likes and dislikes."

Glass Door Saves Life of New Sharon Girl Shot by Lover

LOCKHART IN OSKALOOSA JAIL

Assailant Captured by Posse, Confesses That He Shot Miss Clara McIntyre, While She Was Seated at Supper Table.

Oskaloosa, Ia., Dec. 30.—Cecil Lockart of New Sharon, who shot Miss Clara McIntyre at New Sharon was arraigned here on the charge of attempted murder. A written confession was secured from Lockart by Chief of Police John Ruggenberg after he was brought from New Sharon to this city in an automobile by Sheriff E. L. Valentine and Chief Ruggenberg.

Because the thick glass of the door through which the bullet came weakened the force of the missile, it was declared by attending physicians at New Sharon that Miss McIntyre would live. The bullet, crashing through a heavy glass of a door struck Miss McIntyre behind the right ear as she was seated at the supper table, but caused only a scalp wound.

In a letter found in Lockart's possession, Miss McIntyre, who is the adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Young, declared that she wished to have nothing more to do with him because of his alleged immoral habits. Previous to a few weeks ago, they had been good friends.

Immediately after the shooting, Lockart secured a horse and rode to the home of a relative six miles west of New Sharon where he was arrested.

D. C. MOTT ON PAROLE BOARD

Marengo Editor Named by Governor Carroll to Succeed P. A. Smith, Deceased.

Des Moines, Dec. 30.—D. C. Mott, editor of the Marengo Republican, was appointed a member of the state board of parole by Governor Carroll, to succeed Pardon A. Smith of Scranton, who died last Saturday.

Mott was formerly editor of the What Cheer Patriot, but retired from that newspaper and moved to Audubon county, where he ran the Republican. He represented that county in the Thirtieth and Thirty-first general assemblies and then went south for a year. Later he took over the Marengo Republican.

He is 52 years of age and a graduate of Iowa university.

WILL NOT USE PROFANITY

Three Hundred Masons at Banquet in Cedar Rapids, at Grand Master's Suggestion, Take Vow.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Dec. 30.—Exactly at the hour of midnight three hundred Masons, seated at a banquet table in the new consistory temple in this city, celebrated St. John's day by registering a mental vow never again to utter profane language. The vow was taken at the suggestion of Grand Master Frederick Craig of Des Moines, who was the guest of honor and the principal speaker of the evening. Louis Block of Davenport also spoke.

It was the first assemblage in the new consistory temple just completed at a cost of $50,000.

Wants People's Rights Respected.

Des Moines, Dec. 30.—When Jansen Haines general manager of the Des Moines Gas company, and its lawyers, Judge George Carr and W. L. Read, appeared in the federal court before Judge Smith McPherson at Council Bluffs yesterday to ask for an injunction to restrain the enforcement of the ordinance reducing the price of gas in Des Moines, the dispatches say "they were taken to task severely by Judge Smith McPherson, who exhibited considerable displeasure because the city solicitor of Des Moines had not been notified that the proceedings were contemplated." At the conclusion of the hearing the court said he would not decide the matter at once, but took it to Red Oak for advisement.

GOT THE BEST OF THE ELDER

Ap' Quotation of Brer Reuben Saved His Mule and at the Same Time Rebuked Sin.

Elder Harris was making another attempt to induce one of the members of his flock to trade horses with him.

"Dat pony o' your'n, Brer Reuben," he said, "is jes' what I want, an' my big bay hoss is jes' what yo' want. I kin git over de groun' faster wid de pony, an' you kin haul a bigger load wid de hoss. Hit'd be a good trade fur bofe on us, 'ceptin' dat it'd be a leetle better fuh you dan it would fur me. Yo take de bay and give me de ches'nut sor'l."

"De pony suits me well 'nough, elder," averred Brother Reuben, for the twentieth time. "I don' keer t' make no swap."

"But I jes' natchelly got t' have dat pony, Brer Reuben."

"Elder," spoke the other, after a period of profound thought. "I been wantin' t' ast yo' a question for a long time."

"Well, what is it?"

"I know w'at one o' de 'postles says 'bout de law bein' done away with, but ain't we still livin' undah de ten commandments?"

"Brer Reuben," solemnly averred Elder Harris, "we air."

"Well, one of dem comman'ments says we mustn't covet anyt'ing w'at b'longs t' our neighbors, an' you're covetin' dat li'l chestnut sor'l pony o' mine, Brer Harris!"

Then the elder gave it up. Clearly the tenth commandment was against him.—Chicago Tribune.

Ended the Controversy.

On the steeple of an old Universalist church in Bath, Me., there is a wooden figure of an angel. It is not a remarkably fine specimen of art, and has always been somewhat laughed about, especially because of its high-heeled shoes. The Bath Enquirer recalls the story that a former pastor of the North Congregational church once accosted a devoted Universalist with the question: "Mr. Raymond, did you ever see an angel with high-heeled shoes on its feet?" "Why, no," answered Mr. Raymond, "I can't say that I ever did; but did you ever see one without them?"

The Primitive Man.

"Jones is so dreadfully primitive."

"What's his latest?"

"Why, we were at the opera house the other night and a stage hand removed a table and Jones yelled 'Supe! supe!' We were dreadfully mortified."

"I was at a dinner the other night and Jones sat next to me. When he saw the row of spoons and forks and knives beside his plate he beckoned to the waiter. 'Say, boy,' he hoarsely muttered, 'I guess you spilled the spoonholder!'"

"Well, it's lucky he's rich."

"Ain't it?"

Had Been in a Worse Scrape.

Damocles saw the suspended sword.

"That's nothing," he cried, "I've sat between two women with hatpins!"

Thus they saw he could not be scared.

What Happened.

Fate—Did you call?

Opportunity—Yes, but she sent word by her servant she wasn't in.—Harper's Bazar.

Some people would drown with a life preserver at hand. They are the kind that suffer from Rheumatism and Neuralgia when they can get Hamlins Wizard Oil, the best of all pain remedies.

His Specialty.

"What has become of young Mr. D'Auber, who showed such signs of talent in drawing? Has he made a success?"

"Oh, yes, indeed. He's got all the work he can do now."

"Magazine or studio work?"

"He draws the maltese cross showing where the body was found, in the evening papers."—Cleveland Leader.

On the Dog.

A small West Philadelphia boy may be an author some day. He has just finished his first essay. It is on a dog.

"A dog is a animule with four legs, a tale and pants but he never changes them. He wags his tale when he is glad and sits on it when he is sorry. A dog is a useful animule because he bites burglars but he is more trouble than he is worth when he tracks mud on the carpet. A bull dog is the king of beests."

Left Both Satisfied.

It all happened on one of those few surviving pay-after-you-enter cars.

"Oh, I insist on paying, Gladys," said the brunette. "You paid coming down."

"No. I shall pay," declared Gladys with equal firmness. "What if I did pay coming down—didn't you buy that last package of gum?"

"Let me settle the quarrel, ladies," suggested the diplomatic conductor. "Why not use the denatured form of Dutch treat?"

"What's that?"

"Well, you each pay the other's fare."

And that was the way they solved it.—Cleveland Leader.

COMING HIS WAY.

"What luck, my boy?"

"Oh! pretty fair. I got six winders, two lamp posts and one silk hat already."

We're All Her Friends.

A pretty story of Miss Ellen Terry and a gallant young playwright has gone the rounds of the Players' club.

Miss Terry attended in New York the first night of this playwright's latest work and at the end of the third act he was presented to her.

She congratulated him warmly.

"It is very good," she said. "Your play is very good, indeed, and I shall send all my American friends to see it."

"In that case," said the playwright, with a very low and courtly bow, "my little piece will sell 90,000,000 tickets."

Blue Monday.

"Do you know why we call this day Blue Monday?"

"Maybe it's because so much blueing is used."—Judge.

Old Women in Maine.

Gray has a quintet of ladies whose age is over ninety years. Mrs. Enoch Merrill's age is ninety-nine years and eleven months, while Mrs. Lois B. Small reached her ninety-eighth birthday on November 6, and both of these ladies are bright and active. Mrs. Mary A. Frank was ninety-six last September, and is in her usual health. Mrs. Hannah T. Rowe is ninety-one; Mrs. Mary Leighton also ninety-one. —Kennebec Journal.

Young Age Pensions.

Young-age pensions! Why not? Titles, honors, riches, pensions and most other good things are, as a rule, postponed to a period of life when the capacity for enjoying them has been blunted. Australia was one of the first countries to adopt old-age pensions, and now a labor member of the commonwealth parliament proposes a complementary scheme of young-age pensions. He would start by pensioning the fourth child at birth. The fact that three had previously been born showed that the parents were doing their duty and deserving well of the state. The young-age pension would "reward industry and encourage the birth rate."—London Chronicle.

Now About Clean Food

Another Splendid Opportunity to Bring Out Facts

When the "Weekly" which sued us for libel (because we publicly denounced them for an editorial attack on our claims) was searching for some "weak spot," they thought best to send a N. Y. Atty. to Battle Creek, summoned 25 of our workmen and took their sworn statements before a Commissioner.

Did we object? No. On the contrary, we helped all we could, for the opportunity was too good to be lost.

Geo. Haines testified he inspected the wheat and barley, also floors and every part of the factories to know things were kept clean. That every 30 minutes a sample of the products was taken and inspected to keep the food up to standard and keep out any impurities, also that it is the duty of every man in the factories to see that anything not right is immediately reported. Has been with the Co. 10 years.

Edward Young testified had been with Co. 15 years. Inspector, he and his men examined every sack and car of wheat and barley to see they were up to standard and rejected many cars.

H. E. Burt, Supt., testified has been with Co. over 13 years. Bought only the best grain obtainable. That the Co. kept a corps of men who do nothing but keep things clean, bright and polished.

Testified that no ingredient went into Grape-Nuts and Postum except those printed in the advertising. No possibility of any foreign things getting into the foods as most of the machinery is kept closed. Asked if the factory is open to the public, said "yes" and "it took from two to three guides constantly to show visitors through the works." Said none of the processes were carried on behind closed doors.

At this point attys. for the "Weekly" tried to show the water used was from some outside source. Testified the water came from Co.'s own artesian wells and was pure.

He testified the workmen were first-class, high-grade and inspected by the Co.'s physician to be sure they were all in proper physical condition; also testified that state reports showed that Co. pays better wages than the average and he thought higher than any in the state.

F. B. Martin, Asst. Supt., testified Grape-Nuts made of wheat, barley, yeast and water. Anything else? "No, sir." Postum made of Wheat, Wheat Bran and New Orleans Molasses. Statements made on his experience of about 10 years with Co.

Testified bakers are required to wear fresh white suits, changed every other day. Said had never known any of the products being sent out that were below the high standard of inspection. Asked if any one connected with the Postum Co. had instructed him how to testify. Said, "No, sir."

Horace Brown testified has been with Co. 9 years. Worked in Grape-Nuts bake shop. Testified the whole of the flour is composed of Wheat and Barley. Attys. tried to confuse him, but he insisted that any casual visitor could see that nothing else went into the flour. Said machinery and floors always kept clean.

So these men were examined by the "Weekly" lawyers hoping to find at least one who would say that some under-grade grain was put in or some unclean condition was found somewhere.

But it was no use.

Each and every man testified to the purity and cleanliness.

As a sample, take the testimony of Luther W. Mayo.

Testified been with Company about 10 years. Now working in the bakery department making Grape-Nuts. Testified that the ovens and floors are kept clean and the raw products as they go in are kept clean. Also that the wearing apparel of the employes has to be changed three times a week.

Q. Do you use Postum or Grape-Nuts yourself at all?

A. Yes, I use them at home.

Q. If from your knowledge of the factory which you have gained in your ten years at the factory you believed that they were dirty or impure in any way, would you use them?

A. I do not think I would. No.

Asked if any one on behalf of the Company had asked him to testify in any particular manner. Stated "No."

All these sworn depositions were carefully excluded from the testimony at the trial, for they wouldn't sound well for the "Weekly."

Think of the fact that every man swore to the purity and cleanliness so that the Atty. for the "Weekly" was forced to say in open court that the food was pure and good.

What a disappointment for the "Weekly!"

But the testimony showed:

All of the grain used in Grape-Nuts, Postum and Post Toasties is the highest standard possible to obtain.

All parts of the factory are kept scrupulously clean.

None of the workmen had been told how to testify.

Most of them have been from 10 to 15 years with the Co. and use the products on their tables at home.

Why do their families use the products, Grape-Nuts, Postum and Post Toasties, that they, themselves, make?

GOING FISHING

"But I don't see the point," protested the summer resorter.

The young man with his foot resting on the lower step and two fish-poles over his shoulder shook his head patiently.

"Haven't I just explained," he said, "that when one goes to the country one must indulge in outdoor sports, and that fishing is included in the category? Given a perfectly good lake full of trusting little fish, why not fish? If one does not fish why not stay in town where one can order fish planked and then complain to the waiter? Do try to be in keeping with your surroundings. Just at present you are, theoretically, surrounded by shiny bass begging to be caught—"

"I'm not!" declared the summer resorter, flatly. "I'm surrounded by a gale of wind direct from the north pole and I'm freezing to death and I want to go back to the log fire inside the cottage from which you called me! You may think this is June, but I'll tell you it isn't—it's the middle of winter!"

"Oh, come on," begged the man on the lower step. "Honest, fishing isn't half bad. Besides, it's no fun to go alone!"

This is perfectly idiotic!" grumbled the summer resorter ten minutes later as she tramped along in sweater and old coat, her nose pink and her eyes weeping from the wind. "I'm frozen clear through and I loathe fishing anyhow, and, besides, any self-respecting fish would stay at home on a day like this! I'd have no regard, not the slightest, for a weak-minded fish that would go deliberately wandering around in the ice water looking for bait merely to be accommodating when it could just as well as not stay in the nice warm mud at the bottom of the lake! I shouldn't care to eat a fish like that, really! Don't you think it is going to snow?"

"It's really too cold to snow," admitted the young man. "If it could storm icebergs I'd be willing to prophesy those, but not just plain ordinary snow. All the horses at our place are blooming out in winter coats of heavy fur. Still, the fish don't mind that, because you can cut holes in the ice in winter and get them, you know."

"B-r-r!" shivered the summer resorter as they rounded the outskirts of the woods and came out on the lake front. "I'm glad to discover what you call pleasure! Of course, if you had invited me to go on a merry little jaunt through a cold-storage plant or something like that I would have known what to expect. Fishing has always been represented to me as an agreeable way of killing time. I don't see anything agreeable about this. I wish I had brought my furs!"

"We aren't fishing yet!" said the young man, patiently. "We are merely on the way. The zest of the sport will—"

"Ow-w-w!" moaned the summer resorter. "How was I to know that horrid hook was swinging loose? If you tear my best puffs getting it out I'll never forgive you as long as I live!"

"Then you'll have to unpin them and let them dangle on the hook," said the young man, shortly. "They may attract the fish—"

"Yank it out!" commanded the summer resorter, fiercely. "I hate fishhooks! I heard of a girl once who got a fishhook caught in her ear when she was a child and they couldn't get it out and she had to go through life that way."

"Too bad she couldn't unpin her ear as you can your puffs," said the young man, unsympathetically. "Now, you sit on the box and I'll bait your hook."

"Ugh," said the summer resorter. "There must be something wrong with a human being who can handle angle worms and act as though he liked it! Doesn't it make creeps go down your spine?"

"No," said the young man, callously. "I'm just as wrong as they make 'em! Pardon me, but fish as a rule don't skate along the surface of the water—you'd better lower your line!"

"Truly," said the summer resorter through her chattering teeth, "are you having a good time?"

She stared questioningly at the young man who sat hunched up beside her wrapped in a disreputable heavy coat and with a pipe between his teeth.

"Yes, indeed," he declared, cheerfully. "Aren't you? This is great!"

"I'm not," said the summer resorter, uncompromisingly. "And the lake is getting rougher and rougher and pretty soon it will splash over this pier and wash our stiffened corpses away—oh, what's the matter?"

"Gotabite!" said the young man, running the words together. "What a nice bass! Put it into the basket!"

He rebaited his hook and then as the summer resorter didn't come back to her seat, he looked around.

"What in creation are you doing?" he roared.

"Sending this poor little fish back home," she said, coolly, as she dropped it into the lake. "It—it looked so little and sort of lonesome. Can't you catch them bigger than that?"

The young man looked at her and set his jaw. Then he arose resignedly. "Come on," he said, "and we'll go back to the log fire. I don't believe I care much about fishing today."

Benefactor of Humanity.

Blessed is the man who, having nothing to say, abstains from giving us wordy evidence of the fact.

TRIALS OF THE FAT MAN

They Are Not as Numerous as Many People Would Have Us Believe.

Many vain fears are wasted upon the fat man. He is supposed to suffer from an appalling shortness of breath and his florid complexion is ascribed to painful disorders of the circulation. The cartoonists picture him as being reduced to a sort of oily lava in summer and as coming down upon the ice in winter with sickening thuds and to the accompaniment of world-wide seismic disturbances. In plays he is always the target of slapstick and seltzer siphon, but a note of pity appears in every laugh he raises. People are sincerely sorry for him and are prone to dwell with maudlin sentimentality upon the fact that no sane woman ever falls in love with a fat man. Squandered sympathy! Wasted tears! The fat man, far from asking for them, cannot even understand them. To him the most beautiful thing in nature—the one thing, indeed, that convinces him of the essential benignity of the cosmic process—is the fact that he is fat. The fatter he gets the happier he grows. With every increase in his diameter there comes an access of comfort, of ease, of geniality, of contentment, says the Baltimore Sun. Forced by a kind nature to give over violent physical exercise, he devotes himself to poetry, piano playing, mathematics, philosophy and other elevating divertisements. He is a hearty and discriminating eater and has time to make acquaintance with all the more rare and delightful victuals. He sleeps soundly and snores in the safe and sane key of C major. Excused by public opinion from all sartorial display, he is able to clothe himself in loose and comfortable garments. A happy man taking his ease in his inn!

The fact that sentimental women abhor the man of bulk is not a curse laid upon him, but a stroke of good fortune. As he fares through the world, radiating joy like some soothing emanation, his footsteps are not dogged by match-making mammas and debutantes of prehistoric vintages. No one lures him into dim-lit parlors. No one would think of inviting him to sit in a hammock or to row a boat. He is not a dancing man, he does not excel at tennis, long walks down lovers' lane fatigue his feet. So the girls leave him to his exquisite reveries and sublime contemplations and he goes through life unhunted, unharassed and unwed, growing fatter day by day and gaining happiness with every ounce, pound and ton.

Tricks of Past Centuries.

It would be quite natural to think, when we see the wonderful things that trained horses are made to do in the circus of today, that all this belongs to modern times, and that such things were never done, or even thought of, among the ancients. But the truth is that all the wonderful feats performed by trained horses now are merely repetitions of what was done several hundred years ago.

Horses were then trained to dance on their hind legs and to fight mock battles, striking at their enemies with their fore feet, and many other so-called "tricks." One of the most wonderful feats ever performed by a horse was in the olden time. A large three-sided braided rope was stretched several feet from the ground, and on this the horse walked, preserving its balance perfectly.

Even the elephant was trained in the olden time to perform many feats. Mention is made of one that walked the tight rope, not only near the ground, but, if we may believe what the old writers say, it also walked a rope stretched above the heads of the spectators, and carried a man on its back.

The Mystery of It.

Paris was treated to a curious instance of inconsistent human nature the other day. The incident occurred at the end of a trial for attempted murder. Marcel Rochois, a former sergeant, was tried on a charge of firing his revolver at Germaine Hubert and wounding her in the head. He declared that for a long time he had been endeavoring without success to win the affections of Mlle. Hubert, whom he loved more than life.

When one day he saw her on the arm of a rival he resolved to shoot her and then commit suicide. He was arrested before he could complete his purpose. The unhappy suitor was sentenced to eight months' imprisonment, and was leaving the dock when Mlle. Hubert rushed forward. With clasped hands she implored the magistrate to pardon Marcel.

She said that she had never cared for the man before, but from the moment that he had shot her she had fallen hopelessly in love with him and was ready to marry him at once.

The girl's appeal was granted, and the lovers left the court room arm in arm.

Senator Hale's Whims.

Senator Hale, who will pass from public lift at the close of congress, has many peculiar whims and fancies. Employees at the capitol regard him with awe. It is his practise to enter the building at the east front and take the elevator. He never notices any of the boys who might be standing around. One day, however, contrary to his usual custom, when he entered the building, the senator was all smiles and graciously tipped his silk hat to the watchman and elevator man. The incident caused a small panic. "The senator is going to put a good thing over this day," said one of the employees.

Eggless Pancakes.

THOMAS McCLARY
LECTURER

Third Number of the High School Lecture Course

THERE are few men on the lecture platform who have made as great a success as Thomas McClary. He has the humor of an Artemus Ward combined with the rare oratory and learning of a Wendell Phillips. He has done as much to make the lecture popular, and at the same time instructive, as any man in the Lyceum field. Nature has endowed Mr. McClary with a face and figure like that of Lincoln and Emerson and Sol. Smith Russell, and the same power with which to make an audience laugh or cry. His ideas are fresh, his illustrations apt, and his wit keen.

An Editor's Appeal

My friend, help the editor in his wild eyed search for news. When your friend comes to see you, if you are not ashamed of it, tell him; when your wife gives a party, if you have recovered from the effects of the gossip, drop in with the news; when a baby arrives fill your pockets with cigars and call; if you go to a party steal some of the good things and leave them with the item in our sanctum. If your wife licks you come in and let us see the scars and tender sympathy through the paper; if your mother-in law has died don't be bashful about it, give in all the common news. In short, whatever makes you feel proud, sad, lonesome, or glad, submit it to our 24-karat wisdom, see our matted locks part and stand on end with gratitude which will pour from everywhere like moisture from the dew besprinkled earth.—Ex.

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They do the work whenever you require their aid. These tablets change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, gloominess into joyousness. Their action is so gentle one don't realize they have taken a purgative. Sold by all dealers.

TO PRESERVE LAKES

Some Action Urged to Conserve Interests of Lakes in State

SHOULD BE PROPERLY DRAINED

Prof. Thomas McBride of the Iowa State University Would Have Legislative Committee Look After Them.

Mason City, Ia., Dec. 31.—Professor Thomas H. McBride, of the Iowa State university, was in the city on his return from Lake Okoboji. He has charge of the lakeside laboratory at Okoboji and has taken a great deal of interest in the lakes of the state. He is in favor of the appointment of a committee to conserve the interests of the lakes of the state. Iowa is a state with its more than two millions of people and less than a half dozen good lakes afforded for their enjoyment and these usually in anything but presentable condition. He would by some act of the legislature appoint a committee to look after all these lakes, their proper drainage, prevention of disease-breeding germs accumulating along its shores, prevent encroachment of various kinds, and attend to the many things now arising in which the people are interested. Professor McBride is greatly interested in these matters and believes that the present legislature not only should, but will take some measures of relief at this session. Okoboji, Spirit Lake, Clear Lake and Wall Lake need attention as in each year thousands of the people of the state through the summer season are enjoying the pleasures afforded by these lakes.

Marengo.—Marengo suffered a $100,000 fire on Christmas day. The Hibbs Clothing company and the Henry Gode Dry Goods company were entirely destroyed, both buildings and stocks. GOT IT.
Got Something Else, Too.

"I liked my coffee strong and I drank it strong," says a Pennsylvania woman, telling a good story, "and although I had headaches nearly every day I just would not believe there was any connection between the two. I had weak and heavy spells and palpitation of the heart, too, and although husband told me he thought it was the coffee that made me so poorly, and did not drink it himself for he said it did not agree with him, yet I loved my coffee and thought I just couldn't do without it.

"One day a friend called at my home—that was a year ago. I spoke about how well she was looking and she said:

"'Yes, and I feel well, too. It's because I am drinking Postum in place of ordinary coffee.'

"I said, 'What is Postum?'

"Then she told me how it was a food-drink and how much better she felt since using it in place of coffee or tea, so I sent to the store and bought a package and when it was made according to directions it was so good I have never bought a pound of coffee since. I began to improve immediately.

"I cannot begin to tell you how much better I feel since using Postum and leaving coffee alone. My health is better than it has been for years and I cannot say enough in praise of this delicious food drink."

Take away the destroyer and put a rebuilder to work and Nature will do the rest. That's what you do when Postum takes coffee's place in your diet. "There's a Reason."

GOT HIS SOBRIQUET EARLY

"Honest John" Kelly Proved His Right to the Title Long Before Manhood.

There have been many stories about the manner in which "Honest John" Kelly, the ex-umpire, first got his nickname. Mr. Kelly himself, according to a new York letter, holds that it came to him naturally, for even as a small boy the purity of his soul shone through his face. "I think the first time I was ever called 'Honest John' was when I was quite a youngster," said Kelly. "A man engaged as an ambulatory salesman of tinware observed the ingenuous countenance I presented to the world and hailed me. 'You look honest, boy,' said he. 'What might your name be?' 'John,' said I, quite simply. 'John'—just like that. 'Then hold my horse while I go in the saloon and get a drink,' said he. And so I held his horse while he went in the saloon and got a drink. But this was on lower Ninth avenue, in a day when the avenue's honors went to the man who could clean the most cops in a given time. By and by the gang came along and beheld that wagon full of tinware. The peddler was detained within by a sore thirst, and they took the tinware. And then they came back and took the cushions off the wagon. Eventually, becoming daring, they unhitched the wagon and took it away. True to my trust, I stood there, holding the horse. And by and by the peddler came out of the saloon and sized up the situation. 'Well,' said he warmly, 'you're Honest John, all right. You saved the horse.'"

Breaking It Gently.

Callahan was stopped on the street by Father Clancy. The good priest's countenance took on a sad expression.

"What's this, I hear, Callahan," asked he, "about your breaking Hogan's head last night? And the two of you friends for years!"

Callahan seemed somewhat taken back. "Sure, I was compelled to do it, your riverence," he explained apologetically, "but out of consideration for that same friendliness, I broke it gintly, your riverence."—Lippincott's.

SYNOPSIS.

Capt. Nathaniel Plum of the sloop Typhoon, lands secretly on Beaver island, stronghold of the Mormons. Obadiah Price, Mormon councilor, confronts him, tells him he is expected, and bargains for the ammunition aboard the sloop. He binds Nat by a solemn oath to deliver a package to Franklin Pierce, president of the United States. Near Price's cabin Nat sees the frightened face of a young woman who disappears in the darkness, leaving an odor of lilacs. It develops that Nat's visit to the island is to demand settlement of the king, Strang, for the looting of his sloop by Mormons. Price shows Nat the king's palace, and through a window he sees the lady of the lilacs, who Price says is the king's seventh wife. Calling at the king's office Nat is warned by a young woman that his life is in danger. Strang professes indignation when he hears Nat's grievance and promises to punish the guilty. Nat rescues Neil, who is being publicly whipped, and the king orders the sheriff, Arbor Croche, to pursue and kill the two men. Plum learns that Marion, the girl of the lilacs, is Neil's sister. The two men plan to escape on Nat's sloop and take Marion and Winnsome, daughter of Arbor Croche, and sweetheart of Neil. Nat discovers that the sloop is gone. Marion tells him that his ship has been seized by the Mormons. She begs him to leave the island, telling him that nothing can save her from Strang, whom she is doomed to marry. Plum finds Price raving mad. Recovering, he tells Nat that Strang is doomed, that armed men are descending on the island. Nat learns that Marion has been summoned to the castle by Strang. Nat kills Arbor Croche, and after a desperate fight with the king, leaves him for dead.

CHAPTER IX.—Continued.

Suddenly he almost fell over a figure in his path. It was an old woman mumbling and sobbing incoherently as she stumbled weakly in the direction of the temple. Like an inspiration the thought came to him that here was his opportunity of gaining admittance to that multitude of women and children. He seized the old woman by the arm and spoke words of courage to her as he half carried her on her way. A few minutes more and a blaze of light burst upon them and the great square in which the temple was situated lay open before them. Half a hundred yards ahead a fire was burning; oil and pine sent their lurid flame high up into the night, and in the thick gloom behind it, intensified by the blinding glare, Nathaniel saw the shadows of men. He caught the old woman in his arms and went on boldly. He passed close to a thin line of waiting men, saw the faint glint of firelight on their rifles, and staggering past them unchallenged with his weight he stopped for a moment to look back. The effect was startling. Beyond the three great fires that blazed around the temple the clearing was bathed in a sea of light; in its concealment of giant trees the temple was buried in gloom. From the gloom a hundred cool men might slaughter five times their number charging across that death square!

Nathaniel could not repress a shudder as he looked. Screened behind each of the three fires was a cannon. He figured that there were more than a hundred rifles in that silent cordon of men. What was there on the opposite side of the temple?

He turned with the old woman and joined the throng that was seething about the temple doors. There were women, children and old men, crushing and crowding, fighting with panic-stricken fierceness for admittance to the thick log walls. Through the doors there came the low thunder of countless voices pierced by the shrill cries of little children. Foot by foot Nathaniel fought his way up the steps. At the top were drawn a dozen men forming barriers with their rifles. One of them shoved him back.

"Not you!" he shouted. "This is for the women!"

Nathaniel fell back, filled with horror. A glance had shown him the vast dimly lighted interior of the temple packed to suffocation. What sins had this people wrought that it thus feared the vengeance of the men from the mainland! He felt the sweat break out upon his face as he thought of Marion being in that mob, tired and fainting with her terrible day's experience—perhaps dying under the panic-stricken feet of those stronger than herself. He hoped now for that which at first had filled him with despair—that Strang had hidden Marion away from the terror and suffocation of this multitude that fought for its breath within the temple. Freeing himself of the crowd he ran to the farther side of the building. A fourth fire blazed in his face. But on this side there was no cannon; scarcely a score of men were guarding the rear of the temple.

For a full minute he stood concealed in the gloom. He realized now that it would be useless to return to Obadiah. The old councilor could probably have told him all that he had discovered for himself; that Marion had gone to the castle—that Strang intended to make her his bride that night. But did Obadiah know that the castle had been abandoned? Did he know that the king's wives had sought refuge in the temple, and did he know where Marion was hidden? Nathaniel could assure himself but one answer: Obadiah, struck down by his strange madness, was more ignorant than he himself of what had occurred at St. James.

While he paused a heavy noise arose that quickened his heart-beats and sent the blood through his veins in wild excitement. From far down by the shore there came the roar of a cannon. It was closely followed by a second and third, and hardly was the night shaken by their thunder than a mighty cheering of men swept up from the fire-rimmed coast. The battle had begun! Nathaniel leaped out into the glow of the great blazing fire beyond the temple; he heard a warning shout as he darted past the men; for an instant he saw their white faces staring at him from the firelight—heard a second shout, which he knew was a command—and was gone. Half a dozen rifles cracked behind him and a yell of joyful defiance burst from his throat as the bullets hissed over his head. The battle had begun! Another hour and the Mormon kingdom would be at the mercy of the avenging host from the mainland—and Marion would be his own for ever! He heard again the deep rumble of a heavy gun and from its sullen detonation he knew that it was fired from a ship at sea. A nearer crash of returning fire turned him into a deserted street down which he ran wildly, on past the last houses of the town, until he came to the foot of a hill up which he climbed more slowly, panting like a winded animal.

From its top he could look down upon the scene of battle. To the eastward stretched the harbor line with its rim of fires. A glance showed him that the fight was not to center about these. They had served their purpose, had forced the mainlanders to seek a landing farther down the coast. The light of dawn had already begun to disperse the thick gloom of night, and an eighth of a mile below Nathaniel the Mormon forces were creeping slowly along the shore. The pale ghostly mistiness of the sea hung like a curtain between him and what was beyond, and even as he strained his eyes to catch a glimpse of the avenging fleet a vivid light leaped out of the white distance, followed by the thunder of a cannon. He saw the head of the Mormon line falter. In an instant it had been thrown into confusion. A second shot from the sea—a storm of cheering voices from out of that white chaos of mist—and the Mormons fell back from the shore in a panic-stricken, fleeing mob. Were those frightened cowards the fierce fighters of whom he had heard so much? Were they the men who had made themselves masters of a kingdom in the land of their enemies—whose mere name carried terror for a hundred miles along the coast? He was stupefied, bewildered. He made no effort to conceal himself as they approached the hill, but drew his pistol, ready to fire down upon them as they came. Suddenly there was a change. So quickly that he could scarcely believe his eyes the flying Mormons had disappeared. Not a man was visible upon that narrow plain between the hill and the sea. Like a huge covey of quail they had dropped to the ground, their rifles lost in that ghostly gloom through which the voices of the mainlanders came in fierce cries of triumph. It was magnificent! Even as the crushing truth of what it all meant came to him, the fighting blood in his veins leaped at the sight of it—the pretended effect of the shots from sea, the sham confusion, the disorderly flight, the wonderful quickness and precision with which the rabble of armed men had thrown itself into ambush!

Would the mainlanders rush into the trap? Had some keen eye seen those shadowy forms dropping through the mist? Each instant the ghostly pall that shut out vision seaward seemed drifting away. Nathaniel's staring eyes saw a vague shape appear in it, an indistinct dirt-gray blotch, and he knew that it was a boat. Another followed, and then another; he heard the sound of oars, the grinding of keels upon the sand, and where the Mormons had been a few moments before the beach was now alive with mainlanders. In the growing light he could make out the king's men below him, inanimate spots in the middle of the narrow plain. Helpless he stood clutching his pistol, the horror in him growing with each breath. Could he give no warning? Could he do nothing—nothing—

At least he could join in the fight! He ran down the hill, swinging to the left of the Mormons. Half way, and he stopped as a thundering cheer swept up from the shore. The mainlanders had started toward the hill! Without rank, without order—shouting their triumph as they came they were rushing blindly into the arms of the ambush! A shriek of warning left Nathaniel's lips. It was drowned in a crash of rifle fire. Volley after volley burst from that shadowy stretch of plain. Before the furious fire the van of the mainlanders crumpled into ruin. Like chaff before a wind those behind were swept back. Apparently they were flying without waiting to fire a shot! Nathaniel dashed down into the plain. Ahead of him the Mormons were charging in a solid line, and in another moment the shore had become a mass of fighting men. Far to the left he saw a group of the mainlanders running along the beach toward the conflict. If he could only intercept them—and bring them into the rear! Like the wind he sped to cut them off, shouting and firing his pistol. He won by a hundred yards and stood panting as they came toward him. Dawn had dispelled the mist-gloom and as the mainlanders drew nearer he discerned in their lead a figure that brought a cry of joy from his lips.

"Neil!" he shouted. "Neil—"

He turned as Marion's brother darted to his side.

"This way—from behind!"

The two led the way, side by side, followed by a dozen men. A glance told Nathaniel that nothing much less than a miracle could turn the tide of battle. Half of the mainlanders were fighting in the water. Others were struggling desperately to get away in the boats. Foot by foot the Mormons were crushing them back, their battle cries now turned into demoniac yells of victory. Into the rear of the struggling mass, firing as they ran, charged the handful of men behind Captain Plum and Neil. For a little space the king's men gave way before them and with wild cheers the powerful fishermen from the coast fought their way toward their comrades. Many of them were armed with long knives; some had pistols; others used their empty rifles as clubs. A dozen more men and they would have split like a wedge through the Mormon mass. Above the din of battle Nathaniel's voice rose in thundering shouts to the men in the sea, and close beside him he heard Neil shrieking out a name between his blows. Like demons they fought straight ahead, slashing with their knives. The Mormon line was thinning. The mainlanders had turned and were fighting their way back, gaining foot by foot what they had lost. Suddenly there came a terrific cheer from the plain and the hope that had flamed in Nathaniel's breast died out as he heard it. He knew what it meant—that the Mormons at St. James had come to reinforce their comrades. He fought now to reach the boats, calling to Neil, whom he could no longer see. Even in that moment he thought of Marion. His only chance was to escape with the others, his only hope of wresting her from the kingdom lay in his own freedom. He had waited too long. A crushing blow fell upon him from behind and with a last cry to Neil he sank under the trampling feet. Indistinctly there came to him the surging shock of the fresh body of Mormons. The din about him became fainter and fainter as though he was being carried rapidly away from it; shouting voices came to him in whispers, and deadened sounds, like the quick tapping of a finger on his forehead, were all that he heard of the steady rifle fire that pursued the defeated mainlanders in their flight.

After a little he began struggling back into consciousness. There was a splitting pain somewhere in his head and he tried to reach his hand to it.

"You won't have to carry him," he heard a voice say. "Give him a little water and he'll walk."

MAN'S RESPECT FOR ANIMALS

We Must Recognize That We Are Overseers of Other Forms of Life on Earth.

If we have any belief at all in a difference of moral faculty between ourselves and the animals we must recognize that we are, so far as our powers over nature will permit, overseers of other forms of life upon the earth, not merely for our own advantage but for the good of the universe. We cannot deny that the struggle for life exists and that we must take part in it and do our best to destroy those forms of life which are hostile to ourselves. We cannot go so far in respect for life as to found a society for the prevention of cruelty to bacilli. But at the same time our respect for life is a sign of our triumph, however imperfect, over the struggle for life; and the greater this respect becomes the more we are men conscious of the promise and significance of all life and the less we are beasts involved in the blind waste of nature.

Very slowly and imperfectly this sense of the promise and significance of all life grows in us. It is not only an intellectual, but rather a religious and emotional idea. It appears first in men like St. Francis with a prophetic sense of a nobler state of being. From them it is communicated by the beauty of their example rather than by argument, to other men; and perhaps when it has become a matter of course in all civilized human beings we shall find that it is of practical value and it will attain to a scientific justification.

Tree Gives Back Watch.

A pickpocket was discovered in the woods near Riverhead, Long Island, recently, but was not arrested. It was a twig.

In December, 1908, L. M. Raynor, of Riverhead was in the woods and unknown to him at the time a twig picked his pocket, neatly extracting his watch, relates the New York World. He did not know of his loss until he reached home and he did not know what had become of the watch. Walking in the woods the other day Raynor saw his watch depending from a twig about the level of his head. He believed he must have bent the branch down while passing and that his pocket was picked at that time. The watch suffered no harm by its year and a half exposure, but started ticking when he wound it up.

MORPHINE RELIEVED PAIN---THE GREAT KIDNEY REMEDY RESTORES TO HEALTH

For the past few years I suffered greatly from what three physicians called neuralgia of the stomach. The doctors treated me without any success and I called in a fourth doctor, who pronounced my disease gall stones. I suffered intense pain and the only relief the doctor could give me was by injections of morphine. I was so completely discouraged that I had almost given up hope when a neighbor told me about Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. I decided to try it and began its use at once and after taking nine bottles was completely cured, not having a spell of sickness in over two years.

I have so much confidence in Swamp-Root that I never fail to recommend it to my friends who may have kidney trouble of any kind. I feel certain that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root saved my life, why should it not do likewise for others who take it in time?

You are at liberty to use this testimony at any time.

BABY'S HAIR ALL CAME OUT

"When my first baby was six months old he broke out on his head with little bumps. They would dry up and leave a scale. Then it would break out again and it spread all over his head. All the hair came out and his head was scaly all over. Then his face broke out all over in red bumps and it kept spreading until it was on his hands and arms. I bought several boxes of ointment, gave him blood medicine, and had two doctors to treat him, but he got worse all the time. He had it about six months when a friend told me about Cuticura. I sent and got a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. In three days after using them he began to improve. He began to take long naps and to stop scratching his head. After taking two bottles of Resolvent, two boxes of Ointment and three cakes of Soap he was sound and well, and never had any breaking out of any kind. His hair came out in little curls all over his head. I don't think anything else would have cured him except Cuticura.

"I have bought Cuticura Ointment and Soap several times since to use for cuts and sores and have never known them to fail to cure what I put them on. I think Cuticura is a great remedy and would advise any one to use it. Cuticura Soap is the best that I have ever used for toilet purposes." (Signed) Mrs. F. E. Harmon, R. F. DES MOINES NEWS LETTER

However great may be the dissention over election of United States Senator and other political matters there is one measure that now seems certain of passage at the coming session of the General Assembly—one that will have the support of democrats and republicans of both factions. That is the state publicity bureau bill. The fact that Iowa people have listened to appealing advertisements of western states to the extent that Iowa's population has not advanced is argument enough to show that Iowa should take her light from under the bushel and let the world know that here is the garden spot of the earth. It is not expected there will be any opposition to the measure. Publicity of Iowa's resources means money in the pocket of every resident. It increases the value of the farmer's land, it builds up the business of the merchant, it puts money in the banks, it creates greater traffic on the inter urbans and builds up the state. Iowa, it is claimed, does not have to take a back seat for any state when it comes to advantages. Other states are spending from $25,000 to $150,000 per year advertising their state. Iowa is now in the position where it must do the same thing to keep in the procession of progress. As yet no legislator has been found who will oppose the measure, and when he makes known any such sentiment he will probably hear promptly from home.

SYNOPSIS.

Capt. Nathaniel Plum of the sloop Typhoon, lands secretly on Beaver island, stronghold of the Mormons. Obadiah Price, Mormon councilor, confronts him, tells him he is expected, and bargains for the ammunition aboard the sloop. He binds Nat by a solemn oath to deliver a package to Franklin Pierce, president of the United States. Near Price's cabin Nat sees the frightened face of a young woman who disappears in the darkness, leaving an odor of lilacs. It develops that Nat's visit to the island is to demand settlement of the king, Strang, for the looting of his sloop by Mormons. Price shows Nat the king's palace, and through a window he sees the lady of the lilacs, who Price says is the king's seventh wife. Calling at the king's office Nat is warned by a young woman that his life is in danger. Strang professes indignation when he hears Nat's grievance and promises to punish the guilty. Nat rescues Neil, who is being publicly whipped, and the king orders the sheriff, Arbor Croche, to pursue and kill the two men. Plum learns that Marion, the girl of the lilacs, is Neil's sister. The two men plan to escape on Nat's sloop and take Marion and Winnsome, daughter of Arbor Croche, and sweetheart of Neil. Nat discovers that the sloop is gone. Marion tells him that his ship has been seized by the Mormons. She begs him to leave the island, telling him that nothing can save her from Strang, whom she is doomed to marry. Plum finds Price raving mad. Recovering, he tells Nat that Strang is doomed, that armed men are descending on the island. Nat learns that Marion has been summoned to the castle by Strang. Nat kills Arbor Croche, and after a desperate fight with the king, leaves him for dead. The avenging host from the mainland descends on St. James. Neil and Nat take a part in the battle and the latter is wounded.

CHAPTER IX.—Continued.

He felt the dash of the water in his face and it put new life into him. Somebody had raised him to a sitting posture and was supporting him there while a second person bound a cloth about his head. He opened his eyes and the light of day shot into them like a stinging, burning charge of needle-points, and he closed them again with a sharp cry of pain. That second's glance had shown him that it was a woman who was binding his head. He had not seen her face. Beyond her he had caught a half-formed vision of many people and the glistening edge of the sea, and as he lay with closed eyes the murmur of voices came to him. The support at his back was taken away, slowly, as if the person who held him feared that he would fall. Nathaniel stiffened himself to show his returning strength and opened his eyes again. This time the pain was not so great. A few yards away he saw a group of people and among them were women; still farther away, so far that his brain grew dizzy as he looked, there was a black moving crowd. He was among the wounded. The Mormon women were here. Down there along the shore—among the dead—had assembled the population of St. James.

A strange sickness overpowered him and he sank back against his supporter. A cool hand passed over his face. It was a soothing, gentle touch—the hand of the woman. He felt the sweep of soft hair against his cheek—a breath whispering in his ear.

"You will be better soon."

His heart stood still.

"You will be better—"

Against his rough cheek there fell the soft pressure of a woman's lips.

Nathaniel pulled himself erect, every drop of blood in him striving for the mastery of his body, his vision, his strength. He tried to turn, but strong arms seized him from behind. A man's voice spoke to him, a man's strength held him. In an agony of appeal Marion's name burst from his lips.

"Sh-h-!" warned the voice behind him. "Are you crazy?"

The arms relaxed their hold and Nathaniel dragged himself to his knees. The woman was gone. As far as he could see there were people—scores of them, hundreds of them—multiplied into thousands and millions as he looked, until there was only a black cloud about him. He staggered to his feet and a strong hand kept him from falling while his brain slowly cleared. The millions and thousands and hundreds of people dissolved themselves into the day until only a handful was left where he had seen multitudes. He turned his face weakly to the man beside him.

"Where did she go?" he asked.

It was a boyish face into which his pleading eyes gazed, a face white with the strain of battle, reddened a little on one cheek with a smear of blood, and there was a startled, frightened look in it that did not come of the strife that had passed.

"Who? What are you talking about?"

"The woman," whispered Nathaniel. "The woman—Marion—who kissed—me—"

The young fellow's hand gripped his arm in a sudden fierce clutch.

"You've been dreaming!" he exclaimed in a threatening voice. "Shut up!" He spoke the words loudly. Then quickly dropping his voice to a whisper he added: "For God's sake don't betray her! They saw her with us—everybody knows that it was the king's wife with you!"

The king's wife! Nathaniel was too weak to analyze the words beyond the fact that they carried the dread truth of his fears deep into his soul. Who would have come to him but Marion? Who else would have kissed him? It was her voice that had whispered in his ear—the thrill of her hand that had passed over his face. And this man had said that she was the wife of the king! He heard the voices of other men near him but did not understand what they were saying. He knew that after a moment there was a man on each side of him holding him by the arms, and mechanically he moved his legs, knowing that they wanted him to walk. They did not guess how weak he was—how he struggled to keep from becoming too great a weight on their hands. Once or twice they stopped in their agonizing climb up the hill. On its top the cool sea air swept into Nathaniel's face and it was like water to a parched throat.

After a time—it seemed a day of terrible work and pain to him—they came to the streets of the town, and in a half conscious sort of way he cursed at the rabble trailing at their heels. They passed close to the temple, dirt and blood and a burning torment shutting the vision of it from his eyes, and beyond this there was another crowd. An aisle opened for them, as it had opened for others ahead of them. In front of the jail they stopped. Nathaniel's head hung heavily upon his breast and he made no effort to raise it. All ambition and desire had left him, all desire but one, and that was to drop upon the ground and lie there for endless, restful years.

A voice dragged him back into life—a voice that boomed in his ears like rolling thunder and set every fiber in him quivering with emotion. He drew himself erect with the involuntary strength of one mastering the last spasm of death and as they dragged him through the door he saw there within an arm's reach of him the great, living face of Strang, gloating at him as if from out of a mist—red eyed, white fanged, filled with the vengefulness of a beast.

The great voice rumbled in his ears again.

"Take that man to the dungeon!"

CHAPTER X.

Winnsome's Verdict of Death.

The voice—the condemning words—followed Nathaniel as he staggered on between his two guards; it haunted him still as the cold chill of the rotting dungeon walls struck in his face; it remained with him as he stood swaying in the thick gloom—the voice rumbling in his ears, the words beating against his brain until the shock of them sickened him, until he stretched out his arms and there fell from him such a cry as had never tortured his lips before.

Strang was alive! He had left the spark of life in him, and the woman who loved him had fanned it back into full flame.

Strang was alive! And Marion—Marion was his wife!

The voice of the king taunted him from the black chaos that hid the dungeon walls. The words struck at him, filling his head with shooting pain, and he tottered back and sank to the ground to get away from them. They followed, and that vengeful leer of the king was behind them, urging them on, until they beat his face into the sticky earth, and smothered him into what he thought was death.

There came rest after that, a long silent rest. When Nathaniel slowly climbed up out of the ebon shadows again the first consciousness that came to him was that the word-demons had stopped their beating against his brain and that he no longer heard the voice of the king. His relief was so great that he breathed a restful sigh. Something touched him then. Great God! were they coming back? Were they still there—waiting—waiting—

It was a wonderfully familiar voice that spoke to him.

"Hello there, Nat! Want a drink?"

He gulped eagerly at the cool liquid that touched his lips.

"Neil," he whispered.

"It's me, Nat. They chucked me in with you. Hell's hole, isn't it?"

Nathaniel sat up, Neil's strong arm at his back. There was a light in the room now and he could see his companion's face, smiling at him encouragingly. The sight of it was like an elixir to him. He drank again and new life coursed through him.

"Yes—hell of a hole!" he repeated drowsily. "Sorry for you—Neil—" and he seemed to sleep again.

Neil laughed as he wiped his companion's face with a wet cloth.

"I'm used to it, Nat. Been here before," he said. "Can you get up? There's a bench over here—not long enough to stretch you out on or I would have made you a bed of it, but it's better than this mud to sit on."

He put his arms about Nathaniel and helped him to his feet. For a few moments the wounded man stood without moving.

"I'm not very bad, I guess," he said, taking a slow step. "Where is the seat, Neil? I'm going to walk to it What sort of a bump have I got on the head?"

"Nothing much," assured Neil. "Suspicious, though," he grinned cheerfully. "Looks as though you were running and somebody came up and tapped you from behind!"

Nathaniel's strength returned to him quickly. The pain had gone from his head and his eyes no longer hurt him. In the dim candle-light he could distinguish the four walls of the dungeon, glistening with the water and mold that reeked from between their rotting logs. The floor was of wet, sticky earth which clung to his boots, and the air that he breathed filled his nostrils and throat with the uncomfortable thickness of a night fog at sea. Through it the candle burned in a misty halo. Near the candle, which stood on a shelf-like table against one of the walls, was a big dish which caught Nathaniel's eyes.

"What's that?" he asked, pointing toward it.

"Grub," replied Neil. "Hungry?"

He went to the table and got the plate of food. There were chunks of boiled meat, unbuttered bread and cold potatoes. For several minutes they ate in silence. Now that Nathaniel was himself again Neil could no longer keep up his forced spirits. Both realized that they had played their game and that it had ended in defeat. And each believed that it was his individual power to alleviate to some extent the other's misery. To Neil what was ahead of them held no mystery. A few hours more and then—death. It was only the form in which it would come that troubled him, that made him think. Usually the victims of this dungeon cell were shot. Sometimes they were hanged. But why tell Nathaniel? So he ate his meat and bread without words, waiting for the other to speak, as the other waited for him. And Nathaniel on his part, kept to himself the secret of Marion's fate. After they had done with the meat and the bread and the cold potatoes he pulled out his beloved pipe and filled it with the last scraps of his tobacco, and as the fumes of it clouded round his head, soothing him in its old friendship, he told of his fight with Strang and his killing of Arbor Croche.

"I'm glad for Winnsome's sake," said Neil, after a moment. "Oh, if you'd only killed Strang!"

Nathaniel thought of what Marion had said to him in the forest.

"Neil," he said quietly, "do you know that Winnsome loves you—not as the little girl whom you toted about on your shoulders—but as a woman? Do you know that?" In the other's silence he added: "When I last saw Marion she sent this message to you—'Tell Neil that he must go, for Winnsome's sake. Tell him that her fate is shortly to be as cruel as mine—tell him that Winnsome loves him and that she will escape and come to him on the mainland.'" Like words of fire they had burned themselves in his brain and as Nathaniel repeated them he thought of that other broken heart that had sobbed out its anguish to him in the castle chamber. "Neil, a man can die easier when he knows that a woman loves him!"

He had risen to his feet and was walking back and forth through the thick gloom.

"I'm glad!" Neil's voice came to him softly, as though he scarcely dared to speak the words aloud. After a moment he added: "Have you got a pencil, Nat? I would like to leave a little note for Winnsome."

Nathaniel found both pencil and paper in one of his pockets and Neil dropped upon his knees in the mud beside the table. Ten minutes later he turned to Nathaniel and a great change had come into his face.

Mrs. Billtops Objects to the One Ingenious Method That Pleases Her Husband.

"As some sage has remarked," said Mr. Billtops, "the longer we lives the more we finds out. You take, for instance, the mending of a trousers pocket that has a hole in it down at the bottom, so that you are in danger of losing out of it your keys or your pocket knife or such small change as you may there carry.

"Now I supposed there were just three ways of mending that pocket, three and no more. One way would be to put a patch on it, another way would be to cut off the bottom of the pocket and sew on a new section, and still another way would be to put in an entire new pocket; but the tailor to whom I took these trousers to be fixed up has shown me a fourth way that made me laugh for its simplicity and at the same time as I thought ingenuity.

"He just folded over the bottom of the pocket high enough up to cover the hole, and then just stitched the pocket across through the folded over part and the main body of the pocket this you see something that could be done in a minute and that at the same time served its purpose. I admired it for its ingenuity and effectiveness, but Mrs. Billtops doesn't look at it as I do.

"She says that if it's a sloppy way of mending a pocket, that it makes the pocket shallower, for one thing, and that then that folded over part, making the pocket of double thickness, makes a ridge there which is not desirable. She says that she has mended pockets that way herself, but that it is not a good way, and I guess she's right; she generally is."

FREE ADVICE TO WOMEN

Women suffering from any form of illness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women. A woman can freely tell of her private illness to a woman thus has been established this confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Never has she published a testimonial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the Company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

Out of the vast volume of experience which Mrs. Pinkham has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge needed in your case. She asks nothing in return except your good will, and her advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. Address Mrs. Pinkham, care of Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Every woman ought to have Lydia E. Pinkham's 80-page Text Book. It is not a book for general distribution, as it is too expensive. It is free and only obtainable by mail. Write for it today.

STILLMAN SPEAKER

He Was Chosen Without Opposition in House Caucus

LEGISLATURE FORMALLY OPENS

Caucuses of Members of the Senate and House of Thirty-fourth General Assembly Select Officers.

Des Moines, Jan. 9.—The Thirty-fourth general assembly was formally opened. The senate and the house met for organization purposes. This done the next order of business was the reading of the governor's message and the canvassing of the vote on governor and lieutenant governor. This will probably be done Tuesday.

The voting on United States senator begins Tuesday, Jan. 17.

Stillman Named Speaker.

The dove of peace, which has been sitting uncertainly over the republican members of the lower house of the legislature, alighted in safety Saturday in the house caucus on organization and remained undisturbed during the session.

Paul E. Stillman of Jefferson, progressive republican candidate for speaker, was nominated unanimously. Representative Goodykoontz of Boone placed Stillman's name before the caucus, and Moore of Linn, one of the leaders of the standpatters, seconded the nomination.

Representative Perkins of Delaware was unanimously chosen speaker pro tem.

By the same procedure and without a dissenting vote, "Rush" Benedict of Shelby was nominated for chief clerk of the house.

The members of the house then appointed a committee of one man from each congressional district to fill the remainder of the house offices.

Garrit Klay of the Eleventh district was chairman of this committee and Frank Shane of Eldon, secretary.

Adjournment was then taken until 7:30 o'clock, at which time the committee reported the following nominations, which were adopted by the caucus as a whole:

Assistant clerk—A. C. Gustafson, Red Oak.

Reading clerk—Thomas Watters, Des Moines.

Engrossing clerk—Caroline Young Smith, Des Moines.

Enrolling clerk—Mabel Elwood, Mt. Vernon.

Journal clerk—F. G. Luke, Hampton; Mrs. L. S. Elliott, Des Moines.

File clerk—B. C. Guilliam, Madison county.

Assistant file clerk—Bert Byers, Hancock county.

Bill clerk—E. H. Trease.

Assistant bill clerk—Granted to democrats.

Sergeant-at-arms— J. Heffelfinger, Grundy Center.

Assistant postmistress—Mrs. Clara K. Hook, Louisa county.

Chief doorkeeper—A. M. May, Waukon.

Assistant doorkeepers—M. B. Shirk, Batavia; C. A. Smith, Agency; J. W. Jones, Altoona; Albert Root, Centerville; W. S. Morrison, Menlo; Thos. J. Carpenter, Le Mars; George R. Dawson, Albia; F. M. Stone, Des Moines; John Norris, Audubon; A. J. Scott, Lake City, and L. L. Smith. Three assistant doorkeepers were granted to the democrats, the one condition being that the men selected be old soldiers.

Chief janitor—R. N. Hyde of Des Moines.

Assistant janitors—Ford, Hackler, and Terry.

Senate Republicans Organize.

The senate organization of the republicans, as perfected by the caucus, is as follows:

Secretary—George A. Wilson of Des Moines.

First assistant secretary—Joseph E. Meyer of Des Moines.

Second assistant secretary—A. H. Raleigh of Estherville.

Journal clerks—W. M. Lewis of Des Moines, and Paul Gilliland of Glenwood.

Enrolling clerk—Miss Harriett Ellwood of Decorah.

Bill clerk—Floyd V. Bennett of Leon.

Engrossing clerk—Miss Margaret Williams of Des Moines.

Sergenat-at-arms—J. H. Reece of Belmond.

File clerk—Miss Josie Legore of Jefferson.

Doorkeeper—Newton J. Jolley of Osceola.

Assistant doorkeepers—Jesse Bowen, W. A. Groves, Levi Hocket, J. H. Doty, I. L. Rerick, Albert Howell, D. A. Heisler, and E. L. Stillson.

Janitor—Jeff Logan of Des Moines.

Assistant janitors—P. S. Irvin and J. S. Wilson of Des Moines.

LOOK TO YOUR KIDNEYS.

When Suffering From Backache, Headaches and Urinary Troubles.

They are probably the true source of your misery. To keep well, you must keep your kidneys well. There is no better kidney remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills. They cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently.

Edward Porsche, 1833 Cleveland Ave., Chicago, Ill., says: "My eyes were puffed from dropsy and my face and feet terribly swollen. I was laid up for three months and although I doctored, I received little benefit. Doan's Kidney Pills relieved the awful back pains, stopped the swelling and made me feel 100 per cent. better."

FLAX IS PROFITABLE

Wonderful Paying Proposition In Western Canadian Prairies.

So much is heard of the wheat, oats and barley grown in the prairie lands of western Canada, and so much has been told of the wealth to be made out of the raising of cattle on the succulent and rich grasses of those fertile plains, that a most important product has been almost lost sight of, Flax. Recent press reports advise us that on one of the last boats to clear from Fort William (at the head of Lake Superior) for Buffalo, there were 241,000 bushels of flax valued at $583,220, and on another boat leaving the same day there were 288,000 bushels valued at $720,000. There has been a big demand for Canadian flax this season, and the lake movement has been very heavy. Flax is always a sure crop, and gives to the farmer who is anxious for quick return after getting on his land, the chance he is looking for. There is opportunity for thousands yet, on the free homesteads of 160 acres, and many of these are available within short distance of the lines of railway that are already built or under construction, either on the main line or branches. Besides these free grant lands there is an opportunity to purchase from railway and land companies at reasonable prices.

The display of western Canada's grains in the straw as well as threshed grains and grasses recently made at St. Louis was an excellent demonstration of what the country can do. It proved splendid as an illustration of the resources of that vast prairie country, which during the past year has again proven its ability to produce excellent yields of wheat, oats and barley—and flax. Not only this, but the splendid herds of cattle are a source of large revenue. There is a fund of information to be had by reading the Canadian government literature, copies of which may be had free by applying to your nearest Canadian government agent.

The man who is anxious to let you know that God is on his tongue usually has the devil in his heart.

Fore-Door Five-Passenger Touring Car

The Man Who Discriminates Chooses This Standard Motor Car

Snap judgment or poor advice from someone who does not know will often lead a man to make a serious mistake in the purchase of a motor car.

He will regret it and the chances are he won't make the same mistake again.

That's why you see so many experienced automobilists—men and women who have been buying motor cars since they first came out—purchase the Abbott-Detroit.

Our agents in writing us have commented on this significant fact—stating that of their old customers who were experienced in buying cars for years back, all without exception have been taking Abbott-Detroit cars this year.

Why We Want to Send You the Book of the Abbott-Detroit

Simply because if you ever expect to buy a motor car, you want to be able to avoid the pitfalls, to be able to discriminate and get the very best in a motor car for your money.

In the Book of the Abbott-Detroit, we show you the many features of this car that equal those in motor cars selling up to $4000.

We show views of all our leading models, of the chassis, the remarkable motor, the Chrome Nickel Steel Construction in the transmission and rear axle.

We acquaint you fully with the points of standardization and perfect balance which make the Abbott-Detroit the great value in a $1500 car.

We'll Give You a Letter of Introduction to Our Agent

This letter will enable you to meet our own representative personally, to be shown the Abbott-Detroit and to have every detail explained to you fully.

You can find that the price of the Abbott-Detroit, $1500, includes everything but top and windshield, and that other cars advertised at $1500 are sold "stripped"—that is, you have to pay up to $2000 to get all the equipment they call "extras."

So Do Not Fail to Sign and Mail the Coupon

What we will send you will help you to crystallize your ideas on automobiles, to discriminate thoroughly in purchasing.

It will give you the same information experts use in deciding.

It will impress on you the importance of owning the car built for permanence, the one backed up by the greatest automobile service department in the country.

It will enable you to see with your own eyes the greatest value in a $1500 motor car, the one perfectly standardized motor car selling at this price.

Dealers writing for territory still untaken will be made our regular Agency Proposition.

PRICES—5-Passenger Touring Car, $1500; Fore-Door 5-Passenger Touring Car, $1550; Roadster, $1500; Fore-Door Demi-Tonneau (Tonneau detachable), $1650; Coupe, $2350. All include standard equipment, f. o. b. Detroit, Michigan.

Explanatory

In our eleven or twelve years' experience in publishing a newspaper it has never been necessary for us to miss an issue of our paper until last week, when we were called away on Wednesday on account of the death of our wife's brother, W. E. Sage, of Dows. When we left we thought we could be home in time to get a paper out, but circumstances prevented, and we were unable to get competent help to get the paper out in our absence, so we were compelled to neglect it. We trust that our readers all appreciate the circumstances and will overlook our shortcomings. Those who are reading our continued story will find that it will make connections all right.

Obituary

Died, at his home in Dows, Iowa. on Wednesday, January 11, 1911, W. E. Sage, aged 27 years, 3 months and 17 days.

It is always a sad task for us to write of death, and when it comes so close it is doubly hard. Until the last few years deceased and the writer were together much of the time and were as near each other then as it could be possible for own brothers to be. Web was always a faithful worker and a loyal friend and we will all sadly miss him. He has been sick with diabetes for the past six months but has stuck loyally to his work until he went to his bed for the last time on January 6th.

Webster Earl Sage was born in Miller, Hand County, South Dakota. on September 25, 1883. When fourteen years of age he moved with his parents to Iowa where he has since resided, and eleven years of his life were spent in Hancock county. Here he worked on the Garner papers and for about three years published the Woden Watchman, moving to Dows about two years ago, where he has since been employed as foreman on the Advocate. On August 15, 1905, he was united in marriage to Clara Zilla Malloch at Garner, who with their little son, survives him. Funeral services were held from the Presbyterian church at Dows at eleven o'clock on Friday and interment was made in the Garner cemetery Friday afternoon, Rev. Keck of the M. E. church officiating. The floral offerings were most beautiful. The offering of the Dows business men was a broken wheel set piece, the Dows band boys gave a lovely floral design, and many bouquets came from Dows friends and neighbors.

Deceased leaves to mourn his passing a wife and four-year-old son, his mother Mrs. S. L. Sage. and three sisters—Mrs. A. C. Flint of Klemme, Mrs. O. S. Bailey of Britt and Mrs. R. D. Hillary of Spirit Lake.

While our mission to Dows last week was a sad one, there was a pleasure connected with it in meeting with a number of the citizens of that town. We have before been in strange communities on similar occasions, but never before have we met with as sympathetic, loyal and friendly a class of citizens as we found in Dows. And Dows is wide-awake in a business way, too. Their stores are all up to the minute, they have good substantial business houses. fine homes and good schools and churches. Last, but in nowise least, they have in the Dows Advocate, one of the best country weekly papers in the state of Iowa.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is not a common, every-day cough mixture. It is a meritorious remedy for all the troublesome and dangerous complications resulting from cold in the head, throat, chest or lungs. Sold by all dealers.

STUBBORN ECZEMA ON HANDS

"Some nine years ago I noticed small pimples breaking out on the back of my hands. They became very irritating, and gradually became worse, so that I could not sleep at night. I consulted a physician who treated me a long time, but it got worse, and I could not put my hands in water. I was treated at the hospital, and it was just the same. I was told that it was a very bad case of eczema. Well, I just kept on using everything that I could for nearly eight years until I was advised to try Cuticura Ointment. I did so, and I found after a few applications and by bandaging my hands well up that the burning sensations were disappearing, I could sleep well, and did not have any itching during the night. I began after a while to use Cuticura Soap for a wash for them, and I think by using the Soap and Ointment I was much benefited. I stuck to the Cuticura treatment, and thought if I could use other remedies for over seven years with no result, and after only having a few applications and finding ease from Cuticura Ointment, I thought it deserved a fair trial with a severe and stubborn case. I used the Ointment and Soap for nearly six months, and I am glad to say that I have hands as clear as anyone.

"It is my wish that you publish this letter to all the world, and if anyone doubts it, let them write me and I will give them the name of my physician, also the hospital I was treated at." (Signed) Miss Mary A. Bentley, 93 University St., Montreal, Que., Sept. 14, 1910.

Due Precautions.

In a town in Georgia there was an old preacher whose knowledge of the world was not wide nor deep, but who conceived it to be a place where, if one should trust his fellow men, he should at the same time keep an eye on his own interests.

One hot day he pulled off his coat and preached a vigorous sermon, under the pines, in his shirt sleeves. At the close of the open-air service one of his admirers approached him and said, regretfully:

"I don't suppose that you knew that the editor of one of the big New York Sunday papers was here when you pulled off your coat."

"I reckon I knew it well, for I'd been told of it," said the preacher, calmly. "I don't believe he's as bad as he might be, and anyway, I put my coat on the chair close by and had it right under my eye all the time."—Youth's Companion.

Weak Heart

Many people suffer from weak hearts. They may experience shortness of breath on exertion, pain over the heart, or dizzy feelings, oppressed breathing after meals or their eyes become blurred, their heart is not sufficiently strong to pump blood to the extremities, and they have cold hands and feet, or poor appetite because of weakened blood supply to the stomach. A heart tonic and alterative should be taken which has no bad after-effect. Such is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which contains no dangerous narcotics nor alcohol.

The ingredients, as attested under oath, are Stone root (Collinsonia Canadensis), Bloodroot (Sanguinaria Canadensis), Golden Seal root (Hydrastis Canadensis), Queen's root (Stillingia Sylvatica), Black Cherrybark (Prunus Virginiana), Mandrake root (Podophyllum Peltatum), with triple refined glycerine, prepared in a scientific laboratory in a way that no druggist could imitate.

This tonic contains no alcohol to shrink up the red blood corpuscles; but, on the other hand, it increases their number and they become round and healthy. It helps the human system in the constant manufacture of rich, red blood. It helps the stomach to assimilate or take up the proper elements from the food, thereby helping digestion and curing dyspepsia, heart-burn and many uncomfortable symptoms, stops excessive tissue waste in convalescence from fevers; for the run-down, anæmic, thin-blooded people, the "Discovery" is refreshing and vitalizing. Stick to this safe and sane remedy, and refuse all "just as good" medicines offered by the druggist who is looking for a larger profit. Nothing but Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will do you half as much good.

CONSTIPATION

Munyon's Paw Paw Pills are unlike all other laxatives or cathartics. They coax the liver into activity by gentle methods. They do not scour; they do not gripe; they do not weaken; but they do start all the secretions of the liver and stomach in a way that soon puts these organs in a healthy condition and corrects constipation.

Munyon's Paw-Paw Pills are, a tonic to the stomach, liver and nerves. They invigorate instead of weaken; they enrich the blood instead of impoverish it; they enable the stomach to get all the nourishment from food that is put into it.

These pills contain no calomel, no dope, they are soothing, healing and stimulating. They school the bowels to act without physic. Price 25 cents.

44 Bu. to the Acre

is a heavy yield, but that's what John Kennedy of Edmonton, Alberta, Western Canada, got from 40 acres of Spring Wheat in 1910. Reports from other districts in that province showed other excellent results—such as 4,000 bushels of wheat from 120 acres, or 33 1-3 bu. per acre. 25, 30 and 40 bushel yields were numerous. As high as 153 bushels of oats to the acre were threshed from Alberta fields in 1910.

The Silver Cup

at the recent Spokane Fair was awarded to the Alberta Government for its exhibit of grains, grasses and vegetables. Reports of excellent yields for 1910 come also from Saskatchewan and Manitoba in Western Canada.

Free homesteads of 160 acres, and adjoining pre-emptions of 160 acres (at $3 per acre) are to be had in the choicest districts.

Schools convenient, climate excellent, soil the very best, railways close at hand, building lumber cheap, fuel easy to get and reasonable in price, water easily procured, mixed farming a success.

OLD COMMON SENSE.
Change Food When You Feel Out of Sorts.

"A great deal depends upon yourself and the kind of food you eat," the wise old doctor said to a man who came to him sick with stomach trouble and sick headache once or twice a week, and who had been taking pills and different medicines for three or four years.

He was induced to stop eating any sort of fried food or meat for breakfast, and was put on Grape-Nuts and cream, leaving off all medicines.

In a few days he began to get better, and now he has entirely recovered and writes that he is in better health than he has been before in twenty years. This man is 58 years old and says he feels "like a new man all the time."

BIENNIAL MESSAGE

GOVERNOR CARROLL MAKES RECOMMENDATIONS TO GENERAL ASSEMBLY

FAOVRS A TAX COMMISSION

Asks that Iowa's Highways Be Still Further Improved, Capitol Grounds Enlarged, Many Laws Revised and Public Utilities Commission Created

Des Moines.—In his biennial message to the senate and house of representatives of the thirty-fourth general assembly, Governor B. F. Carroll said, in part:

"In compliance with the provisions of article 4, section 12, of the constitution requiring the governor to "communicate, by message, to the general assembly, at every regular session, the condition of the state, and recommending such matters as he shall deem expedient," I present to you the following:

"From the biennial report of the auditor of state you will observe that there was in the state treasury, July 1, 1910, $1,003,915 to the credit of the general fund. The estimated receipts from that date to July 1, 1913, amount to $12,540,000, making a total of $13,543,915. The estimated expenditures, for general purposes, from July 1, 1910, to July 1, 1913, are $10,938,000, leaving a balance of $2,605,915. From this should be deducted $306,000, hunters' license, not available for general purposes and $800,000 needed to meet current expenses from July 1, 1913, to October 1, 1913, during which time the state's income is very meagre. Deducting these two amounts leaves a net balance of $1,499,915 available for extraordinary appropriations during the biennial period ending June 30, 1913. More than this amount it would not be safe for you to appropriate.

"By reason of the policy of economy practiced by the last session of the general assembly and because of the increased income from sources other than by taxation the executive council has been able to make a reduction of one-tenth of a mill in the levy for general state purposes made in 1909 and a like reduction in 1910 so that the levy is now three and three-tenths mills instead of three and five-tenths as it had previously been. I scarcely need say to you that the levy for the next two years will depend entirely upon the extent of the appropriations made by you and the means which you provide for raising revenue from sources other than by taxation. I trust that you will keep well within the figures above quoted.

Collateral Inheritance Tax.

"I am advised by those enjoined with the duty of enforcing the collateral inheritance tax law that it needs to be rewritten to the end that it may be made more specific and that ambiguities that now exist may be removed. It is quite defective in some of its provisions, especially as to the collection of interest, and as to bringing suit against those who inherit under the will and who decline or fail to pay the tax in the manner and time provided by law.

"The income to the state from collateral inheritance has increased quite perceptibly, the income for the last biennial period, ending June 30, 1910, being $447,179.40, while for the previous biennial period it was only $341,359.93, making a net increase of $105,819.47.

Direct Inheritance Tax.

"I believe that the time has arrived when the question of a direct inheritance tax should demand your most serious consideration. It is not a new thing in the affairs of states. Some of the older and more conservative commonwealths, as well as many of the newer ones, have laws providing for the taxing of estates descending to direct heirs. In applying the law larger estates should be taxed at the greater rate and the per cent of tax exacted should increase with the size of the inheritance and with the remoteness in relationship of the deceased to the one who inherits. I recommend the enactment of a direct inheritance tax law not only as a means of raising revenue but because I believe it to be correct in principle. Already twenty states, viz.: California, Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, New York, North Carolina, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming, have adopted direct inheritance tax laws. Each and all of these states, like our own, has a collateral inheritance law also. It cannot therefore be said that our state is either too old or too young to have such a law, or that the existence of any other statute should interfere.

Income Tax.

At a later date I will transmit to your honorable body a certified copy of a joint resolution passed by the first session of the Sixty-first congress proposing an amendment to the constitution of the United States empowering congress to enact a law to tax incomes.

A Tax Commission.

"I wish again to call attention to the fact that the tax laws of the state are very inequitable, and, in some respects, unjust. It has now been fourteen years since there has been a general revision of our revenue laws. Many changes in conditions have arisen in that time and many new methods of taxation have been adopted in other states which are worthy of consideration.

The tax ferret law, the taxing of moneys and credits, a filing fee upon mortgages, based upon the amount and time to run, and many other features of taxation are attracting much attention.

"Our methods of distribution of values are open to criticism; especially is this true as to telegraph, telephone and railway terminal property. Many of these questions are of such magnitude and importance that I do not believe that they can be properly dealt with during the time of an ordinary session of your honorable body. I therefore recommend that a commission be provided to study carefully all the phases of the taxing question, prepare an entire new revenue code and submit it to the next session of the general assembly.

Drainage, Conservation and Waterways Commission.

"The thirty-third session of the general assembly created a commission to study into and investigate the subject of drainage, waterways, conservation of resources, etc. In the published report made by the commission the various subjects included in the scope of its work are thoroughly discussed and many valuable recommendations are made.

Agricultural Society.

"From the appropriation made therefor by the thirty-third session of the general assembly together with funds of the society, there has been exerted a splendid and commodious steel and concrete amphitheater upon the ground of the State Agricultural society. It has added greatly to the convenience of those visiting the fair and has brought increased interest and attendance. Many other improvements have been made, such as the construction of more than 70,000 square feet of cement walk, adding two new units of buildings, one to the horse barn and one to the cow barn, and adopting a general and permanent plan for the development of the grounds and locating new buildings. About $175,000 have been spent in various improvements at the fair grounds since your last session, nearly $75,000 of which came from the funds of the society. The state fair has become a great means of education to our people along all the lines of the exhibits, and its benefits and influences are felt in all parts of the state. It stands easily in the front rank of all the state fairs.

Horticultural Interests.

"I have believed and still believe that the horticultural interests of the state have been and are being grossly neglected. The fruit crop failure of the last year should not prove a discouragement. It is believed by many that by proper care and the use of smudges much of the crop of last year might have been saved.

"We need to have our people better educated along the lines of caring for and protecting our fruit interests. The horticultural people of the state are asking to have some one employed as a field man to spend his time among the fruit growers informing and enlightening them as to the best means of growing and caring for orchards. Whether this is the best means to employ in educating our people in fruit growing, I cannot say, but I recommend that you give every reasonable encouragement to this important interest.

Hog Cholera Serum.

"The sum of eight thousand dollars was appropriated by the last session of the legislature for the establishment of a plant for the manufacture of hog cholera serum. The operation and management of the plant was placed under the control of the state veterinary surgeon, who, under the advice of the executive council, leased 114 acres of ground north of the state fair grounds and thereon has located the plant. The entire amount of the appropriation has been used up but the law provides that the proceeds of the sale of the serum may be used in connection with the operation of the plant. Up to January $2,534 worth of serum had been sold. So far as can be learned the serum method of treating the disease of cholera has proven successful.

Public Utilities Commission.

"Two years ago I recommended to the general assembly the creation of a public utilities commission, or the enlargement of the powers of the railway commission. I then suggested that the membership of the railway commission, if clothed with the powers referred to, be increased to five and that the added members be appointed by the governor, and as the terms of the present members expire, their successors be elected and I now desire to renew that recommendation and to say that, in my opinion, a commission clothed with such power and authority as is given by the laws of the state of New York or Wisconsin would prove of great benefit to the state. Added reasons are apparent almost daily why we need such a commission.

"Then, too, the question of the regulation and control of the water power of the state should be lodged with the proposed commission. This is an important matter and one which has been very much neglected.

Primary Election Law.

"One of the important matters that should receive the attention of your honorable body is that of the primary election law. It ought to be so amended as to make it absolutely fair and, so far as possible, free from opportunities for abuse. Irregularities in the name of reform are no more excusable than under any other circumstances. If charges that have been made are true, there can be no question but that many delegates to the last republican state convention won their seat by sharp political practice either upon the part of themselves or of others. I am not referring to any particular faction. There ought not to be any ground for such charges, and a law that makes such things possible should either be amended or wiped off of the statute books.

Institutions Under Management of the Board of Control.

The institutions under the management of the board of control demand your most careful consideration. You will find in the report of the board, recently made public, a comprehensive review and discussion of the affairs and necessities of the various institutions and I earnestly request that you make a careful study of this report.

Board of Parole and Increase in Prison Population.

A study of the report of the board of control and of the board of parole will disclose the fact that our prison population has increased quite materially since the establishment of the latter board. The average number of prisoners at Fort Madison for the last biennial period was 487 as against 443 for the preceding period, and at Anamosa it was 437, as against 354, or an average increase in the two institutions of 127.

Better Highways.

"The question of better roads has received more than usual attention during the last year. Many meetings have been held in various parts of the state and great interest has been taken in the matter of road building. Many of the highways of the state have become models of dirt roads, and with constant attention I believe can be kept so most of the year. Especial consideration has been given to what is known as the River-to-River road, connecting Council Bluffs with Davenport and following generally the line of the Rock Island railroad, and to the Transcontinental road between Council Bluffs and Clinton and following the general course of the Northwestern railroad. And now it is proposed to establish a route through the southern part of the state to be known as the Blue Grass road and connecting Council Bluffs with Fort Madison. Also one in the north part of the state to be called the Hawkeye route, connecting Dubuque and Sioux City. Perhaps the best and most scientifically constructed highway to be found in the state is that connecting Montezuma, Malcom, Brooklyn and Grinnell in Poweshiek county. It is built by contract out of the one mill levy expended by the board of supervisors.

"If hundreds of miles of roads can be put in shape and kept up on the present levy, why can not many thousands of miles be so kept if proper attention and care is exercised."

"I believe that the road laws of the state should be rewritten in order that they may be simplified and brought together in one continuous enactment.

The Death of Senator Dolliver.

The state was greatly shocked at the news of the death of Senator Dolliver, which occurred on the evening of the 16th day of October last, at his home in Fort Dodge. At the time of his death he was representing our state, as its senior member in the United States senate and his death caused a vacancy which I have filled by the appointment of Hon. Lafayette Young. As you are aware, his appointment lasts only until your honorable body fills the vacancy or adjourns without filling it.

There has been much talk about the legislature's withholding action on the matter of electing a senator and providing for a special primary so that the people may express their preference with reference thereto. The law clothes you with all the authority necessary to act and enjoins upon you the responsibility of filling the vacancy and I trust that you will do so in due time.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Have You Rheumatism, Kidney, Liver or Bladder Trouble?

Swamp-Root is always kept up to its high standard of purity and excellence. A sworn certificate of purity with every bottle.

Pain or dull ache in the back is evidence of kidney trouble. It is Nature's timely warning to show you that the track of health is not clear.

Danger Signals.

If these danger signals are unheeded more serious results follow; Bright's disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble, may steal upon you.

The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable curative effect in the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine, you should have the best.

Lame Back.

Lame back is only one of many symptoms of kidney trouble. Other symptoms showing that you need Swamp-Root are, being obliged to pass water often during the day and to get up many times during the night.

Inability to hold urine, smarting in passing, uric acid, headache, dizziness, indigestion, sleeplessness, nervousness, sometimes the heart acts badly, rheumatism, bloating, lack of ambition, may be loss of flesh, sallow complexion.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who usually content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease constantly undermines the system.

A Trial Will Convince Anyone.

In taking Swamp-Root you afford natural help to Nature, for Swamp-Root is a gentle healing herbal compound—a physician's prescription for special diseases.

Funds to Fight Tuberculosis.

Based on reports from all parts of the United States the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis has issued a statement which shows that in 1910 nearly $15,000,000 was spent in the fight against tuberculosis, as opposed to $8,000,000 spent in 1909. The largest item of expense in 1910 was for treatment in sanatoria and hospitals, $11,376,500 being expended for that purpose, or more than double the amount for 1909. The anti-tuberculosis associations spent $760,500, and the tuberculosis dispensaries $889,000. The special municipal and state expenditures aggregated $1,750,000.

The statement declares that the most significant fact in the survey of the year's work is the increase in the percentage of public money spent. While in 1909 53.5 per cent. of the total expenditure was from federal, state, municipal or county funds, 62.6 per cent. came from public appropriations in 1910. The actual amount of public money spent in tuberculosis work this past year was $9,267,900, or more than double the amount from this same source in 1909. This fact indicates, the national association declares, that anti-tuberculosis associations are gaining ground, by securing increased appropriations from public money.

LETTER FROM S. H. DAY

Hubbard, Oregon, Jan. 7, 1911.

A. C. Flint:

Dear Sir. Please address my paper to Hubbard, Oregon, R. F. D. No. 2, where I have bought a farm and am to be located.

Hubbard is situated thirty miles south of Portland, which is at the head of Willamette Valley. Although we are only thirty miles from that great city we have an average of six degrees warmer. The total average temperature for December was forty-two degrees above zero. January so far has been warmer. During the bad weather we had three light frosts. The bad weather consists of the rainy season which is in the months of December and January. The rainfall during the year was thirty-four inches.

The main produce is fruit, apples being the chief of these, while most everything else is raised, but not so abundant. Potatoes are a chief product also, as high as one hundred and sixty acres being planted in one patch last year by Woodburn Orchard Company. Hops is coming to be one of the leading products; as high as fifteen hundred pounds can be raised on an acre of ground, the present price being seventeen and one-half cents per pound. There is some dairying done here. The Jerseys are about the only cattle that are raised here in Oregon. We also have a very large lumber output, Portland being the largest in the world.

Prices are good for nearly everything due to the fact that we have good transportation by boat and rail to other parts of the globe. The railroads are not as numerous as they are in Iowa but there were over forty millions spent last year in improvement and as much more will be done this year. Why not come to Oregon where the flowers bloom all the year around instead of going to Iowa or where Iowa laps into Missouri where it is bleak and cold?

Yours truly,
S. H. DAY.

We never thought that a bright young man who was born and raised in Grand Old Iowa could find so many good things in another state in a few short weeks. We believe Steve is dreaming and that when he awakes he may wish himself back in Iowa the best state in the Union. However, it is good to be a booster, and we are glad Steve likes his new home. May he prosper.—EDITOR.

Have you a weak throat? If so you cannot be too careful. You cannot begin treatment too early. Each cold makes you more liable to another and the last is always the harder to cure. If you will take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy at the outset you will be saved much trouble. Sold by all dealers.

Sure to Win

Success is desired by all. This is attained by constant, faithful work and the saving of part of your earnings.

If you are going to win. Begin Now. We will be glad to start your account at $1 or over, and help you in all business steps.

One Thing That a Woman Has No Right to Expect From a Man.

"I always believe," he gallantly said, "in yielding to the ladies."

"I suppose you always give way to your wife when you and she happen to have an argument?"

"Invariably."

"And you never fail to relinquish your seat in the car when it happens that some woman would have to stand unless you did so?"

"Certainly."

"Do you take off your hat when you get into an elevator where there are ladies?"

"I never fail to do that."

"If you had secured the last lower berth in a sleeper would you give it up to a lady who would otherwise have to occupy an upper?"

"Of course. I have done it frequently."

"In case you stood in line in front of a ticket window, would you be willing to go away back to the end so that some woman might have your place?"

"Say, what do you think I am—a fool?"

Of Course.

"I see that the inmates of a New York lunatic asylum are going to issue a weekly paper."

"Yes, and I'll bet every fool outside will think he could edit it better than it is edited by the lunatic inside."

CHEATED FOR YEARS.

Prejudice Will Cheat Us Often If We Let It.

You will be astonished to find how largely you are influenced in every way by unreasoning prejudice. In many cases you will also find that the prejudice has swindled you, or rather, made you swindle yourself. A case in illustration:

"I have been a constant user of Grape-Nuts for nearly three years," says a correspondent, "and I am happy to say that I am well pleased with the result of the experiment, for such it has been.

"Seeing your advertisement in almost all of the periodicals, for a long time I looked upon it as a hoax. But after years of suffering with gaseous and bitter eructations from my stomach, together with more or less loss of appetite and flesh, I concluded to try Grape-Nuts food for a little time and note the result.

"I found it delicious, and it was not long till I began to experience the beneficial effects. My stomach resumed its normal state, the eructations and bitterness ceased and I have gained all my lost weight back.

"I am so well satisfied with the result that so long as I may live and retain my reason Grape-Nuts shall constitute quite a portion of my daily food."

Guy A. Feely of Waterloo, candidate for United States senattor, has withdrawn from the contest before the legislature and released his supporters from all pledge to him.

Hold Reception in New Building.

Wives of members of the general assembly and of state officers, held an informal reception in the executive offices in the state house. This is the first of a series of meetings to be held by the Legislative Ladies' league, formed by the wives of legislators in the Thirty-third general assembly.

The second meeting was in the historical building, which has just been fully completed. The wives of the legislators invite all state officers and their wives, legislative people and citizens of Des Moines to the affair. Curator Harlan announced that the occasion would be made the first formal opening of the building.

Des Moines News Notes.

Gilbert of Clayton showed nerve, and took seat No. 23.

The suffragettes, through Senator Dunnegan of the Fremont-Page district, opened their campaign for equal rights in the legislature. Senator Dunnegan introduced a bill providing that sex shall not be a bar to any person seeking office in Iowa.

Personal property of Polk county increased in value $1,500,000 during the year 1910, according to the figures on the tax books that have just been turned over to County Treasurer George L. Dobson by Lew Burnett, head of the county tax department. The taxable value is one-fourth of this amount, or $375,000.

NURSE TELLS OF SKIN CURES

"I have seen the Cuticura Remedies used with best results during the past twenty years. In my work as a nurse, many skin disease cases came under my observation, and in every instance, I always recommended the Cuticura Remedies as they always gave entire satisfaction. One case in particular was that of a lady friend of mine who, when a child, was afflicted with eczema which covered her face and hands entirely, breaking out at intervals with severer torture. She could not go to school as the disfigurement looked terrible. I told her to get at once a set of Cuticura Remedies. After the use of only one set she was perfectly well.

"A grown lady friend was afflicted with salt rheum in one of her thumbs, and she was cured by the Cuticura Remedies. Still another lady had dry salt rheum in both palms of her hands every fall of the year. They used to be so painful she could scarcely wet her hands until she began to use the Cuticura Remedies which cured her. I have also seen them cure children of ringworm. The children's faces would be all circles and rings around the cheeks, and the neck ,and after treatment with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment they were completely cured. My husband had rheumatism on his arm and I used the Cuticura Ointment. It made his arm as limber and nice, whereas it was quite stiff before I began to apply the Ointment.

"Last May I had an ingrowing toe nail which was very painful, as the side of the nail was edging right down in the side of my toe. I cut the nail out of the cavity it made, and of course applied the Cuticura Ointment to the part affected. It soothed it and in less than ten nights it was all healed through constant use of the Ointment. Ten days ago I had my left hand and wrist burned with boiling lard, and Cuticura Ointment has completely cured them. I have just recommended the Cuticura Remedies to another friend, and she is pleased with the results and is recovering nicely. I will gladly furnish the names of the people referred to above if anybody doubts what I say." (Signed) Mrs. Margaret Hederson, 77 Highland Ave., Malden, Mass., Oct. 1, 1910.

The extraordinary popularity of fine white goods this summer makes the choice of Starch a matter of great importance. Defiance Starch, being free from all injurious chemicals, is the only one which is safe to use on fine fabrics. Its great strength as a stiffener makes half the usual quantity of Starch necessary, with the result of perfect finish, equal to that when the goods were new.

The Wise Bishop.

To the brilliant Episcopal bishop of Tennessee, Dr. Thomas F. Gailor, a Memphis man of rather narrow views, complained about charity balls.

"I doubt if it be quite reverent, Bishop," the man said, "to give a ball for the purposes of charity."

But Bishop Gailor, with a saving burst of common sense, laughed and replied:

"Why, my dear fellow, I'm sure, if it would do anybody any good, I'd dance the whole length of Memphis in full canonicals."

Woman's Danger Periods Made Safe

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease.

Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs. Here is proof:

Natick, Mass.,—"I cannot express what I went through during the Change of Life before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in such a nervous condition I could not keep still. My limbs were cold. I had creepy sensations and could not sleep nights. I was finally told by two physicians that I had a tumor.

"I read one day of the wonderful cures made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and it has made me a well woman. My neighbors and friends declare it has worked a miracle for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth its weight in gold for women during this period of life. If it will help others you may publish this letter."—Mrs. Nathan B. Greaton, 51 No. Main St., Natick, Mass.

ANOTHER SIMILAR CASE.

Cornwallville, N. Y.—"I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for some time for Change of Life, nervousness, and a fibroid growth.

"Two doctors advised me to go to the hospital, but one day while I was away visiting, I met a woman who told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and I know it helped me wonderfully. I am very thankful that I was told to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Wm. Boughton, Cornwallville, N. Y., Greene Co.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as those above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for years.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

TEN MILLION PEOPLE IN THE CANADIAN WEST BY 1920

"Toronto Star," Dec. 16th, 1910.

The prediction is made that before 1920 Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia will have ten million people. It is made not by a sanguine Western journal but by that very sober business newspaper, the New York Commercial. It is based upon actual observation, upon the wheat-growing capacity of the Canadian West, and upon the prospects of development following the building of railways. The writer shows how the position of leading wheat market of the world passed from Milwaukee to Minneapolis and thence to Winnipeg. Canada's wheat-growing belt is four times greater than that of the United States, and only five per cent of Canada's western agricultural area is under cultivation. There are 170,000,000 acres of wheat lands which will make these Western Provinces richer, more populous, more dependable for food supplies than the Western States can ever become. The center of food supremacy will change to Canada, and 25 years more will give this country 40,000,000 population west of Ontario.

All these estimates of population are in the nature of guesses, and must not be read too literally. But the enormous area of wheat-growing land, the rapid construction of railways, and the large volume of immigration are facts which must be recognized. They point to the production of an ever-increasing surplus of wheat and other cereals. However rapidly the urban, the industrial and commercial population of Canada may increase, the increase of home consumption is hardly likely to keep pace with that of the production of wheat; for a single acre of wheat will provide for the average annual consumption of four people.

While production in Canada is thus running ahead of consumption at a prodigious rate, consumption in the United States is overtaking production, and the surplus for export is growing smaller year by year. It is true that the limit of actual power to produce wheat is as yet far away. By methods of intensive cultivation, such as prevail in France, the production could be greatly increased. But with the overflowing granary of Canada so close at hand, it seems likely that our neighbors will begin to import from us, turning their own energies more largely to other forms of agriculture.

It must be remembered that while the Northern States resemble Canada in climate and products, the resemblance diminishes as you go southward. The wheat belt gives place to a corn belt, and this again to semi-tropical regions producing cotton, tobacco, cane-sugar, oranges and other tropical fruits.

The man who secures a farm in Western Canada at the present time secures an investment better than the best of bond of any government or bank. It is no unusual thing for a farmer in Western Canada to realize a profit of from $5 to $10 per acre. There are thousands of free homesteads of 160 acres each still to be had, and particulars can be obtained by writing your nearest Canadian government agent.

Art in the Nude.

The photographer's lady was very preoccupied showing some samples of work to prospective sitters, when a tall and raw-boned individual, apparently from "the land," stalked solemnly into the studio, and intimated that he would like to know what the "picters" were worth.

"Like that, $3 a dozen," said the photographer's lady, handing him one.

The farmer gazed long and earnestly at the photograph of a very small baby sitting in a wash basin.

"And what would it cost with my clothes on?" he finally asked.

IT IS A MISTAKE

Many have the idea that anything will sell if advertised strong enough. This is a great mistake. True, a few sales might be made by advertising an absolutely worthless article but it is only the article that is bought again and again that pays. An example of the big success of a worthy article is the enormous sale that has grown up for Cascarets Candy Cathartic. This wonderful record is the result of great merit successfully made known through persistent advertising and the mouth-to-mouth recommendation given Cascarets by its friends and users.

Like all great successes, trade pirates prey on the unsuspecting public, by marketing fake tablets similar in appearance to Cascarets. Care should always be exercised in purchasing well advertised goods, especially an article that has a national sale like Cascarets. Do not allow a substitute to be palmed off on you.

It is no use holding up the divine throne if you're treading on the children's toes to do it.

RADER BEATS DEETS

Wins Secretaryship of I. S.T.M.A. by Narrow Margin

SECRETARY FACES TYPHOID

Association Asks Change in Primary Dates, Knocks "Joy Rides," and Protests Against Passage of Parcels Post Law.

Des Moines, Jan. 23.—A. W. Rader of Des Moines, was elected to the office of secretary-treasurer of the Iowa State Traveling Men's association, defeating L. C. Deets of Des Moines, present holder of the office, by a majority of forty-two votes.

While friends of Mr. Rader were rejoicing in his election, Mr. Deets, the defeated candidate, was at his home, threatened with typhoid fever. Mr. Deets was taken home immediately after the polls closed.

Following are the officers elected and vote each received:

For president—J. W. Hill, unanimous.

For vice president—J. M. Bowie, 806; W. A. McCord, 405.

For secretary-treasurer—A. W. Rader, 666; L. C. Deets, 624.

For directors—Harry E. Rex, 968; T. B. Cookerly, 921; M. S. Cohen, 878; William H. Smith, 787; George E. Hamilton, 756; R. V. Nicholson, 708; E. C. Evans, 516.

Reports of the various standing committees show that the association is in better condition at the present time than it has ever been in its entire history. Extracts from the report read before the convention by Secretary L. C. Deets, shows that on Jan. 1, 1910, there were 35,405 members in the association and that on Jan. 1, 1911, there were 40,566 members. The gain is the largest in the history of the association.

The association joined with others over the country and passed a resolution asking that the day for voting at primary and general elections be changed from Tuesday to Monday. This is asked for the reason that more traveling men, they believe, would be able to vote if the election was held on Monday.

"Joy rides" were given a black eye by President J. W. Hill in his annual address to the association. These, he declared, were responsible for a large part of the accident claims paid by the company and he warned the members of the association not to indulge in the forbidden sport.

Resolutions were also passed by the convention condemning the passage of the proposed parcels post law. The enactment of such a law will, they believe, virtually force them out of their jobs.

It also is probable that the association will take the question of the alleged excessive charges made by railroad companies for the transportation of excess baggage before the interstate commerce commission.

NO CHANGE ON SENATORSHIP

Saturday's Vote About Same As Previous Ones—Politicians Anticipate Change This Week.

Des Moines, Jan. 23.—The attempt of the legislature Saturday to elect a United States senator was as futile as were the efforts each day during last week.

Today, however, it is anticipated by politicians that the totals will look somewhat different, that there will be a shifting of strength, and that the long deferred movement to dispose of the senatorship tangle will be set under way. The vote:

	Jan. 20	Jan. 21
Porter	53	45
Young	33	26
Kenyon	27	24
Funk	22	22
Byers	13	11
Garst	7	7
Franke	2	2
Towner	0	1

The fact that the passage of a special primary measure by the legislature in an attempt to dispose of the United States senatorship problem, will not eliminate the necessity of balloting every noon in joint session as long as the session lasts, is causing politicians and members of the assembly to talk more and more of the advisability of holding a regular republican caucus of all factions, to nominate a republican for the senatorship.

Faint?

Have you weak heart, dizzy feelings, oppressed breathing after meals? Or do you experience pain over the heart, shortness of breath on going up-stairs and the many distressing symptoms which indicate poor circulation and bad blood? A heart tonic, blood and body-builder that has stood the test of over 40 years of cures is

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

The heart becomes regular as clock-work. The red blood corpuscles are increased in number—and the nerves in turn are well fed. The arteries are filled with good rich blood. That is why nervous debility, irritability, fainting spells, disappear and are overcome by this alterative extract of medicinal roots put up by Dr. Pierce without the use of alcohol. Ask your neighbor. Many have been cured of scrofulous conditions, ulcers, "fever-sores," white swellings, etc., by taking Dr. Pierce's Discovery. Just the refreshing and vitalizing tonic needed for excessive tissue waste, in convalescence from fevers or for run-down, anæmic, thin-blooded people. Stick to this safe and sane remedy and refuse all "just as good" kinds offered by the dealer who is looking for a larger profit. Nothing will do you half as much good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

U. S. Cream Separators Hold World's Record

1909 MODEL

U.S. U.S. U.S.

THE NAME

UNITED STATES SEPARATOR

is all the guarantee necessary when buying a 1909 Model U. S. Cream Separator.

You can't be half as particular about the material, workmanship and durability as the makers of the United States Separators are.

The 1909 Model United States Cream Separators have smaller bowls than ever before and every separator

Is Thoroughly Tested

before leaving the factory. It is the motto of the manufacturers not to see how cheap the U. S. can be made, but how strong and everlastingly durable they can be constructed.

We know the U. S. is the cleanest skimmer and the BEST in every respect and we want you to know it. Call and examine the 1909 Model United States Cream Separator.

U.S. SOLD BY — U.S. SOLD BY

U. S. Cream Separators took the Grand Prize at the Yukon, Alaska, Exposition, 1909. Holds the World's Record for Clean Skimming, Easy Running, and easy to wash. Guaranteed to skim within one-tenth of one per cent.

I also have the agency for the famous

Philo System Books, Cycle Hatchers and Brooders, Colony Coops, etc.

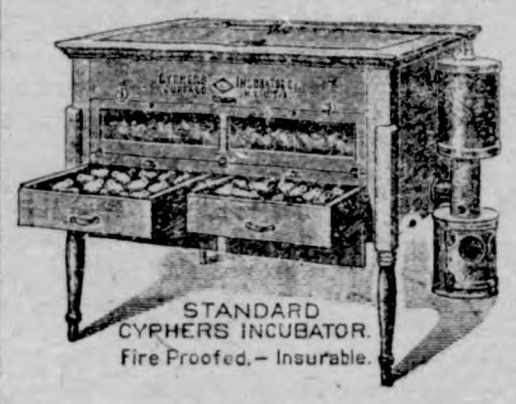
You have all heard of this famous system, as it has been extensively advertised and found to be a winner The book tells all about the system, raising your feed for 15c a bushel, in fact tells all about the system. Get your order in for one of these books, it's worth five times the price you pay for it.

I am still selling

Clam Shell

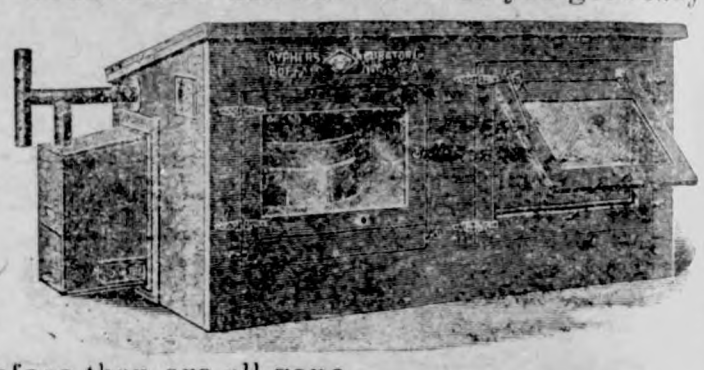
Two 100 lb. bags for $1.10

Now is the time to get in your order for a



Standard Cyphers Incubator & Brooder

Early hatching is what pays — stronger and healthier chicks, better hatches and better markets. Don't wait until April to order your Incubator. Order it now and have it when you get ready to start your hatches. Have some bargains to offer in both Incubators and Brooders.



Come in before they are all gone.

Hides Wanted Am paying highest market price for Hides of all kinds and would be pleased to have you bring in your cow and horse hides. Don't forget that I can get your hides tanned for you at reasonable figures. also give you a pair of Fur Mittens with each hide you have tanned. Guarantee to get your hide back in thirty days

Wanted I want the names of every Separator prospect in this neighborhood..... Why? Because the U. S. 1909 Model is the best skimmer on the market, and I want to show this machine to every one of them. And say, let me tell you something; the skimming device in this machine can be washed in less than a minute. Don't believe it? Well, let me set a machine up on your farm and run through a skimming of milk and I will soon convince you that it can be done. Now this isn't all wind, but FACTS, and I can prove it to you.

Attempted selection of a United States senator to succeed the late J P. Dolliver has so far monopolized so much of the Iowa legislature's time that little has been accomplished. More bills have been introduced than ever before during the first two weeks of a general assembly. But this is as far as they have gone. Every committee is loaded down with bills not acted upon. And the senatorial problem is yet unsettled. It seems apparent this assembly will be unable to settle it. Efficient work will not be done for the state, it seems, until the members admit their inability to make a choice and provide a means for letting the people select their senator at a special primary. Of course such a determination would not relieve the members of voting every noon, which takes a half hour, but it would relieve their minds of the responsibility and give them opportunity to think of legislation and work of lawmaking and unmaking instead of playing politics.

Attend the lecture tonight at the opera house.

A representative of the beet sugar factory of Waverly was in Kanawha several days and contracted for the planting of 200 acres of beets in that vicinity.

Grandma Wagner died at Thornton last week, aged nearly 80 years. She accidentally dislocated her shoulder in falling some weeks ago and this hastened her end.

The heirs of T. C. Thompson, deceased, won a complete victory in their efforts to have the sale of the farm west of Kanawha set aside. The farm not only reverts to them but the administrator, Val Griesy, of Belmond, is discharged and ordered to give an accounting of the interests he has handled. We are informed that the party who bought the farm of Administrator Griesy and immediately sold it to And. Jordanger, has been sued by the latter for damages also attaching money in hands of the court.—Kanawha Record.

A Vegetable Combination.

A tasty vegetable combination discovered by one hostess is green peas mixed with cubes of carrot and served with cream or brown sauce. The vegetables must be simmered separately before being combined. A pretty dish, as well as an appetizing one.

Croutons.

Dry crusts of bread in the oven for croutons. Any left over pieces of bread dried in this way, put through the meat grinder, and set away in a glass jar unsealed, will be found convenient for breading and much nicer than cracker crumbs.

Orange Cocktail.

Cut orange pulp into very small pieces. Add finely chopped dates or figs and squeeze in enough strained orange juice to cover. If not sufficiently tart, add a few drops of lemon juice. Serve ice cold in glasses.

Cream of Lima Beans.

Soak one cup dried lima beans over night, drain and cook in boiling salted water until soft; drain, add ¾ cup cream and season with butter and salt Reheat before serving.

Boiled Bread and Butter Pudding.

Butter a pudding dish and in the bottom put a layer of jam or marmalade or stewed fruit of any kind. Put in some very thinly cut slices of fruit or marmalade. Add three tablespoonfuls of sugar, and repeat the layers till the dish is full. Beat up two eggs, and add enough milk to them to thoroughly moisten the bread in the basin.

Cover with a well buttered paper and place in a saucepan of boiling water. Boil for two or three hours with the lid closely on, and the water during the time must never get off the boil. Before serving turn this pudding on to a hot dish.

Caramel Nut Ice Cream.

This recipe for an unusual frozen dessert is given by a capital housekeeper. First, a custard made of a pint and three-quarters of milk and two eggs, no sugar. Put a pound of brown sugar—the old-fashioned dark kind—in a saucepan and stir over the fire till it has become a rich dark brown. Combine with the custard and set to cool. When cool add a pint of stiffly whipped cream, a half pint of pecan nuts, passed through the meat chopper (fine knife), and freeze.

F. J. Wenck has resigned his position as assistant cashier in the State Savings Bank of Klemme, to accept the position of cashier of the First National Bank at Renwick, Iowa. Mr. Wenck has been with the State Savings Bank for the past five years and he has proven his worth in a business way and as an honorable and upright citizen in every respect. The position at Renwick comes as a substantial advancement for him in his chosen profession, and we know of no one more deserving. The people of Renwick will find Mr. Wenck to be a square business man— sober, conscientious in all his dealings, and absolutely trustworthy. We wish him unbounded success and we know that he will "make good." He expects to take up his new duties at Renwick about February 10th. While you are settling up your accounts fot the year do not forget to pay your subscription for your home paper. It only amounts to about two cents a week to you and seems a small amount, but many such accounts mean much to the publisher.

Revival meetings in the Germantown M. E. church closed last Sunday evening when Dist. Supt. Brenner delivered a lecture on the National Epworth League and Sunday School Convention in St. Louis last year, which is reported to have been very fine. A large crowd was in attendance. These meetings have been very successful considering the bad weather and the large amount of sickness in the community.

Chas. Yahnke our liveryman has one team at least that can move along at a pretty decent rate of speed. We know, because we saw them on high speed. Charley was preparing to make a drive and was straping a trunk onto the back of the sleigh. The horses were impatient—or else Charley was slow—so they took a flying start from Wellemeyer's store and didn't stop until they brought up against a fence out beyond the cemetery. Fortunately, no damage was done—excepting to Charley's feelings.

BOARD OF UTILITIES

People of Indianola Start Campaign for Legislative Action

AT OUTS WITH PHONE COMPANY

Complain of Poor Service of Hawkeye Company, Since Being Acquired by Bell Interests, and See Remedy in State Board.

Indianola.—In response to a complaint filed by a large number of patrons of the Hawkeye Telephone company in this city, the council decided to urge Senator A. V. Proudfoot and Representative George W. Spear to introduce in the legislature, and press to passage if possible, a bill for the state public utilities commission.

The judiciary committee of the council, composed of Councilmen Howser, Reeves, Buxton and Barnes, were instructed to confer with the Warren county legislators and insist on action.

It is probable that in the near future Senator Proudfoot will introduce such a bill. The council before its meeting, had a virtual assurance from the senator through a letter, to City Solicitor Watson, that he would favor a bill of that nature, although opposed to the one submitted two years ago.

The telephone service of the Hawkeye in this city has for some time been very unsatisfactory, particularly since the acquirement of the company by the Bell interests. The patrons of the company had a contract in 1909 with the Hawkeye Telephone company and the Mutual company, which was at that time owner in fact of the Hawkeye stock, providing for the installation at once of a central energy system with lamp switchboard. It is thought that the contract was in good faith on the part of the Mutual company, but the Bell company has ignored it. The system is run down and out of date. There are something like 600 phones in operation in town besides several hundred on rural lines.

It was first proposed to bring action on the contract, but it was decided to let that rest for the present as the people of Indianola generally favor the utilities commission and believe that such a law must be passed sooner or later, and if passed this session will give them redress as quickly as action through the courts.

Claims to Have Risen From Dead.

Creston.—Mark Fitzgerald, a resident of Clarke county, near Truro, claims to have been raised from the dead, or rather a sick bed, after the spirit had left his body and made a visit to heaven. Mr. Fitzgerald is one of the prosperous farmers of that section and not at all given to visionary exhibitions. He is about 40 years of age, and for several weeks past has been very ill and his recovery believed doubtful. His family were much surprised on a certain morning when he arose and dressed and appeared as well and strong as ever. Fitzgerald claims he really did die and that his spirit visited the heavenly abode and talked with friends and members of his family long since dead, and that the Lord told him not to touch them, as he was still unclean. He says he told the Lord if he were permitted to return to earth he would devote the rest of his life to doing good and for the cause of humanity. Fitzgerald says he is now completely cured and proposes to sell off his stock and devote his time and life to religious work. He has been conducting meetings for the past two weeks at different places. The story of his sickness and afterwards seeming recovery is vouched for by his friends and neighbors as well as business men of Truro.

Find Dead Bodies in Lodging House.

Oskalooso. — Following a double shooting, the dead bodies of Mrs. Rosetta Crill, aged 35, divorced wife of Charles Crill and Harry S. Appig, aged 38, of Mahaska county, were found in a room in a lodging house here. From the position of the bodies it is supposed that Appig shot Mrs. Crill and then himself, a revolver was found lying on the bed, where it had fallen, apparently from Appig's hand. No word was left by either that would indicate the cause of the shooting.

Near Death In Flames.

Shenandoah.—Mrs. Elizabeth Monzingo of Coin was nearly burned to death when her clothing caught fire as she was putting fuel in the stove. Had it not been for her son, who heard her cries for help and extinguished the flames, Mrs. Monzingo probably would have lost her life. She was frightfully burned about the body and arms.

Win Armour Scholarships.

Ames, Iowa—With the completion of the contest for the five Armour scholarships the twelfth annual short course closed at Iowa State college. Although the enrollment was not as large as it has been in previous years, the authorities consider it one of the most successful sessions ever held.

The evening programs brought a better list of talent than ever before and were well attended. Senators Young and Cummins both gave addresses and W. C. Brown of the New York Central railroad was to have spoken, but was not able to be present.

The contest of the Iowa Grain Improvement association which was held in connection with the short course brought out some fine entries. Carl Wohland of Elkhart, won the grand champion single ear of corn, and Otis E. Sims of Newton the grand champion ten ears. The corn all sold well at the auction.

A large amount of interest was aroused in the junior classes and contests, the team from Page county winning the Kimball prize for the second time.

The winners of the five Armour scholarships were: R. L. Freeman, Fontanelle; C. A. Taylor, Nevada; D. H. Hunter, Woolstock; H. A. Longworth, Polk City, and E. Pearson, Mitchellville.

To Honor Memory of J. P. Dolliver.

Fort Dodge.—To show their appreciation of the efforts of the late Senator Dolliver in behalf of the Methodist Episcopal church, when he was alive, congregations of that denomination all over the state will observe Dolliver Memorial Sunday, February 5. The suggestion was made recently by local church dignitaries and received the sanction of the bishop. Dolliver's birthday is Feb. 6. Col. W. T. Chantland, of the Dolliver Memorial association, has suggested that any contributions toward the Dolliver memorial fund, which the various churches desire to make, be made at that time. Senator Dolliver was a delegate to the national gatherings of the Methodist church several times, was a trustee of Morningside college, Sioux City, and was a contributor to many church benevolences.

Seven Brothers Join Lodge.

Waterloo.—For the first time perhaps in the history of the state, seven brothers were taken into an order at one time. They were sons of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Gilley and became members of the Sons of Veterans. The aggregate weight of the sons is 1,400 pounds, the heaviest one tipping the beam at 225 pounds. They are George, Dexter, Oscar, Donald, John, Thomas and Roy. Mr. Gilley, the father, is a veteran of the civil war, and he has been anxious that his sons should join the Sons of Veterans. The sons planned a surprise for their parents and all decided to join the order at the same time. The parents were interested spectators to the initiatory rites.

No Sensational Trial.

Logan.—What was expected to be the most sensational suits ever tried in Harrison county were quashed, with the refusal of the grand jury to bring indictments against Mr. and Mrs. Henry Poore. Each had been arrested for the alleged offense of bigamy on charges preferred by the other, but after an investigation the grand jury failed to indict, and the defendants were discharged.

Dean Wilcox May Succeed MacLean.

Iowa City.—Although no definite statement has been made here, it is understood that W. C. Wilcox, dean of the college of liberal arts will be made acting president of the university following the announcement of the resignation of President George E. MacLean, which is expected within a short time.

Sues Saloonmen For $10,000.

Rockwell City.—Mrs. A. J. Kirk whose husband was found dead in a small alley off Court street a short time ago, has brought suit for $10,000 damages against W. H. Smerdon, W. A. Heath and W. A. Sheridan on the grounds that they furnished the liquor which is said to have been the cause of Kirk's death.

To Build New Science School.

Sioux City.—Benefiting by a generous legacy left by the late Jeremiah Kelly, Bishop P. J. Garrigan has announced that a splendid big domestic science school will be opened here. It was the desire of the deceased man to have growing girls taught the essentials of housekeeping.

Square Deal Makes Good.

Waterloo.—N. C. Tardy, a pioneer man here, received a $5 bill from a man at Reinbeck signing himself "Square Deal." He writes that thirty-five years ago he became indebted to Tardy for 50 cents, interest on which now amounts to $4.50. Tardy had forgotten the incident.

Scrupulous.

"What did Mr. Hibrow say when he found you standing under the mistletoe?" asked Maude.

"He said it was not genuine mistletoe," replied Maymie, "and that he could not think of taking advantage of a botanical error."

INSIDE HISTORY.

Some Self-Explanatory Letters.

Battle Creek, Mich., Jan. 7, '11.

Dr. E. H. Pratt,
Suite 1202, 100 State St.,
Chicago, Illinois.

My Dear Doctor:

"Owing to some disagreement with ——— magazine several years ago they have become quite vituperative and of late have publicly charged me with falsehoods in my statements that we have genuine testimonial letters.

"It has been our rule to refrain from publishing the names either of laymen or physicians who have written to us in a complimentary way and we have declined to accede to the demand of attorneys that we turn these letters over to them.

"I am asking a few men whom I deem to be friends to permit me to reproduce some of their letters or their signatures in order to refute the falsehoods.

"We have hundreds of letters from physicians, but I esteem the one that you wrote to me in 1906 among the very best, particularly in view of the fact that it recognizes the work I have been trying to do partly through the little book, 'The Road to Wellville.'

"I do not sell or attempt to sell any higher thought which is more important than the kind of food, but I have taken considerable pains to extend to humanity such facts as may have come to me on this subject.

"In order that your mind may be refreshed I am herewith enclosing a copy of your good letter, also a copy of the little book, and if you will give me the privilege of printing this with your signature I will accompany the printing with an explanation as to why you permitted its use in publication in order to refute falsehoods and under that method of treatment I feel, so far as I know, there would be no breach of the code of ethics.

"I trust this winter weather is finding you well, contented and enjoying the fruits that are yours by right.

"With all best wishes, I am,"

Yours very truly,
C. W. POST.

Dr. Pratt, who is one of the most prominent and skillful surgeons in America, very kindly granted our request in the cause of truth and justice.

Chicago, Aug. 31, 1909.

Mr. C. W. Post,
Battle Creek, Mich.

My Dear Sir:

"I write to express my personal appreciation of one of your business methods, that of accompanying each package of your Grape-Nuts product with that little booklet 'The Road to Wellville,' A more appropriate, clear headed and effective presentation of health-giving auto-suggestions could scarcely be penned.

"Grape-Nuts is a good food in itself but the food contained in this little article is still better stuff. I commend the practice because I know that greed and strenuousness, the consequent graft and other types of thievery and malicious mischief generally can never be cured by legislative action.

"The only hope for the betterment of the race rests in individual self-culture.

"In taking a step in this direction your process has been so original and unique that it must set a pace that other concerns until finally the whole country gets flavored with genuine practical Christianity.

"I shall do all that lies in my power to aid in the appreciation of Grape-Nuts, not so much for the sake of the food itself as for the accompanying suggestions.

"Visiting Battle Creek the other day with a friend, Dr. Kelly of Evanston, Illinois, while I was consulting with Mr. Gregory, my friend visited your factories and came away greatly amazed, not only at the luxurious furnishings of the offices generally and the general equipment of the plant but with the sweet spirit of courtesy and kindness that seemed to fill the air with a spiritual ozone that was good to breathe.

"The principles expressed in your little booklet, 'The Road to Wellville,' I well know are practical and they work in business of all kinds, including sanitariums, as will be fully tested before time is done.

"I know you will not regard this letter of appreciation as an intrusive one. It is simply the salutation of good fellowship to you from a man who, although he has never seen you, feels drawn to you by the kinship of thought.

"The only thing that makes a man live forever in the hearts of his countrymen and his race is the good that he does. Your position in this respect is an enviable one and I wish to extend my congratulations."

Yours respectfully,
E. H. PRATT.

The COURAGE of CAPTAIN PLUM

By JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD

SYNOPSIS.

Capt. Nathaniel Plum of the sloop Typhoon, lands secretly on Beaver island, stronghold of the Mormons. Obadiah Price, Mormon councilor, confronts him, tells him he is expected, and bargains for the ammunition aboard the sloop. He binds Nat by a solemn oath to deliver a package to Franklin Pierce, president of the United States. Near Price's cabin Nat sees the frightened face of a young woman who disappears in the darkness, leaving an odor of lilacs. It develops that Nat's visit to the island is to demand settlement of the king, Strang, for the looting of his sloop by Mormons. Price shows Nat the king's palace, and through a window he sees the lady of the lilacs, who Price says is the king's seventh wife. Calling at the king's office Nat is warned by a young woman that his life is in danger. Strang professes indignation when he hears Nat's grievance and promises to punish the guilty. Nat rescues Neil, who is being publicly whipped, and the king orders the sheriff, Arbor Croche, to pursue and kill the two men. Plum learns that Marion, the girl of the lilacs, is Neil's sister. The two men plan to escape on Nat's sloop and take Marion and Winnsome, daughter of Arbor Croche, and sweetheart of Neil. Nat discovers that the sloop is gone. Marion tells him that his ship has been seized by the Mormons. She begs him to leave the island, telling him that nothing can save her from Strang, whom she is doomed to marry. Plum finds Price raving mad. Recovering, he tells Nat that Strang is doomed, that armed men are descending on the island. Nat learns that Marion has been summoned to the castle by Strang. Nat kills Arbor Croche, and after a desperate fight with the king, leaves him for dead. The avenging host from the mainland descends on St. James. Neil and Nat take a part in the battle and the latter is wounded. Strang, whom Nat thought he had killed, orders him thrown into a dungeon. He finds Neil a fellow prisoner.

(CHAPTER X.—Continued.)

"She always seemed like such a little child to me that I never dared—to—tell her," he faltered. "I've done it in this."

"How will you get the note to her?"

"I know the jailer. Perhaps when he comes to bring us our dinner I can persuade him to send it to her."

Nathaniel thrust his hands into his pockets. His fingers dug into Obadiah's gold.

"Would this help?" he asked.

He brought out a shimmering handful of it and counted the pieces upon the table.

"Two hundred dollars—if he will deliver that note," he said.

Neil stared at him in amazement.

"If he won't take it for that—I've got more. I'll go a thousand."

Neil stood silent, wondering if his companion was mad. Nathaniel saw the look in his face and his own flushed with sudden excitement.

"Don't you understand?" he cried. "That note means heaven or hell for Winnsome—it means life—her whole future! And you know what this cell means for us," he said more calmly. "It means that we're at the end of our rope, that the game is up, that neither of us will ever see Marion or Winnsome again. That note is the last word in life from us—from you. It's a dying prayer. Tell Winnsome your love, tell her that it is your last wish that she go out into the big, free world—away from this hell-hole, away from Strang, away from the Mormons, and live as other women live! And commanded by your love—she will go!"

"I've told her that!" breathed Neil.

"I knew you would!"

Nathaniel threw another handful of gold on the table.

"Five hundred!" he exclaimed. "It's cheap enough for a woman's soul!"

He motioned for Neil to put the money in his pocket. The pain was coming back into his head, he grew dizzy, and hastened to the bench. Neil came and sat beside him.

"So you think it's the end?" he asked. He was glad that his companion had guessed the truth.

"Don't you?"

"Yes."

There was a minute's dark silence. The ticking of Nathaniel's watch sounded like the tapping of a stick.

"What will happen?"

"I don't know. But whatever it may be it will come to us soon. Usually it happens at night."

"There is no hope?"

"Absolutely none. The whole mainland is at the mercy of Strang. He fears no retribution now, no punishment for his crimes, no hand stronger than his own. He will not even give us the pretense of a hearing. I am a traitor, a revolutionist—you have attempted the life of the king. We are both condemned—both doomed."

Neil spoke calmly and his companion strove to master the terrible pain at his heart as he thought of Marion. If Neil could go to the end like a martyr he would at least make an attempt to do as much. Yet he could not keep from saying:

"What will become of Marion?"

He felt the tremor that passed through his companion's body.

"I have implored Winnsome to do all that she can to get her away," replied Neil. "If Marion won't go—" He clenched his hands with a moaning curse and sprang to his feet, again pacing back and forth through the gloomy dungeon. "If she won't go I swear that Strang's triumph will be short!" he cried suddenly. "I cannot guess the terrible power that the king possesses over her, but I know that once his wife she will not endure it long. The moment she becomes that, her bondage is broken. I know it. I have seen it in her eyes. She will kill herself!"

Nathaniel rose slowly from the bench and came to his side.

"She won't do that!" he groaned. "My God—she won't do that!"

Neil's face was blanched to the whiteness of paper.

"She will," he repeated quietly. "Her terrible pact with Strang will have been fulfilled. And I—I am glad—glad—"

He raised his arms to the dripping blackness of the dungeon ceiling, his voice shaking with a cold, stifled anguish. Nathaniel drew back from that tall, straight figure, step by step, as though to hide beyond the flickering candle glow the betrayal that had come into his face, the blazing fire that seemed burning out his eyes. If what Neil had said was true—

Something choked him as he dropped alone upon the bench.

If it was true—Marion was dead!

He dropped his head in his hands and sat for a long time in silence, listening to Neil as he walked tirelessly over the muddy earth. Not until there came a rattling of the chain at the cell door and a creaking of the rusty hinges did he lift his face. It was the jailer with a huge armful of straw. He saw Neil approach him after he had thrown it down. Their low voices came to him in an indistinct murmur. After a little he caught the sound of the chinking gold pieces.

Neil came and sat down beside him as the heavy door closed upon them again.

"He took it," he whispered exultantly. "He will deliver it this morning. If possible he will bring us an answer. I kept out a hundred and told him that a reply would be worth that to him."

Nathaniel did not speak, and after a moment's silence Neil continued:

"The jury is assembling. We will know our fate very soon."

He rose to his feet, his words quivering with nervous excitement, and Nathaniel heard him kicking about in the straw. In another breath his voice hissed through the gloom in a sharp, startled command:

"Good God, Nat, come here!"

Something in the strange fierceness of Neil's words startled Nathaniel, like the thrilling twinges of an electric shock. He darted across the cell and found Marion's brother with his shoulder against the door.

"It's open!" he whispered. "The door—is—open!"

The hinges creaked under his weight. A current of air struck them in the face. Another instant and they stood in the corridor, listening, crushing back the breath in their lungs, not daring to speak. Gently Neil drew his companion back into the cell.

"There's a chance—one chance in ten thousand!" he whispered. "At the end of this corridor there is a door—the jailer's door. If that's not locked, we can make a run for it! I'd rather die fighting—than here!"

He slipped out again, pressing Nathaniel back.

"Wait for me!"

Nathaniel heard him stealing slowly through the blackness. A minute later he returned.

"Locked!" he exclaimed.

In the opposite direction a ray of light caught Nathaniel's eye.

"Where does that light come from?" he asked.

"Through a hole about as big as your two hands. It was made for a stove pipe. If we were up there we could see into the jury room."

They moved quietly down the corridor until they stood under the aperture, which was four or five feet above their heads. Through it they could hear the sounds of voices but could not distinguish the words that were being spoken.

"The jury," explained Neil. "They're in a devil of a hurry! I wonder why?"

Nathaniel could feel his companion shrug himself in the darkness.

"Lord—for my revolver!" he whispered excitedly. "One shot through that hole would be worth a thousand notes to the girls!" He caught Marion's brother by the arm as a voice louder than the others came to them.

"Strang!"

"Yes—the—king!" affirmed Neil laying an expostulating hand on him. "Hush!"

"I would like to see—"

Even in these last hours of failure and defeat the fire of adventure flamed up in Nathaniel's blood. He felt his nerves leaping again to action his arms grew tense with new ambition—almost he forgot that death had him cornered and was already preparing to strike him down. Another thought replaced all fear of this. A few feet beyond that log wall were gathered the men whose bloodthirsty deeds had written for them one of the reddest pages in history—men who had burned their souls out in the destruction of human lives, whose passions and loves and hatreds carried with them life and death; men who had bathed themselves in blood and lived in blood until the people of the mainland called them "the leeches."

"The Mormon jury!" Nathaniel spoke the words scarcely above his breath.

"I'd like to take a look through that hole, Neil," he added.

"Easy enough—if you keep quiet. Here!" He doubled himself against the wall. "Climb up on my shoulders."

No sooner had Nathaniel's face come to a level with the hole than a soft cry of astonishment escaped him. Neil whispered hoarsely but he did not reply. He was looking into a room twice as large as the dungeon cell and lighted by narrow windows whose lower panes were on a level with the ground outside. At the farther end of the room, in full view, was a platform raised several feet from the main floor. On this platform were seated ten men, immovable as statues, every face gazing straight ahead. Directly in front of them, on the lower floor, stood the Mormon king, and at his side, partly held in the embrace of one of his arms was Winnsome!

Strang's voice came to him in a low, solemn monotone, its rumbling depth drowning the words he was speaking, and as Nathaniel saw him lift his arm from about the girl's shoulders and place his great hand upon her head he dug his own fingers fiercely into the rotting logs and an imprecation burned in his breath. He did not need to hear what the king was saying. It was a pantomime in which every gesture was understandable. But even Neil, huddled against the wall, heard the last words of the prophet as they thundered forth in sudden passion.

"Winnsome Croche demands the death of her father's murderer!"

Nathaniel felt his companion's shoulders sinking under his weight and he leaped quickly to the floor.

"Winnsome is there!" he panted desperately. "Do you want to see her?"

Neil hesitated.

"No. Your boots gouge my shoulder. Take them off."

The scene had changed when Nathaniel took his position again. The jury had left its platform and was filing through a small door. Winnsome and the king were alone.

The girl had turned from him. She was deathly pale and yet she was wondrously beautiful, so beautiful that Nathaniel's breath came in quick dread as the king approached her. He could see the triumph in his eyes, a terrible eagerness in his face. He seized Winnsome's hand and spoke to her in a soft, low voice, so low that it came to Nathaniel only in a murmur. Then, in a moment, he began stroking the shimmering glory of her hair, caressing the silken curls between his fingers until the blood seemed as if it must burst like hot sweat from Nathaniel's face. Suddenly Winnsome drew back from him, the pallor gone from her face, her eyes blazing like angry stars. She had retreated but a step when the prophet sprang to her and caught her in his arms, straining her to him until the scream on her lips was choked to a gasping cry. In answer to that cry a yell of rage hurled itself from Nathaniel's throat.

"Stop, you hell-hound!" he cried threateningly. "Stop!"

Use Live Babies as Bait

Only Thing Certain to Lure the Crocodile and Everybody Uses It, Says Sailor.

"Wot do ye think,' said the sailor, "of usin' live babies for bait? We done it in Ceylon."

"Babies for bait? Fishing for shark?"

"No, crocodile. Baby bait is the only thing for crocodile and everybody uses it. Ye rent a baby down there for two shillings a day.

"Of course," the sailor went on, "the thing ain't as cruel as it sounds. No harm ever comes to the babies, or else, o' course, their mothers wouldn't rent 'em. The kid is simply set on the soft mud bank of a crocodile stream, and the hunter lies hid near them, a sure pertection.

"The crocodile is lazy. He basks in the sun in mid-stream. Nothin' will draw him in to shore where we can pot him. But set a little, fat, naked baby on the bank and the crocodile soon rouses up. In he comes, a gredy look in his dull eyes, and then we open fire.

"I have got as many as four crocodiles with one baby in a morning's fishin'. Some Cingalese women wot lives near good crocodile streams make as much as eight shillings a week out o' rentin' their babies for crocodile bait."

Constipation

"For over nine years I suffered with chronic constipation and during this time I had to take an injection of warm water once every 24 hours before I could have an action on my bowels. Happily I tried Cascarets, and today I am a well man. During the nine years before I used Cascarets I suffered untold misery with internal piles. Thanks to you, I am free from all that this morning. The Child's Viewpoint.

Percy Alder, M. P., of London, told an amusing story of a small girl at a recent meeting of the Children's Happy Evenings association. The child had been sent away to the country for a holiday, and questioned as to what in all her holiday had pleased her most, this little slum maiden, whose London home adjoined a waste piece of land, replied: "Seeing no dead cats."

THE DELICIOUS GUMBO SOUP

Either Canned or Dried Okra May Be Used—Directions for Its Preparation.

The canned okra can be used for this, or dried okra soaked over night, either making an excellent soup. Slice three red onions fine and fry brown in a tablespoonful of butter; add to this one-quarter of a pound of ham cut in dice and fry one minute; one-half a cup of washed rice, one can of tomatoes and the okra, and a cupful of beef stock, with a teaspoonful of salt and one-half a saltspoonful of cayenne. Cover and stew very slowly for not less than four hours. It must be stirred often, to prevent burning, as okra is very sticky. This makes a very thick soup. If preferred thinner, add more broth, but in the south it is eaten thick. To this gumbo oysters are often added and put into a pan with a spoonful of melted butter till very slightly browned.

The Home.

Turn the wooden chopping bowl upside down when not in use and it will never split.

Lemons hardened from long standing may be made usable by covering a few moments with boiling water.

To remove paint from linens rub with turpentine, then clean with French chalk dampened with alcohol.

Stains may be removed from tinware by scouring with common soda, then washing thoroughly and drying.

Mend broken china with plaster of paris mixed with the white of egg and it will stand washing. This method is suitable for articles of every day use, not for valuable old china.

To clean and tighten cane chair seats turn the chair upside down, and with hot water sponge the cane work till it is thoroughly soaked. If the cane be dirty use a little soap. Let dry in the air or before a fire, and if the can be merely stretched—not worn—it will then be as good as new.

White lead makes a capital cement for broken crockery. Paint it along the broken edges, then press the pieces together and tie them in place. Leave the mended article to dry for two or three days and when thoroughly dry it will be as strong as ever, though perhaps not so ornamental.

Apple Tarts.

Take five apples, three eggs, one cupful of butter, three-fourths cupful lemon (juice and rind), one-fourth cupful of butter, three-fourths cupful of sugar, half-cupful of water. Peel and core the apples, which should be tart, and cook them in the water until soft, stewing them very slowly. Beat the sauce very smooth, and when partly cooled add the beaten yolks of the eggs, the lemon juice and grated rind and the sugar, increasing the amount of sugar if desired very sweet. Line the patty pans with paste, fill them with the mixture, and bake five minutes in a very hot oven. Beat the whites of the eggs stiff, add to them two tablespoonfuls of sugar, spread the eggs on top of the tarts, return the latter to the oven, and brown delicately.

Mexican Kisses.

Put into a saucepan two cupfuls brown sugar and one-half cupful of milk. Cool gently until a little dropped into cold water will form a soft ball when rubbed between the fingers. It will take ten minutes or less to reach this stage. As it scorches easily, it must be stirred constantly while boiling. Add a heaping tablespoonful of butter and as soon as melted remove from the fire and beat steadily until the mixture looks creamy and slightly granulated. Stir in at once one pound of English walnuts, broken into small pieces, beat hard and turn into buttered pans to harden.

Rice Bread.

Allow one pound of rice to four pounds of wheat flour; the rich must be first boiled in milk or water, and while warm add to the flour, but care must be taken to see that the rice is thoroughly done; mix all into a dough with a little yeast; quarter of an ounce of salt and sufficient warm water for the required consistency; when it has risen before the fire a proper time, make into loaves of any shape and bake according to size. This bread is very delicious made with a mixture of milk.

Hamburg Steak.

Did you ever try hamburg steak this way? Cook one heaping cup of macaroni in boiling salted water 20 minutes; while it is cooking fry two large onions and have your hamburg ready. Then butter a baking dish and put in a layer of macaroni, hamburger, onions and one cup of tomatoes (hot); repeat and cook about half an hour in hot oven. Salt and pepper to taste. You can reheat and make a good, hearty dish.

Rice and Cheese.

Put one cup of washed rice in a double boiler, add one quart of boiling water, cook without stirring till grains are full and soft. Drain off all water, add ½ teaspoon of salt, stirring in lightly with a fork. Turn into a serving dish and just before sending to the table cover with a thick layer of grated cheese. Garnish with rounds of hard-boiled eggs.

Creamed Pudding Sauce.

One egg and sugar to thicken. Beat well together. Flavor and set on fire.

For the first time since the debate in the United States senate in the case of Senator William Lorimer of Illinois began mention was made of the reported interest of the president in the unseating of that senator. The reference was by Senator Paynter of Kentucky, who was a member of the subcommittee which made the investigation into the charges.

GENERAL NEWS.

Reaching the conclusion that the Bucks Stove and Range company in St. Louis and the American Federation of Labor had settled their disputes out of court, the Supreme court of the United States stopped the oral argument of the so-called "boycott" case of the former against the latter, on the theory that no issue in it remained for the court to pass upon.

Suit was begun at New York by the Standard Oil company for libel against Hampton's Magazine and Cleveland Moffett in the United States court. The oil company asks the court to allow it $250,000 against the magazine which is published by the Broadway Magazine company.

A lone bandit who gave his name as Al Bebtley, held up the passengers of the Colorado & Southern train No. 20 a few minutes after it had left the Union depot at Pueblo, Colo. After securing $117 and some jewelry he leaped from the train but was shot and wounded by a railroad special agent and landed in jail.

JUDICIARY COMMITTEE RECOMMENDS FOUR MEASURES FOR PASSAGE

POSTPONE MANY INDEFINITELY

Will Act Upon Representative Dabney's Motion to Vote Upon Joint Resolution for Direct Election of United States Senators by People.

Des Moines.—Members of the judiciary committee are using the ax in earnest on house bills. Out of eighteen bills considered, four were recommended to the graveyard, four were recommended for passage and ten were referred to subcommittees.

Alleged class legislation caused the death of a bill presented by Whitney of Woodbury county prohibiting those engaged directly or indirectly in the sale of liquor to sign bail bonds. Several members of the committee believed the bill was introduced to make it possible for liquor dealers to gracefully refuse to furnish bail for their henchmen. Although Representative Whitney made a strong talk in favor of the bill, it was indefinitely postponed.

Representative Dewey's "dippy" bill, making insanity ground for divorce, also met with the disapproval of the committee and was indefinitely postponed.

A bill by Klay of Sioux providing for the election of township trustees, and a measure by Lounsberry of Marshal, providing for the compensations to be allowed attorneys in the settlement of estates were indefinitely postponed.

Dabney's joint resolution asking congress to call a joint convention to arrange a constitutional amendment providing for the election of senators by direct vote was approved by the judiciary committee. A bill by Campbell of Ida, relating to the recovery of interest in real estate when the spouse failed to join in the conveyance, a bill by Bruce of Floyd relating to county supervisor districts, and a bill by Hickenlooper of Monroe, legalizing an election at Lockway, Ia., also were recommended for passage.

Representative Shane's bill requiring all physicians and osteopaths to report cases of tuberculosis to the state board of health was recommended for passage during the meeting of the committee on public health.

Stock Shippers Want Pullmans.

Stockmen will have a car with berths in it whenever they go with a train of live stock, if a bill introduced in the house by Campbell of Ida county becomes a law. The bill provides that all common carriers operating live stock trains must, if the train is out six hours during the night, provide a car with sleeping berths for men caring for the live stock.

Longer Terms for Officers.

County auditors, treasurers, sheriffs, recorders, superintendents of schools, surveyors, coroners and clerks of the district courts will be elected for four-year terms in the future if a bill introduced in the house by Harding of Woodbury is approved by the legislature. The measure makes no change in the term of office of the county attorney.

Stillman Advises Solons to Get Busy.

Speaker Stillman read the house a fatherly little lecture on the necessity for getting down to business. He called attention to the fact that the beginning of the third week of the session sees 126 bills in the house and 100 bills in the senate, more than for any corresponding period of any previous general assembly.

Introduces Barber Bill.

Shane of Wapello introduced in the house, a bill creating a state barber board of examiners and providing for the proper sanitation of all barber shops, including a new towel for each customer, sterilizing of the instruments used in the shops and other precautionary measures.

Short Course Bills.

Short courses in every county in the state are provided for in bills introduced in the house by Stipe of Page and in the senate by DeWolf of Black Hawk. The bills appropriate the sum of $100,000 annually to defray the expenses of holding these short courses.

Gold Prize Awarded Girl.

Miss Louise Clarke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clarke of West Ninth street and a student at the North Des Moines high school, won the $25 cash gold prize offered by the Associated Charities for the best essay on the subject, "What to Do With the Tramp at the Door."

ASKS STATE FOR BIG SUM

Chairman of Appropriations Committee Introduces Bill Asking for $1,033,600.00.

Des Moines.—Over a million dollars is the appropriation carried by a bill introduced in the senate by Mattes of Sac. It provides for the expenditure of $1,033,600 in construction and repair work, in addition to contingent funds, and in the purchase of lands for the various state institutions of Iowa.

This appropriation is divided among the separate schools, hospitals and other institutions as follows: Iowa Soldiers' home at Marshalltown, $16,800; Iowa Soldiers' Orphans' home, $44,900; School for the Blind at Vinton, $13,900; School for the Deaf at Council Bluffs, $17,350; School for the Feeble Minded at Glenwood, $169,500; Tuberculosis sanitarium at Oakdale, $33,300; Boys' Reformatory at Eldora, $65,000; Girls' Reformatory at Mitchellville, $15,650; hospital at Mt. Pleasant, $100,250; hospital at Independence, $165,000; hospital at Clarinda, $88,000; hospital at Cherokee, $118,400; hospital at Knoxville, $8,000; penetitentiary at Fort Madison, $75,450; reformatory at Anamosa, $38,000.

Votes for United States Senator.

Des Moines.—The first vote of the Iowa legislature taken for United States senator resulted in a deadlock. Of the 158 votes in both houses there were four absentees, leaving the total vote 154. Of this number, Young received, in both houses, 38, Kenyon 22, Funk 21, Byers 13, Garst 7, Feely 5, Franke 2, C. J. Wilson 1, and Porter 50.

On the first joint ballot, Porter received 53 votes; Young, 32; Kenyon, 22; Funk, 21; Byers, 14; Feely, 7, and Franke, 2.

Second Joint Ballot—Porter, 53; Young, 33; Kenyon, 25; Funk, 22; Byers, 14; Garst, 7; Franke, 1.

Third Joint Ballot—Porter, 52; Young, 32; Kenyon, 27; Funk, 22; Byers, 13; Garst, 7; Franke, 2; Hepburn, 1.

Fourth Joint Ballot—Porter, 45; Young, 26; Kenyon, 24; Funk, 22; Byers, 11; Garst, 7; Franke, 2; Towner, 1.

Seventh Joint Ballot—Porter, 52; Kenyon, 35; Funk, 34; Young, 33; Garst, 1.

Eighth Joint Ballot—Porter, 53; Funk, 35; Kenyon, 34; Young, 34; Garst, 1.

Ninth Joint Ballot—Porter, 48; Kenyon, 37; Young, 33; Funk, 31; Garst, 1.

Anti-Gambling Law.

Whitney of Woodbury, in the house, introduced a bill providing that there shall be no poker tables, poker chips, roulette wheels, faro or keno banks or Klondyke tables operated in the state, and giving to any persons who suspect that any of these are being operated in any place the right to take an oath to that effect, whereupon search warrants shall be issued and if these things are found they shall be destroyed.

Cameron May Be Fair Secretary.

The state board of agriculture elected Arthur R. Corey as acting secretary to succeed J. C. Simpson, appointed a committee to select a permanent secretary and directed the legislative committee to urge a bill to straighten out the long standing tangle over the pay of a secretary.

Legislative and Other Notes.

Miller of Dubuque presented a petition signed by 300 citizens of Winneshiek county, askng for the pardon of John C. Cater, who was sentenced in 1894 for murder in the first degree. Petition referred to committee on pardons.

Seven more house committee clerks than were allowed in a resolution adopted in the house during the opening days of the session were found necessary by the committee on committee clerks to conduct the work of the house.

State Treasurer Morrow received from Gen. Granville M. Dodge of Council Bluffs, chairman of the Allison Memorial committee, a check for $22,730. With the amount which was already in his hands the fund now totals $28,328.

Publication of the federal census reports in the state official register and two newspapers is required in a bill introduced by Representative Smith of Decatur. It is designed to aid enforcement of laws affected by census figures.

Klay of Sioux presented report of committee on judiciary asking that house bill relating to distribution of opinions of the supreme court be indefinitely postponed. Bill was unanimously postponed indefinitely. This kills the bill for this session.

Doctors Said He Would Die

A Friend's Advice Saves Life

I wish to speak of the wonderful cure that I have received from your noted Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder cure. Last summer I was taken with severe pains in my back and sides. I could not breathe without difficulty and was nearly wild with the desire to urinate. Was compelled to do so every ten minutes with the passage of pure blood with the urine. I tried all the different doctors from far and near, but they said it was no use to doctor as I would die anyway. I was at the end of my rope and was so miserable with pain and the thought that I must die that words cannot tell how I felt. One day a friend told me of the wonderful help she had received from Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. She gave me one of your pamuphlets which I read and determined to try Swamp-Root. After taking half a bottle I felt better. Have now taken ten bottles and am well as I ever was, thanks to Swamp-Root. I wish to tell all suffering people that have kidney, liver or bladder trouble, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is the best medicine on the market.

All persons doubting this statement can write to me and I will answer them directly,

Yours very truly,
CLYDE F. CAMERER,

A Mosque for London.

It is proposed to erect a mosque in the capital of the greatest Mohammedan power in the world, and the only surprising feature of the project is that it has not been executed before. The building is to cost £100,000, to which the Aga Khan has already contribute £5,000. The committee in control of the scheme is presided over by Amir Ali and includes the Turkish and Persian ministers, as well as three members of the council of India.—London Globe.

EASY CHANGE
When Coffee Is Doing Harm.

A lady writes from the land of cotton of the results of a four years' use of the food beverage—hot Postum.

"Ever since I can remember we had used coffee three times a day. It had a more or less injurious effect upon us all, and I myself suffered almost death from indigestion and nervousness caused by it.

"I know it was that, because when I would leave it off for a few days I would feel better. But it was hard to give it up, even though I realized how harmful it was to me.

"At last I found a perfectly easy way to make the change. Four years ago I abandoned the coffee habit and began to drink Postum, and I also influenced the rest of the family to do the same. Even the children are allowed to drink it freely as they do water. And it has done us all great good.

"I no longer suffer from indigestion, and my nerves are in admirable tone since I began to use Postum. We never use the old coffee any more.

"We appreciatae Postum as a delightful and healthful beverage, which not only invigorates but supplies the best of nourishment as well." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

SYNOPSIS.

Capt. Nathaniel Plum of the sloop Typhoon, lands secretly on Beaver island, stronghold of the Mormons. Obadiah Price, Mormon councilor, confronts him, tells him he is expected, and bargains for the ammunition aboard the sloop. He binds Nat by a solemn oath to deliver a package to Franklin Pierce, president of the United States. Near Price's cabin Nat sees the frightened face of a young woman who disappears in the darkness, leaving an odor of lilacs. It develops that Nat's visit to the island is to demand settlement of the king, Strang, for the looting of his sloop by Mormons. Price shows Nat the king's palace, and through a window he sees the lady of the lilacs, who Price says is the king's seventh wife. Calling at the king's office Nat is warned by a young woman that his life is in danger. Strang professes indignation when he hears Nat's grievance and promises to punish the guilty. Nat rescues Neil, who is being publicly whipped, and the king orders the sheriff, Arbor Croche, to pursue and kill the two men. Plum learns that Marion, the girl of the lilacs, is Neil's sister. The two men plan to escape on Nat's sloop and take Marion and Winnsome, daughter of Arbor Croche, and sweetheart of Neil. Nat discovers that the sloop is gone. Marion tells him that his ship has been seized by the Mormons. She begs him to leave the island, telling him that nothing can save her from Strang, whom she is doomed to marry. Plum finds Price raving mad. Recovering, he tells Nat that Strang is doomed, that armed men are descending on the island. Nat learns that Marion has been summoned to the castle by Strang. Nat kills Arbor Croche, and after a desperate fight with the king, leaves him for dead. The avenging host from the mainland descends on St. James. Neil and Nat take a part in the battle and the latter is wounded. Strang, whom Nat thought he had killed, orders him thrown into a dungeon. He finds Neil a fellow prisoner. They overhear the Mormon jury deciding their fate.

CHAPTER X.—Continued.

He shrieked the words again and again, maddened beyond control, and the Mormon king, whose self-possession was more that of devil than man, still held the struggling girl in his arms as he turned his head toward the voice and saw Nathaniel's long arm and knotted fist threatening him through the hole in the wall. Then Neil's name in a piercing scream resounded through the dungeon corridor and in response to it the man under Nathaniel straightened himself so quickly that his companion fell back to the floor.

"Great God! what is the matter, Nat? Quick! let me up!"

Nathaniel staggered to his feet, the breath half gone out of his body, and in another instant Neil was at the opening. The great room into which he looked was empty.

"What was it?" he cried, leaping down. "What were they doing with Winnsome?"

"It was the king," said Nathaniel, struggling to master himself. "The king put his arms around Winnsome and—she struck him!"

"That was all?"

"He kissed her as she fought—and I yelled."

"She struck him!" Neil cried. "God bless little Winnsome, Nat! and—God bless her!"

Neil's breath came fast as he caught the other's hand.

"I'd give my life if I could help you—and Marion!"

"We'll give them together," said Nathaniel coolly, turning down the corridor. "Here's our chance. They'll come through that door to relock us in our cell. Shall we die fighting?"

He was groping about in the mud of the floor for some object.

"If we had a couple of stones—"

"It would be madness—worse than madness!" interposed Neil, steadying himself. "There will be a dozen rifles at that door when they open it. We must return to the cell. It is worth dying a harder death to hear from Marion and Winnsome. And we will hear from them before night."

They retreated into the dungeon. A few minutes later the door opened cautiously at the head of the corridor. A light blazed through the blackness and after an interval of silence the jailer made his appearance in front of the cell, a pistol in his hand.

"Don't be afraid, Jeekum," said Neil reassuringly. "You forgot the door and we've been having a little fun with the jury. That's all!"

The nervous whiteness left Jeekum's face at this cheerful report and he was about to close the door when Nathaniel exhibited a handful of gold pieces in the candle-light and frantically beckoned the man to come in. The jailer's eyes glittered understandingly and with a backward glance down the lighted corridor he thrust his head and shoulders inside.

"Five hundred dollars for that note!" he whispered. "Five hundred beside the four you've got!"

"Jeekum's a fool!" said Neil, as the door closed on them. "I feel sorry for him."

"Why?"

"Because he is accepting the money. Don't you suppose that you have been searched? Of course you have—probably before I came, while you were half dead on the floor. Somebody knows that you have the gold."

"Why hasn't it been taken?"

For a full minute Neil made no answer. And his answer, when it did come, first of all was a laugh.

"By George, that's good!" he cried exultingly. "Of course you were searched—and by Jeekum! He knows, but he hasn't made a report of it to Strang because he believes that in some way he will get hold of the money. He is taking a big risk—but he's winning! I wonder what his first scheme was?"

"Thought I'd bury it, perhaps," vouchsafed Nathaniel, throwing himself upon the straw. "There's room for two here, Neil."

A long silence fell between them. The action during the last few minutes had been too great an effort for Nathaniel and his wound troubled him again. As the pain and his terrible thoughts of Marion's fate returned to him he regretted that they had not ended it all in one last fight at the door. There, at least, they might have died like men instead of waiting to be shot down like dogs, their hands bound behind them, their breasts naked to the Mormon rifles. He did not fear death. In more than one game he had played against its hand, more often for love of the sport than not, but there was a horror in being penned up and tortured by it. He had come to look upon it as a fair enemy, filled, of course, with subterfuge and treachery, which were the laws of the game; but he had never dreamed of it as anything but merciful in its quickness. It was as if his adversary had broken an inviolable pact with him and he sweated and tossed on his bed of straw while Neil sat cool and silent on the bench against the dungeon wall. Sheer exhaustion brought him relief, and after a time he fell asleep.

He was awakened by Neil. The white face of Marion's brother was over him when he opened his eyes and he was shaking him roughly by the shoulder.

"Wake up, Nat!" he cried. "For heaven's sake—wake up!"

He drew back as Nathaniel sleepily roused himself.

"I couldn't help it, Nat," he apologized, laughing nervously. "You've lain there like a dead man for hours. My head is splitting with this damned silence. Come—smoke up! I got some tobacco from our jailer and he loaned me his pipe."

Nathaniel jumped to his feet. A fresh candle was burning on the table and in its light he saw that a startling change had come into Neil's face during the hours he had slept. It looked to him thinner and whiter, its lines had deepened, and the young man's eyes were filled with gloomy dejection.

"Why didn't you awaken me sooner?" he exclaimed. "I deserve a good drubbing for leaving you alone here!" He saw fresh food on the table. "It's late—" he began.

"That is our dinner and supper," interrupted Neil. He held his watch close to the candle. "Half past eight!"

"And no word—from—"

"No."

The two men looked deeply into each other's eyes.

"Jeekum delivered my note to her at noon when he was relieved," said Neil. "He did not carry it personally, but swears that he saw her receive it. He sent her word that he would call at a certain place for a reply when he was relieved again at five. There was no reply for him—not a word from Winnsome."

Their silence was painful. It was Nathaniel who spoke first, hesitatingly, as though afraid to say what was passing in his mind.

"I killed Winnsome's father, Neil," he said, "and Winnsome has demanded my death. I know that I am condemned to die. But you—" His eyes flashed sudden fire. "How do you know that my fate is to be yours? I begin to see the truth. Winnsome has not answered your note because she knows that you are to live and that she will see you soon. Between Winnsome and—Marion you will be saved!"

Neil had taken a piece of meat and was eating it as though he had not heard his companion's words.

"Help yourself, Nat. It's our last opportunity."

"You don't believe—"

"No. Lord, man, do you suppose that Strang is going to let me live to kill him?"

Somebody was fumbling with the chain at the dungeon door.

The two men stared as it opened slowly and Jeekum appeared. The jailer was highly excited.

"I've got word—but no note!" he whispered hoarsely. "Quick! Is it worth—"

"Yes! Yes!"

Nathaniel dug the gold pieces out of his pockets and dropped them into the jailer's outstretched hand.

"I've had my boy watching Winnsome Croche's house," continued the sheriff, white with the knowledge of the risk he was taking. "An hour ago Winnsome came out of the house and went into the woods. My boy followed. She ran to the lake, got into a skiff, and rowed straight out to sea. She is following your instructions!"

In his excitement he betrayed himself. He had read the note.

There came a sound up the corridor, the opening of a door, the echo of voices, and Jeekum leaped back. Nathaniel's foot held the cell door from closing.

"Where is Marion?" he cried softly, his heart standing still with dread. "Great God—what about Marion?"

For an instant the sheriff's ghastly face was pressed against the opening.

"Marion has not been seen since morning. The king's officers are searching for her."

The door slammed, the chains clanked loudly, and above the sound of Jeekum's departure Neil's voice rose in a muffled cry of joy.

"They are gone! They are leaving the island!"

Nathaniel stood like one turned into stone. His heart grew cold within him. When he spoke his words were passionless echoes of what had been.

"You are sure that Marion would kill herself as soon as she became the wife of Strang?" he asked.

"Yes—before his vile hands touched more than the dress she wore!" shouted Neil.

"Then Marion is dead," replied Nathaniel, as coldly as though he were talking to the walls about him. "For last night Marion was forced into the harem of the king."

As he revealed the secret whose torture he meant to keep imprisoned in his own breast he dropped upon the pallet of straw and buried his face between his arms, cursing himself that he had weakened in these last hours of their comradeship.

He dared not look to see the effect of his words on Neil. His companion uttered no sound. Instead there was a silence that was terrifying.

At the end of it Neil spoke in a voice so strangely calm that Nathaniel sat up and stared at him through the gloom.

"I believe they are coming after us, Nat. Listen!"

The tread of many feet came to them faintly from beyond the corridor wall.

Nathaniel had risen. They drew close together, and their hands clasped.

"Whatever it may be," whispered Neil, "may God have mercy on our souls!"

"Amen!" breathed Captain Plum.

DUG UP HIDDEN TREASURE

California Community Greatly Excited Over Mysterious Actions of Stranger.

The people of this community are wondering who was the mysterious stranger who visited the ancient adobe but a mile north of here a few evenings ago and dug up a box of can that had been buried there fifty years or more, says an Oakland correspondent of the San Francisco Chronicle. It is supposed he carried away a large quantity of gold bullion that belonged to Glanville Swift, an early day miner who lived in this hut while operating in the mines in the hills east of Chico, leaving in the early '60s with nearly $750,000 in gold, which took six weeks to weigh and required a pack train and strong guard to transport out of the country.

The stranger was seen loitering about the adobe but one evening, and a Mr. Fawcett, who lives near, tried to learn his mission, but failed. The next morning Fawcett found where a box or can had been dug up during the night. There were several stakes, showing that measurements had been made from a chart to locate the place to dig. Only one hole was made.

When Glanville Swift weighed his gold he found two or more large porter bottles of it missing. It is supposed they were stolen and buried and that this stranger learned of their whereabouts.

Land and Water Craft.

Rear Admiral John A. Howell, retired, inventor of the Howell torpedo, is having built a craft which he believes will solve the problem of combined land and water travel. The boat, which is being built at the plant of the Bath Marine Construction company, is 20 feet long, 6 feet 5 inches beam and with a tail 10 feet long. She will be fitted with a 10-horsepower engine, making 1,000 revolutions a minute. She will have a 21-inch pitch on the port side and a trail wheel at the stern. The two driving wheels are four feet in diameter and are placed forward. Except for the driving wheels, the craft is constructed on the lines of any small boat. It is expected that the boat will make about seven miles an hour in the water and twelve on land. It is understood that she will be ready for her trial early in the coming month. The new boat might well be named the Crocodile.—Kennebec Journal.

Ceaseless Change.

Reflect often upon the instability of things and how very fast the scenes of nature are shifted. Matter is in a perpetual flux. Change is always and everywhere at work; it strikes through causes and effects and leaves nothing fixed and permanent. And then how very near us stand two vast gulfs of time, the past and the future, in which all things disappear. Now, is not that man a blockhead that lets these momentary things make him proud or uneasy, or sorrowful as though they could trouble him for long?—Marcus Aurelius.

Those Transient Engagements.

The brother and sister were strangers in New York. The sister was very pretty.

"I am going to bring a young man up to see you this evening," her brother said. "He is engaged to be married."

"Then why bring him?" asked she.

"It doesn't matter," her brother explained. "They tell me that here in New York engagements are more transient even than marriages."

800 Bushels from 20 acres of wheat was the thresher's return from a Lloydminster farm in the season of 1910. Many fields in that as well as other districts yielded from 25 to 35 bushels of wheat to the acre. Other grains in proportion.

LARGE PROFITS are thus derived from the FREE HOMESTEAD LANDS of Western Canada.

This excellent showing causes prices to advance. Land values should double in two years' time.

Grain growing, mixed farming, cattle raising and dairying are all profitable. Free Homesteads of 160 acres are to be had in the very best districts: 160 acre pre-emptions at $3.00 per acre within certain areas. Schools and churches in every settlement, climate unexcelled, soil the richest: wood, water and building material plentiful.

SCHOOL NEWS

Florence and Viola Sampson re-entered school Monday after a week's absence on account of sickness.

Fred Arnold Jr. is absent this week on account of sickness.

Those perfect in attendance for the month ending Jan. 27th: Cora Lau, Ewald Lau, Mabel Waterman, Erwin Lau, Mark Achtermann, Walter Ridder, Bennie Ridder, Holly Lewis, Clarence Waterman. Herald Gruetzmacher, Paul Achtermann.

Those entering school since the new year are: Verner Lewis, Fred Blank, Harry Gibbs, Albert Krouse, Clarence Larsen and Nettie Haskin.

A literary society has been organized in the H. S. room, with the following officers: Pres Herbert Stille; Vice Pres., Emil Barz; Sec. Oscar Musfelt; Treas. Ralph Ludeke. Programs every first and third Fridays of each school month. Come! Last Friday the subject for debate was "Shall the Women have the Right of Suffrage?" The decision was in favor of the affirmative, 2 to 1, as it was proven that women are the housekeepers; the government is housekeeping on a large scale. In the states where suffrage is granted a better local government exists. The mothers are usually thot of as being more responsible for the home training of the child, and she cannot keep the boy clean on a filthy street and in a bad atmosphere

Union exercises were held in the H. S. Room Tuesday morning. A short program was given as follows—Song by schools, recitation by Levi Ridder, song by the Primary pupils, piano solo by Esther Bloom, song by the girls of the Intermediate room. solo by Prof. Missman. The devotionals were led by Rev Schneider, who also gave a very bright, helpful and practical talk to the school on the values of an education.

We believe the pupils of our Public Schools get a great deal out of the Lecture Course, and as Thomas McClary, the lecturer of last Thursday night, requested the pupils to write a review of his lecture, we are putting in with the school news the review written by Herbert Stille a ninth grade pupil Subject—

"THE MISSION OF MIRTH"

Life is like two fountains which are side by side—a fountain of joy and a fountain of sorrow. When one arises it overflows into the other.

First—Mirth improves the health, for there's nothing more healthful than a good sound laugh which comes from the tips of your boots to the top of your head. Mind has an influence over the body in this respect. I believe in faith cures, such as Christian science, etc. If you develop a case of appendicitis in your head, you are liable to develop a bad case in your side.

Second—It improves the beauty. It beats all the beauty appliances that can be bought. It smoothens the brow. brightens the eye. arches the eyebrow, turns up the corners of the mouth and keeps away wrinkles until old age. A face may be pretty because it has regular features but it is beautiful when it is made so through a good character. Lincoln was awkward, gaunt and rugged but his picture is hung in nearly every home and his face is considered beautiful and handsome because of the kindliness and good character which shines through it.

Third—Cultivating mirth helps us over the hard places in life. Troubles, discouragements and disappointments will not seem so great and will be more easily overcome if we take a hopeful, cheerful view of them and make the most of the good and pleasant things in life and do not give way to discouragements. During one of the most trying times of the war of the rebellion Sec. Stanton came in to speak to Lincoln, when Lincoln said: "Have you heard ——'s latest?" Stanton looked at Mr. Lincoln and said: "Mr. Lincoln, this is a serious time for joking." Lincoln went to a drawer and got the paper, read it all through and then turned to Stanton and told him it was necessary for him to read mirthful things to keep from breaking down under the weight of serious responsibilities.

Fourth—It helps us to do good. By being cheerful and cultivating mirth we influence others to be more hopeful and cheerful and so brighten their lives. It also will make us more attractive and strengthen our influence

Fifth—Mirth helps in business. A business man who cultivates mirth will attract customers. Some men have built up a big business and grown wealthy through small acts of kindness and being obliging to others.

Causes of mirth or helps to being mirthful. Jokes will help us to be mirthful and are written for this purpose though sometimes it is hard for the writers to compose them.

Other people's blunders may be the cause of mirth for us. Illustration—The speaker was going down the street when he saw a pair of trousers hanging in front of a store. On the trousers was a card with these words on "Maid Inside." He went on down the street a ways and then came back and looked into them—there was nothing there.

We can see funny and cheering things happening around us if we look for them. The right kind of religion will make us more cheerful and hopeful. The kind that makes people sour and think only of getting ready to die is not real religion. For the real religion see "The Sermon on the Mount," beginning with the fifth chapter of St. Matthew's Gospel.

The Charles City Western, the new line recently completed between Charles City and Marble Rock and which operates gasoline motor cars, is doing a profitable passenger business from the start. Last week the line carried a total of 800 passengers.

A dispatch from Iowa Falls says: "Judge Wright has decided an interesting point in drainage laws in rendering a decision in the Clancy-King case which originated between two farm owners north of the city. Clancy tiled his farm and dumped the water on King's farm. King built an embankment and Clancy secured an injunction which Judge Wright now makes permanent, holding that the water naturally flowed over King's land and that King had no right to stop it."

The elevator at Olaf, located on the Iowa Central half way between Kanawha and Belmond, was destroyed by fire Tuesday evening. With it burned 2,000 bushels of corn and 15,000 bushels of oats. Insurance on the building $2,500, on grain $6,000. One policy expired at noon but was renewed before the fire same day. No one was at the elevator at time fire started, although grain had been elevated up to a short time previous. It is thought that some of the shafting became overheated and started the fire soon after the engine had been shut down. No other property was destroyed. A co-operative company, consisting mostly of farmers, owned the elevator and also the store there. The net loss will probably be about $2,000. A directors meeting was held the following day. They will provide a temporary building at once so that grain can be received and will build a new elevator later.—Kanawha Record.

Thomas McClary gave his popular lecture "The Mission of Mirth" to a good sized audience in the Klemme opera house last Thursday evening. We have heard many favorable comments on this lecture, some saying it was the best ever given from a Klemme platform. Mr. Mc Clary is a natural orator, a good reasoner, and he holds his audience spell-bound, so to speak. Should he ever return to this place to lecture, it goes without saying that he will be greeted by a full house.

The fourth and last number of the Klemme high school lecture course will be given at the opera house next Saturday evening, February 4th, when Albert Edward Wiggam will deliver his famous lecture on "Dollars and Sense." PASSING OF HENRY FULLER

On Sunday night, January 29, 1911, at his home in Union township, Cerro Gordo county, occurred the death of Henry Fuller, death being caused by an abscess of the lung, followed by hemorrhage. This news came as a sad surprise to his many friends as no one seemed to know that he was seriously ill.

Henry Fuller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Fuller, was born in Hancock county, Iowa, on January 24th, 1871, being forty years and five days old at the time of his demise. He leaves to mourn his loss a wife and three small children, also six brothers—Lude, Lionel, Cyrus, Guy, Clarence and Roy—and two sisters—Mrs. Wm. Roths and Frona Fuller. Funeral services were held yesterday from the U. B. church in Goodell and interment made in Goodell cemetery.

Deceased was a good citizen and a kind neighbor and he will be missed by a large circle of friends as well as by those who were near and dear to him. The sympathy of the whole community is with the bereaved ones in their sad affliction.

WOMANLY WISDOM

Make your life a blessing to everybody about you.

To keep clothes from freezing to the line put a handful of salt in the last rinsing water.

After peeling apples drop them into cold water. This will prevent their becoming discolored.

To suit both those who like beefsteak rare and well done, cut it in two and partly cook one piece before putting the other one on.

Hang a shoe brush up in front of the iron scraper, and try to get the men in the habit of using it to take off the mud the scraper leaves.

Washing lamp-chimneys by immersing them in water often makes them brittle. A safer way to clean them is to hold them for a few minutes over a steaming kettle. Then polish them briskly with a soft cloth. From February Farm Journal.

Do you know that croup can be prevented? Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It is also a certain cure for croup and has never been known to fail. Sold by all dealers.

THE SCHOOLS OF WESTERN CANADA

In Some of the Cities and Towns the School Buildings Cannot Accommodate the Increasing Numbers.

One of the most important factors in the building of a new country is the attention that is paid by the authorities to the education of the rising generation. Fortunately for western Canada, the settlement of that new country began in such recent years that it was able to lay a foundation for this work, gained by the experience of older countries. In this way the very best is the result. Throughout the entire country are to be seen the most improved style of architecture in school buildings. The cities and towns vie with each other in the efforts to secure the best of accommodation and at the same time get architectural lines that would appeal. Sufficient to say that nowhere is there the greater attention paid to elementary and advanced education than in western Canada. A report just to hand shows that in Calgary, Alberta, there are eighty teachers employed, and the enrollment 4,228 pupils. In the Province of Alberta there was a total of 46,000 pupils attending schools in 1909. The total enrollment for the year in city, town and village schools was 22,883, and the total in rural schools was 23,165. There are in the province 970 schools with 1,323 departments. At the close of 1909 there was a total of 1,096 school districts in the province. Great attention is paid also to agricultural education. The best uses of the soil and such other matters as tend to make the agriculture less of a drudge and more of a success are employed. When there is the combination of good soil, splendid climate and healthy and advanced ideas in the methods employed in agriculture, we see accomplished the results that have placed western Canada on its present high plane in the agricultural world. There is to be found men of high standing in literary spheres as well as in financial circles who are carrying on farming, not alone for the pleasure they derive but for the profit they secure. Mr. Adler, a wide-awake business man of New York, has a ranch near Strathmore, Alberta. He is highly pleased with his success the past year. He says:

"On July 25th we estimated our crop at 6,000 bushels of wheat. A week later we increased our estimate to 12,000 bushels. A few days later we again increased our estimate, this time to 18,000 bushels, but after harvest in September we found we had 20,150 bushels. If that isn't a record, what is?" he asked.

"This crop was made with practically no moisture," he continued, "and we now have a better opinion of the fertility of Alberta lands than ever and value our lands higher than we ever did before."

Mr. Adler, who has been on the ranch for about a week, leaves for New York Saturday.

This gentleman is conducting a farm on a large scale, and has plenty of means to develop it, and his may not be taken as a fair case. There are, though, instances of thousands who have begun life on small farms in western Canada with but brains and the determination over and above the couple of hundred dollars in ready money that they possessed, and today are owners of large farms and handsome incomes, all the result of their efforts on land that was responsive to the touch of the hand that held the plow. Instances such as these can be quoted if you will communicate with the nearest Canadian government agent, who will also mail you free descriptive literature.

There are many kinds of pleasures, and some of them aren't so pleasant.

Senator Speaks at the Delaware County Short Course

INSTITUTE MARKED SUCCESS

Junior Iowa Senator Discusses Advantages of Good Roads and Speaks of Progress Made in Farming.

Manchester, Ia.—The closing session of the Delaware County Farmers' institute was addressed by United States Senator Lafayette Young, of Des Moines. The institute was a marked success, the attendance being larger than any institute previously held in the county. The sessions were held in the court room, which was packed to overflowing. The most conspicuous exhibit was that of C. A. Swindell of Ryan, which consisted of a choice collection of grains and grasses. One afternoon was given in part to educational questions, the speakers being County Superintendent Guy D. Ribble, F. D. Joseph and Superintendent J. R. Inman of the Manchester schools.

Gen. M. F. Le Roy introduced the principal speaker, Senator Lafayette Young, and for more than an hour Senator Young addressed the audience. Mr. Young spoke at some length on the good roads problem, pointing out many advantages to be derived by the Iowa farmers from good and well-kept public highways.

Senator Young spoke of the wonderful progress made in agricultural lines in the last sixty years and prophesied that in the not far distant future Iowa farms would double in value, and that the immense amount of waste land in Iowa would be put to better use than is being made today. New markets, he said, are being opened for Iowa farm products, and with the completion of the Panama canal, South and Central America would open markets for northern grown produce such as the Mississippi valley only can supply.

Breeders to Meet.

Des Moines.—Aberdeen-Angus breeders of the state, members of the Iowa State Aberdeen-Angus Breeders' association, will hold their fourth annual meeting in Des Moines on Feb. 8 and 9. Mayor James R. Hanna will welcome the stockmen at the opening session at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Feb, 8. Others on an interesting programme are President Silas Igo of Indianola, Miss Baker and Mrs. Matt Baker of Mitchellville, A. C. Binnie of Alta, T. A. Stevenson of Shannon City, H. J. Hess of Waterloo, M. H. Donahoe of Holbrook, Prof. C. F. Curtiss of Ames, Sears McHenry of Denison, C. J. Marin of Churdan, W. J. Miller of Newton, Charles Escher, Jr., of Botna, and James Atkinson of Des Moines.

Declared Dead, Comes to Life.

Albia.—Mrs. Benj. Anderson, of Bluff Creek township has come to life after being pronounced dead, according to statements by members of her family. Her son, E. C. Anderson, of Albia, received word his mother was dead. He started for her home. When he arrived relatives were gathered at the house. Mr. Anderson broke down when taken into the room where his mother's body was lying. He called out to her to speak to him. To the surprise of all she opened her eyes and smiled. Physicians were summoned and after several hours' hard work they announced she would recover.

Disappointed at Savings Bank.

Decorah.—While the postoffice officials are not saying much, it is generally understood that they are rather disappointed in the way the postal savings bank is being received. Only a very few are patronizing it with their deposits. It is believed that the merits of the system are not thoroughly understood and that it will take some time before the people will learn to have confidence in it and give it patronage.

Boost New Industries.

Sioux City.—The Sioux City Commercial club in an open letter directed to the Woodbury delegation to the state legislature, has demanded that the energies of the contingent be directed to secure passage of a law to do away with all taxes on infant and new industrial organizations.

White Names Legislative Body.

Oskaloosa.—President J. P. White of District No. 13, United Mine Workers, announces the appointment of John Owens of Beacon and W. I. Doolittle of Des Moines as representatives from Oskaloosa to secure legislation at the general assembly in favor of the miners

S. L. Hopper Shot by Brother.

Neola, Ia.—S. L. Hopper, aged 35 years, a prominent farmer living seven miles north of this city and former president of the National Duroc Jersey Swinebreeders' association, was shot and probably fatally injured by his brother, Percy Hopper. Percy Hopper, who is 19 years of age, was captured in Boomer township, Pottawattamie county and turned over to the Harrison county authorities, where the shooting occurred.

The shooting, which occurred in the field of the injured man, was said to have followed a quarrel between the two brothers concerning the loading of grain. It is said, however, that there has been trouble between the two men for some time concerning money matters, Percy Hopper having been in the employ of his brother for about one year.

The bullet, which was from a 32 caliber revolver, struck Hopper in the left breast and lodged below the heart. Owing to Hopper's condition it was impossible to probe for the bullet. Young Hopper was taken to the county jail at Logan in Harrison county to await the result of the shooting.

S. L. Hopper is wealthy and is one of the best known swine breeders of the state.

Officers for Poultry Show.

Sioux City.—The interstate Poultry and Pet Stock Show association elected officers for the year as follows: A. G. Pearson, president; T. A. Rose, vice president; L. G. Wertz, secretary and treasurer, all of Sioux City. Superintendent for Iowa, H. N. Brothers of Sioux City; for South Dakota, H. P. Larson of Beresford; for Nebraska, Alex Mitchell of Coleridge; for Minnesota, C. W. Ellison, Minneapolis. The superintendents of the show will be James Pridie, R. J. Barrett, G. F. Statter and E. P. Hunt, all of Sioux City. Next year's show will be in Sioux City, opening Jan. 14. The show has been a financial success.

Wants Best Iowa Skunks.

Cedar Rapids.—State Game and Fish Warden George A. Lincoln, who makes his home in this city would like to know if there is any person in Iowa who makes it a business of propagating the mephitis mephitica—the wily little animal more commonly known as the skunk. Mr. Lincoln has received a communication from a man at Spokane, Wash., who says he is going to start a skunk farm and he wants to get some of the best Iowa varieties for breeding persons. Mr. Lincoln says he would be glad to receive any information as to whether there is such an industry in Iowa, but he doesn't care to receive samples of the product.

Wins Honors on Butter.

Manchester.—W. E. Mittlestadt, buttermaker for a Cooperative Creamery company here, won first honors in the four months' educational contest conducted under the auspices of the State Agricultural college at Ames. Mr. Mittlestadt's score was 94⅝. A few months ago Mr. Mittlestadt won first honors and a handsome medal in the butter contest at the Iowa State Dairy convention held in Waterloo. In addition to winning the highest honors in the state contest, his butter scored third highest at the National Buttermakers' convention held in Chicago last November.

New Home For Nevada Masons.

Nevada.—The Masonic Temple company, an organization formed within the membership of the local Masonic lodge, has been formed for the purpohe of purchasing what is known as the Rimsheim block at the corner of Lynn and Court avenue and converting it into a Masonic temple.

Farmer Slain by Train.

Fort Dodge.—Swan Chalstrom, a prominent retired farmer of Callendar, met death when a Minneapolis and St. Louis train struck him as it rounded a curve. The wheels severed both of Chalstrom's legs and he died shortly afterwards. He was 7 years of age and leaves a wife and several sons and daughters.

Near Death In Flames.

Shenandoah.—Mrs. Elizabeth Monzingo of Coin was nearly burned to death when her clothing caught fire as she was putting fuel in the stove. Had it not been for her son, who heard her cries for help and extinguished the flames, Mrs. Monzingo probably would have lost her life. She was frightfully burned about the body and arms.

Pastor Changes Faith.

Mason City.—The Rev. G. F. Barsalou, for five years dean of the faculty of Memorial university, and for many years a Methodist minister in the Upper Des Moines conference, has severed his connection with the church and has united with the Congregational church.

MERIT WINS

There Is Probably No Other Known Remedy the Fame of Which Became World-Wide With So Little Advertising As Resinol.

Merit won. Resinol did the work. It cured where other remedies failed. Its grateful user told the next sufferer, and he in turn told another sufferer, and he another, and so on and on its fame spread by this magical verbograph until it encircled the world. The world knows now that Resinol will cure that torturing disease, Eczema. Your druggist will confirm it, and also will tell you that it is a quick and certain cure for Erythema; for Tetter, for Herpes, for Psoriasis, for Eruption of Poison Ivy, for Impetigo and all eruptive skin diseases. It is perfectly harmless and is the best application for the chafing of infants, for Milk Rash, Scald Head and other infantile skin troubles. It stops the itching of Pruritus Ani or Itching Piles instantaneously. Its efficacy for this trouble alone has made it indeed a boon to humanity. Resinol Soap contains the same medication in a modified form. It is delightfully refreshing for the bath, keeps the skin always pure and maintains the ruddy glow of health. It gives luster to the hair and keeps the scalp free of dandruff. Resinol Salve and Resinol Soap are for sale in all drug stores. Resinol Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

To Arrange Flowers.

Here are five golden rules which should be observed by those who often arrange flowers. Use plenty of foliage. Put your flowers in very lightly. Use artistic glasses. Do not put more than two or, at the most, three different kinds of flowers in one decoration. Arrange your colors to form a bold contrast or, better still, a soft harmony. The aim of the decorator should be to show off the flowers—not the vases that contain them; therefore the simpler ones are far preferable to even the most elaborate. Glasses for a dinner table should be either white, a delicate shade of green, or rose color, according to the flowers arranged in them.

ECZEMA GONE, BOILS CURED

"My son was about three weeks old when I noticed a breaking-out on his cheeks, from which a watery substance oozed. A short time after, his arms, shoulders and breast broke out also, and in a few days became a solid scab. I became alarmed, and called our family physician, who at once pronounced the disease eczema. The little fellow was under his treatment for about three months. By the end of that time, he seemed no better. I became discouraged, and as I had read the advertisements of Cuticura Remedies and testimonials of a great many people who had used them with wonderful success, I dropped the doctor's treatment, and commenced the use of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and in a few days noticed a marked change. The eruption on his cheeks was almost healed, and his shoulders, arms and breast were decidedly better. When he was about seven months old all trace of the eczema was gone.

"During his teething period, his head and face were broken out in boils which I cured with Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Surely he must have been a great sufferer. During the time of teething and from the time I dropped the doctor's treatment, I used the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, nothing else, and when two years old he was the picture of health. His complexion was soft and beautiful, and his head a mass of silky curls. I had been afraid that he would never be well, and I feel that I owe a great deal to the Cuticura Remedies." ARNS AGAINST MOLDY CORN mous Seed Corn Expert Says Much Corn Was Partially Frozen and Cautions Farmers to Make Efficient Tests.

Ames, Jan. 30.—An unusual amount frozen corn in Iowa this year makes e necessity of testing seed corn ore extreme than ever, according a statement made by Prof. P. G. lden of the Iowa State college at nes. The famous seed expert says has found a large per cent of the rn he has examined to be at least rtially frozen and cautions the rmers to make efficient tests be- re planting.

"Because of the good weather dur- g the fall, many Iowa farmers are the opinion that the corn will make cellent seed," said Professor Hold- . "They will be mistaken in this, wever, for much of the corn is sted. Corn that is badly frozen n easily be detected by the dark lor. Partially frozen ears can not detected except by testing and it with them that the farmer is li- le to experience considerable trou- e. All seed corn this year should tested if the best results are to obtained. I also wish to caution e Iowa farmer against the use of ldy corn for seed. One ear of ldy corn might spoil a whole bush- of seed corn."

RELIEVES URINARY AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, BACKACHE, STRAINING, SWELLING, ETC.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a QUICK RECOVERY, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K-255 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

BURDENS LIFTED FROM BAD BACKS

Weary is the back that bears the burden of kidney ills. There's no rest or peace for the man or woman who has a bad back. The distress begins in early morning. You feel lame and not refreshed. It's hard to get out of bed. It hurts to stoop to tie your shoes. All day the ache keeps up. Any sudden movement sends sharp twinges through the back. It is torture to stoop and straighten. At night the sufferer retires to toss and twist and grown. Backache is kidney ache—a throbbing, dull aching in the kidneys. Plasters or liniments won't do. You must get at the cause, inside.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS CURE SICK KIDNEYS

COMPLETELY PROSTRATED.

Mrs. Eliza Kirk, S. Main St., Spencer, Ind., says: "I had been prostrated with inflammatory rheumatism. My limbs were swollen, hands drawn out of shape and I was so sensitive to pain I had to be turned in sheets. It was surprising how quickly Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me and how soon I was cured. For three years my cure has been permanent."

How To Tell When The Kidneys Are Disordered--

Painful Symptoms: Backache, sideache, pains when stooping or lifting, sudden sharp twinges, rheumatic pains, neuralgia, painful, scanty or too frequent urination, dizzy spells, dropsy.

Urinary Symptoms: Discolored or cloudy urine. Urine that contains sediment. Urine that stains the linen. Painful passages. Blood or shreds in the urine. Let a bottle of the morning urine stand for 24 hours. If it shows a cloudy or fleecy settling, or a layer of fine grains, like brick dust, the kidneys are probably disordered.

WEIGHED ONLY 80 POUNDS.

Byron Bennette, 1018 St. Clair Ave., East Liverpool, O., says: "I was helpless in bed with kidney trouble. I ran down until I weighbut 80 pounds and everyone thought I had consumption. A specialist gave me up and so did my home physician. Surprising as it may seem, I was able to leave my bed after using six boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and for six years I have remained free from kidney trouble."

FIVE TASTY DISHES

SUGGESTIONS MAY BE OF VALUE TO THE COOK.

Fish Macaroni Is an English Recipe—Sardine Eggs—Iced Oranges an Excellent Summer Dessert—For Heart Cakes.

Fish Macaroni.—A most appetizing dish is made with fish and macaroni in the following way. Boil half pound of macaroni till tender, in salted water, chop it in small pieces, and mix it with two pounds of any boiled fish free from bones. Take three ounces of grated cheese, and mix in half of it; then butter some ramequin cases or a pie dish, fill and put the rest of the cheese on the top with a few pieces of butter. Brown the fish, etc., in the oven or before the fire.

Sardine Eggs.—Cut some hard-boiled eggs lengthwise, and remove the yolks carefully, so as to keep the whites whole. Skin and bone some sardines, chop them finely, season with a few drops of vinegar, pepper, and salt. Fill the whites of the eggs with this mixture, and scatter the chopped yolks on the top. Serve on lettuce with a good salad dressing.

Iced Oranges.—Skin the oranges, remove as much of the white pith as possible without injuring the fruit, and pass a thread through the center of each orange. For the icing whisk the whites of two eggs well, stir in one pound of icing sugar, and beat thoroughly for a quarter of an hour. Place this stick across a very moderate oven, and let the oranges remain until dry.

Heart Cakes.—Work half pound of butter to a cream with the hand, put to it four yolks of eggs and of two whites (well beaten), half pound of sifted sugar, half pound dry flour, the usual quantity of baking powder, two spoonfuls of orange-flower water, half pound of currants, and one ounce of candied orange and citron. Beat till the cakes go in the oven. This quantity will fill 18 middling tins.

Savory Surprises.—Take a piece of bacon about four inches long, roll inside minced beef, chicken, and parsley; pepper and salt to taste. Put in rolls on a skewer, dip in batter, and fry a golden brown.

Bean Croquettes.

Boil one-half pint of beans, small white ones, in a pint of water with one-half teaspoonful of soda for five minutes, pour off the water and put through cold water till the skins come off; throw the skins away and boil the beans until tender, strain off the water and use three-quarters of boiled beans to one-quarter part soaked cracked crumbs, add a little finely minced onion and mix, adding one egg, and flour if necessary; salt to taste, shape in the usual way, fry in deep fat; serve with celery sauce made as follows: Take three heads of celery, cut in very small pieces, boil them eight minutes in water, then strain off the water and put the celery in a white sauce made of milk and a little flour for thickening; boil for about eight minutes, stirring constantly.

Chocolate Sirup.

Put 3½ pints of boiling water into a saucepan, add one pound cocoa, let stand about five minutes to moisten the cocoa and then stir thoroughly. Add 3½ pints more of water and cook for one hour, stirring occasionally. Add five pounds of granulated sugar and stir until dissolved, then cook about half an hour. Remove from the fire and when cold strain through double thickness of cheesecloth. Add two ounces of vanilla extract and store in bottles. This may be poured over ice cream or used in making chocolate to be served as a beverage. For the latter use take ⅛ cup to ¾ cup of hot milk.

Stewed Mutton.

Cut the meat into convenient size pieces; if fresh meat is used it should be browned before it is put into the saucepan; cover with stock and let boil; cut up one carrot, a little turnip, two medium-sized onions and two potatoes into small pieces, add to the contents of saucepan; let stew gently for 1½ hours; it should only simmer, never boil fast, and, of course, is much better made with fresh meat than cooked. Thicken just before serving with a little flour, season with salt, pepper and Worcestershire sauce.

Almond Tarts.

Ingredients: three eggs; one-half cupful of sugar; one-half pound of shelled almonds. Beat the yolks of the eggs to a cream, add the sugar, and beat vigorously. Pound the almonds slightly, and add them to the eggs and sugar. Place the mixture in patty pans lined with paste, and bake eight minutes. Beat the whites of the eggs stiff, add two tablespoonfuls of sugar, distribute the egg among the tarts, spreading it on top, and brown nicely in the oven.

Quick Beef Soup.

Grind one-half pound of round steak through the meat grinder. Cover with boiling water and allow it just to come to a boil on the stove. Strain, season and serve. This was recommended to me by a physician who prescribed it for delicate digestions.

Russia Sandwiches.

Chop olives fine and moisten with mayonnaise. Cut bread into thin, narrow strips, spread one-half with chopped olives and the rest with caviare. Press together in pairs.

SENT HAIL TO THE MOON

Embryo Man-of-War's Man at Least Convinced Officer He Was Attending to His Duty.

This is the story of one of the members of the Massachusetts Naval Reserves. On the second night of the cruise of the San Francisco one of the amateur tars was on watch. The night was clear, and myriads of stars twinkled in the sky, but there was no moon. Suddenly the reserve sang out, "Light ahoy!" "Where away?" asked the officer of the deck. "Far, far away," replied the would-be man-of-war's man. When the officer had recovered from the shock occasioned by this unseamanlike answer he looked over the rail in the direction indicated by the reserve's finger, and then he had another fit. "What's the matter with you?" growled the officer. "Can't you recognize the rising moon when you see it?" "Moon! moon!" stammered the embryo sea dog. "I beg your pardon, sir!" Then he shouted, as if making amends for his error, "Moon ahoy!"

The Selfish View.

"Do you want cheaper postage?"

"I don't know," replied the man who considers only his own interests. "I don't write many letters myself, and I don't see why I should be eager to make it easier for the men who send me bills."

DABNEY'S NEW BILL

Provides Immediate Application of Oregon Plan to Senatorship

HOUSE FAVORS DIRECT VOTE

Measure Provides Governor Shall Call Special Election When Majority of Assembly Agree to Vote for Candidate Receiving Highest Vote.

Des Moines, Iowa. — Outside the voting for senator, Monday, there was one other development having a hearing on the senatorial contest. Representative Dabney introduced a bill in the house which provides in substance for the immediate application of the Oregon plan. It is the means by which the democrats intend to get in on a primary if one is held. They will urge their plan over the special primary bill of Representative Harding for the reason that under the Harding measure they must help pay for the election but cannot participate in it. Under the Dabney measure the democrats can enter a candidate.

Although the bill is not the same as the Oregon plan of electing senators, it involves almost the same principle. It is destined to have direct bearing on the existing situation in regard to the election of a successor to Senator Dolliver.

According to the provisions of Dabney's bill, the governor shall call a special election when a majority of the members of the general assembly have signed and filed with the governor a statement wherein they promise to vote for the candidate who receives the highest number of votes in the special election by proclamation at the earliest practical time, giving at least twenty days' notice. It also is provided that the provisions of the act shall apply to the selection of the senator in congress to be selected by the Thirty-fourth general assembly.

Nearly all members of the house went on record as favoring the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people, when the house passed a joint resolution making application to the congress of the United States to call a convention for proposing an amendment to the constitution which will authorize such direct elections.

The resolution, as presented by Dabney of Davis county, asks for a constitutional convention to be called by congress upon application of the legislatures of two-thirds of the states. Provisions for delivering the resolution to the president of the senate, the speaker of the house with the request that it be laid before the house and the senate are included.

Although many believe that the resolution will have no effect in the existing senatorial situation, it at least forced the members of the house to go on record as favoring direct primary election of United States senators.

Higher Pay for Iowa Solons.

Des Moines, Iowa.—Higher pay for the members of the general assembly of Iowa was voted by the senate when it passed the Sammis bill. This bill originally provided for an increase in salary of from $550 to $1,200, but the adoption of an amendment by Proudfoot of Warren changed the increase from $550 to $1,000. Senators Saunders and Gilliland spoke in support of the bill. Smith of Shelby offered an amendment providing that the bill should not affect members of the present assembly. Mattes of Sac offered an amendment that the law should not go into effect until 1914. Both amendments were lost. Those who voted against the bill as it was finally passed were Adams, Chase, Clarkson, Fitchpatrick, Hammill, Larrabee, Smith of Shelby, Spaulding and Van Law. The vote was: Yeas, 36; Nays, 13.

Physicians Must Report Tuberculosis

The fight to compel physicians to report to the state board of health all cases of tuberculosis has been won so far as the house of representatives are concerned.

The body by a vote of 77 to 24, passed the Shane bill which provides that all physicians of the state must, after proper diagnosis, report to the secretary of the state board of health all cases of tuberculosis.

The adoption of the bill was not accomplished without a fight, in which Odendahl, of Carroll, a democrat, took the leadership. He declared that it was too paternalistic and that further it was compelling physicians to give up medical secrets and was unwise and un-American.

The vote was not along party lines. Shane, father of the bill, led the fight for its adoption and won easily.

CUTS THROUGH PILE OF WORK.

With Sixty Bills on Hand, Judiciary Committee Puts Many Measures Out of Way.

Des Moines.—With sixty bills on its hands, the members of the judiciary committee dug up the ax and commenced to cut a big hole in the pile of prospective legislation. The committee is gaining a reputation as the "slaughter house of the general assembly."

Four bills were indefinitely postponed by the committee. They were as follows: A bill by Hickenlooper of Monroe providing for the filing and execution of $5,000 bonds by abstractors; a bill by Perkins of Delaware providing for the cancellation of wills; a bill by Campbell of Ida allowing the attachment of personal property upon the filing of a petition and bond with the sheriff or constable, and a bill introduced in the senate by Quigley authorizing the employment of detectives by counties for the purpose of ferreting out crime.

A bill by Dunlap of Clinton, providing for the passage of vehicles on public highways was amended and recommended for passage. Other measures recommended for passage were a bill by Ripley of Hancock, relating to the service and forfeiture of contracts; a bill by Smith of Decatur, amending census laws, and a bill by O'Connor of Chickasaw, providing for the place of a trial in actions against companies authorized to furnish bonds in Iowa.

Plan New Normal School.

Des Moines, Iowa. — A second state normal school to be known as the Shenandoah State Normal and Commercial college and to be located at Shenandoah, Page county, Ia., is provided for in a bill introduced in the house by Representative Stipe of Page county. The measure provides for an appropriation of $50,000 to buy the property of the Western Normal college at Shenandoah, make necessary improvements, and to establish the state institution.

It is the purpose of Representative Stipe in presenting the bill to provide a state institution for the education of common school and high school teachers and for the education of students in commercial and business courses.

The state board of education is given the power and authority to conduct the affairs of the proposed college. The board shall have the same power over the new school provided for in the bill as it does in connection with the state normal school at Cedar Falls. The same rules that apply to the Cedar Falls normal school shall govern the new school.

Members of the faculty of the proposed institution will be appointed by the board of education, according to the provisions of the bill. The measure provides that the salary of the president shall not exceed $5,000 and that the heads of the various departments shall receive compensations not exceeding $3,000.

Vote for United States Senator.

Bills Passed.

Senate file No. 34—By Gilliland—Requiring all trains to stop at Glenwood, Mills county, except heavy through trains passing between 11 o'clock at night and 5 o'clock in the morning. Passed.

H. F. No. 47, by Smith of Decatur—Substituting federal census for the state census as the official census of Iowa. Passed, 85 for to 0 against; 23 absent or not voting.

H. F. No. 42, by Harding of Woodbury—Giving cities and towns power to "amend" as well as "grant" franchises given to public utilities corporations. Passed.

More Cash For County Auditors.

Senator Balkema is author of a bill which operates to increase the salary of county auditors of Iowa. The measure fixes the salary of a county auditor in counties having from 25,000 to 35,000 population at $1,600; in counties having from 35,000 to 50,000 population at $1,800; in counties having from 50,000 to 60,000 population at $2,000 and in counties having over 60,000 population at $2,250.

EXCELLENT GRAIN FIELDS IN WESTERN CANADA

YIELDS OF WHEAT AS HIGH AS 54 BUSHELS PER ACRE.

Now that we have entered upon the making of a new year, it is natural to look back over the past one, for the purpose of ascertaining what has been done. The business man and the farmer have taken stock, and both, if they are keen in business detail and interest, know exactly their financial position. The farmer of Western Canada is generally a business man, and in his stock-taking he will have found that he has had a successful year. On looking over a number of reports sent from various quarters, the writer finds that in spite of the visitation of drouth in a small portion of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, many farmers are able to report splendid crops. And these reports come from different sections, covering an area of about 25,000 square miles. As, for instance, at Laird, Saskatchewan, the crop returns showed that J. B. Peters had 12,800 bushels from 320 acres, or nearly 40 bushels to the acre. In the Blaine Lake district the fields ranged from 15 to 50 bushels per acre, Ben Crews having 1,150 bushels from 24 acres; Edmond Trotter 1,200 bushels off 30 acres, while fields of 30 bushels were common. On poorly cultivated fields but 15 bushels were reported.

In Foam Lake (Sask.) district 100 bushels of oats to the acre were secured by Angus Robertson, D. McRae and C. H. Hart, while the average was 85. In wheat 30 bushels to the acre were quite common on the newer land, but off 15 acres of land cultivated for the past three years George E. Wood secured 495 bushels. Mr. James Traynor, near Regina (Sask.) is still on the shady side of thirty. He had 50,000 bushels of grain last year, half of which was wheat. Its market value was $25,000. He says he is well satisfied.

Arthur Somers of Strathclair threshed 100 acres, averaging 25 bushels to the acre. Thomas Foreman, of Milestone, threshed 11,000 bushels of wheat, and 3,000 bushels of flax off 600 acres of land. W. Weatherstone, of Strathclair, threshed 5,000 bushels of oats from 96 acres. John Gonzilla, of Gillies, about twenty-five miles west of Rosthern, Sask., had 180 bushels from 3 acres of wheat. Mr. Gonzilla's general average of crop was over 40 bushels to the acre. Ben Cruise, a neighbor, averaged 45 bushels to the acre from 23 acres. W. A. Rose, of the Walderheim district, threshed 6,000 bushels of wheat from 240 acres, an average of 25 bushels, 100 acres was on summer fallow and averaged 33 bushels. He had also an average of 60 bushels of oats to the acre on a 50-acre field. Wm. Lehman, who has a farm close to Rosthern, had an average of 27 bushels to the acre on 60 acres of summer fallow. Mr. Midsky, of Rapid City (Man.) threshed 1,000 bushels of oats from 7 acres.

The yield of the different varieties of wheat per acre at the Experimental Farm, Brandon, was: Red Fife, 28 bushels; White Fife, 34 bushels; Preston, 32 bushels; early Red Fife, 27 bushels.

The crops at the C. P. R. demonstration farms at Strathmore (Alberta) proved up to expectations, the Swedish variety oats yielding 110 bushels to the acre. At the farm two rowed barley went 48½ bushels to the acre. Yields of from 50 bushels to 100 bushels of oats to the acre were quite common in the Sturgeon River Settlement near Edmonton (Alberta). But last year was uncommonly good and the hundred mark was passed. Wm. Craig had a yield of oats from a measured plot, which gave 107 bushels and 20 lbs. per acre.

Albert Teskey, of Olds (Alberta) threshed a 100-acre field which yielded 101 bushels of oats per acre, and Joseph McCartney had a large field equally good. At Cupar (Sask.) oats threshed 80 bushels to the acre. On the Traquairs farm at Cupar, a five-acre plot of Marquis wheat yielded 54 bushels to the acre, while Laurence Barknel had 37 bushels of Red Fife to the acre. At Wordsworth, Reeder Bros.' wheat averaged 33¼ bushels to the acre, and W. McMillan's 32. William Krafft of Alix (Alberta) threshed 1,042 bushels of winter wheat off 19¾ acres, or about 53 bushels to the acre. John Laycroft of Dinton, near High River, Alberta, had over 1,100 bushels of spring wheat from 50 acres.

E. F. Knipe, near Lloydminster, Saskatchewan, had 800 bushels of wheat from 20 acres. W. Metcalf had over 31 bushels to the acre, while S. Henderson, who was hailed badly, had an average return of 32 bushels of wheat to the acre.

McWhirter Bros. and John McBain, of Redvers, Saskatchewan, had 25 bushels of wheat to the acre. John Kennedy, east of the Horse Mills district near Edmonton, from 40 acres of spring wheat got 1,767 bushels, or 44 bushels to the acre.

J. E. Vanderburgh, near Dayslow, Alberta, threshed four thousand bushels of wheat from 120 acres. Mr. D'Arcy, near there, threshed ten thousand and fifty-eight bushels (machine measure) of wheat from five hundred acres, and out of this only sixty acres was new land.

At Fleming, Sask., A Winter's wheat averaged 39 bushels to the acre and several others report heavy yields. Mr. Winter's crop was not on summer fallow, but on a piece of land broken in 1882 and said to be the first broken in the Fleming district.

The agent of the Canadian government will be pleased to give information regarding the various districts in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta where free homesteads of 160 acres are available.

REMEMBER PISO'S for COUGHS & COLDS

Lincoln's Favorite Poem

IF Abraham Lincoln it was once said that the prevailing sentiment of his powerful, yet sad, countenance was expressed in the line, "Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud?"

The sympathetic observer, who found there so splendid a significance, guessed the secret that lay within with almost clairvoyant insight.

That is the opening line of the poem which was Lincoln's favorite. It was written by a young Scotchman, who died at the age of 37—the age fatal to Burns, Byron, Motherwell and other gifted poets.

To those who appreciate meritorious verse, the same pleasure can be enjoyed here, in the reading of the poem in its completeness, as was vouchsafed Lincoln on that night of rare peace and talk of beauty amid the tumult of war and stress of his people's peril. This is the poem in full:

Mortality

Oh! why should the spirit of mortal be proud?
Like a swift, fleeting meteor, a fast-flying cloud,
A flash of the lightning, a break of the wave,
He passeth from life to his rest in the grave.

The leaves of the oak and the willow shall fade,
Be scattered around and together be laid;
And the young and the old, and the low and the high,
Shall moulder to dust and together shall lie.

The infant and mother attended and loved;
The mother that infant's affection who proved;
The husband that mother and infant who blessed—
Each, all, are away to their dwellings of rest.

The maid on whose cheek, on whose brow, in whose eye,
Shone beauty and pleasure—her triumphs are by;
And the memory of those that beloved her and praised,
Are alike from the minds of the living erased.

The peasant, whose lot was to sow and to reap;
The herdsman, who climbed with his goats up the steep;
The beggar, who wandered in search of his bread,
Have faded away like the grass that we tread.

So the multitude goes, like the flower or the weed,
That withers away to let others succeed;
So the multitude comes, even those we behold,
To repeat every tale that has often been told.

For we are the same as our fathers have been:
We see the same sights that our fathers have seen:
We drink the same stream and view the same sun,
And run the same course our fathers have run.

The thoughts we are thinking our fathers would think;
From the death we are shrinking our fathers would shrink;
To the life we are clinging they also would cling;
But it speeds for us all, like a bird on the wing.

They loved, but the story we cannot unfold:
They scorned, but the heart of the haughty is cold;
They grieved, but no wail from the slumber will come;
They joyed, but the tongue of their gladness is dumb.

They died—ay! they died. We things that are now,
That walk on the turf that lies over their brow,
And make in their dwellings a transient abode,
Meet the things that they met on their pilgrim road.

Yes! hope and despondency, pleasure and pain,
We mingle together in sunshine and rain;
And the smile and the tear, the song and the dirge,
Still follow each other, like surge upon surge.

'Tis the wink of an eye, 'tis the draught of a breath,
From the blossom of health to the paleness of death,
From the gilded saloon to the bier and the shroud,
Oh! why should the spirit of mortal be proud?

CUMMINS ON RATES

Makes Speech "Remarkable for Frankness and Directness"

PRAISES RAIL COMMISSION

Iowa Senator Says People Will Accept Socialism Before Monopoly if Such a Situation Should Ever Occur.

New York, Feb. 6.—In a speech remarkable for frankness and directness, Senator Albert B. Cummins of Iowa, a member of the senate committee on interstate commerce, told the Republican club what an important work the interstate commerce commission is performing. He told how the manner and trend of that performance are bound to make themselves deeply felt in the structure of future government and the articulate expression of the national conscience.

Regarding physical valuation, capitalization and rates charged by the railroads the senator said:

Concerning Capitalization.

"I do not say that the capitalization of railroads represents more than the value of the property, but I do say it represents millions more than the capital invested. Possibly the commission may enter upon this almost continuous work of supervision and regulation. One thing to do and that immediately, is to extend the federal power over all railroad capital engaged in the business of common carriers so that there shall not be a dollar that does not represent honest investment.

"I insist that capitalization has something to do with rates. Capitalization as a whole determines sales. It is idle to assert otherwise. I believe that physical valuation of railroad property will be made, but it is a work of long duration and in the meantime the government should impose restriction on any further dishonest capitalization."

The regulation of rates, continued the speaker, was the regulation of competition, a task which congress had also shouldered in passing the Sherman act, which, he added, "has not accomplished its end."

Need of Tribunal.

Co-operation in the hands of altruists, thought the senator, might be a good thing, but suppose it should eventuate in prices that the consumer refused to pay? "That being true," he deducted, "some government tribunal must be entrusted to fix prices and then we shall be compelled to restore full competition.

"I do not believe we can so change the government of our fathers as to confer upon it the power to fix prices. But one of these things must be accepted and it comes to me that face to face with this situation the people will accept socialism before they will accept monopoly."

The senator closed with the assurance that though the problem impends, the people have always shown themselves capable to solve correctly and righteously all questions that come before them to the glory of civilization.

LIGHTNING HITS STATE HOUSE

Flames Raze Missouri Capitol Building—Many of Governor's and Legislative Records Lost.

Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 6.—The Missouri capitol was entirely destroyed by fire last night. The total loss, including the structure and many records and state papers in the offices of the governor, secretary of state and treasurer, is estimated at $1,000,000, with no insurance.

Lightning, which struck the cupola of the dome shortly after 7 o'clock spread the flames to the roof of the house of representatives on the north side of the structure, and in less than half an hour it was apparent that the entire building was doomed.

Because of the inadequacy of the water pressure, the fire could not be reached, and no aid could be rendered for some time by the local fire company.

PAINFUL FINGER NAILS CURED

"I have suffered from the same trouble (painful finger nails) at different periods of my life. The first time of its occurrence, perhaps twenty-five years ago, after trying home remedies without getting helped, I asked my doctor to prescribe for me, but it was not for a year or more that my nails and fingers were well. The inflammation and suppuration began at the base of the finger nail. Sometimes it was so painful that I had to use a poultice to induce suppuration. After the pus was discharged the swelling would go down until the next period of inflammation, possibly not more than a week or two afterwards. These frequent inflammations resulted in the loss of the nail. I had sometimes as many as three fingers in this state at one time.

"Perhaps ten years later I began again to suffer from the same trouble. Again I tried various remedies, among them a prescription from a doctor of a friend of mine, who had suffered from a like trouble. This seemed to help somewhat for a time, but it was not a permanent cure; next tried a prescription from my own doctor, but this was so irritating to the sensitive, diseased skin that I could not use it. I began to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I had used the Cuticura Ointment previously on my children's scalps with good effect. I did not use the Soap exclusively, but I rubbed the Cuticura Ointment into the base of the nail every night thoroughly, and as often beside as I could. I had not used it but a few weeks before my nails were better, and in a short time they were apparently well. There was no more suppuration, nor inflammation, the nails grew out clean again. One box of Cuticura Ointment was all that I used in effecting a cure." (Signed) Mrs. I. J. Horton, Katonah, N. Y., Apr. 13, 1910. On Sept. 21, Mrs. Horton wrote: "I have had no further return of the trouble with my finger nails."

OWES HER HEALTH

To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Scottville, Mich.—"I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done me. I live on a farm and have worked very hard. I am forty-five years old, and am the mother of thirteen children. Many people think it strange that I am not broken down with hard work and the care of my family, but I tell them of my good friend, your Vegetable Compound, and that there will be no backache and bearing down pains for them if they will take it as I have. I am scarcely ever without it in the house.

"I will say also that I think there is no better medicine to be found for young girls to build them up and make them strong and well. My eldest daughter has taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for painful periods and irregularity, and it has always helped her.

"I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for the Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies. I tell every one I meet that I owe my health and happiness to these wonderful medicines." —Mrs. J. G. JOHNSON, Scottville, Mich., R.F.D. 3.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases.

Aids Nature

The great success of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in curing weak stomachs, wasted bodies, weak lungs, and obstinate and lingering coughs, is based on the recognition of the fundamental truth that "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies Nature with body-building, tissue-repairing, muscle-making materials, in condensed and concentrated form. With this help Nature supplies the necessary strength to the stomach to digest food, build up the body and thereby throw off lingering obstinate coughs. The "Discovery" re-establishes the digestive and nutritive organs in sound health, purifies and enriches the blood, and nourishes the nerves—in short establishes sound vigorous health.

If your dealer offers something "just as good," it is probably better FOR HIM...it pays better. But you are thinking of the cure not the profit, so there's nothing "just as good" for you. Say so.

A READER CURES HIS CONSTIPATION—TRY IT FREE

Simple way for any family to retain the good health of all its members.

The editors of "Health Hints" and "Questions and Answers" have one question that is put to them more often than any other, and which, strangely enough, they find the most difficult to answer. That is "How can I cure my constipation?"

Dr. Caldwell, an eminent specialist in diseases of the stomach, liver and bowels has looked the whole field over, has practised the specialty for forty years and is convinced that the ingredients contained in what is called Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the best claim to attention from constipated people.

Its success in the cure of stubborn constipation has done much to displace the use of salts, waters, strong cathartics and such things. Syrup Pepsin, by training the stomach and bowel muscles to again do their work naturally, and with its tonic ingredients strengthening the nerves, brings about a lasting cure. Among its strongest supporters are Mr. John Graveline of 98 Milwaukee Ave., Detroit, Mich., Mr. J. A. Vernon of Oklahoma City and thousands of others. It can be obtained of any druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, or if you want to try it first a free sample bottle can be obtained by writing the doctor.

TIME TO DO SOMETHING

(From the Marshalltown T.-R.)

How long is the case of William Lorimer to occupy the senate of the United States? Lorimer either be bought inside or out—general conviction favoring the outside. His case should be taken up and disposed of. He has sat nearly thru one session. If he is guilty of having secured election or proved to have been elected thru fraud and bribery, he ought not be permitted to hold his seat an hour longer than it takes to dispose of it. If he is guiltless he should be "vindicated" and the matter dropped. And aside from growing popular disgust over the calculated dragging of the Lorimer case the republican party is in no situation to face a campaign carrying the stigma and reproach that it feared to press the inquiry and dispose of the matter definitely.

Vote on Lorimer. Keep him in or kick him out. Do something besides gabble. Get busy.

THE POULTRY YARD

If you use wet mashes let the water be warm.

A corn-sheller is not an essential. The hens will do their own shelling if you throw out the ears in short broken pieces.

Do not give eggs to an early broody hen until she is surely broody, as hens, like the weather at this season of the year, are rather changeable.

The sooner people divest themselves of the idea that they must be always dosing chickens with medicine, the sooner will they be enabled to breed a hardy race of fowls that are roup and cholera proof.

See that the nest of the early sitter is air tight. This can be accomplished by placing a sheet of heavy paper in the bottom. Sprinkle the paper well with coal-oil to discourage lice, and use plenty of straw.

Don't trust the feeding and watering of the chickens entirely to the children. Keep in touch with the feeding and the condition of the houses as well A child cannot be expected to note the first signs of trouble.

Take a few of your best layers out of the main house and keep them in a place by themselves with the best male bird you can get. The eggs from these hens will be your stock for the chicks that are to be. Get up a little higher this year.

Say, the hens will cackle thanks for those small potatoes. Just boil them and mix with meal or bran. If scraps of meat or soup bones are boiled with the potatoes the biddies will like the flavor better, and there will be money in your pocket.—From February Farm Journal.

What is wrong with the young people of Wright county? The records at Clerk Bank's office show that there were forty-six less marriage licenses issued during the year 1910 than in 1909. During 1909 there were issued 157 licenses to marry, while last year there were only 111. Just where the trouble lies we are unable to state. Is it because there are fewer young people or do the boys lack the nerve? We are sure all the girls don't want to be old maids and if they just show the proper spirit and are not too cold toward the stronger sex we believe the latter will do their part.—Clarion Clipper.

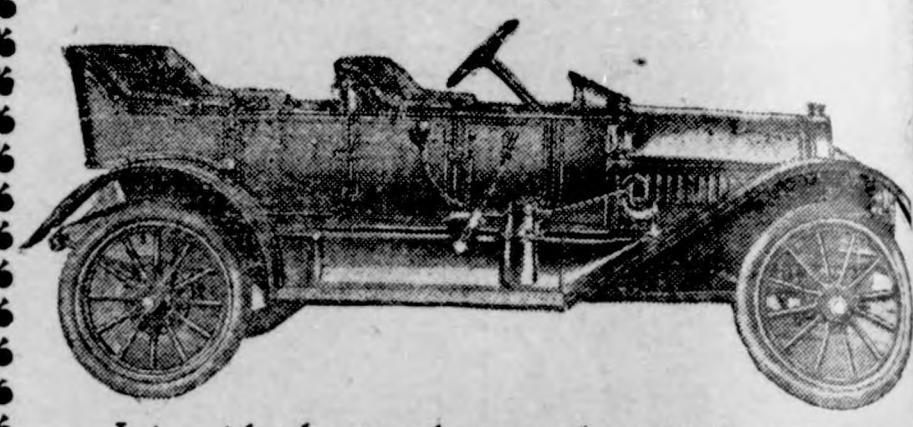
THE IMPERIAL

"THE GET THERE KIND"



It is with pleasure that we advertise the IMPERIAL. When so doing it is hard to say too much in favor of this line of IMPERIAL Automobiles. They have the record up-to-date for running and covering more miles of hard road-going, with the least expense, least adjustments.

The Burd Auto Co., Waterloo, Iowa, says: "The Imperial Automobile has not been equaled yet regardless of price." They run out 37 last season. Up to date there hasn't been one adjustment made. Their contract calls for 100 Imperials for 1911.

The Imperial is built in ten models. from a 35 H. P. two-passenger gentleman's Roadster, to a 60 H. P. seven passenger touring car. Buy the car that bears the name IMPERIAL, and get a dollar's worth of automobile for every dollar you invest.

Ben is enthusiastic over Colorado and he says that state has the best climate known the world over.

Albert Edward Wiggam's lecture "Dollars and Sense," at the opera house last Saturday night was well attended and was the last number of the High School course for 1910-11. There was lots of good sense in Mr. Wiggam's lecture, and some first class advice for school directors, school teachers and school patrons—especially the talk along the line of fresh air and medical attention for the pupils of our schools. If Wiggam's plans were carried out in our homes and schools there would be much less sickness and much better health for our children. The course this winter has been a success, both from an educational and a financial standpoint. The music by the orchestra last Saturday night was a very pleasant feature of the entertainment.

TEST ALL SEED CORN

Frozen Corn Makes Testing Necessary, Says Prof. Holden

WARNS AGAINST MOLDY CORN

Famous Seed Corn Expert Says Much Corn Was Partially Frozen and Cautions Farmers to Make Efficient Tests.

Ames, Iowa.—An unusual amount of frozen corn in Iowa this year makes the necessity of testing seed corn more extreme than ever, according to a statement made by Prof. P. G. Holden of the Iowa State college at Ames. The famous seed expert says he has found a large per cent of the corn he has examined to be at least partially frozen and cautions the farmers to make efficient tests before planting.

"Because of the good weather during the fall, many Iowa farmers are of the opinion that the corn will make excellent seed," said Professor Holden. "They will be mistaken in this, however, for much of the corn is frosted. Corn that is badly frozen can easily be detected by the dark color. Partially frozen ears can not be detected except by testing and it is with them that the farmer is liable to experience considerable trouble. All seed corn this year should be tested if the best results are to be obtained. I also wish to caution the Iowa farmer against the use of moldy corn for seed. One ear of moldy corn might spoil a whole bushel of seed corn."

Hiss as Mother Enters Church.

Sioux City.—When Mrs. Henry Stehr followed the little casket containing the remains of her son, Kurt Stehr, into St. James Lutheran church at Norfolf, Neb., hisses greeted her, and three women in the church cried "Hang her up."

The sensational turn to the tragic ceremony was the upshot of the published testimony in the Stehr inquest, as a result of which Henry Stehr the stepfather of the boy, was practically charged with murder. The boy was allowed to freeze in his bed, which caused his death, according to the coroner's jury.

The mother fainted when the cries went up, and fell into the arms of August Braum.

In his sermon the Rev. Otto Bergselder, looking at the mother, declared the dead boy had never received her love. The boy's arms and legs had been frozen off from exposure.

The pastor declared it was better that he went to heaven lacking his members than to hell through the evil influences of a home.

Widow Sues Risk Lodge.

Cedar Rapids.—Mrs. Martin Mefferd, wife of the man who is alleged to have died from concussion of the brain because of injuries received in being thrown from a saloon, will bring suit against the Mystic Toilers Insurance company to collect a $2,000 policy which her husband held, if a satisfactory settlement cannot be adjusted. Mrs. Mefferd has turned over to her attorneys the receipts for the monthly assessments up to January of this year. It is now alleged that M. W. Kent, who acted as agent for the company, suspended Mefferd in June, 1909, but continued to accept his payments. The discrepency was not discovered until a new secretary took charge of the books. Mrs. Mefferd also has brought suit against G. W. Vlach, proprietor of the saloon from which it is alleged Mefferd was ejected.

Boosting New Highway.

Sidney.—Commercial clubs of Sidney, Shenandoah and Nebraska City have been active lately in booming the new river to river road from Keokuk, Iowa, to Nebraska City, Neb. The road runs through the southern tier of Iowa counties, and will be call- "The White Line." Automobile parties have just completed the painting of the telephone posts between Shenandoah and Nebraska City. Every seventh post is painted with a strip of white margined with black. It is the intention later to mark the route with guide and mileage posts. A meeting of the commercial clubs of Fremont, Page, Taylor and Ringgold counties was held in Shenandoah Jan. 30, to boom the new road.

To Build Dam at Iowa City.

Iowa City.—Plans have been arranged at Iowa City for the construction of a gigantic dam across the river at Steamboat Rock, a few blocks north of the main part of town. It is argued that much power is now going to waste which otherwise might be utilized.

Pneumonia Kills Many.

Des Moines.—Pneumonia was the most active agent of the Grim Reaper during the month of December and a record of 293 deaths is laid at the door of the disease.

The report of the deaths for the month of December was made public by Dr. G. H. Sumner, secretary of the state board of health.

In spite of the epidemic in Des Moines and the state, there were only forty-nine deaths reported as due to typhoid fever. Fourteen of the forty-nine lived in Des Moines.

A delinquent report made by Dr. Sumner shows that there were a total of 21,470 deaths in the state of Iowa last year due to disease.

Mason City Farm Electric Lighted.

Mason City.—The O. T. Balmat farm just to the northwest of this city will be the first farm in this community to be electric lighted. Mr. Balmat has just closed a contract with the Gas & Electric company to run a line to his farm and install a motor which will furnish the power for every piece of machinery capable of using this power. The barns and house will be lighted throughout with these new lights. This new innovation for farm lighting may be carried to other farms in the near neighborhood to Mason City. Mr. Balmat is the owner of the line from the city and is putting it in at an expense of $500.

Asks Garbage Crematory.

Mason City.—A crematory for the consuming of garbage is being advocated by Mayor Kirschman as a means of settling a question which has been an annoyance to every city administration for ten years. An offer has been made by W. H. McGuire of Hobart, Okla., inventor of an entirely new process for garbage consumption, to instal a plant here.

The process of feeding the furnace proper is a feature which is claimed by Mr. McGuire as an advantage. Mr. McGuire was a former resident of Mason City and only recently invented his crematory, upon which he secured a patent in 1910.

Mrs. Wendelburg Gets a Divorce.

Des Moines.—Mrs. Toni Wendelburg has been granted a decree of divorce from Otto Wendelburg, formerly a professor in the West Des Moines high school. The decree was granted by Judge DeGraff after the plaintiff testified that her husband struck her on several occasions and that he was intimate with other women. The defendant did not appear in court.

Build New Packing Plant.

Sioux City.—A new packing plant to cost $125,000 and to have a killing capacity two-thirds as big as the Armour plant will be erected here beginning March of this year by the Sioux City Packing company. The new plant replaces a smaller one, which was destroyed by fire some weeks ago. Between 400 and 500 men will be employed.

Owner of Ancient Book.

Iowa Falls.—Joseph F. Green of this city is the owner of a book of ancient date and rare value, being 287 years old. The volume is in a fair state of preservation and was printed in 1624 by a London firm of publishers. The book is entitled, "Historie of the Church Since the Days of Our Saviour, Jesus Christ, Until the Present Age."

She Wouldn't Marry; He Shoots Self.

Sioux City.—Despondent because his housekeeper, Mrs. Ella Heselstein would not accept his proposal of marriage, George D. Baldwin shot himself through the lungs. He had arrayed himself in his best clothes and while kneeling at the feet of the woman drew his gun and fired.

Missionary Back to China.

Eldora.—Miss Stella Paddock of Grundy Center has returned to China and will be located at Hongkong, as a Presbyterian missionary. The young lady likes her work and having been allowed quite a leave of absence in America, was eager to return.

Davis Confesses Aiding in Attack.

Jefferson.—Jesse Davis confessed to the officers that he was one of the parties who on the night of Nov. 25 attacked the residence of James Galvin, in Kendrick township, Greene county, breaking all of the doors and windows.

Jefferson Pioneer Dies.

Fairfield.—Mrs. Clark Van Nostrand, who has resided in Fairfield and Jefferson county since 1856, died of pneumonia. Mrs. Van Nostrand was 79 years of age.

Horses Lost in Fire at Corning.

Corning.—Fire of unknown origin burned a large barn owned by F. C. Reese here causing a loss of $2,000. Four valuable horses perished in the flames.

SYNOPSIS.

Capt. Nathaniel Plum of the sloop Typhoon, lands secretly on Beaver island, stronghold of the Mormons. Obadiah Price, Mormon councilor, confronts him, tells him he is expected, and bargains for the ammunition aboard the sloop. He binds Nat by a solemn oath to deliver a package to Franklin Pierce, president of the United States. Near Price's cabin Nat sees the frightened face of a young woman who disappears in the darkness, leaving an odor of lilacs. It develops that Nat's visit to the island is to demand settlement of the king, Strang, for the looting of his sloop by Mormons. Price shows Nat the king's palace, and through a window he sees the lady of the lilacs, who Price says is the king's seventh wife. Calling at the king's office Nat is warned by a young woman that his life is in danger. Strang professes indignation when he hears Nat's grievance and promises to punish the guilty. Nat rescues Neil, who is being publicly whipped, and the king orders the sheriff, Arbor Croche, to pursue and kill the two men. Plum learns that Marion, the girl of the lilacs, is Neil's sister. The two men plan to escape on Nat's sloop and take Marion and Winnsome, daughter of Arbor Croche, and sweetheart of Neil. Nat discovers that the sloop is gone. Marion tells him that his ship has been seized by the Mormons. She begs him to leave the island, telling him that nothing can save her from Strang, whom she is doomed to marry. Plum finds Price raving mad. Recovering, he tells Nat that Strang is doomed, that armed men are descending on the island. Nat learns that Marion has been summoned to the castle by Strang. Nat kills Arbor Croche, and after a desperate fight with the king, leaves him for dead. The avenging host from the mainland descends on St. James. Neil and Nat take a part in the battle and the latter is wounded. Strang, whom Nat thought he had killed, orders him thrown into a dungeon. He finds Neil a fellow prisoner. They overhear the Mormon jury deciding their fate. A bribed jailer brings the prisoners word of Winnsome and Marion.

CHAPTER XI.

"The Straight Death."

Hands were fumbling with the chain at the dungeon door.

It opened and Jeekum's ashen face shone in the candle-light. For a moment his frightened eyes rested on the two men still standing in their last embrace of friendship. A word of betrayal from them and he knew that his own doom was sealed.

He came in, followed by four men. One of them was MacDougall, the king's whipper. In the corridor were other faces, like ghostly shadows in the darkness. Only MacDougall's face was uncovered. The others were hidden behind white masks. The men uttered no sound, but ranged themselves like specters in front of the door, their cocked rifles swung into the crooks of their arms. There was a triumphant leer on MacDougall's lips as he and the jailer approached. As the whipper bound Neil's hands behind his back he hissed in his ear:

"This will be a better job than the whipping, damn you!"

Neil laughed.

"Hear that, Nat?" he asked, loud enough for all in the cell to hear. "MacDougall says this will be a better job than the whipping. He remembers how I thrashed him once when he said something to Marion one day."

Neil was as cool as though acting his part in a play. His face was flushed, his eyes gleamed fearlessly defiant. And Nathaniel, looking upon the courage of this man, from under whose feet had been swept all hope of life, felt a twinge of shame at his own nervousness. MacDougall grew black with passion at the taunting reminder of his humiliation and tightened the thongs about Neil's wrists until they cut into the flesh.

"That's enough, you coward!" exclaimed Nathaniel, as he saw the blood start. "Here—take this!"

Like lightning he struck out and his fist fell with crushing force against the side of the man's head. MacDougall toppled back with a hollow groan, blood spurting from his mouth and nose. Nathaniel turned coolly to the four rifles leveled at his breast.

"A pretty puppet to do the king's commands!" he cried. "If there's a man among you let him finish the work!"

Jeekum had fallen upon his knees beside the whipper.

"Great God!" he shrieked. "You've killed him! You've stove in the side of his head!"

There was a sudden commotion in the corridor. A terrible voice boomed forth in a roar.

"Let me in!"

Strang stood in the door. He gave a single glance at the man gasping and bleeding in the mud. Then he looked at Nathaniel. The eyes of the two men met unflinching. There was no hatred now in the prophet's face.

"Captain Plum, I would give a tenth of my kingdom for a brother like you!" he said calmly. "Here—I will finish the work." He went boldly to the task, and as he tied Nathaniel's arms behind him he added "The vicissitudes of war, Captain Plum. You are a man—and can appreciate what they sometimes mean!"

A few minutes later, gagged and bound, the prisoners fell behind two of the armed guards and at a command from the king, given in a low tone to Jeekum, marched through the corridor and up the short flight of steps that led out of the jail. To Nathaniel's astonishment there was no light to guide them. Candles and lights had been extinguished. What words he heard were spoken in whispers. In the deep shadow of the prison wall a third guard joined the two ahead and like automatons they strode through the gloom with slow, measured step, their rifles held with soldierly precision. Nathaniel glanced over his shoulder and saw three other white masked faces a dozen feet away. The king remained behind.

He shuddered and looked at Neil. His companion's appearance was almost startling. He seemed half a head taller than himself, yet he knew that he was shorter by an inch or two; his shoulders were thrown back, his chin held high, he kept step with the guards ahead. He was marching to his death as coolly as though on parade.

Nathaniel's heart beat excitedly as they came to where the scrub of the forest met the plain. They were taking the path that led to Marion's! Again he looked at Neil. There was no change in the fearless attitude of Marion's brother, no lowering of his head, no faltering in his step. They passed the graves and entered the opening in the forest where lay Marion's home, and as once more the sweet odor of lilac came to him, awakening within his soul all those things that he had tried to stifle that he might meet death like a man, he felt himself weakening, until only the cloth about his mouth restrained the moaning cry that forced itself to his lips. If he had possessed a life to give he would have sacrificed it gladly then for a word with the Mormon king, a last prayer that death might be meted to him here, where eternity would come to him with his glazing eyes fixed to the end upon the home of his beloved, and where the sweetness of the flower that had become a part of Marion herself might soothe the pain of his final moment on earth.

His heart leaped with a hope as a sharp voice from the rear commanded a halt. It was Jeekum. He came up out of the darkness from behind the rear guard, his face still unmasked, and for a few moments was in whispered consultation with the guards ahead. Had Strang, in the virulence of that hatred which he concealed so well, conceived of this spot to give added torment to death? It was the poetry of vengeance! For the first time Neil turned toward his companion. Each read what the other had guessed. Neil, who was nearest to the whispering four, turned suddenly toward them and listened. When he looked at Nathaniel again it was with a slow negative shake of his head.

Jeekum returned quickly and placed himself between them, seizing each by an arm, and the forward guards, pivoting to the left, set off at their steady pace across the clearing. As they entered the denser gloom of the forest on the farther side Nathaniel felt the jailer's fingers tighten about his arm, then relax—and tighten again. A gentle pressure held him back and the guards in front gained half a dozen feet. In a low voice Jeekum called for those behind to fall a few paces to the rear.

Then came again the mysterious working of the man's fingers on Nathaniel's arm.

Was Jeekum signaling to him?

He could see Neil's white face still turned stoically to the front. Evidently nothing had occurred to arouse his suspicions. If the maneuvering of Jeekum's fingers meant anything it was intended for him alone. Action had been the manna of his life. The possibility of new adventure, even in the face of death, thrilled him. He waited, breathless—and the strange pressure came again, so hard that it hurt his flesh.

There was no longer a doubt in his mind. The king's sheriff wanted to speak to him.

And he was afraid of the eyes and ears behind.

The fingers were cautioning him to be ready—when the opportunity came.

The path widened and through the thin treetops above their heads the starlight filtered down upon them. The leading guards were 20 feet away. How far behind were the others?

A moment more and they plunged into deep night again. The figures ahead were mere shadows. Again the fingers dug into Nathaniel's arm, and pressing close to the sheriff he bent down his head.

A low, quick whisper fell in his ear.

"Don't give up hope! Marion—Winnsome—"

The sheriff jerked himself erect without finishing. Hurried footsteps had come close to their heels. The rear guards were so near that they could have touched them with their guns. Had some spot of lesser gloom ahead betrayed the prisoner's bowed head and Jeekum's white face turned to it? There was a steady pressure on Nathaniel's arm now, a warning, frightened pressure, and the hand that made it trembled. Jeekum feared the worst—but his fear was not greater than the chill of disappointment that came to smother the excited beating of Nathaniel's heart. What had the jailer meant to say? What did he know about Marion and Winnsome, and why had he given birth to new hope in the same breath that he mentioned their names?

His words carried at least one conviction. Marion was alive despite her brother's somber prophecies. If she had killed herself the sheriff would not have coupled her name with Winnsome's in the way he had.

Nathaniel's nerves were breaking with suspense. He stifled his breath to listen, to catch the faintest whisper that might come to him from the white faced man at his side. Each passing moment of silence added to his desperation. He squeezed the sheriff's hand in his arm, but there was no responding signal; in a patch of thick gloom that almost concealed the figures ahead he pressed near to him and lowered his head again—and Jeekum pushed him back fiercely, with a low curse.

They emerged from the forest and the clear starlight shone down upon them. A little distance off lay the lake in shimmering stillness. Nathaniel looked boldly at the sheriff now, and as his glance passed beyond him he was amazed at the change that had come over Neil. The young man's head was bowed heavily upon his breast, his shoulders were hunched forward, and he walked with a listless, uneven step. Was it possible that his magnificent courage had at last given way?

A hundred steps farther they came to the beach and Nathaniel saw a boat at the water's edge with a single figure guarding it. Straight to this Jeekum led his prisoners. For the first time he spoke to them aloud.

"One in front, the other in back," he said.

For an instant Nathaniel found himself close beside Neil and he prodded him sharply with his knee. His companion did not lift his head. He made no sign, gave no last flashing comradeship with his eyes, but climbed into the bow of the boat and sat down with his chin still on his chest, like a man lost in stupor.

Nathaniel followed him, scarcely believing his eyes, and sat himself in the stern, leaning comfortably against the knees of the man who took the tiller. He felt a curious thrill pass through him when he discovered a moment later that this man was Jeekum. Two men seized the oars amidships. A fourth, with his rifle across his knees, sat facing Neil.

For the first time Nathaniel found himself wondering what this voyage meant. Were they to be rowed far down the shore to some secret fastness where no other ears would hear the sound of the avenging rifles, and where, a few inches under the forest mold, their bodies would never be discovered? Each stroke of the oars added to the remoteness of this possibility. The boat was heading straight out to sea. Perhaps they were to meet a less terrible death by drowning, an end which, though altogether unpleasant, held something comforting in it for Captain Plum. Two hours passed without pause in the steady labor of the men at the oars. In those hours not a word was spoken. The two men amidships held no communication. The guard in the bow moved a little now and then only to relieve his cramped limbs. Neil was absolutely motionless, as though he had ceased to breathe. Jeekum uttered not a whisper.

It was his whisper that Nathaniel waited for, the signaling clutch of his fingers, the sound of his breath close to his ears. Again and again he pressed himself against the sheriff's knees. He knew that he was understood, and yet there came no answer. At last he looked up, and Jeekum's face was far above him, staring straight and unseeing into the darkness ahead. His last spark of hope went out.

Hidden Room of a Castle.

In the course of some repairs at Longleat, Wilts, a room with a fireplace was discovered of which nobody had the slightest knowledge. It had apparently been walled up for years, and neither Lord Bath nor anybody at Longleat had any suspicion of the existence of such an apartment.

Longleat, which is said to be the first well built house in the kingdom, was erected by Sir John Thynne, and its construction occupied 12 years, from January, 1567, until 1579. The first royal visitor to Sir John's noble mansion was Queen Elizabeth, and the story runs that the owner was not very anxious for his sovereign to see his home, as she might ask him where he obtained the money to build so stately a house. Sir John Thynne, who was knighted after the battle of Pinkie, was the factotum of the Protector Somerset, and it is said that he built Longleat from designs prepared by his fallen master for a house of his own.—Court Journal.

OPINION NOT ALWAYS FINAL

Pretty Safe to Say That Doctor's Diagnosis Was "Away Off" in This Case.

The pretty daughter of a physician is engaged to a college student of whom her father does not altogether approve. His daughter is too young to think of marriage, the doctor asserts; the college student is too young to think of it, likewise. It is out of the question.

She explained all this to her lover the other night.

"Father says," she summed it up; "father says, dear, that I will have to give you up."

The young man sighed. "Then it's all over?" he murmured, with gloomy interrogation. And the girl laughed and blushed.

"Well," she said, "well, you—you—know that when the doctor gives you up that's just the time for you to take more hope. Isn't it sometimes that way?"—Reboboth Sunday Herald.

A "Friendly Match."

I speak of a "friendly match," not at all forgetting that dictum of the Scot to whom his opponent, breaking some trivial rule, said: "I suppose you won't claim that in a friendly match?"

"Friendly match!" was the reply. "There's no such thing at golf!"—London Telegraph.

RESULTS OF FOOD.

Health and Natural Conditions Come From Right Feeding.

Man, physically, should be like a perfectly regulated machine, each part working easily in its appropriate place. A slight derangement causes undue friction and wear, and frequently ruins the entire system.

A well-known educator of Boston found a way to keep the brain and the body in that harmonious co-operation which makes a joy of living.

"Two years ago," she writes, "being in a condition of nervous exhaustion, I resigned my position as teacher, which I had held for over 40 years. Since then the entire rest has, of course, been a benefit, but the use of Grape-Nuts has removed one great cause of illness in the past, namely, constipation, and its attendant evils.

"I generally make my entire breakfast on a raw egg beaten into four spoonfuls of Grape-Nuts, with a little hot milk or hot water added. I like it extremely, my food assimilates, and my bowels take care of themselves. I find my brain power and physical endurance much greater and I know that the use of the Grape-Nuts has contributed largely to this result.

"It is with feelings of gratitude that I write this testimonial, and trust it may be the means of aiding others in their search for health." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

TO KEEP TABLECLOTH FRESH

Much Depends on Its Disposition and Care When Not in Actual Use.

When not in use a tablecloth should be kept in folded creases and when brought out to be spread should be laid on the table and unfolded its entire length, the width being doubled, with the center crease along the center of the table.

Then the half breadth that is folded should be turned back and the cloth will hang even.

Careless servants often gather up a cloth "anyhow," without taking the trouble to fold it up again in its own creases, and thus fresh ones are made.

A tablecloth will keep fresh looking as long again if it is always folded up in its own folds and put away until the next meal.

The French have a way of making even an inferior quality of table linen look well without the aid of starch.

When the napkins are washed and ready to be ironed they are dipped into boiling water and partially wrung out between cloths.

They are then rapidly ironed with as hot a flatiron as possible without burning them.

ECONOMICAL USE OF MEAT

Stewing, in One Form or Another, is Perhaps the Best Method Yet Devised.

For the woman who has never learned how to use the cheaper cuts of meat the following suggestions may prove worth while:

Stews may be cooked on top of the stove or in the oven, the essentials being a slow, moist, gentle heat, that softens the fibers and develops the juice of the meat, whether the process be known as fricasseeing, stewing, or braising, and the finished result a stew, a braise, a ragout, a haricot, or salmi.

Braising is a particularly good way to treat dry meats, like veal, lean beef from the under part of the round or the face of the rump, the shoulder of mutton, heart, liver, tough fowls, pigeons and other dry game. The method of braising is similar to the old-time pot roast, only the braising is far easier in that the water in which it is cooked does not need replenishing and there is much less danger of the kettle burning dry.

In each case the meat is rolled in flour, seasoned with salt, pepper and just a suspicion of sugar to assist in the quick browning. Then it is browned in the bottom of a kettle or a frying pan, using some of its own fat, suet, butter, or drippings, and then put into a stewpan or braising kettle and covered well with flavored soup stock or gravy, or even hot water, herbs, and simple seasoning, and then left tightly covered to stew slowly for several hours.

Butter Ravigote.

This butter is composed of the following ingredients pounded together in a mortar: First, blanch in boiling water for two minutes one pound of herbs, tarragon, mixed chervil, burnet, chives and cress, then press out the water by squeezing them in a cloth; put them with one-half dozen well washed anchovies and the same of hard boiled eggs into a mortar, add a piece of garlic about the size of a pea, a seasoning of salt and pepper, two ounces of gherkins and two ounces of capers; these last should be well squeezed for the vinegar; when well pounded and smoothed through a sieve they are to be mixed with two pounds of butter, two tablespoonfuls of oil and one of tarragon vinegar, and again pounded and mixed for use.

Ham Bone Soup.

Boil the ham bone, which should have some meat on it, in fresh water for about five minutes. Pour off this first water. Cook it gently and season to taste. Cut up potatoes fine and add to the soup. Just before serving pour in one cup of milk, thicken with a little flour. Before putting in the milk all fat should be skimmed from the soup. Other vegetables may be added if wished. If corn beef is not too salt, soup may be made in the same manner from the water in which it has been boiled. One egg may be beaten and stirred stiff with flour and the mixture dropped by bits into the soup and will be found an improvement.

WASHINGTON

O ripples of Potomac's stream,
Break gently where the tread
Of thousands press the hallowed sod
Above our greatest dead;
Mount Vernon, Freedom's dearest shrine
Guard well thy sacred trust,
Locked in thy loyal heart of hearts
Ye keep the Patriot's dust.

I see him glide among the huts
That dot the cheerless gorge—
The Joshua of a struggling band,
The Man of Valley Forge;
Where'er he goes his smile illumes
The shades that thickly lie,
And all who hear his words resolve
With him to do or die.

The pilgrim comes from lands enslaved,
Beyond the restless sea,
To meditate where sleeps the man
Who taught men to be free;
The glitter of the sword he drew;
Makes bright the world today,
And hands unborn will crown its hilt
With laural and with bay.

He needs no granite shaft to tell
Of glorious actions done;
His monument?—the freest land
That lies beneath the sun!
Today with swelling pride we seek
The banquet board once more,
And drink to him whose fame is far
Beyond Virginia's shore.

He is not thine, Mount Vernon, though
Upon thy sacred breast,
Wrapped in the mantle Glory weaves,
In peace he takes his rest;
The voice of Liberty proclaims:
"He is my honored son."
And Fame with lofty pride proclaims:
"The World's one Washington."

Washington the Man

No Nation or people ever had a richer legacy than Americans have in their ideal of Washington. Great as was his real character and inestimable as were his services to the country Washington was not a demi-god nor even a man of genius. But he did possess a genius for honesty and patriotism and was the incarnation of common sense.

It is well for the American people that they have idealized Washington, and it is to be hoped that they may never lower nor change their ideal, and yet he was very human. As a young man and even after his marriage he was very fond of fox hunting. He could get very angry on fit occasions and sometimes swore. He drank a generous glass of wine every day at dinner and allowed his negro butler and cook each a bottle of beer a day. Nearly thirty years ago a friendly biographer wrote:

"Eighty years have now passed since the death of George Washington, and already he is hidden from us in some degree by a haze of eulogy and tradition. He has been so uniformly extolled that some of our young men tell us with a yawn, that they are tired of hearing Aristides called "The Just."

Washington himself never pretended to be more than an average man, though all his contemporaries knew he was. All that he claimed was to be perfect master of himself and to use such powers as God had given him the best he knew how. Once as a procession in his honor passed through the streets of a city he heard a little boy exclaim: "Why, father, General Washington is only a man!" He looked with thoughtful interest on the child and patting him on the head replied: "That's all, my little fellow, that's all." He was one of the most dignified men that ever lived, yet one of the most modest. One finds pleasing evidence of his common humanity in the fact that while quite young he fell easily in love and wrote verses—and sentimental verses at that. When he was twelve years old, shortly after the death of his father, he was sent to school at Fredericksburg after promising his elder brother to be "steady." It was a mixed school of boys and girls and one of his schoolmates, a cousin, said in later life that while George was remarkably studious he was also fond of "romping with one of the largest girls; this was so unusual that it excited no little comment among the other lads." It was while at this school that George wrote the following acrostic:

From your bright sparkling eyes I was undone
Rays you have more transparent than the sun,
Amidst its glory in the rising day,
None can you equal in your bright array;
Constant in your calm and unspotted mind,
Equal to all, but will to none prove kind;
So knowing, seldom one so young you'll find.
Ah, woe's me that I should love and conceal
Long have I wished but never dare reveal,
Even though severely Love's pain I feel;
Xerxes the Great wasn't free from Cupid's dart,
And all the greatest heroes felt the smart.

The first letters spell Frances Alexa. Alexa was the abbreviation of Alexander, and the acrostic was addressed either to a schoolmate of that name or to some fair Frances living in Alexandria, where the boy was well acquainted. There is reason to believe that young Washington was as susceptible as the average young man of the present day. When about seventeen years old he fell in love with a young lady, whom he refers to in a letter to a friends as "your Lowland beauty," and says going into company simply revives his former passion for her. He adds:

"Were I to live more retired from young women, I might alleviate in some measure my sorrows by burying that chaste and troublesome passion in the grave of oblivion or eternal forgetfulness, for as I am very well assured that is the only antidote or remedy that I ever shall be relieved by or only recess that can administer any cure or help to me, as I am well convinced, were I ever to attempt anything. I should only get a denial, which would be only adding grief to uneasiness."

EULOGIZE DOLLIVER

Many Senators to Speak in Honor of Great Iowan

SPEAKERS OF BOTH PARTIES

Cummins, Burrows, Clapp, Cullom, Tillman and Gore on List—Young Also Will Speak, If Present.

Washington, D. C., Feb.14.—A long list of senators will be heard in the senate next Saturday in eulogy of former Senator Dolliver. The complete list has not yet been arranged but it has been partly made up. Among those who will speak will be Senators Cummins, Burrows, Clapp, La Follette and Young, if Mr. Young is present.

These are all republicans. On the democratic side Senator Gore, the blind Oklahomaian, and Senator Tillman will speak, and several others.

In this list of men are some whose relations with Senator Dolliver were peculiarly close and peculiarly affectionate. Senator Cullom, for instance, the aged veteran from Illinois, had formed a close acquaintance with Senator Dolliver through service on interstate commerce committee; Senator Clapp and Senator Dolliver fought through the great fight in the interstate commerce committee on the Hepburn rate measure, a measure that, while it is not now called by his name, was in a large measure shaped by Dolliver's work and efforts. Senator Burrows, though he and Dolliver differed in view, especially in later years, was another warm friend of Dolliver's. They served together on the privileges and elections committee.

Senator LaFollette's relations with Dolliver were extremely close. Both had served in the house and knew each other in that body, and when Dolliver went over to the progressive side and joined hands with La Follette in the fight made by the Wisconsin senator against the rule of the machine leaders in Washington, the two men grew very close together. LaFollette was closer to Dolliver than to any of the other progressive senators.

Senator Tillman is now growing old and feels it. His recent illnesses have left him only the wreck of what he once was. No more is seen the sight of the once famous pitchfork waving about the chamber in fierce attack on anything in sight. Somehow the relations between Tillman and Dolliver were remarkably affectionate. In the fight over the rate law, Tillman stood by Dolliver, though it was Tillman whom Aldrich and others picked to bring out the rate bill from the committee for the purpose of robbing Dolliver of the credit.

Senator Gore is one of the most progressive of the democrats, and is in hearty sympathy with the views which Senator Dolliver in his closing years strongly supported.

Altogether it will be a collection of eulogies of unusual interest in honor of one of the most remarkable figures who has ever sat in the senate.

GARDNER PLACED ON TRIAL

Case Is Expected to Reveal More of the New York Senate Race Legislation Corruption.

New York, Feb. 14.—The corrupt conditions that existed in the New York state legislature during the discussion of the anti-race track bills in the spring of 1908, will receive an additional airing during the trial of former State Senator Frank J. Gardner, which began here today. He is charged with offering a bribe of $25,000 to ex-Senator Otto Foelker to vote against the measures which prohibited betting at the race tracks. Interest in this trial is very widespread, as it is the result of a tale of political corruption, which, for boldness and the amount of money involved, has never before been equalled.

A half million dollars was raised to defeat this measure and votes were bartered like so much merchandise. These facts have already been disclosed by the legislative investigating committee, which went out of existence on January 15 last. District Attorney Whitman believes that the trial of Gardner will result in fresh disclosures and possibly furnish a clue as to the identity of the lawmakers who received this money in exchange for their votes.

The principal witnesses will be Congressman Otto G. Foelker and Assistant District Attorney Robert Elder of Brooklyn.

HEREDITY
Can Be Overcome in Cases.

The influence of heredity cannot, of course, be successfully disputed. but it can be minimized or entirely overcome in some cases by correct food and drink. A Conn. lady says:

"For years while I was a coffee drinker I suffered from bilious attacks of great severity, from which I used to emerge as white as a ghost and very weak. Our family physician gave me various prescriptions for improving the digestion and stimulating the liver, which I tried faithfully but without perceptible result.

"He was acquainted with my family history for several generations back, and once when I visited him he said: 'If you have inherited one of those torpid livers you may always suffer more or less from its inaction. We can't dodge our inheritance, you know.'

"I was not so strong a believer in heredity as he was, however, and, beginning to think for myself, I concluded to stop drinking coffee, and see what effect that would have. I feared it would be a severe trial to give it up, but when I took Postum and had it well made, it completely filled my need for a hot beverage and I grew very fond of it.

"I have used Postum for three years, using no medicine. During all that time I have had absolutely none of the bilious attacks that I used to suffer from, and I have been entirely free from the pain and debilitating effects that used to result from them.

"The change is surely very great, and I am compelled to give Postum the exclusive credit for it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

KILL PRIMARY BILL

Harding Special Primary Measure Defeated in Both Houses

VOTE IN THE HOUSE 38 TO 32

Substitute for Smith's Oregon Plan Measure Laid Out in the Senate by Vote of 31 to 16—Special Measure Is Killed.

Des Moines, Iowa.—In both houses of the assembly the special primary bill went down to defeat.

In the house the special primary bill introduced by Representative Harding, was voted down by a vote of 38 to 32. It was killed wholly by republicans, for not a single democrat voted on the proposition.

In the senate the special primary bill was up in the form of a substitute for the Oregon plan. The bill was offered by Senator Adams and was identical with the Harding bill. It was defeated by a vote of 31 to 16. The democrats aided in killing the substitute because it threatened the life of the Oregon plan bill, offered as it was for a substitute.

With the democratic members of the house refusing to take part in the vote on Representative Harding's special primary bill, the measure was defeated by a vote of the republican representatives. Thirty-two members of the house voted for the bill and thirty-eight voted in opposition to it.

By previous agreement, the democrats had decided to let the republican party settle the dispute between the two factions of the majority of the house.

Representative Harding of Woodbury made his closing argument in favor of his measure. He attacked the arguments made in opposition to the proposed law and urged the submission of the senatorial question to the people. He denied his bill was written for the benefit of any one candidate for the office of United States senator. He also refuted the statements made to the effect that the special primary law conflicts with the Oregon plan law. He declared the passage of the special primary would give an opening to allow the general assembly to discontinue the daily ballots on the senatorship

For State Fair Improvements.

State fair improvements to cost $170,000 are provided for by a bill introduced in the senate and house by Brown of Decatur and Brown of Wright. New buildings, additions to old structures, and the purchase of new ground are contemplated by the bill. The appropriation of $170,000 is divided as follows:

For lands and lots	$20,000
For implement building	80,000
For horse barns	25,000
For cattle barns	15,000
For sanitary toilets	10,000
For sheep barns	20,000

Appropriation for State Armory.

Dewey of Guthrie introduced in the house a bill providing that a commission of five shall be appointed by the governor to select land as a site for, and secure plans for, a new state building adjacent to the state house. The commission is authorized to spend not over $50,000 for the land and not over $300,000 for the building. An appropriation of $200,000 is made available for immediate use. The building is to be used for a state armory and storage room for several of the state departments.

Club Women Take Up Rev. Bell's Idea

The federated club women of Des Moines have acted upon the suggestion of the Rev. R. B. H. Bell of the St. Paul Protestant Episcopal church and are compiling a list of laws which includes a provision that would compel the fathers of illegitimate children to support their offspring until they arrive at the age of 21 years.

HEALTH BOARD WANTS $50,000

Hears Addresses as to What Other States Are Receiving and Demands More Money for Iowa.

Des Moines.—The state health officers at their meeting voted unanimously to ask the legislature for an appropriation of $50,000 for the state board of health. The action was unanimous and came after a talk by Secretary Bracken of the Minnesota state board of health.

He called attention to the fact that Minnesota now has an appropriation of $53,000 and this winter is asking the legislature for an appropriation of $500,000 for its state board of health.

Pennsylvania has an appropriation of $3,000,000 every two years, devoted exclusively to public health work under the state commissioner of public health.

Iowa, in this respect, is one of the stingiest states in the union, according to the figures submitted by Secretary Bracken, who was inclined to somewhat twit at Iowa, a great rich state, for being stingy when it came to a public health question. Thereupon the state health officers decided to ask for $50,000.

Money for State Colleges.

A bill making appropriations for the state university, the Iowa State college and the Iowa State Teachers' college was introduced in the house and the senate by Senator Mattes and Representative Moore. The total amount of the appropriations for the three institutions included in the bill is $728,950.

CANADA GETS $1,500 TROPHY.

NATIONAL CORN EXPOSITION, AT COLUMBUS, OHIO, AWARDS TROPHY FOR PECK OF OATS GROWN IN SASKATCHEWAN.

Again Canada is to the fore, and has secured at the National Corn Exposition just closed at Columbus, Ohio, the magnificent Colorado silver trophy valued at $1,500, for the best peck of oats. These oats were grown by Messrs. Hill & Son, of Lloydminster, Saskatchewan, and, as may readily be understood, were of splendid quality to have been so successful in a contest open to the world, and in which competition was keen. At the same Exposition there were exhibits of wheat and barley, and in all these competitions, the grain shown by Canada secured a wonderful amount of attention, and also a number of awards. During recent exhibitions at which grain from Western Canada was given permission for entry, it always took first place. At the Spokane Interstate Fair, last fall, where the entries were very large, and the competition keen, the Province of Alberta carried off the silver cup, given by Governor Hay, for the best state or province display, and a score of prizes was awarded Canadian exhibitors for different exhibits of wheat, oats and barley threshed and in the sheaf. Vegetables also received high awards. A pleasing feature of these exhibits was they were mostly made by farmers who had at one time been American Citizens and were now farming in Canada. The Department of the Interior is just in receipt of a magnificent diploma given by the Tri-State Board of Examiners at the Fair held in Cincinnati last fall for agricultural display by Canada.

The Surveyor-General of Canada has just completed a map showing that a large area of land was surveyed last year in the northern portion of Saskatchewan and Alberta in order to be ready for the rush of homesteaders to that district during the coming spring and summer. It is understood surveys covering several hundreds of thousands of acres will be made in addition to these during the coming summer.

A return just issued by the Dominion Lands Branch shows that 48,257 homestead entries were made last year as compared with 37,061 in 1910; of this 48,257, 14,704 were made by Americans. North Dakota coming first on the list with 4,810, Minnesota gives 2,528, South Dakota 1,133, Wisconsin 745, Washington 730, Michigan 706, Iowa 645, while other states show less, but with the exception of Delaware, District of Columbia and the Indian Territory, every state and territory contributed.

The prospects for an abundant crop in all parts of Western Canada for 1911 are said to be excellent. In the districts that required it there was an ample rainfall last autumn, and the snowfall during the present winter is greater than in many previous years. Both are essential factors to the farmers, who look upon the moisture that these will produce as being highly beneficial.

A large immigration from the United States is expected, and the demand for literature and information from the various Government Agencies located at different points in the States is the greatest it has ever been.

Since the above was written word has been received that in addition to honors won at Columbus, Ohio, Canada won first and second on wheat and first and second on oats, as well as diplomas.

Norman Cherry of Davis, Saskatchewan, who was in the reserve for first on wheat, secured the award, with G. H. Hutton of Lacombe, Alberta, second. J. C. Hill & Sons got first on oats besides the silver trophy. G. H. Hutton took second in oats.

These women are only a few of thousands of living witnesses of the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases. Not one of these women ever received compensation in any form for the use of their names in this advertisement—but are willing that we should refer to them because of the good they may do other suffering women to prove that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a reliable and honest medicine, and that the statements made in our advertisements regarding its merit are the truth and nothing but the truth.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Is the best of all medicines for the cure of diseases, disorders and weaknesses peculiar to women. It is the only preparation of its kind devised by a regularly graduated physician—an experienced and skilled specialist in the diseases of women.

It is a safe medicine in any condition of the system.

THE ONE REMEDY which contains no alcohol and no injurious habit-forming drugs and which creates no craving for such stimulants.

THE ONE REMEDY so good that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient on each outside bottle-wrapper and attest to the truthfulness of the same under oath.

It is sold by medicine dealers everywhere, and any dealer who hasn't it can get it. Don't take a substitute of unknown composition for this medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. No counterfeit is as good as the genuine and the druggist who says something else is "just as good as Dr. Pierce's" is either mistaken or is trying to deceive you for his own selfish benefit. Such a man is not to be trusted. He is trifling with your most priceless possession—your health—may be your life itself. See that you get what you ask for.

A Story of Good Cheer by
Maria Thompson Daviess

Soon to Appear in This Paper

You can't resist Miss Selina Lue. Spinster, store-keeper of River Bluff, and general neighborhood manager, she is a very real, very energetic and delightfully funny character.

Miss Selina Lue plays the part of Providence in all the comedies and tragedies of the Bluff. Her specialty is a row of soap boxes in which she keeps a free day nursery. The story is overrun with children, always in comical trouble.

Interwoven with the quaint doings and sayings of Miss Selina Lue, is the love story of Cynthia, from the white pillared house on the hill, and Alan Kent, the artist, a "near soap-boxer" of Miss Selina's. Even the romance is tinctured with humor. Miss Selina Lue will put you in love with the world.

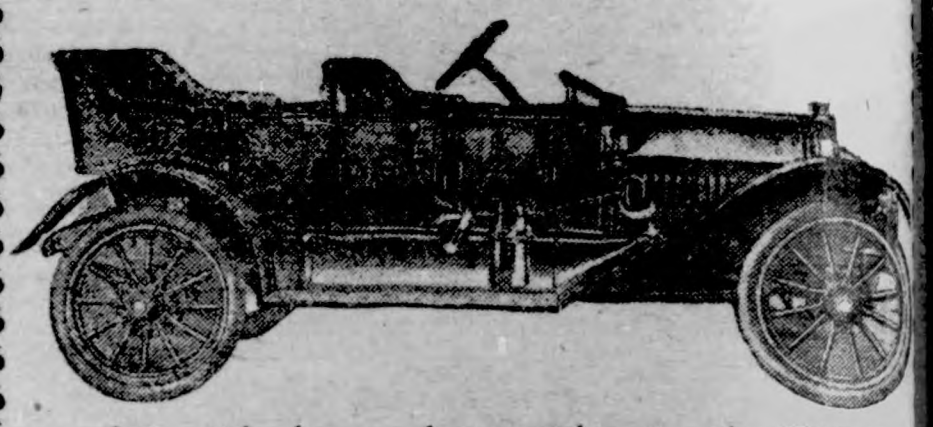
THE IMPERIAL

"THE GET THERE KIND"



It is with pleasure that we advertise the IMPERIAL. When so doing it is hard to say too much in favor of this line of IMPERIAL Automobiles. They have the record up-to-date for running and covering more miles of hard road-going, with the least expense, least adjustments.

The Burd Auto Co., Waterloo, Iowa, says: "The Imperial Automobile has not been equaled yet regardless of price." They run out 37 last season. Up to date there hasn't been one adjustment made. Their contract calls for 100 Imperials for 1911.

The Imperial is built in ten models, from a 35 H. P. two-passenger gentleman's Roadster, to a 60 H. P. seven passenger touring car. Buy the car that bears the name IMPERIAL, and get a dollar's worth of automobile for every dollar you invest.

"DOLLARS AND SENSE"

Following is a write-up of the lecture given by Albert Edward Wiggam on the subject "Dollars and Sense," written by one of our high school students, Ralph Ludeke:—

The two great issues of today are the young man and young woman. These will write the future history of the world. Which shall we give them, dollars or sense? Let us give them opportunity, education and equipment. In one thing all men are the same, that is, they are different. This difference between men we must educate. Germany has 2,000 trade schools; we have less than 20.

The greatest men in the world were born without a cent in their pockets, therefore it behooves us to leave education and brains to boys and girls, and not money. The president of the largest bank in Wisconsin said: "I am personally acquainted with every rich man's son in the state, but would not give one of them a position in this bank one hour."

Some men are only a hole in the air with a thin skin around. Rich girls as well as boys find money a handicap to success. An eighth grade education is better than none, but it should be only the beginning of the education. Increased brains will give increased wealth. Sense makes dollars. An educated woman is the only woman a poor man can afford to marry. An ignorant woman will keep a man in poverty.

Statistics show that educated people live longer—Iowa 40 years, Germany 43. Sweeden 51, India 25. .

2,000 babies are slaughtered every year from impure milk. We need more effective men and women.

Buildings kill four times as many children as the hot summer months. Storm windows are one of the greatest curses of humanity. Keep the windows open and let in God's fresh air, free for the taking. If a man is sick or consumptive, he can pray day and night and it wont help unless he does it out of doors. Man is the greatest patented invention but on some the patent has just about expired. It is said some boys are lazy, but this is a grave mistake. These boys are not lazy but are invalids. One-eighth of the children drop out of school before the eighth grade on account of poor health. In New York every child must be physically examined before promoted to another grade. One-fifth have false tonsils, these tonsils cause disobedience and crime, causing a wicked life for the patient and all who come in contact with him.

Little things cause the trouble, not the big things. Human will runs the universe; let us make it worthy and competent. There exists a great relationship between the teeth and the moral character. The teeth cause more wrecks physically and mentally than the great curse, alcoholic drink. Ninety-two per cent need the immediate attention of a good dentist. On an average, bad teeth cause a deficiency of six months in school work.

The commonplace things we know the least about. More is known about the American hog than the American child. Generally where we find razor back hogs we find razor back people. There are 23 institutions to teach the proper methods of hog raising, and only one institution for the proper care of children. Which is the most important?

You can make your nerve system your friend or your enemy. Develop the habit of being well. Some people always imagine they are sick, so they take all kinds of patent medicines. After some time they land at the doctor's office. The doctor takes them in the "insulting" room, lays them on the operating table, then removes their pocketbooks.

The things that never happen are the things that kill us. One-half the trouble in the world is caused by not telling of our love or giving roses while our loved ones live. After death it is too late. Happiness and cheer makes life easier.

Dr. Elliot, of Harvard says: Give children a task they can perform. A task that is impossible will teach it the life habit of failure. Give the child a task it can perform, thereby teaching the all-conquering habit of success. Do not send the child in the world, deaf, dumb and blind, but a healthy young man or woman with an educated mind.

Do you know that croup can be prevented? Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It is also a certain cure for croup and has never been known to fail. Sold by all dealers.

A local ironworker who had been married a couple of years always declared that his first son should be named Matt, after one of his best friends.

Learning that the iron worker and his wife had recently been blessed with a charming baby, the friend smiled all over his face when he greeted the father on the street.

"Well," he beamed, "how is little Matt?"

"Matt nothing," answered the father, "it's Mattress." — Youngstown Telegram

A reception was given in honor of Rev. W. S. Carne at the opera house last evening. The affair was in the nature of a surprise and was successful in every way. Refreshments were served and all present enjoyed themselves to the utmost.

Don't forget the program and basket social in the opera house tomorrow (Friday) evening, for the benefit of the Klemme public school. Ladies are requested to bring baskets. Proceeds will go toward paying for school piano. This is a worthy cause; help it along. Admission to program is free.

The special meetings in the Eng. M. E. church closed last week. The attendance was very good throughout and great interest was manifested. Rev. Carne is a good speaker and a tireless worker and he and the pastor, Rev. Hubber, are to be congratulated on the interest in the work which they aroused in the community. Their methods are clean and gentlemanly and they strive to reason rather than to excite. Rev. Carne's lecture on Cornwall given last Friday evening was fine and we have heard many strong words of praise for his discourse.

An entertainment and basket social will be given Friday evening, Feb. 17th, 1911, at the Bredlow school, German No. 2, seven miles northwest of Klemme. Everybody welcome and ladies please bring baskets Cora E. Young, Teacher.

Rev. Hubber informs us that it will be impossible for Rev. Keck of Garner to be in Klemme next Sunday as announced, so either Rev. Hubber or Rev. Carne will conduct services in the Eng. M. E. church next Sunday at the usual hours. All are cordially invited.

Just one word about the Klemme orchestra. The music this organization furnished at the opera house last evening was as good as you can hear any place, and Klemme people may well feel proud of the town's musical talent.

Herman Miller left Monday for Garner to take up his new duties as manager of the Farmers Elevator. Before leaving he called and made arrangements to have this family journal visit him each week. For the benefit of our Garner readers who may be interested we will state that Herman is single, and altogether too good a fellow to remain so. Just because the Klemme young ladies failed to appreciate his charms is no sign that the Garner young ladies will.

An Iowa paper puts it this way, being desirious of getting them going and coming: "Any one owing this paper is requested to call and pay at once. Any one not owing the paper is requested to call and subscribe and begin owing us at once. Any one we are owing is requested to subscribe for this paper in advance to the full amount of the debt and pay us another year in advance cash. Any one who is not owing us and will not do so is requested to move to North Dakota and make room for one who will."

Wedding Bells

Yesterday afternoon, February 15th, at one o'clock, at the Elltown Reformed Church, was solemnized the marriage of Mr. Charles L. Griffen and Miss Mate A. M. Greimann. Rev. Kirchhoefer officiating. The contracting parties to this pleasant event are among our best known and most popular young people and have been reared in this community, so they need no introduction at our hands.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charley Griffen, Sr., and is a young man of high moral character and true worth. The bride is the talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Greimann, among our most prosperous and substantial farmers, and she is well fitted to make an ideal life companion for the young man she thus honors.

After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding dinner was served at the Greimann home, and in the evening a reception was tendered the newly wedded couple, to which the young folks were invited and which was a very pleasant part of the day's proceedings.

Mr. and Mrs. Griffen will make their home on the old Lou Sampson farm in German township. The Times extends to them best wishes for a long and prosperous married life.

We wish to insert in the valuable columns of this paper just a word of thanks and appreciation, to those people who have so readily and kindly helped us, in any way, in connection with our special meetings which were held in the English M. E. church. The kindness of the community is worthy of special mention and ought to speak well for the future of the churches. Trusting that our hearty thanks may reach all interested persons, we remain Faithfully yours,

Walters & Kirby's medicine show closed a week's engagement at the Klemme opera house last Saturday night. The attendance was good all week and the show seemed to give satisfaction. The popular young lady contest created a good deal of interest on the last night and was won by Miss Minnie Lau who received a diamond ring for five cents. There was soap enough sold on the last night to keep Klemme clean for a year, and we will expect some great improvement in the near future.

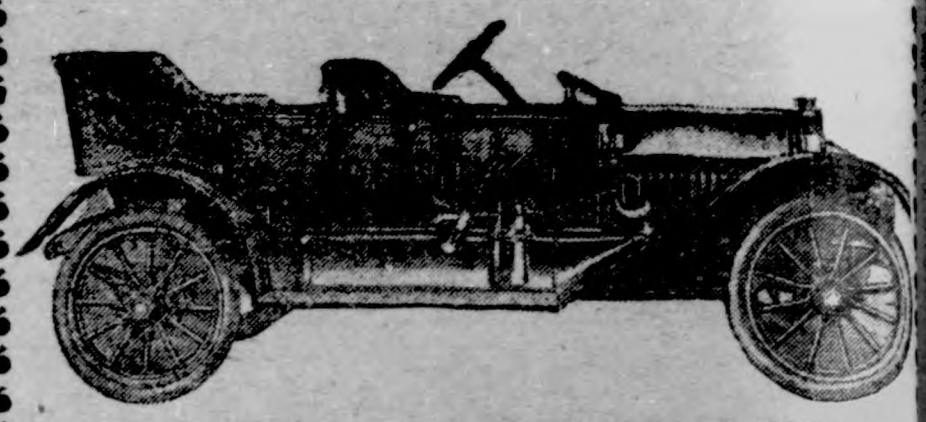
"THE GET THERE KIND"



It is with pleasure that we advertise the IMPERIAL. When so doing it is hard to say too much in favor of this line of IMPERIAL Automobiles. They have the record up-to-date for running and covering more miles of hard road-going, with the least expense, least adjustments.

The Burd Auto Co.. Waterloo, Iowa, says: "The Imperial Automobile has not been equaled yet regardless of price." They run out 37 last season. Up to date there hasn't been one adjustment made. Their contract calls for 100 Imperials for 1911.

The Imperial is built in ten models, from a 35 H. P. two-passenger gentleman's Roadster, to a 60 H. P. seven passenger touring car. Buy the car that bears the name IMPERIAL, and get a dollar's worth of automobile for every dollar you invest.

"DOLLARS AND SENSE"

Following is a write-up of the lecture given by Albert Edward Wiggam on the subject "Dollars and Sense," written by one of our high school students, Ralph Ludeke:—

The two great issues of today are the young man and young woman. These will write the future history of the world. Which shall we give them, dollars or sense? Let us give them opportunity, education and equipment. In one thing all men are the same, that is, they are different. In the difference between men we must educate. Germany has 2,000 trade schools; we have less than 20.

The greatest men in the world were born without a cent in their pockets, therefore it behooves us to leave education and brains to boys and girls, and not money. The president of the largest bank in Wisconsin said: "I am personally acquainted with every rich man's son in the state, but would not give one of them a position in this bank one hour."

Some men are only a hole in the air with a thin skin around. Rich girls as well as boys find money a handicap to success. An eighth grade education is better than none, but it should be only the beginning of the education. Increased brains will give increased wealth. Sense makes dollars. An educated woman is the only woman a poor man can afford to marry. An ignorant woman will keep a man in poverty.

Statistics show that educated people live longer—Iowa 40 years, Germany 43. Sweeden 51, India 25. .

2,000 babies are slaughtered every year from impure milk. We need more effective men and women.

Buildings kill four times as many children as the hot summer months. Storm windows are one of the greatest curses of humanity. Keep the windows open and let in God's fresh air, free for the taking. If a man is sick or consumptive, he can pray day and night and it wont help unless he does it out of doors. Man is the greatest patented invention but on some the patent has just about expired. It is said some boys are lazy, but this is a grave mistake. These boys are not lazy but are invalids. One-eighth of the children drop out of school before the eighth grade on account of poor health. In New York every child must be physically examined before promoted to another grade. One-fifth have false tonsils, these tonsils cause disobedience and crime, causing a wicked life for the patient and all who come in contact with him.

Little things cause the trouble, not the big things. Human will runs the universe; let us make it worthy and competent. There exists a great relationship between the teeth and the moral character. The teeth cause more wrecks physically and mentally than the great curse, alcoholic drink. Ninety-two per cent need the immediate attention of a good dentist. On an average, bad teeth cause a deficiency of six months in school work.

The commonplace things we know the least about. More is known about the American hog than the American child. Generally where we find razor back hogs we find razor back people. There are 23 institutions to teach the proper methods of hog raising, and only one institution for the proper care of children. Which is the most important?

You can make your nerve system your friend or your enemy. Develop the habit of being well. Some people always imagine they are sick, so they take all kinds of patent medicines. After some time they land at the doctor's office. The doctor takes them in the "insulting" room, lays them on the operating table, then removes their pocketbooks.

The things that never happen are the things that kill us. One-half the trouble in the world is caused by not telling of our love or giving roses while our loved ones live. After death it is too late. Happiness and cheer makes life easier.

Dr. Elliot, of Harvard says: Give children a task they can perform. A task that is impossible will teach it the life habit of failure. Give the child a task it can perform, thereby teaching the all-conquering habit of success. Do not send the child in the world, deaf, dumb and blind, but a healthy young man or woman with an educated mind.

Do you know that croup can be prevented? Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It is also a certain cure for croup and has never been known to fail. Sold by all dealers.

The Wrong Gender

A local ironworker who had been married a couple of years always declared that his first son should be named Matt, after one of his best friends.

Learning that the iron worker and his wife had recently been blessed with a charming baby, the friend smiled all over his face when he greeted the father on the street.

"Well," he beamed, "how is little Matt?"

"Matt nothing," answered the father, "it's Mattress." — Youngstown Telegram

A reception was given in honor of Rev. W. S. Carne at the opera house last evening. The affair was in the nature of a surprise and was successful in every way. Refreshments were served and all present enjoyed themselves tc the utmost.

Don't forget the program and basket social in the opera house tomorrow (Friday) evening, for the benefit of the Klemme public school. Ladies are requested to bring baskets. Proceeds will go toward paying for school piano. This is a worthy cause; help it along. Admission to program is free.

The special meetings in the Eng. M. E. church closed last week. The attendance was very good throughout and great interest was manifested. Rev. Carne is a good speaker and a tireless worker and he and the pastor, Rev. Hubber, are to be congratulated on the interest in the work which they aroused in the community. Their methods are clean and gentlemanly and they strive to reason rather than to excite. Rev. Carne's lecture on Cornwall given last Friday evening was fine and we have heard many strong words of praise for his discourse.

Rev. Hubber informs us that it will be impossible for Rev. Keck of Garner to be in Klemme next Sunday as announced, so either Rev. Hubber or Rev. Carne will conduct services in the Eng. M. E. church next Sunday at the usual hours. All are cordially invited.

Just one word about the Klemme orchestra. The music this organization furnished at the opera house last evening was as good as you can hear any place, and Klemme people may well feel proud of the town's musical talent.

Herman Miller left Monday for Garner to take up his new duties as manager of the Farmers Elevator. Before leaving he called and made arrangements to have this family journal visit him each week. For the benefit of our Garner readers who may be interested we will state that Herman is single, and altogether too good a fellow to remain so. Just because the Klemme young ladies failed to appreciate his charms is no sign that the Garner young ladies will.

An Iowa paper puts it this way, being desirious of getting them going and coming: "Any one owing this paper is requested to call and pay at once. Any one not owing the paper is requested to call and subscribe and begin owing us at once. Any one we are owing is requested to subscribe for this paper in advance to the full amount of the debt and pay us another year in advance cash. Any one who is not owing us and will not do so is requested to move to North Dakota and make room for one who will."

Wedding Bells

Yesterday afternoon, February 15th, at one o'clock, at the Elltown Reformed Church, was solemnized the marriage of Mr. Charles L. Griffen and Miss Mate A. M. Greimann. Rev. Kirchhoefer officiating. The contracting parties to this pleasant event are among our best known and most popular young people and have been reared in this community, so they need no introduction at our hands.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charley Griffen, Sr., and is a young man of high moral character and true worth. The bride is the talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Greimann, among our most prosperous and substantial farmers, and she is well fitted to make an ideal life companion for the young man she thus honors.

After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding dinner was served at the Greimann home, and in the evening a reception was tendered the newly wedded couple, to which the young folks were invited and which was a very pleasant part of the day's proceedings.

Mr. and Mrs. Griffen will make their home on the old Lou Sampson farm in German township. The Times extends to them best wishes for a long and prosperous married life.

We wish to insert in the valuable columns of this paper just a word of thanks and appreciation, to those people who have so readily and kindly helped us, in any way, in connection with our special meetings which were held in the English M. E. church. The kindness of the community is worthy of special mention and ought to speak well for the future of the churches. Trusting that our hearty thanks may reach all interested persons, we remain Faithfully yours,

H. HUBBER,
W. S. CARNE.

Walters & Kirby's medicine show closed a week's engagement at the Klemme opera house last Saturday night. The attendance was good all week and the show seemed to give satisfaction. The popular young lady contest created a good deal of interest on the last night and was won by Miss Minnie Lau who received a diamond ring for five cents. There was soap enough sold on the last night to keep Klemme clean for a year, and we will expect some great improvement in the near future.

EVENTS HERE AND THERE

Condensed Into a Few Lines for the Perusal of the Busy Man—Latest Personal Information.

PERSONAL.

Lincoln's birthday was celebrated at Springfield, Ill., with elaborate ceremonies, President Taft being the guest of honor and chief speaker.

Miss Clara Barton, founder and for many years president of the National Red Cross in the United States, is ill at her residence at Glen Echo, Mo.

Rear Admiral Winfield Scott Schley, U. S. N., is confined to his bed suffering from the fracture of two ribs and internal injuries, sustained when he fell on the icy pavement in front of his Washington home.

In a brief statement in the senate Senator Shelby M. Cullom of Illinois said that never had a dollar been used corruptly in any of his elections. He declared the people of Illinois to be as moral as those of any other state and said they could take care of their own good name.

Frank L. Valiant, a "war scout," who was motorcycling from New York city to Chicago with messages from several military authorities, returned to New York on account of heavy recent snowfalls.

Capt. David A. Scribner, for thirty years the skipper of fast clipper ships plying between San Francisco and Japanese ports, is dead at his home on Staten Island, New York.

Henry Thompson, who was one of John Brown's lieutenants at Harper's Ferry, died at his home at Pasadena, Cal. He was eighty-nine years old.

Living the life of a recluse for years and seemingly destitute, the estate of Miss Emma Williams, seventy years old, has been appraised by the New Milford, Conn., surrogate at $31,000.

Upon the advice of his physicians Emperor William of Germany has cancelled all of his engagements for the present owing to illness. The announcement caused much surprise in court circles.

William E. Corey, former president of the United States Steel corporation, took occasion on the departure of his wife for France, where she will reopen the Corey chateau, to deny the report that he intended to enter business with Charles M. Schwab.

Mayor Frederick Kreismann of St. Louis left Seattle for his home in response to a message notifying him that charges have been made against his course while serving as circuit clerk before his election as mayor.

GENERAL NEWS.

City Attorney Frank W. Jones and Peter Sanichas, local Greek merchant of Danville, Ill., were indicted for perjury in the Vermilion county grand jury's first report to the court. Bench warrants were immediately issued. The jury made a report of 216 indictments. More than 100 for vote selling were withheld.

Patrick Keeley, former detective in State's Attorney Wayman's office at Chicago, was found guilty of perjury in the second trial of Lee O'Neil Browne on a charge of bribery by a jury.

Approving an eight-foot water way, which it declares would carry $100,000,000 worth of freight a year through the Illinois valley, the board of engineers for the rivers and harbors, sent to the national house of representatives its report on the plan for a water way from Chicago to the Mississippi river. It refuses its approval for a 14-foot channel, but sanctions an eight-foot.

The Indiana senate has passed by a vote of 29 to 18 a bill by Senator Durre of Evansville compelling every qualified citizen in Indiana to cast his vote at every election.

William H. Murray was arrested in a dugout but he had constructed on the bank of Spring river, six miles north of Carthage, Mo., when Deputy Sheriff Weaver raided the place and seized a complete counterfeiting plant.

Aviators Noel and Delatorre were killed at Douai, France, when conducting a trial of a military aeroplane before experts from the war department, previous to its delivery to the army.

Reciprocity with Canada will benefit the entire United States—farmer, manufacturer, railroad company, middleman, warehouseman. This was the declaration of President Taft in an address before the National Corn exposition at Columbus, Ohio. While his speech was devoted especially to showing that the farmer had nothing to fear, but much to gain, he attempted to prove also that all the other interests of the country would be benefited.

Mrs. Roberta Menges-Corwin-Hill in the United States circuit court pleaded guilty to smuggling and was sentenced to pay a fine of $2,000 and to remain in prison four days. Mrs. Hill smuggled a sable coat valued at $8,750.

Unless relieved 2,000,000 people in China will die of starvation. This is predicted by American Consul General Wilder at Shanghai. He appeals for quick assistance and says $500,000 is needed immediately.

Mexican forces under General Luque sustained another defeat in their attack on insurrectos, whom they have been fighting in the vicinity of Mulata, Mexico, for some days past. The federals assaulted the insurrecto force intrenched about Mulata. They were repulsed after a battle lasting five hours.

In a coffin made of cherry wood that had been hewn by himself more than fifty years ago, the body of William N. Whitely, a manufacturer of reapers at Springfield, O., was cremated at Cincinnati.

Within four months of her centenary, Mrs. Rebecca Spring, mother of Steele Mackaye, the dramatist and friend of most of the literary celebrities of mid-Victorian days, died at Los Angeles, Cal.

The first gun in the congressional battle over Canadian reciprocity was fired in the United States senate by Senator Beveridge of Indiana and he lined up on the side of the administration. He presented strong arguments to show that the natural resources of Canada might be depended upon to reduce the cost of living in this country and to replenish the loss suffered by the premature destruction of American resources.

Ghouls at Erie, Pa., have broke into and violated the mausoleum of the late William L. Scott, who was a congressman, a millionaire coal and railroad magnate and an intimate personal friend of former President Grover Cleveland. The body of Mrs. Anna M. McCollom, sister of Mrs. Scott, has been removed from the coffin. Much mystery surrounds the case.

In a gas explosion at the Wilburn house at Carpentersville, Ill., Howard Mann and Adam Oberst were killed and 20 others injured, four fatally. The hotel was wrecked. Carpentersville is a small town six miles north of Elgin.

Three women were drowned at Sheboygan, Wis., when a local street car went through an open draw into the Sheboygan river and became submerged. The cause of the accident is believed by the motorman to be due to defective working of the brakes.

With Bluefields, Nicaragua, given as her destination, the gunboat Siren, formerly owned by the United States government, secured clearance papers at Norfolk, Va.

Miss Clara Barton, founder and for many years president of the National Red Cross in the United States, is seriously ill at her residence in Glen Echo, Md.

Unsecured notes aggregating $600,000 have been found among the possessions of D. B. M. Brown, secretary and treasurer of the old Illinois Canning company at Hoopeston, Ill., who committed suicide. National bank examiners, it is said, have been investigating Mr. Brown's affairs for some time.

President Taft has served notice on congress through Senators Crane and Carter that there must be a vote on the reciprocity agreement with Canada, or he would call congress back in extra session almost immediately after March 1.

A terrific tornado of three days' duration has passed over Reunion Island, a French possession in the Indian ocean, killing scores and wrecking villages, according to advices received at Paris from the French governor general there.

Many million dollars' worth of property in the heart of the business section of Brooklyn was threatetned by a fire which destroyed the two-story factory of the F. Bischoff Cocoa and Chocolate company on Ashland place. The loss was $500,000.

Seventeen residents of Pekin, Peoria, Eureka and Bloomington, Ill., were injured when two passenger motors on the Peoria electric terminal railway collided on an open switch, at South Bartonville. A broken switch device was the cause.

An explosion of dynamite at the mills of the Piute Powder company, three miles south of Ispheming, Mich., killed ten men and seriously injured another. The nitric acid house was wrecked, and the office building badly damaged.

Frank Bernard, his wife and their two little children were found dead in their home on Fulton street, Brooklyn, N. Y., the victims of escaping gas.

DEPEW ON DOLLIVER

New York Senator Pays High Tribute to Late Iowa Statesman

SOLVED ECONOMIC PROBLEMS

"The Chivalric Knight From Virginia and the Modern Senator From Iowa Filler Large and Useful Places in Our Political Economy."

Wahsington, D. C., Feb. 13.—Senator Depew of New York paid a high tribute to the memory of Senator Dolliver in the senate. He was speaking in eulogy of Senator Elkins of West Virginia, and in so doing compared Senators Elkins, Dolliver and Daniel of Virginia, all of whom have died lately. Of Senator Dolliver, Senator Depew, who was a warm personal friend of the Iowan, said:

"Senator Dolliver was intensely modern. From the parsonage of his father, in which he received his early training, he carried to public life the spirit of the missionary. He was possessed of a rare faculty for oratory and was equally brilliant in argument, appeal, ridicule and humor. He came while young into public life and from a constituency which promised a long continuance in public service. He never was in contact with and cared little for the wonderful opportunities for men of masterful genius in affairs which have created the phenomenal fortunes of the past forty years. He was essentially a tribune of the people. His life was absorbed in the solution of the economic problems of protection and revenue in a way which, according to his faith, would add to the wealth of the republic and the individual prosperity of every citizen.

"He died as he had lived, on his chosen battlefield, of using all his powers and exhausting his energy and vitality for ideas which he believed would eventuate in policies and measures for the best interests of the people. The chivalric knight from Virginia, and the modern senator from Iowa filled large and useful places in our political economy."

CUMMINS' VIEWS UNCHANGED

Says He Is Still for Reciprocity As He Was When Many of Present Advocates Opposed It.

New York, Feb. 13.—Senator Albert B. Cummins of Iowa spoke in advocacy of the Canadian reciprocity agreement before the Union League club of Brooklyn. Commenting upon the fact that some curiosity had been expressed as to what was his position on the proposed trade arrangement, the senator said that it seemed strange to him that after having advocated Canadian reciprocity in every part of the country for ten years, "when most of its present advocates were denouncing it, that his attitude should be in doubt.

"I went down in defeat for it more than once," said Mr. Cummins, "and I think I have the same courage of my conviction now that I had then.

"I am for reciprocity with Canada, but I am not for every trade arrangement that may be proposed under the name of reciprocity, just as I was for the system of protection in 1909, but I was not for the Payne-Aldrich tariff law."

ARCHBISHOP P. J. RYAN DEAD

"God Bless You" Last Words Uttered as Priests Intone Prayers for Dying at Deathbed.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 13.—Serene and prepared to meet his God, whom he had served so well, the Rt. Rev. Patrick John Ryan, D. D., LL. D., archbishop of Philadelphia, and one of the great archbishops on the American continent, passed peacefully into eternity at the archepiscopal residence, adjoining the cathedral in Logan square. For weeks the distinguished prelate, who would have been 80 years old had he lived until Feb. 20, fought off death, but a weak heart, enfeebled by the arduous duties of his office, could not stand the strain and he passed away breathing the benediction "God bless you," upon those who stood about the bedside.

Garst Got Funk Vote.

Des Moines, Feb. 13.—Warren Garst polled a good vote in the senatorial contest Saturday, due to the formal withdrawal from the contest of Senator Funk of Spirit Lake; the ballot resulting:

Candidate	Feb. 10.	Feb. 11.
Porter	54	49
Kenyon	45	42
Young	33	31
Garst	2	20
Clarke	2	2
Wallace	1	1

His Wish Gratified.

M. Jean Robie, the celebrated Belgian artist, died at Brussels the other week aged 89. He was the son of a blacksmith who worked at his father's forge early in life, and afterwards developed a taste for painting. M. Roble was also famous as a horticulturist, and was an authority on roses. He used to say: "I want to die among my roses," and his wish was fulfilled.

Had His Uses.

"You don't make very good music with that instrument," said the innocent bystander to the man behind the bass drum as the band ceased to play.

"No," admitted the drum-pounder; "but I drown a heap of bad."

CURED HER BABY OF ECZEMA

"I can't tell in words how happy the word 'Cuticura' sounds to me, for it cured my baby of itching, torturing eczema. It first came when she was between three and four weeks old, appearing on her head. I used everything imaginable and had one doctor's bill after another, but nothing cured it. Then the eczema broke out so badly behind her ear that I really thought her ear would come off. For months I doctored it but to no avail. Then it began at her nose and her eyes were nothing but sores. I had to keep her in a dark room for two weeks. The doctor did no good, so I stopped him coming.

"For about two weeks I had used Cuticura Soap for her every day, then I got a box of Cuticura Ointment and began to use that. In a week there was a marked improvement. In all I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and my baby was cured of the sores. This was last November; now her hair is growing out nicely and she has not a scar on her. I can not praise Cuticura enough, I can take my child anywhere and people are amazed to see her without a sore. From the time she was four weeks old until she was three years she was never without the terrible eruption, but now, thanks to Cuticura, I have a well child." (Signed) Mrs. H. E. Householder, 2004 Wilhelm St., Baltimore, Md., May 10, 1910.

No Need to Be Good.

A little Shaker Heights girl surprised her parents last week by refusing to be scared into being good. "It's no use telling me Santa Claus won't come, or that the angels will write it down in their book if I'm naughty, mamma," she said. "I might as well tell you that they think up in heaven that I'm dead."

"But why should they think that, dear?"

The COURAGE of CAPTAIN PLUM

By JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD
ILLUSTRATIONS BY MAGNUS G. KETTNER

COPYRIGHT 1908 BY BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

Capt. Nathaniel Plum of the sloop Typhoon, lands secretly on Beaver island, stronghold of the Mormons. Obadiah Price, Mormon councilor, confronts him, tells him he is expected, and bargains for the ammunition aboard the sloop. He binds Nat by a solemn oath to deliver a package to Franklin Pierce, president of the United States. Near Price's cabin Nat sees the frightened face of a young woman who disappears in the darkness, leaving an odor of lilacs. It develops that Nat's visit to the island is to demand settlement of the king, Strang, for the looting of his sloop by Mormons. Price shows Nat the king's palace, and through a window he sees the lady of the lilacs, who Price says is the king's seventh wife. Calling at the king's office Nat is warned by a young woman that his life is in danger. Strang professes indignation when he hears Nat's grievance and promises to punish the guilty. Nat rescues Neil, who is being publicly whipped, and the king orders the sheriff, Arbor Croche, to pursue and kill the two men. Plum learns that Marion, the girl of the lilacs, is Neil's sister. The two men plan to escape on Nat's sloop and take Marion and Winnsome, daughter of Arbor Croche, and sweetheart of Neil. Nat discovers that the sloop is gone. Marion tells him that his ship has been seized by the Mormons. She begs him to leave the island, telling him that nothing can save her from Strang, whom she is doomed to marry. Plum finds Price raving mad. Recovering, he tells Nat that Strang is doomed, that armed men are descending on the island. Nat learns that Marion has been summoned to the castle by Strang. Nat kills Arbor Croche, and after a desperate fight with the king, leaves him for dead. The avenging host from the mainland descends on St. James. Neil and Nat take a part in the battle and the latter is wounded. Strang, whom Nat thought he had killed, orders him thrown into a dungeon. He finds Neil a fellow prisoner. They overhear the Mormon jury deciding their fate. A bribed jailer brings the prisoners word of Winnsome and Marion. Bound and gagged the two men are taken out to sea in a boat.

CHAPTER XI.—Continued.

After a time a dark rim loomed slowly up out of the sea. It was land, half a mile or so away. Nathaniel sat up with fresh interest, and as they drew nearer Jeekum rose to his feet and gazed long and steadily in both directions along the coast. When he returned to his seat the boat's course was changed. A few minutes later the bow grated upon sand. Still voiceless as specters the guards leaped ashore and Neil roused himself to follow them, climbing over the gunwale like a sick man. Nathaniel was close at his heels. With a growing sense of horror he saw two ghostly stakes thrusting themselves out of the beach a dozen paces away. He looked beyond them. As far as he could see there was sand—nothing but sand, as white as paper, scintillating in a billion flashing needle-points in the starlight. Instinctively he guessed what the stakes were for, and walked toward them with the blood turning cold in his veins. Neil was before him and stopped at the first stake, making no effort to lift his eyes as Nathaniel strode past him. At the second, a dozen feet beyond, Nathaniel's two guards halted, and placed him with his back to the post. Two minutes later, bound hand and foot to the stake, he shifted his head so that he could look at his companion.

Neil was similarly fastened, with his face turned partly toward him. There was no change in his attitude. His head hung weakly upon his chest, as if he had fainted.

What did it mean?

Suddenly every nerve in Nathaniel's body leaped into excited action.

The guards were entering their boat! The last man was shoving it off—they were rowing away! His throbbing muscles seemed ready to burst their bonds. The boat became indistinct in the starry gloom—a mere shadow—and faded in the distance. The sound of oars became fainter and fainter. Then, after a little, there was wafted back to him from far out in the lake a man's voice—the wild snatch of a song. The Mormons were gone! They were not to be shot! They were not—

A voice spoke to him, startling him so that he would have cried out if it had not been for the cloth that gagged him. It was Neil, speaking coolly, laughingly.

"How are you, Nat?"

Nathaniel's staring eyes revealed his astonishment. He could see Neil laughing at him as though it was an unusually humorous joke in which they were playing a part.

"Lord, but this is a funny mess!" he chuckled. "Here am I, able and willing to talk—and there you are, as dumb as a mummy, and looking for all the world as if you'd seen a ghost! What's the matter? Aren't you glad we're not going to be shot?"

Nathaniel nodded.

The other's voice became suddenly sober.

"This is worse than the other, Nat. It's what we call the 'Straight Death.' Unless something turns up between now and tomorrow morning, or a little later, we'll be as dead as though they had filled us with bullets. Our only hope rests in the fact that I can use my lungs. That's why I didn't let them know when my gag became loose. I had the devil's own time keeping it from falling with my chin; pretty near broke my neck doing it. A little later, when we're sure Jeekum and his men are out of hearing, I'll begin calling for help. Perhaps some fisherman or hunter—"

He stopped, and a chill ran up Nathaniel's back as he listened to a weird howl that came from far behind them. It was a blood-curdling sound and his face turned a more ghastly pallor as he gazed inquiringly at Neil. His companion saw the terrible question in his face.

"Wolves," he said. "They're away back in the forest. They won't come down to us." For a moment he was silent, his eyes turned to the sea. Then he added: "Do you notice anything queer about the way you're bound to that stake, Nat?"

There was a thrilling emphasis in Nathaniel's answer. He nodded his head affirmatively, again and again.

"Your hands are tied to the post very loosely, with a slack of say six inches," continued Neil with an appalling precision. "There is a rawhide thong about your neck, wet, and so tight that it chafes your skin when you move your head. But the very uncomfortable thing just at this moment is the way your feet are fastened. Isn't that so? Your legs are drawn back, so that you are half resting on your toes, and I'm pretty sure your knees are aching right now. Eh? Well, it won't be very long before your legs will give way under you and the slack about your wrists will keep you from helping yourself. Do you know what will happen then?"

He paused and Nathaniel stared at him, partly understanding, yet giving no sign.

"You will hang upon the thong about your neck until you choke to death," finished Neil. "That's the 'Straight Death.' If the end doesn't come by morning the sun will finish the job. It will dry out the wet rawhide until it grips your throat like a hand. Poetically we call it the hand of Strang. Pleasant, isn't it?"

The grim definiteness with which he described the manner of their end added to those sensations which had already become acutely discomforting to Nathaniel. Had he possessed the use of his voice when the Mormons were leaving he would have called upon them to return and lengthen the thongs about his ankles by an inch or two. Now, with almost brutal frankness, Neil had explained to him the meaning of his strange posture. His knees began to ache. An occasional sharp pain shot up from them to his hips, and the thong about his neck, which at first he had used as a support for his chin, began to irritate him. At times he found himself resting upon it so heavily that it shortened his breath, and he was compelled to straighten himself, putting his whole weight on his twisted feet. It seemed an hour before Neil broke the terrible silence again. Perhaps it was ten minutes.

"I'm going to begin," he said. "Listen. If you hear an answer nod your head."

He drew a deep breath, turned his face as far as he could toward the shore, and shouted.

"Help—help—help!"

Again and again the thrilling words burst from his throat, and as their echoes floated back to them from the forest, like a thousand mocking voices, Nathaniel grew hot with the sweat of horror. If he could only have added his own voice to those cries, shrieked out the words with Neil—joined even unavailingly in this last fight for life, it would not have been so bad. But he was helpless. He watched the desperation grow in his companion's face as there came no response save the taunting echoes; even in the light of the stars he saw that face darken with its effort, the eyes fill with a mad light, and the throat strain against its choking thong. Gradually Neil's voice became weaker. When he stopped to rest and listen his panting breath came to Nathaniel like the hissing of steam. Soon the echoes failed to come back from the forest, and Nathaniel fought like a crazed man to free himself, jerking at the thongs that held him until his wrists were bleeding and the rawhide about his neck choked him.

"No use!" he heard Neil say. "Better take it easy for a while, Nat!"

Marion's brother had turned toward him, his head thrown back against the stake, his face lifted to the sky. Nathaniel raised his own head, and found that he could breathe easier. For a long time his companion did not break the silence. Mentally he began counting off the seconds. It was past midnight—probably one o'clock. Dawn came at half past two, the sun rose an hour later. Three hours to live! Nathaniel lowered his head, and the rawhide tightened perceptibly at the movement. Neil was watching him.

"I'm devilish sorry—for you—Nat—" he said.

His words came with painful slowness. There was a grating huskiness in his voice.

Joy Shone In Her Face.

"This damned rawhide—is pinching—my Adam's apple—"

He smiled. His white teeth gleamed, his eyes laughed, and with a heart bursting with grief Nathaniel looked away from him. He had seen courage, but never like this, and deep down in his soul he prayed—prayed that death might come to him first, so that he might not have to look upon the agonies of this other, whose end would be ghastly in its fearless resignation.

A moaning, wordless cry broke through the cloth that gagged him.

At the sound of that cry, faint, terrifying, with all the horror that might fill a human soul in its articulate note, a shudder of life passed into Neil's body. Weakly he flung himself back, stood poised for an instant against the stake, then fell again upon the deadly throng. Twice—three times he made the effort, and failed. And to Nathaniel, staring wild-eyed and silent now, the spectacle was one that seemed to blast the very soul within him and send his blood in rushing torrents of fire to his sickened brain. Neil was dying! A fourth time he struggled back. A fifth—and he held his ground. Even in that passing instant something like a flash of his buoyant smile flickered in his face and there came to Nathaniel's ears like a throttled whisper—his name.

"Nat—"

And no more.

The head fell forward again. And Nathaniel, turning his face away, saw something come up out of the shimmering sea, like a shadow before his blistering eyes, and as his own limbs went out from under him and he felt the strangling death at his throat there came from that shadow a cry that seemed to snap his very heart-strings—a piercing cry and (even in his half consciousness he recognized it) a woman's cry! He flung himself back, and for a moment he saw Neil struggling, the last spark of life in him stirred by that same cry; and then across the white sand two figures flew madly toward them, and even as the hot film in his eyes grew thicker he knew that one of them was Marion and that the other was Winnsome Croche.

His heart seemed to stop beating. He strove to pull himself together, but his head fell forward. Faintly, as on a battlefield, voices came to him, and when with a superhuman effort he straightened himself for an instant he saw that Neil was no longer at the stake but was stretched on the sand, and of the two figures beside him one suddenly sprang to her feet and ran to him. And then Marion's terror-filled face was close to his own, and Marion's lips were moaning his name, and Marion's hands were slashing at the thongs that bound him. When with a great sigh of joy he crumpled down upon the earth he knew that he was slipping off into oblivion with Marion's arms about his neck, and with her lips pressing to his the sweet elixir of her love.

Darkness enshrouded him but a few moments, when a dash of cool water brought him back into light. He felt himself lowered upon the sand and after a breath or two he twisted himself on his elbow and saw that Neil's white face was held on Winnsome's breast and that Marion was running up from the shore with more water. For a space she knelt beside her brother, and then she hurried to him. Joy shone in her face. She fell upon her knees and drew his head in the hollow of her arm, crooning mad senseless words to him, and bathing his face with water, her eyes shining down upon him gloriously. Nathaniel reached up and touched her face, and she bowed her head until her hair smothered him in sweet gloom, and kissed him. He drew her lips to his own, and then she lowered him gently and stood up in the starlight, looking first at Neil and next down at him; and then she turned quickly back to the sea.

From down near the shore she called back some word, and with a shrill cry Winnsome followed her. Nathaniel struggled to his elbow, to his knees—staggered to his feet. He saw the boat drifting out into the night, and Winnsome standing alone at the water-edge, her sobbing cries of entreaty, of terror, following it unanswered. He tottered down toward her, gaining new strength at each step, but when he reached her the boat was no longer to be seen and Winnsome's face was whiter than the sands under her feet.

"She is gone—gone—" she moaned, stretching out her arms to him. "She is going—back to Strang!"

And then, from far out in the white glory of the night, there came back to him the voice of the girl he loved:

"Goodby—Goodby—"

A Humble Invention.

To forget the inventions of the hour is an impossibility. They are before one at every turn, and many of them contain potentialities vast and much discussed. For that very reason it is well occasionally to contemplate some invention of the past which works unremittingly and inconspicuously for the welfare of mankind. Consider the air brake. How many, when they take a journey by rail, ever take thought of the device which stands ready to insure safety from possible accidents? All are so used to the device which stands ready to insure safety from possible accidents? All are so used to the sibilant noise below the cars that they never consider its portentousness. Yet by this application of the power of compressed air, tens of thousands of lives have been preserved, and railroad travel has been made more expeditious. All this is arrant truism; not a word of it, but what has been said scores of times before. But we like to dwell upon the air brake as one of those typical inventions which are doing their work faithfully and humbly while recent creations get the glory and applause.—Colliers.

At Last.

SAVED FROM DANGEROUS OPERATION--NEIGHBOR ADVISED WHAT TO DO FOR BLADDER TROUBLE

I too wish to add my testimonial to the thousands you no doubt have, and will tell you what your great medicine did for me.

Several months ago I was taken very sick with bladder trouble, had intense pains and suffered greatly, at times I could not stand on my feet or sit in a chair and often was forced to cry out with pain.

I consulted two doctors who gave me different kinds of medicine, which did me no good. It seemed as though the more of their medicine I took, the worse I became. The doctors seemed to be greatly puzzled over my case and after holding a consultation, I was told that I had a severe case of inflammation of the bladder and an operation was very necessary.

I was being prepared to be taken to the hospital, when a neighbor came to my house and said, "Why don't you try a bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root?" I was willing to try anything to get relief from my suffering. My wife bought a bottle of your medicine which I began taking and soon noticed a change for the better. I continued taking it and got better right along, my appetite returned and I was able to resume work.

I have used several bottles of Swamp-Root and know that if I had not taken it, I would have been operated on, and perhaps never recovered. I never fail to tell my friends about Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root as I know it will save many people from suffering and perhaps, as in my case, a dangerous operation.

Yours gratefully,

From Pain to Pleasure a Quick Transition.

I suggested Resinol and gave a neighbor one of your sample boxes for a child of a few months whose lower limbs were broken out with a rash resembling Eczema. The sample was applied at once and changed the wail of pain into smiles. Two jars were used with complete recovery in the surprisingly short time of two days. That tired mother's looks and words of gratitude were from the heart.

Constipation causes many serious diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. One a laxative, three for cathartic.

Reforms come slowly because we all would rather wield the ax than bear the knife.

Many people have receding gums. Rub Hamlins Wizard Oil on gums and stop the decay; chase the disease germs with a mouth wash of a few drops to a spoonful of water.

Perhaps Mohammed went to the mountain because it was cheaper than spending his vacation at the seashore.

The very best advice: take Garfield Tea whenever a laxative is needed.

An undertaker knows a lot of "dead ones" that he is unable to bury.

Garfield Tea purifies the blood and eradicates rheumatism. It is made of Herbs.

A few minutes delay in treating some cases of croup, even the length of time it takes to go for a doctor often proves dangerous. The safest way is to keep Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house, and at the first indication of croup give the child a dose. Pleasant to take and always cures. Sold by all dealers.

Guy Thomas, of Clear Lake, has taken possession of the Thornton creamery.

If troubled with indigestion, constipation, no appetite or feel bilious, give Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets a trial and you will be pleased with the result. These tablets invigorate the stomach and liver and strengthen the digestion. Sold by all dealers.

While it is often impossible to prevent an accident, it is never impossible to be prepared—it is not beyond anyone's purse. Invest 25 cents in a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment and you are prepared for sprains, bruises and like injuries. Sold by all dealers.

THE SITUATION

Katharine—He was to marry a telephone girl, but she broke the engagement.

Kidder—Oh, I see! A case of "ring off."

Real Courage.

He was the small son of a minister and his mother was teaching him the meaning of courage.

"Supposing," she said, "there were twelve boys in one bedroom, and eleven got into bed at once, while the other knelt down to say his prayers, that boy would show true courage."

"Oh," said the young hopeful, "I know something that would be more courageous than that? Supposing there were twelve ministers in one bedroom, and one got into bed without saying his prayers!"

No Purchase Recorded.

There was a dealer who tried to sell a horse to the late Senator Daniel of Virginia. He exhibited the merits of the horse, and said, "This horse is a reproduction of the horse that General Washington rode at the battle of Trenton. It has the pedigree that will show he descended from that horse and looks like him in every particular."

"Yes, so much so," said Senator Daniel, "that I am inclined to believe it is the same horse."

Literary Atmosphere.

"Mark Twain was not a widely read man. How do you suppose he ever managed to turn out so much good stuff?"

"I don't know, unless it was because he smoked so much."

Not the One.

"One of them actor fellers wants a doctor quick."

"There isn't a doctor handy, but tell him he might call the grocer—he cures 'hams.'"

IT'S FOOD
That Restores and Makes Health Possible.

There are stomach specialists as well as eye and ear and other specialists.

One of these told a young lady, of New Brunswick, N. J., to quit medicines and eat Grape-Nuts. She says:

"For about 12 months I suffered severely with gastritis. I was unable to retain much of anything on my stomach, and consequently was compelled to give up my occupation.

"I took quantities of medicine, and had an idea I was dieting, but I continued to suffer, and soon lost 15 pounds in weight. I was depressed in spirits and lost interest in everything generally. My mind was so affected that it was impossible to become interested in even the lightest reading matter.

"After suffering for months I decided to go to a stomach specialist. He put me on Grape-Nuts and my health began to improve immediately. It was the keynote of a new life.

"I found that I had been eating too much starchy food which I did not digest, and that the cereals which I had tried had been too heavy. I soon proved that it is not the quantity of food that one eats, but the quality.

"In a few weeks I was able to go back to my old business of doing clerical work. I have continued to eat Grape-Nuts for both the morning and evening meal. I wake in the morning with a clear mind and feel rested. I regained my lost weight in a short time. I am well and happy again and owe it to Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

HEIR TO FORTUNE?

18

J. J. Russell, of Mason City, Notified of Interest in Big Sum

REPORT MONEY IN IRELAND

Thirty-Two Million Dollars to Revert to Crown Unless Descendants of Adam Ferguson Can Prove Their Claims.

Mason City.—To be one of possibly thirty persons who are heirs to $32,000,000, is the information that reached J. J. Russell, a pioneer resident of this city, the letter coming from an Ohio attorney, who is looking after the interests of twenty-four members of the family of the late Adam Ferguson in Ireland, who died ninety years ago worth $32,000,000.

The estate, which was left and which has been increasing during the time since it was left by its first owner, is now in chancery court, London, Eng., and must be settled within ten years or, according to the English law, the property returns to the crown. Adam Ferguson was an Irish land owner who had four sons, all of whom in early life moved to America and settled in Virginia. A son of the eldest of these four brothers and sons of Adam Ferguson, removed to Pennsylvania in the early days of that state and married and his son was the grandfather of J. J. Russell of Mason City.

In this way Mr. Russell is able to trace the descent and to establish his claim to a share of the money. Just now the attorney wrote Mr. Russell he is able to get trace of twenty-four descendants of the four sons.

A letter from a sister of Mr. Russell, Mrs. Quick, who resides near Minneapolis, received a few days ago, was the first intimation that there was an effort being made to find the heirs. Attorneys who have examined the matter say the heirs will have no trouble establishing their right to the property, which, it is understood, is practically all money.

Mr. Russell came to Mason City more than forty years ago. He secured a small tract of land and for years enjoyed but a moderate success as a farmer. Later he invested his savings in Mason City real estate, the advance of which has given him a comfortable living.

Postal Figures Show Big Gain.

Des Moines.—Postoffice receipts for Des Moines took another big jump during the month of January, 1911, over the corresponding period for last year. According to a report made to Postmaster Myerly by Cashier Geo. L. Garton, the receipts for January, 1911, were as follows: $72,982.83; the receipts for January, 1910, $68,237.68; increase, $4,745.15. This makes an increase of 6.9 per cent, which is one of the largest that was attained all last year.

Butter Factory is Busy.

Belle Plaine.—The Belle Plaine Farmers' Creamery company plant is in operation and although it has been running only about a month, is making nearly one and one-half tons of butter a week. It seems that the amount of cream produced in this section was underestimated when the creamery was proposed. One large firm in Chicago is taking more than half of the entire product of the creamery at the present time.

Contractor Settles Suit.

Mason City.—A settlement has been effected by O. P. Herrick, a contractor who built the Des Moines Short line between here and Hampton and Mrs. Mary Jones, widow of C. E. Jones, who was killed near here last fall by the fall of a derrick while in the employ of Herrick. The settlement was for $5,526.66. Mrs. Jones had brought suit for $25,000.

Cedar Rapids City Hall Burns.

Cedar Rapids.—Fire of mysterious origin caused damages to the extent of $2,000 at the city hall. The interior of the building was being remodeled and would have been ready for occupancy March 1. The walls will have to be replastered. The loss is fully covered by insurance.

Ships Much Shelled Corn.

Lu Verne.—W. W. Stone, manager of the Western elevator located six miles north of here at Galbraith station has bought and shipped twenty-two cars of shelled corn since the first of December. Considerable other grain also was shipped.

Small Share to Daughter.

Beef Growers Ask $15,000 of Solons.

Des Moines.—The Iowa legislature will be asked to appropriate $15,000 to the beef cattle industry of this state by the Iowa Aberdeen-Angus Breeders' association, which held its convention in Des Moines. Charles Escher, Jr., of Botna, will introduce the bill providing for the appropriation. It will be an amendment to the bill appropriating $15,000 for the dairy cattle industry. Representative Escher is chairman of the committee. H. J. Hess of Waterloo and C. J. Martin of Churdan are the other members. The association held that the state should appropriate money for the beef cattle as well as dairy cattle industry.

Pheasants at Iowa Falls.

Iowa Falls.—Deputy Game Warden H. E. Martin of this city has just received the first shipment of the Hungarian pheasants assigned to this county by State Game Warden Lincoln and the birds will be placed with farmers and others who will agree to give the birds proper protection and attention. It is Mr. Lincoln's intention to place a large number of these birds in every county of the state and afford them protection for a few years until they become plentiful.

Woman Chopped Up With Hatchet.

Ottumwa.—The body of Mrs. Charlotte Mandy, a middle-aged woman, was found hacked to pieces with a hatchet in the home of Thaddeus Gilmore, where she had been employed for several months. Thaddeus Gilmore and his brother, Jim Gilmore, are both under arrest, charged with the murder.

Snow Bank Saves Life of Farmer.

Cedar Rapids.—Samuel Thompson, a farmer living at Monticello, owes his life to a huge snow bank which broke the force of a fall from a high windmill tower. Both legs and several ribs were broken and he is injured internally.

Mail Pouch Stolen.

Council Bluffs.—A mail pouch was stolen from the platform of the Union Pacific here. It was found later where it had been cut open and rifled of its contents. All the letters had been opened and money orders taken.

Made Perfect Score.

Des Moines.—Thomas Reilly, Commercial league bowler, 23 years of age, married, hitherto known only to a few, shot himself into the bowling limelight when he bowled a 300 score in the Mission Merry-Go-Round tournament.

Plan Fair Improvement.

Grundy Center.—Directors of the Grundy County Fair association held their annual meeting here and decided to erect a new agricultural hall at an estimated cost of $600.

Rich Iowa Farmer Hangs Himself.

Manchester.—Henry J. Barr, a wealthy farmer near Edgewood, committed suicide by hanging. He was 54 years old and leaves a widow and five children.

Gould Sells Iowa Lands.

Knoxville.—The Jay Gould estate sold to John Legrand their Iowa holdings, consisting of 3,200 acres of coal lands in Marion county.

Davis Pioneer Dead.

Bloomfield.—Elias Loney, aged 87, a pioneer of Davis county, died at the home of his son, John Loney, near Stiles.

A Fairly Wet World.

The Pacific ocean covers 68,000,000 miles, the Atlantic 30,000,000 and the Indian, Arctic and Antarctic 42,000,000. To stow away the contents of the Pacific it would be necessary to fill a tank one mile long, one mile wide and one mile deep every day for 440 years. Put in figures, the Pacific holds in weight 948,000,000,000,000,000,000 tons.

The Atlantic averages a depth of not quite three miles. Its water weighs 325,000,000,000,000,000,000 tons, and a tank to contain it would have each of its sides 43 miles long. The figures of the other oceans are in the same startling proportions. It would take all the sea water in the world 2,000,000 years to flow over Niagara.

The Handy Remedy for Eruption Caused by Poison Ivy or Wood Poison Is Resinol Ointment.

I have used Resinol Salve for several years. I was badly broken out with eruptions caused by Poison Ivy. The itching was unbearable. My doctor recommended Resinol. It did its work fine. Being subject to wood poison, I now keep a jar of Resinol on hand. I have told others of it who had like results. Jno. H. Kohl, Benton, Kan.

England's Oldest School.

A controversy has arisen in England as to which school has the right to claim greatest age. There are two schools which were founded in the early part of the seventh century—the King's school, Rochester, and the King's school, Canterbury. Justus, on his appointment to the see of Rochester in 604, made provision for a school in connection with the cathedral. Augustine established the Canterbury school about the same time. St. Peter's at York dates back to the eleventh century.

Education vs. Instinct.

Jacob Wendell Jr., who plays the part of the dog in Maeterlinck's drama, was dining in a restaurant recently when a man, recognizing him as the actor, approached and said:

"Pardon me, but you take the part of the dog in 'The Blue Bird,' do you not? Of course, you don't know it, but I can really bark lots more like a dog than you."

"Well, you see," answered Wendell, "I had to learn."—Success Magazine.

Crutches or Biers.

Richard Croker, at a dinner at New York, expressed a distrust for aeroplanes.

"There's nothing underneath them," he said. "If the least thing goes wrong, down they drop.

"I said to a Londoner the other day: "'How is your son getting on since he bought a flying machine?'

"'On crutches, like the rest of them,' the Londoner replied."

And It Was All Imagination.

"I wonder how much imagination governs some persons' senses?" remarked a visitor at the St. Regis yesterday. "For a Christmas present I sent to a young woman of my acquaintance one of the most elaborate sachet cases I could find. It was such a beautiful thing that I didn't put perfume in it, for some women prefer to use a certain kind all the time, and I thought I would leave it to the recipient to put her own particular sachet powder in the case. You may imagine I was somewhat amazed to read this in her enthusiastic letter of thanks: 'Its perfume has pervaded the whole room.'"—New York Press.

Big Sum Called for in Appropriation for State Institutions

THE GOVERNOR'S ESTIMATE

Bill Introduced in the House by Representative Moore, of Linn County, and in Senate by Senator Moore.

Des Moines, Iowa.—Special appropriations for repair, construction and other expenses at the state institutions under the jurisdiction of the state board of control are provided for in an appropriation bill introduced in the house by Moore of Linn. The bill carries a total of $1,033,600.

The state institutions are given the following appropriations:

Soldiers' home, Marshalltown, $16,800.

Soldiers' Orphans' home, Davenport, $44,900.

College for the Blind, Vinton, $14,900.

College for the Deaf, Council Bluffs $18,350.

Feeble Minded institute, Glenwood, $209,500.

Tuberculosis sanitarium, Oakdale, $32,700.

Boys' Industrial school, Eldora, $63,000.

Independence hospital, $175,500.

Clarinda hospital, $88,500.

Cherokee hospital, $118,400.

Knoxville asylum, $8,000.

Penitentiary, Fort Madison, $77,450.

Reformatory, Anamosa, $39,100.

Senator Mattes introduced a similar bill in the senate some time ago.

The amount of the appropriation asked is the exact figure recommended by Governor Carroll in his message.

Senate Passes Oregon Plan Bill.

The upper house of the Iowa legislature has passed the bill providing for the adoption in Iowa of the Oregon plan of electing United States senators. The vote was 31 to 16. Recorded in favor of the measure were all the democrats and the majority of the progressive republicans, while the standpatters were united in opposition to it. The bill was passed by the house some days ago, and now only needs the governor's signature to become a law.

More Bills in the House.

TO CARE FOR IOWA ORPHANS.

Three Bills Introduced in Senate Looking to Improved Conditions—Other Bills.

Des Moines.—Senator Hammill introduced three bills having relation to the care of children in the state. Two provide that a method be had of putting out children from the orphans' home and the industrial schools in homes, on parole, and revising the regulations therefor. It is intended to facilitate the home finding work done by the board of control through state agents.

The other changes the age limits for the admission of boys and girls to the industrial schools. The one relating to girls changes the limit so that only girls between 10 and 16 years of age can be admitted; and for the boys the ages are from 10 to 18. At present bays are admitted as young as 7 years and girls are admitted that are 18 years of age.

Senator Brown introduced a bill for converting the old Tabor college at Tabor in Fremont county, into a state normal school and making an appropriation therefor.

Larger bounty on wolves is contemplated in a bill by Senator Spaulding to authorize the payment of $20 each for the scalps of adult wolves and $4 each for cubs. The bill also fixes the price for lynx and wild cats at $1 each.

Senator Legel introduced two bills desired by the organizers of domestic building and loan associations. They would exempt such associations from the filing fees required when the articles of incorporation are filed with the state. Complaint is made that these fees are such as to virtually prevent the formation of any more building and loan associations in Iowa.

SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT OF PIMPLES AND BLACKHEADS

A speedy and economical treatment for disfiguring pimples is the following: Gently smear the face with Cuticura Ointment, but do not rub. Wash off the ointment in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water and bathe freely for some minutes. Repeat morning and evening. At other times use hot water and Cuticura Soap for bathing the face as often as agreeable. Cuticura soap and ointment are equally successful for itching, burning, scaly and crusted humors of the skin and scalp, with loss of hair, from infancy to age, usually affording instant relief, when all else fails. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Boston, Mass., for the latest Cuticura book on the care and treatment of the skin and scalp.

Queen Mary's Trousseau.

Queen Mary is following the example set by her mother, the duchess of Teck, who at the time of her daughter's wedding with the present king declared that for the trousseau "not a yard of cambric or linen, of flannel or tweed, of lace or ribbon, should be bought outside the kingdom," and who kept to her word. Queen Mary is having her coronation robes and gowns for court functions as well as the opening of parliament gown made by a British firm or all British material. She has ordered eight dresses so far, and work on them has commenced.—London correspondent New York Sun.

Soap-box Babies

A Story of Good Cheer by
Maria Thompson Daviess

Soon to Appear in This Paper

You can't resist Miss Selina Lue. Spinster, store-keeper of River Bluff, and general neighborhood manager, she is a very real, very energetic and delightfully funny character.

Miss Selina Lue plays the part of Providence in all the comedies and tragedies of the Bluff. Her specialty is a row of soap boxes in which she keeps a free day nursery. The story is overrun with children, always in comical trouble.

Interwoven with the quaint doings and sayings of Miss Selina Lue, is the love story of Cynthia, from the white pillared house on the hill, and Alan Kent, the artist, a "near soap-boxer" of Miss Selina's. Even the romance is tinctured with humor. Miss Selina Lue will put you in love with the world.

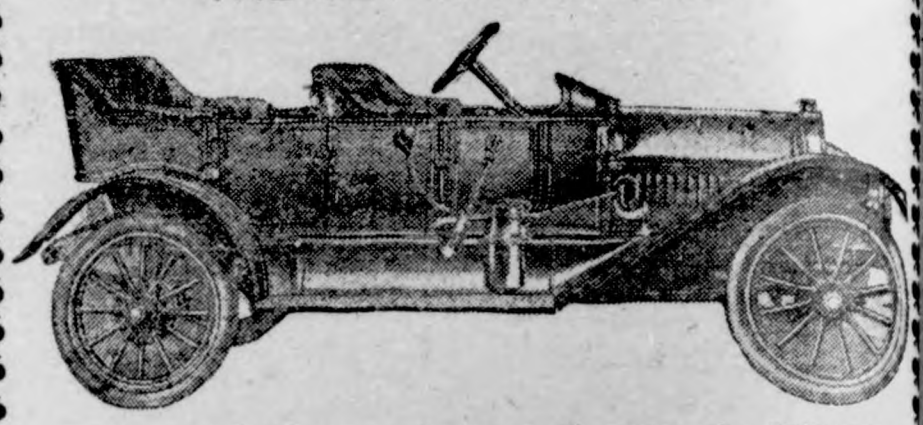
THE IMPERIAL

"THE GET THERE KIND"



It is with pleasure that we advertise the IMPERIAL. When so doing it is hard to say too much in favor of this line of IMPERIAL Automobiles. They have the record up-to-date for running and covering more miles of hard road-going, with the least expense, least adjustments.

The Burd Auto Co., Waterloo, Iowa, says: "The Imperial Automobile has not been equaled yet regardless of price." They run out 37 last season. Up to date there hasn't been one adjustment made. Their contract calls for 100 Imperials for 1911.

The Imperial is built in ten models, from a 35 H. P. two-passenger gentleman's Roadster, to a 60 H. P. seven passenger touring car. Buy the car that bears the name IMPERIAL, and get a dollar's worth of automobile for every dollar you invest.

DRUGGIST

A GOOD PAPER

Given before the Epworth League at Klemme German M. E. church at a Washington program February 19, 1911, by Arthur Wellen eyer:—

Friends—I feel that this is a big subject "What can the Youth of Today Learn from the Life of Washington?"

Some day, in the future, it may be your privilege to listen for an entire evening to Wickersham or McClary on this subject and no doubt such an evening would be full of interest and you would learn much from the life of this great Washington. Were I to attempt in this brief talk to mention everything which could be learned from the life of Washington, by the time I sat down you Would have forgotten all that was said and I fear you would leave this house without actually learning one thing. In which case this talk would be in vain.

Friends, allow me to point out JUST ONE THING which can be learned by the youth of today from the life of Washington.

We have just heard the story of how Geo. Washington, when a boy, chopped down the cherry tree, and how he could not tell a lie. This story has been told in every school of our land each year for 100 years, and will be told for another 100 years to come. Is it then so wonderful that once upon a time a boy told the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth?

Do children naturally tell lies?

Ask the mother, does the little babe begin to lie as soon as it can talk?

Visit the Kindergarten, see the little children march in, with their merry chatter and bright faces. Ask the teacher in charge, do these children lie? Both the mother and the teacher will tell you, little children speak the truth and are far more honest than grown people.

Even our Savior, when on earth, gathered the little ones into His arms and said "Of such is the Kingdom of Heaven—Unless ye become like one of these ye shall not enter in."

From this we must conclude that children are born truthful.

When the child begins to talk, at about two years of age, he also begins to ask questions. The child is so eager to learn more about this big, wide world, that for a few years he asks all kinds of questions, literally hundreds of questions—asks questions from everybody. Some of these questions are carefully and truthfully answered by people who feel an interest in children. Others are answered by people who deliberately lie to the child.

Recently a small boy hailed a man who was dragging a sack of potatoes along the cement walk of our little city saying: "Say, big man, what have you in that sack?" The man thought a moment and said: "This sack is filled with little boys' ears and as soon as I can get out my knife I will get your ears too."

Here is another which happened in Klemme—most of you would know the lady, were I to mention her name. A mother after putting her three-year old daughter to bed, said—"Now go to sleep and don't you dare cry, or I'll put you down cellar and let the snakes eat you up."

These two instances show that grown folks do lie to children. Yes, the grown folks actually by their example teach children to lie.

The strongest influence over any child either for good or bad, is it's mother, and the pages of history tell us that back of every great man was a noble mother. We read of the noble Susanna Wesley, the mother of John and Charles Wesley. We also read of the mother of Frederick the Great and the mother of Garfield and others.

One of these great men has said: "All that I am, all that I have been able to do, I owe to my mother." In Barnes History we read the following: "George Washington was left fatherless at 11 years of age and his education was directed by his mother, a woman of strong character, who kindly but firmly enacted implicit obedience." I dare say Mother Washington did not tell her son George any lies, and what's more she taught him to be obedient. History says she kindly but firmly exacted implicit obedience.

Truth and obedience go hand in hand. Francis Willard at one time said "God pity the child who has an ungodly, worldly, frivolous mother."

Young People of Klemme! I wish to tell you that one thing which I would have you learn from the Life of Washington, and, for the sake of the rising generation, please heed what I say—

BE TRUTHFUL TO CHILDREN,

BE TRUTHFUL TO CHILDREN.

RECORD OF IMPERIAL "30"

The Imperial "30" recently demonstrated to the citizens of Lancaster County, Pa. that the automobile is a much safer, surer and more reliable proposition, for city or country roads, winter or summer, than the horse.

On Dec. 14th. all Lancaster County was covered by a heavy snowstorm, the roads were piled high with drifts, and traffic was vitually suspended in every direction.

Mr John F. Longenecker, of Lititz Pa., got out his Imperial "30" and taking a party of three besides himself, started out to break down snowdrifts and open up the roads. They covered over forty miles country roads, breaking open drifted sections of four pikes. They traveled from Lititz to Lancaster thence to Petersburg, to Manheim and returned to Lititz in less than four hours. Many drifts encountered were over four feet in depth, yielded without difficulty to the powerful steady push of the Imperial.

Although repeated attempts were made to see if the snow could succeed in stalling the engine in the worst spots of the road it was impossible to do so. The many who saw the performance of the car were greatly impressed, and not a few expressed themselves in line for the purchase of a car that could make such a remarkable showing.

This performance is simply one more link in the chain of evidence rapidly accumulating that shows the automobile can do what horses can and accomplish and can go where horses fail. In fact at one point Mr. Longenecker turned aside and passed around a team that was stuck fast in a drift along the Manheim pike near Mechanicsville. He also passed through a lane deeply drifted with snow to the doors of a farm house, and

We were glad to see the sun shine out again Monday, after a week of dark and misty weather.

The Eighth Grade county examination will come Thursday and Friday of this week. The examination for Ell township will be given in the H. S. room.

Herbert Stille was absent from school last week. He was a delegate to St. Charles, Iowa, to attend the S. S. and Epworth League conventions held at that place.

Altho the weather was far from pleasant, a large crowd was present at the school program and box-supper given in the hall Friday evening. The sale brought $61.80 and the school now has $95 deposited to its credit to go towards the piano for the school. We sincerely thank all for your presence and financial support.

The program given by the Literary Society in the H. S. room Friday afternoon was well rendered, the chief factor in the program being the debate. Some of our pupils are showing unforeseen ability along the debating line. The next program will be given a week from Friday afternoon, March 3rd. These programs are for the public and YOU are invited to attend.

EULOGIZE DOLLIVER

Tribute of Affection Eloquently Paid to Memory of Late Senator

IS COMPARED WITH WEBSTER

Cummins, Young, Beveridge, LaFollette and Others Voice the Sorrow Which Overflows Their Hearts for Dead Senator

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—Beginning at 2:30 Saturday afternoon, the senate devoted the rest of the day to eulogies on Senators Dolliver and Clay. A number of Iowans were in the galleries to hear the eulogies on Senator Dolliver. The tributes to him were of unusual earnestness and eloquence, owing, no doubt, to the deep personal affection felt for him by many of the senators. Senators Cummins and Young both spoke eloquently. Others who delivered eulogies for Dolliver were Senators Clapp, Beveridge, LaFollette Cullom, Gore, Chamberlain and Tillman.

Senator LaFollette was one of the warmest personal friends Senator Dolliver had in the senate and he spoke with great feeling and force of the loss to the senate and to the progressive movement caused by his colleague's death.

Senator Cummins in his remarks alluded to the remarkable speech Senator Dolliver last delivered in the senate. He compared it to one of Webster's utterances. He said in closing:

"Of the personal loss which his death inflicted upon me I must not speak at length. During the two years through which we served together in this body the ties of friendship were so strengthened and our association became so close that when he passed away it seemed to me that my own energies were gone. I can say no more. But of the loss sustained by that little band so closely united in the struggles of the two sessions I may with propriety give utterance to the especial sorrow which fills and overflows their hearts. We shall miss him as we would have missed no other man. His elemental strength was not only our refuge, but our weapon. His kindness so pervading and so persistent smoothed every path and removed every obstacle. We shall not soon look upon his like."

Senator Young said: "His life's labors are ended. His neighbors and friends and an admiring people are preparing to build a monument marking his resting place. The shaft will look from an eminence to the valley of the Des Moines river from the position the eye can see busy people and moving trains. Generations will come and go and the name of Dolliver will not be forgotten."

Dolliver Memorial.

Des Moines, Feb. 20.—The legislative memorial services for the late Senator J. P. Dolliver will be held in the house chamber on Thursday, March 16th, according to an announcement made by Senator Larrabee, chairman of the memorial committee of the legislature. Hon. Robert G. Cousins of Tipton, will be the orator. This date is fixed at the request of Mrs. J. P. Dolliver.

Senate Adds Crimp.

Des Moines, Feb. 20.—The senate put a crimp in the house concurrent resolution which called upon the Iowa delegation in congress to use its best efforts to secure the rescinding of the order issued by President Roosevelt in 1902 forbidding government employes from participating in politics or soliciting increases in salaries. The house passed the resolution, but the senate stood by "Teddy" and indefinitely postponed the measure.

The Senatorial Vote.

Des Moines, Feb. 20.—Owing to the number of members absent the total vote for senator was materially reduced, the relative strength of the candidates, however, remaining unchanged. The vote:

WINNIPEG, MANITOBA, THE GREATEST WHEAT MARKET ON THE CONTINENT

REMARKABLE YIELDS OF WHEAT, OATS, BARLEY AND FLAX IN WESTERN CANADA LAST YEAR.

Figures recently issued show that the wheat receipts at Winnipeg last year were 88,269,330 bushels, as compared with the Minneapolis receipts of 81,111,410 bushels, this placing Winnipeg at the head of the wheat receiving markets of the continent. Following up this information it is found that the yields throughout the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, as given the writer by agents of the Canadian Government stationed in different parts of the States, have been splendid. A few of the instances are given:

Near Redvers, Sask., Jens Hortness threshed about 50 acres of wheat, averaging 29 bushels to the acre. Near Elphmstone, Sask., many of the crops of oats would run to nearly 100 bushels to the acre. A Mr. Muir had about 200 acres of this grain and he estimates the yield at about 60 bushels per acre. Wheat went 35 bushels to the acre on the farm of Mr. A. Loucks, near Wymyard, Sask., in the fall of 1910. K. Erickson had 27 and P. Solvason 17. In the Dempster (Man.) district last year, wheat went from 25 to 30 bushels per acre. Fifteen acres on the Mackenzie & Mann farm today went forty-three bushels to the acre. In the Wainwright and Battle-river districts yields of wheat averaged for the district 26 bushels to the acre. M. B. Ness, of the Tofield, Alberta, district, got 98 bushels and 28 lbs. of oats to the acre, while near Montrose, over 94 bushels of oats to the acre was threshed by J. Leonie, notwithstanding the dry weather of June. Further reports from the Edmonton district give Frank McLay of the Horse Falls 100 bushels of oats to the acre. They weighed 45 lbs. to the bushel. A 22-acre field of spring wheat on Johnson Bros.' farm near Agricola yielded 40½ bushels to the acre. Manitoba's record crop for 1910 was grown on McMillan Bros.' farm near Westbourne, who have a total crop of 70,000 bushels, netting $40,000 off 2,200 acres. G. W. Buchanan of Pincher Creek, Alberta, had 25½ bushels of No. 1 spring wheat to the acre. Mr. A. Hatton of Macleod district had wheat which averaged 21 bushels to the acre. B. F. Holden, near Indian Head, Sask., threshed 950 bushels of wheat from 20 acres.

On the Experimental Farm at Indian Head, wheat has gone below 40 bushels, while several, such as the Marquis and the Preston, have gone as high as 54 bushels to the acre. At Elstow, Sask., the quantity of wheat to the acre ran, on the average, from 26 right up to 40 bushels per acre, while oats in some cases yielded a return of 70 to 80 bushels per acre, with flax giving 13 to 14 bushels per acre.

W. C. Carnell had a yield of 42 bushels per acre from six acres of breaking. Neil Callahan, two miles northwest of Strome, had a yield of 42 bushels of wheat per acre. Wm. Lindsay, two miles east of Strome, had 1,104 bushels of Regenerated Abundance oats from ten acres. Joseph Scheelar, 11 miles south of Strome, had 12,000 bushels of wheat and oats from 180 acres. Part of the oats yielded 85 bushels to the acre, and the wheat averaged about 40 bushels. Spohn Bros., four miles southwest of Strome, had a splendid grain yield of excellent quality wheat, grading No. 2. A. S. McCulloch, one mile northwest of Strome, had some wheat that went 40 bushels to the acre. J. Blaser, a few miles southwest of Strome, threshed 353 bushels of wheat from 7 acres. Among the good grain yields at Macklin, Alberta, reported are: D N. Tweedle, 22 bushels to the acre; John Currin, 24 bushels wheat to the acre; Sam Fletcher, 20 bushels to the acre.

At Craven, Sask, Albert Clark threshed from 60 acres of stubble 1,890 bushels; from 20 acres of fallow 900 bushels of red fife wheat that weighed 65 pounds to the bushel. Charles Keith threshed 40 bushels to the acre from 40 acres. Albert Young, of Stony Beach, southwest of Lumsden, threshed 52 bushels per acre from summer fallow, and George Young 5,000 bushels from 130 acres of stubble and fallow, or an average of 38 1-2 bushels to the acre. Arch Morton got 5,600 bushels of red fife from 160 acres. James Russell got 8,700 bushels from stubble and late breaking, an average of 23½ bushels.

At Rosthern Jacob Friesen had 27 bushels per acre from 80 acres on new land and an average over his whole farm of 21½ bushels of wheat. John Schultz threshed 4,400 bushels from 100 acres, or 44 bushels to the acre. John Lepp had 37 bushels per acre from 200 acres. A. B. Dirk had 42 bushels per acre from 25 acres. Robert Roe of Grand Coulee threshed 45 bushels to the acre from 420 a Sedley, Sask., is still another trict that has cause to be pro the yields of both wheat and J. Cleveland got 30 bushels of w per acre on 100 acres and 18 bu of flax on 140 acres. T. Du southeast of Sedley, 40 bushels acre on 30 acres; M. E. Mille bushels per acre on 170 acres of ble, and 35 bushels per acre on acres fallow; W. A. Day had 32 els per acre on 200 acres of st and 35 bushels on 250 acres of fa J. O. Scott had 30 bushels of w per acre on 200 acres, and 18 els of flax per acre on 300 a James Bullick averaged 29 bush wheat; A. Allen 30 bushels; Jos. ions, 40; Alex Ferguson, 38; W Thompson, 35, all on large acre The flax crop of J. Cleveland is r a wonder, as his land has yielded $60 per acre in two years with ploughing. Russell, Man., fa threshed 30 bushels of wheat a to 80 bushels of oats. A. D. house, near Melford, Sask., ha average yield on 13½ acres of land, 63½ bushels of Preston w to the acre. Hector W. Swans farmer near Welwyn, Sask., had bushels of wheat from one q section of land. John McLean, owns two sections, threshed bushels of wheat.

SYNOPSIS.

Capt. Nathaniel Plum of the sloop Typhoon, lands secretly on Beaver island, stronghold of the Mormons. Obadiah Price, Mormon councilor, confronts him, tells him he is expected, and bargains for the ammunition aboard the sloop. He binds Nat by a solemn oath to deliver a package to Franklin Pierce, president of the United States. Near Price's cabin Nat sees the frightened face of a young woman who disappears in the darkness, leaving an odor of lilacs. It develops that Nat's visit to the island is to demand settlement of the king, Strang, for the looting of his sloop by Mormons. Price shows Nat the king's palace, and through a window he sees the lady of the lilacs, who Price says is the king's seventh wife. Calling at the king's office Nat is warned by a young woman that his life is in danger. Strang professes indignation when he hears Nat's grievance and promises to punish the guilty. Nat rescues Neil, who is being publicly whipped, and the king orders the sheriff, Arbor Croche, to pursue and kill the two men. Plum learns that Marion, the girl of the lilacs, is Neil's sister. The two men plan to escape on Nat's sloop and take Marion and Winnsome, daughter of Arbor Croche, and sweetheart of Neil. Nat discovers that the sloop is gone. Marion tells him that his ship has been seized by the Mormons. She begs him to leave the island, telling him that nothing can save her from Strang, whom she is doomed to marry. Plum finds Price raving mad. Recovering, he tells Nat that Strang is doomed, that armed men are descending on the island. Nat learns that Marion has been summoned to the castle by Strang. Nat kills Arbor Croche, and after a desperate fight with the king, leaves him for dead. The avenging host from the mainland descends on St. James. Neil and Nat take a part in the battle and the latter is wounded. Strang, whom Nat thought he had killed, orders him thrown into a dungeon. He finds Neil a fellow prisoner. They overhear the Mormon jury deciding their fate. A bribed jailer brings the prisoners word of Winnsome and Marion. Bound and gagged the two men are taken out to sea in a boat. They are left to suffer the "straight death" on a wild section of the coast. Just as they had given up hope the men are rescued by Marion and Winnsome. Nat faints, and when he recovers Marion is gone.

CHAPTER XII.

Marion Freed From Bondage.

"Gone!" moaned Winnsome again. "She has gone—back—to—Strang!"

Neil was crawling to them like a wounded animal across the sand.

She started toward him but Nathaniel stopped her.

"She is the king's—wife—"

His throat was swollen so that he could hardly speak.

"No. They are to be married tonight. Oh, I thought she was going to stay!" She tore herself away from him to go to Neil, who had fallen upon his face exhausted, a dozen yards away.

In the wet sand, where the incoming waves lapped his hands and feet, Nathaniel sank down, his eyes staring out into the shimmering distance where Marion had gone. His brain was in a daze, and he wondered if he had been stricken by some strange madness—if this all was but some passing phantasm that would soon leave him again to his misery and his despair. But the dash of the cold water against him cleared away his doubt. Marion had come to him. She had saved him from death. And now she was gone.

And she was not the king's wife!

He staggered to his feet again and plunged into the lake until the water reached to his waist, calling her name, entreating her in weak, half choked cries to come back to him. The water soaked through to his hot, numb body, restoring his reason and strength, and he buried his face in it and drank like one who had been near to dying of thirst. Then he returned to Neil. Winnsome was holding his head in her arms.

He dropped upon his knees beside them and saw that life was returning full and strong in Neil's face.

"You will be able to walk in a few minutes," he said. "You and Winnsome must leave here. We are on the mainland and if you follow the shore northward you will come to the settlements. I am going back for Marion."

Neil made an effort to follow him as he rose to his feet.

"Nat—Nat—wait—"

Winnsome held him back, frightened, tightening her arms about him.

"You must go with Winnsome," Neil stretched up to him. "You must take her to the first settlement up the coast. I will come back to you with Marion."

He spoke confidently, as a man who sees his way open clearly before him, and yet as he turned, half running, to the low black shadow of the distant forest he knew that he was beginning a blind fight against fate. If he could find a hunter's cabin, a fisherman's shanty—a boat.

Barely had he disappeared when a voice called to him. It was Winnsome. The girl ran up to him holding something in her hand. It was a pistol. "You may need it!" she exclaimed. "We brought two!"

Nathaniel reached out hesitatingly, but not to take the weapon. Gently, as though his touch was about to fall upon some fragile flower, he drew the girl to him, took her beautiful face between his two strong hands and gazed steadily and silently for a moment into her eyes.

"God bless you, little Winnsome!" he whispered. "I hope that some day you will—forgive me."

The girl understood him.

"If I have anything to forgive—you are forgiven."

The pistol dropped upon the sand, her hands stole to his shoulders.

"I want you to take something to Marion for me," she whispered softly. "This!"

And she kissed him.

Her eyes shone upon him like a benediction.

"You have given me a new life, you have given me—Neil! My prayers are with you."

And kissing him again, she slipped away from under his hands before he could speak.

And Nathaniel, following her with his eyes until he could no longer see her, picked up the pistol and set off again toward the forest, the touch of her lips and the prayers of this girl whose father he had slain filling him with something that was more than strength, more than hope.

He examined the pistol that Winnsome had given him. There were five shots in it and he smiled joyously as he saw that it had been loaded by an experienced hand. It would be easy enough for him to find Strang.

For hours he trod steadily through the sand. The sun rose above him, hot and blistering, and the dunes still stretched out ahead of him, like winnows and hills and mountains of glittering glass. Gradually the desert became narrower. Far ahead he could see where the forest came down to the shore and his heart grew lighter. Half an hour later he entered the margin of trees. Almost immediately he found signs of life. A tree had been felled and cut into wood. A short distance beyond he came suddenly upon a narrow path, beaten hard by the passing of feet, and leading toward the lake. He had meant to rest under the shade of these trees, but now he forgot his fatigue. For a moment he hesitated. Far back in the forest he heard the barking of a dog—but he turned in the opposite direction. If there was a boat the path would take him to it. Through a break in the trees he caught the green sweep of marsh rice and his heart beat excitedly with hope. Where there was rice there were wild fowl, and surely where there were wild fowl there would be a punt or a canoe! In his eagerness he ran, and where the path ended, the flags and rice beaten into the mud and water, he stopped with an exultant cry. At his feet was a canoe. It was wet, as though just drawn out of the water, and a freshly used paddle was lying across the bow. Pausing but to take a quick and cautious glance about him he shoved the frail craft into the lake and with a few quiet strokes buried himself in the rice grass. When he emerged from it he was half a mile from the shore.

For a long time he sat motionless, looking out over the shimmering sea. Far to the south and west he could make out the dim outline of Beaver island, while over the trail he had come, mile upon mile, lay the glistening dunes. Somewhere between the white desert sand and that distant coast of the Mormon kingdom Marion was making her way back to bondage. Nathaniel had given up all hope of overtaking her now. Long before he could intercept her she would have reached the island. When he started again he paddled slowly, and laid out for himself the plan that he was to follow. There must be no mistake this time, no error in judgment, no rashness in his daring. He would lie in hiding until dusk, and then under cover of darkness he would hunt down Strang and kill him. After that he would fly to his canoe and escape. A little later, perhaps that very night if fate played the game well for him, he would return for Marion.

The sun mounted straight and hot over his head; he paddled more slowly, and rested more frequently, as it descended into the west, but it still lacked two hours of sinking behind the island forest when the white water-rim of the shore came within his vision. He had meant to hold off the coast until the approach of evening, but changed his mind and landed, concealing his canoe in a spot which he marked well, for he knew it would soon be useful to him again. Deep shadows were already gathering in the forest and through these Nathaniel made his way slowly in the direction of St. James.

He came out in the strip of dense forest between the clearing and St. James, worming his way cautiously through the underbrush until he could look out into the opening. A single glance and he drew back in astonishment. He looked again, and his face turned suddenly white, and an almost inaudible cry fell from his lips. There was no longer a cabin in the clearing! Where it had been there was gathered a crowd of men and boys. Above their heads he saw a thin film of smoke and he knew what had happened. Marion's home had burned! But what was the crowd doing? It hung close in about the smoldering ruins as if every person in it were striving to reach a common center. Surely a mere fire would not gather and hold a throng like this.

Nathaniel rose to his feet and thrust his head and shoulders from his hiding-place. He heard a loud shout near him and drew back quickly as a boy rushed madly across the opening toward the crowd crying out at the top of his voice. He had come out of the path that led to St. James. No sooner had he reached the clump about the burned cabin than there came a change that added to Nathaniel's bewilderment. He heard loud voices, the excited shouting of men and the shrill cries of boys, and the crowd suddenly began to move, thinning itself out until it was racing in a black stream toward the Mormon city. In his excitement Nathaniel hurried toward the path. From the concealment of a clump of bushes he watched the people as they rushed past him a dozen paces away. Behind all the others there came a figure that drew a sharp cry from him as he leaped from his hiding-place. It was Obadiah Price.

"Obadiah!" he called. "Obadiah Price!"

The old man turned. His face was livid. He was chattering to himself, and he chattered still as he ran up to Nathaniel. He betrayed no surprise at seeing him, and yet there was the insane grip of steel in the two hands that clutched fiercely at Nathaniel's.

"You have come in time, Nat!" he panted joyfully. "You have come in time! Hurry—hurry—hurry—"

He ran back into the clearing, with Nathaniel close at his side, and pointed to the smoking ruins of the cabin among the lilacs.

"They were killed last night!" he cried shrilly. "Somebody murdered them—and burned them with the house! They are dead—dead!"

"Who?" shouted Nathaniel.

Obadiah had stopped and was rubbing and twisting his hands in his old, mad way.

"The old folks. Ho, ho, the old folks, of course! They are dead—dead—dead—"

He fairly shrieked the words. Then, for a moment, he stood tightly clutching his thin hands over his chest in a powerful effort to control himself.

"They are dead!" he repeated.

He spoke more calmly, and yet there was something so terrible in his eyes, something so harshly vibrant of elation in the quivering passion of his voice that Nathaniel felt himself filled with a strange horror. He caught him by the arm, shaking him as he would have shaken a child.

"Where is Marion?" he asked. "Tell me, Obadiah—where is Marion?"

The councilor seemed not to have heard him. A singular change came into his face and his eyes traveled beyond Nathaniel. Following his glance the young man saw that three men had appeared from the scorched shrubbery about the burned house and were hurrying toward them. Without shifting his eyes Obadiah spoke to him quickly.

"Those are king's sheriffs, Nat," he said. "They know me. In a moment they will recognize you. The United States warship Michigan has just arrived in the harbor to arrest Strang. If you can reach the cabin and hold it for an hour you will be saved. Quick—you must run—"

"Where is Marion?"

"At the cabin! She is at—"

Nathaniel waited to hear no more, but sped toward the breach in the forest that marked the beginning of the path to Obadiah's. The shouts of the king's men came to him unheeded. At the edge of the woods he glanced back and saw that they had overtaken the councilor. As he ran he drew his pistol and in his wild joy he flung back a shout of defiance to the men who were pursuing him. Marion was at the cabin—and a government ship had come to put an end to the reign of the Mormon king! He shouted Marion's name as he came in sight of the cabin; he cried it aloud as he bounded up the low steps.

"Marion—Marion—"

In front of the door that led to the tiny chamber in which he had taken Obadiah's gold he saw a figure. For a moment he was blinded by his sudden dash from the light of day into the gloom of the cabin, and he saw only that a figure was standing there as still as death. His pistol dropped to the floor. He stretched out his arms, and his voice sobbed in its entreaty as he whispered the girl's name. In response to that whisper came a low, glad cry, and Marion lay trembling on his breast.

Mistaken Identity

A Westchester county commuter told this story a few days ago to his daily fellow-travelers while the cards were being made ready for the first rubber: "As I entered the station this afternoon a man with a number of parcels said to me in German: 'I want to go to Port Chester.' I was warm and cross and felt like quoting Thackeray, and asking him: 'Why in H—arlem don't you go!' But he seemed to be so thoroughly foreign that I knew the joke would have been wasted and I gave him the information he wanted in a few words. Then I was curious to know what made him think that I could speak German and I asked him in the best German I could command. He smiled, showing a set of teeth of the Oyster Bay brand, and said: 'I could tell by the looks of your wife,' and nodded toward a woman who happened to have come into the station next to me. The funny part of the story is that I know the woman, and, like Kelly, she is Irish through and through."

It often happens that after putting up a big bluff a man falls over it.

OTTUMWA WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ottumwa, Iowa.—"For years I was almost a constant sufferer from female trouble in all its dreadful forms; shooting pains all over my body, sick headache, spinal weakness, dizziness, depression, and everything that was horrid. I tried many doctors in different parts of the United States, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done more for me than all the doctors. I feel it my duty to tell you these facts. My heart is full of gratitude to you for my cure."—Mrs. HARRIET E. WAMPLER, 524 S. Ransom Street, Ottumwa, Iowa.

Consider This Advice.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous medicine, made only from roots and herbs, has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, confidential, and always helpful.

Apropos of certain unfounded charges of drunkenness among the naval cadets at Annapolis, Admiral Dewey, at a dinner in Washington, told a story about a young sailor.

"The sailor, after a long voyage," he said, "went ashore in the tropics, and, it being a hot day, he drank, in certain tropical bars, too much beer.

"As the sailor lurched under his heavy load along a palm-bordered avenue, his captain hailed him indignantly.

"'Look here,' the captain said, 'suppose you were my commander, and you met me in such a condition as you're in now, what would you do to me?'

"'Why, sir,' said the sailor, 'I wouldn't condescend to take no notice of you at all, sir.'"

It is unquestionably true that wealth produces wants, but it is a still more important truth that wants produce wealth.—Malthus.

owner was utterly amazed to see an automobile party coming into his yard at such a time.

This kind of a test is on a par with some of the severest endurance runs that have ever been pulled off in this country and could not be accomplished except by a car that had not only an engine of ample power, but one that has the strength of construction throughout to stand up under the resistance offered.

It is safe to say that few cars selling for $1,350, the price of the Imperial "30," could make as good a showing. The makers of the Imperial seem to have discovered the secret of putting unusual strength into their product, as one of their cars, the "44" recently won second place in the Chicago Reliability Run, held early in November, against a field of touring cars, costing from $1,500 to $3,500. The Imperial went over the entire route, more than $1,000 miles, in five days, with a perfect road score, and received its only penalization, 5 points at the final examination, when three loose nuts were found and a broken fan belt.

The fact that the car had run perfectly for over 24 hours without a fan goes to still further emphasize the unusual reliability of the car, and adds decidedly to its record instead of detracting from it.

The farmers of the western states have shown their appreciation of the unusual worth of the Imperial car by ordering in large quantities. The Imperial has certainly demonstrated that it can make good on any sort of a country road, rough or smooth, summer or winter. The complete story of the performance of the Imperial "44" in the Chicago Reliability Run can be obtained by writing to the Imperial Automobile Co., Jackson, Mich. It is a striking demonstration of the high standard that has been reached in modern automobile construction.—Adv.

Mother Couldn't Find It

Miss Merrill, a teacher in a grade school, had trouble with Johnnie last week. Johnnie had trouble doing his work, and the authorities finally discovered that his sight was defective. Miss Merrill told Johnnie and sent him home with a note to his mother. He gazed at the note in horror, then at the teacher, and burst into tears. The note read: "Johnnie has astigmatism; do not let him return to school until he has been attended to." Miss Merrill understood his grief better when she received a note from his mother. She read: "I don't know what he done but I licked him for it. I can't find it on him, and he says he ain't got it, now you better lick him and see if you can find it."—Ex.

Condensed Into a Few Lines for the Perusal of the Busy Man—Latest Personal Information.

Washington

The Sutherland amendment, which, it is expected, will accomplish the defeat of the resolution for the direct election of senators, was adopted in the United States senate by a vote of 50 to 37. The senate also agreed that the final vote on the resolution as a whole should be taken on February 28.

Without any recommendation whatever the finance committee ordered the McCall bill, which is designed to carry out the Canadian reciprocity agreement, reported to the United States senate. The vote against a recommendation was 7 to 6, and to report it without recommendation the vote was unanimous.

The new United States-Japan treaty of trade and navigation was ratified after a two-hour executive session of the senate, on the understanding that Japan will not impose coolie labor on the United States.

The lie was passed and one blow struck when Representative Mondell of Wyoming and Delegate Wickersham of Alaska became involved in a heated debate on the floor of the national house of representatives over the leasing of coal lands in Alaska. Both men apologized to the house for their vigorous language and ungentlemanly conduct.

Congressman Hull of Iowa in his farewell speech to the house of representatives at Washington, urged the necessity of supplementing the United States with a reserve force of 250,000 men.

The question of the validity of the election of William Lorimer of Illinois may possibly go over to the next session of congress, as his foes in the senate have succeeded in blocking all attempts to fix a date for a vote on the matter.

William Lorimer of Illinois denied in a senate address that he purchased or authorized the purchase of votes in the Illinois legislature to encompass his election. Throughout his speech he strove to make it plain that the Democratic votes which enabled him to get his senatorial seat were given him as the gifts of life-long friendship.

The pulp and paper clause of the Canadian reciprocity agreement was defended before the finance committee of the United States senate by John Norris, chairman of the paper committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' association.

Domestic

There will be no appeal by western roads from the decision of the interstate commerce commission denying them the right to increase freight rates, while the eastern lines, in all probability, will fight "to the last ditch." That is the essence of statements made by several well-informed railroad officials in Chicago.

The remains of the last four of fifteen victims who lost their lives in a fire in the Belmont mine, near Tonopah, Nev., were brought out through a new shaft and were most frightfully mutilated. They were taken from the bottom of the mine which is 1,196 feet deep.

Two hundred members of the Illinois National Guard are standing guard at the plant of the E. Z. Opener Bag company at Taylorville, Ill., to prevent a threatened outbreak between strikers, strike sympathizers and nonunion men employed by the concern. The town is practically under martial law.

Two blocks of buildings, composing the plant of the Farmers' Manufacturing company, were destroyed by fire at Norfolk, Va. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

Announcement is made by J. W. Jonas, president of the district unions, calling off the strike of boilermakers and helpers on the Burlington railroad.

When the Van Buren county circuit court convened at Clinton, Ark., for its eighty-eighth consecutive term A. Callen, ninety years old, made application for admission to the bar. Mr. Callen showed a license signed by the supreme court of Kansas dated 1884 and was admitted without examination.

The text of a new treaty with Japan, intended to replace that of 1894 and drawn with the special design of eliminating the restrictions upon immigration contained in that treaty, was laid before the senate by President Taft.

According to a statement of Albert Rosenthal, a Philadelphia artist, testifying before the national house committee during the hearings on the sundry civil service bill, Justice Harlan of the United States supreme court has never been able to save enough from his salary to pay $1,000 borrowed when he was married 55 years ago.

Shippers won a victory when the interstate commerce commission decided that the eastern and western railroads shall not advance their first-class freight rates and must reduce their second-class tariffs by March 10. The commission shows that the carriers are eminently prosperous and do not need the proposed advance for maintaining their credit.

Count Apponyi, the Hungarian peace apostle, was the target of a furious demonstration by 300 Slavs at Chicago, following his address. The police were forced to use their clubs to rescue the count from the crowd.

Chinese merchants in New York sent a memorial to Peking officials asking that a bold stand be made against Russia, despite the fact of peaceful overtures being framed.

Forty-three mysterious pieces of baggage, once the property of Mrs. Howard Gould, but at present claimed by the Hotel St. Regis for an alleged debt, are to be sold at auction in New York.

Redrawn and amended charges of incompetency and official misconduct have been preferred by Governor Crothers of Maryland, against the Baltimore board of commissioners of police.

State's Attorney Lewman at Danville, Ill., denies a story to the effect that 22 indictments against vote sellers had been stolen. He said the grand jury made a mistake in announcing the number.

A loss estimated at $500,000 was sustained at Donaldsonville, La., when flames originating in the kitchen of the Nicholls hotel almost destroyed the business district of the city. Three lives were lost.

Fifteen passengers were injured in the wreck of Santa Fe train No. 2, the east-bound Los Angeles-Chicago tourist flyer. The accident occurred at Garcia, 45 miles west of Albuquerque, N. M.

DOCTORS DISCUSS PROBLEMS

Prominent Physicians, Educators and Public Officials Meet in Big Conference at Chicago.

Chicago, March 1. — Scores of the country's most prominent physicians, educators and public officials met in the Congress hotel this morning at a conference called by the American Medical association to discuss vital problems of the medical profession. The conference will last two days, and on Friday the association will hold its business session.

Dr. Arthur Dean Bevan, chairman, opened the first session this morning with introductory remarks and then introduced Dr. N. P. Colwell, who talked on "Recent Progress and Needs of Medical Education." A detailed discussion of this subject followed. In the afternoon the matter of state licenses was discussed by members of the medical boards of Missouri, New Jersey and Indiana. Tonight's addresses will be delivered by President Vincent of the University of Minnesota, President James of the University of Illinois and President McLean of the University of Iowa. Among the speakers on tomorrow's program are Governor Eberhart of Minnesota, Judge Jesse Baldwin, Prof. Charles R. Henderson of the University of Chicago and Frederick R. Greene.

IOWANS IN ANNUAL PICNIC

Thirty-five Thousand Former Hawkeyes in Big Reunion at Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 28.—Thirty-five thousand former Iowans met at Eastland park for the annual picnic and merry-making, according to the estimates of Secretary Parsons of the Iowa Society of Southern California. The trains from outside points in southern California brought in thousands and the trolley lines to the park were overwhelmed.

Many hundreds came in automobiles. It was a perfect day and the picnic was the biggest ever held in this section.

Dr. Edward Henderson, president of the association, presided and talks were made by J. D. Donnell, W. L. Eaton and others.

Miss Bertha Hollister, a Pomona school girl, gave readings, and everyone joined in singing a state song to the tune of "My Maryland," copies of the words being distributed by thousands to those present. Early in the day Mayor Alexander, who left Iowa some years ago to live in Los Angeles, made his appearance, and he was given a rousing welcome.

Big Convention of Hardware Men.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 28. — Retail hardware dealers, manufacturers, jobbers and traveling men to the number of about 2,500 assembled today in Memorial hall for the first session of the convention of the Ohio Hardware association. President Bernard C. Bates of Alliance was in the chair and expressed his appreciation of the large attendance. The sessions will continue through Thursday and a fine exhibit has been installed in the exposition buildings. Various social events are on the program.

Hardware Men Visit Gary.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—The retail hardware dealers of Illinois, whose annual convention begins here tomorrow were the guests today of the American Steel and Wire company and were taken to see the famous steel plants at Gary, Ill. This evening an exhibit, national in its scope and embracing several novel features, will be opened in the Coliseum. Grant W. Porter of Chicago will preside over the sessions of the association and among the visitors will be President McNamara and Secretary Cory of the national association.

Election of Senators.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—In less than an hour yesterday the senate voted the Sutherland amendment into the resolution providing for the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people; fixed next Tuesday as the time for voting on the resolution itself; made the case involving Senator Lorimer's seat the unfinished business and received the Canadian reciprocity bill from the committee on finance.

Hardy Appointed Deputy.

Ottumwa, Ia., Feb. 25.—Frank Hardy of Blakesburg has been appointed by United States Marshal Frank B. Clark to the deputyship of the southern district of Iowa. Hardy succeeds A. D. Dunlap of Keokuk, who resigned.

Bookkeeper Lost.

Mason City, Feb. 25.—J. S. Dunn, 58, bookkeeper for the Brick and Tile company has not been seen since February 6 and his friends think he must have met with foul play.

WESTERN CANADA COUNTING ITS GOLD

THE GRAIN CROP OF 1910 WAS A GOOD PAYING ONE.

Crop conditions throughout the west of Canada were not ideal, but notwithstanding there were excellent crops. Reports come from different parts to the agents of the Canadian government, whose literature tells a good part of the story, that the crops in most places were splendid.

At Castor, Alta., F. Galloway's oat crop threshed 35 bushels to the acre, machine measure, and 44 bushels by weight. Alex Robertson of Delisle, Alta., had 20 bushels to the acre on 875 acres. W. & H. Clark, 17 bushels to the acre on 77 acres. Sheldon Ramsey, 20 bushels on 160 acres. J. Lane threshed 3,500 bushels off 200 acres; J. Hamilton, 5,200 bushels off 264 acres. Mrs. Headley had an average of 25 bushels per acre on 160 acres. Chambers Bros. got 13,270 bushels off 650 acres.

Fertile Valley district, G. Rollo, had an average of 25 bushels to the acre on a total crop of 10,000 bushels. E. Brown of Pincher Creek had a yield of 33 bushels on his winter wheat; W. Walker, Miss Walker and John Goberts all had an average yield of 25 bushels; Mr. Fitzpatrick, 23, and Mr. Freebairn, 20. Charles Nelson of Bon Accord, Alberta, had threshed his crop of 5,000 bushels of grain, wheat, oats and barley, from 210 acres of old ground

Wm. Logan of Bon Accord is reported to have threshed 400 bushels of wheat from 9 acres of new breaking. His oats it is said yielding over 100 bushels to the acre. Robert Martin of Belbeck, Sask., from 100 acres got 3,740 bushels of wheat. Geo. A. Campbell of Caron, Sask., from 130 acres summer fallow got 40 bushels per acre, and from 50 acres stubble got 24 bushels per acre. One of the farmers of Colonsay threshed out 36 bushels of wheat per acre from 150 acres summer fallow, and another 33 bushels per acre. James Glen of Drinkwater, Sask., had 36⅛ bushels per acre; 40 acres summer fallow, 31 bushels per acre; 40 acres stubble, 27 bushels per acre; total, 6,680 bushels off 200 acres. Abe Winters of Fleming has 39 bushels of wheat per acre. At Govan, Benjamin Armstrong had 33 bushels to the acre. John Glumlin, 34 bushels. Charles Latta, 35 bushels. J. K. Taylor, 35 bushels. W. Small, 2,060 bushels on 90 acres. J. F. Moore, 6,500 bushels on 215 acres. J. MacLean, 1,500 bushels on 63 acres. W. Hopwood, 1,750 bushels on 60 acres. W. Gray, 950 bushels on 30 acres. W. Curtin, 850 bushels on 30 acres. John Meyers, Jr., of Grand Coulee, reports 34¾ bushels to the acre. P. P. Epp of Langham, Sask., has 35 1-3 bushels per acre. J. J. Thiessen, 31 bushels per acre. Chris Dear, 25 bushels per acre from 90 acres. Wm. Thiessen, 18½ bushels from 100 acres. P. P. Schultz, 18 bushels per acre from 100 acres. Robt. H. Wiggins of Manor, Sask., had 39 bushels wheat and 75 bushels of oats per acre. Fred Cobb, 30 bushels of wheat and 75 bushels of oats per acre. Jack Robinson, 39 bushels of wheat per acre. Wm. Kindel of Milestone, Sask., had 38 bushels of wheat per acre. R. J. Moore, 40 bushels of wheat per acre. Martin Roddy, 38 bushels of wheat per acre. J. D. Sifton of Moose Jaw had 37 bushels wheat per acre; oats, 50 bushels per acre; flax, 11 bushels to the acre. John L. Smith of New Warren had 35 bushels of wheat per acre. At Regina H. W. Laird had 35 bushels to the acre; W. H. Duncan, wheat, 22 bushels to the acre, flax, 16 bushels; G. M. Bell, wheat, 35 bushels to the acre, oats, 70 bushels; O. E. Rothwell, 25 bushels to the acre; J. McKinnis, wheat, 35 bushels summer fallow; 20 bushels stubble; oats, 80 bushels; J. S. Mooney, 31 bushels of wheat; 80 bushels oats on stubble. At Tessies, Wm. Nesbitt had 44 bushels wheat to the acre. Sep. Latrace, 34 bushels. Thos. Miller, 31 bushels. These were all on summer fallow. Major Bros.' stubble went 14. At Tuxford, Sask., C. B. Dunning had 37 bushels. James Bain, 41 bushels summer fallow. At Yellow Grass, Wm. Robson, off one half section, had 45 bushels wheat to the acre, and 40 bushels off another averaged 37 bushels to the acre. Geo. Steer, off a twenty-acre field, threshed half. M. A. Wilkinson, off 160 acres, 52 bushels wheat to the acre. His whole crop averaged over 40. Jas. A. R. Cameron's half section averaged over 36 bushels to the acre. D. McNevan, who has two farms, averaged about 40 bushels. W. A. Cooper got 47 bushels to the acre off 71 acres; his whole crop went about 40. John Murray, 35 per acre off 160 acres. Hockley Bros., 35 per acre off a half section. W. Ransom, 35 per acre of the Cathcert farm. N. Dunne, 39 to the acre. S. C. Hart, 38 per acre. T. Murray, Jr., 36 to the acre. A. E. McEwan, 38 to the acre. Mayor Taylor, 32 to the acre.

A TRIAL WILL CONVINCE ANY ONE---THE GREAT KIDNEY REMEDY NEVER DISAPPOINTS

A few years ago I was troubled with a complication of kidney and stomach ailments, and although I tried two or three different doctors, I was unable to obtain a cure. Having heard a great deal about Swamp-Root, I decided to give it a trial and purchased a one dollar bottle of Mr. Alexander, the druggist. From the beginning I could notice a change for the better and after taking eight bottles of your medicine, I felt entirely cured and have not had any trouble since.

Had I begun using Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root sooner I would have been a few hundred dollars to the good and saved myself a lot of suffering.

You may use my testimonial any time you wish.

Yours very truly,
CHARLES E. HARRIS,

I certify that Charles E. Harris signed the above testimonial in my presence, being first duly sworn to the truth thereof this the 12th day of July, 1909.

THAT AWFUL BACKACHE

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and am enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have the backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it."—Mrs. OLLIE WOODALL, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Nothing we know of will do this so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

The COURAGE of CAPTAIN PLUM

By JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD
ILLUSTRATIONS BY MAGNUS G. KETTNER

COPYRIGHT 1908 BY BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

Capt. Nathaniel Plum of the sloop Typhoon, lands secretly on Beaver island, stronghold of the Mormons. Obadiah Price, Mormon councilor, confronts him, tells him he is expected, and bargains for the ammunition aboard the sloop. He binds Nat by a solemn oath to deliver a package to Franklin Pierce, president of the United States. Near Price's cabin Nat sees the frightened face of a young woman who disappears in the darkness, leaving an odor of lilacs. It develops that Nat's visit to the island is to demand settlement of the king, Strang, for the looting of his sloop by Mormons. Price shows Nat the king's palace, and through a window he sees the lady of the lilacs, who Price says is the king's seventh wife. Calling at the king's office Nat is warned by a young woman that his life is in danger. Strang professes indignation when he hears Nat's grievance and promises to punish the guilty. Nat rescues Neil, who is being publicly whipped, and the king orders the sheriff, Arbor Croche, to pursue and kill the two men. Plum learns that Marion, the girl of the lilacs, is Neil's sister. The two men plan to escape on Nat's sloop and take Marion and Winnsome, daughter of Arbor Croche, and sweetheart of Neil. Nat discovers that the sloop is gone. Marion tells him that his ship has been seized by the Mormons. She begs him to leave the island, telling him that nothing can save her from Strang, whom she is doomed to marry. Plum finds Price raving mad. Recovering, he tells Nat that Strang is doomed, that armed men are descending on the island. Nat learns that Marion has been summoned to the castle by Strang. Nat kills Arbor Croche, and after a desperate fight with the king, leaves him for dead. The avenging host from the mainland descends on St. James. Neil and Nat take a part in the battle and the latter is wounded. Strang, whom Nat thought he had killed, orders him thrown into a dungeon. He finds Neil a fellow prisoner. They overhear the Mormon jury deciding their fate. A bribed jailer brings the prisoners word of Winnsome and Marion. Bound and gagged the two men are taken out to sea in a boat. They are left to suffer the "straight death" on a wild section of the coast. Just as they had given up hope the men are rescued by Marion and Winnsome. Nat faints, and when he recovers Marion is gone. He return to Beaver island to find Marion.

(CHAPTER XII.—Continued.)

"I have come back for you!" he breathed.

She shuddered against his breast, and he raised her face between his two hands and kissed her until she drew away from him, crying softly.

"You must wait—you must wait!"

He saw now in her face an agony that appalled him. He would have gone to her again, but there came loud voices from the forest, and recovering his pistol he sprang to the door. Half a hundred paces away were Obadiah and the king's sheriffs. They had stopped and the councilor was expostulating excitedly with the men, evidently trying to keep them from the cabin. Suddenly one of the three broke past him and ran swiftly toward the open door, and with a shriek of warning to Nathaniel the old councilor drew a pistol and fired point blank in the sheriff's back. In another instant the two men behind had fired and Obadiah fell forward upon his face.

With a yell of rage Nathaniel leaped from the door. He heard Marion cry out his name, but his fighting blood was stirred and he did not stop. Obadiah had given up his life for him, for Marion, and he was mad with a desire to wreak vengeance upon the murderers. The first man lay where he had fallen, with Obadiah's bullet through his back. The other two fired again as Nathaniel rushed down upon them. He heard the zip of one of the balls, which came so close that it stung his cheek.

"Take that!" he cried.

He fired, still running—once, twice three times and one of the two men crumpled down as though a powerful blow had broken his legs under him.

The other two turned into the path and ran. Nathaniel caught a glimpse of a frightened, boyish face, and something of mercy prompted him to hold the shot he was about to send through his lungs.

"Stop!" he shouted. "Stop!"

He aimed at the fugitive's legs and fired.

"Stop!"

The boyish sheriff was lengthening the distance between them and Nathaniel halted to make sure of his last ball. He was about to shoot when there came a sharp command from down the path and a file of men burst into view, running at double-quick. He saw the flash of a saber, the gleam of brass buttons, the blue glare of the setting sun on leveled carbines, and he stopped, shoulder to shoulder with the man he had been pursuing. For a moment he stared as the man with the naked saber approached. Then he sprang toward him with a joyful cry of recognition.

"Sherly—Lieutenant Sherly—don't you know me?"

The lieutenant had dropped the point of his saber. He advanced a step, his face filled with astonishment.

"Plum!" he cried incredulously. "Is it you?"

For the moment Nathaniel could only wring the other's hand. He tried to speak but his breath choked him.

"I told you in Chicago that I was going to blow up this damned island—if you wouldn't do it for me—" he gasped at last. "I've had—a hell of a time—"

"You look it!" laughed the lieutenant. "We got our orders the second day after you left to 'Arrest Strang, and break up the Mormon kingdom!' We've got Strang aboard the Michigan. But he's dead."

"Dead!"

"He was shot in the back by one of his own men as we were bringing him up the gang-way. The fellow who killed him has given himself up, and says that he did it because Strang had him publicly whipped day before yesterday. I'm up here hunting for a man named Obadiah Price. Do you know—"

"Back there—dead or very badly wounded! We've just had a fight with the king's men—"

The lieutenant broke in with a sharp command to his men.

"Quick, lead us to him, Captain Plum! If he's not dead—"

He started off at a half run beside Nathaniel.

"Lord, it's a pretty mess if he is!" he added breathlessly. Without pausing he called back over his shoulder: "Regan, fall out and return to the ship. Tell the captain that Obadiah Price is badly wounded and that we want the surgeon on the run."

A turn in the path brought them to the opening where the fight had occurred. Marion was on her knees beside the old councilor.

"I have come back for you!"

Nathaniel hurried ahead of the lieutenant and his men. The girl glanced up at him and his heart filled with dread at the terror in her eyes.

"Is he dead?"

"No—but—" Her voice trembled with tears.

Nathaniel did not let her finish. Gently he raised her to her feet as the lieutenant came up.

"You must go to the cabin, sweetheart," he whispered.

Even in this moment of excitement and death his great love drove all else from his eyes, and the blood surged into Marion's pale cheeks as she tremblingly gave her hand. He led her to the door and held her for a moment in his arms.

"Strang is dead," he said softly. In a few words he told her what had happened and turned back to the door, leaving her speechless.

"If he is dying—you will tell me—" she called after him.

"Yes, yes, I will tell you."

He ran back into the opening.

The lieutenant had doubled his coat under Obadiah's head and his face was pale as he looked up at Nathaniel. The latter saw in his eyes what his lips kept silent. The officer held something in his hand. It was the mysterious package which Captain Plum had taken his oath to deliver to the president of the United States.

"I don't dare move until the surgeon comes," said the lieutenant. "He wants to speak to you. I believe, if he has anything to say you had better hear it now."

Obadiah's eyes opened as Nathaniel knelt beside him and from between his thin lips there came faintly the old, gurgling chuckle.

"Nat!" he breathed. His thin hand sought his companion's and clung to it tightly. "We have won. The vengeance of God—has come!"

In these last moments all madness had left the eyes of Obadiah Price.

"I want to tell you—" he whispered, and Nathaniel bent low. "I have given him the package. It is evidence I have gathered—all these years—to destroy the Mormon kingdom."

For a few moments he seemed struggling to command all his strength.

"A good many years ago," he said, as if speaking to himself, "I loved a girl—like Marion, and she loved me—as Marion loves you. Her people were Mormons, and they went to Kirtland—and I followed them. We planned to escape and go east, for my Jean was good and beautiful, and hated the Mormons as I hated them. But they caught us and — thought — they — killed—"

The old man's lips twitched and a convulsive shudder shook his body.

"When everything came back to me I was older—much older," he went on. "My hair was white. I was like an old man. My people had found me and they told me that I had been mad for three years, Nat—mad—mad—mad! and that a great surgeon had operated on my head, where they struck me—and brought me back to reason. Nat—Nat—" He strained to raise himself, gasping excitedly: "God, I was like you then, Nat! I went back to fight for my Jean. She was gone. Nobody knew me, for I was an old man. I hunted from settlement to settlement. In my madness I became a Mormon, for vengeance—in hope of finding her. I was rich, and I became powerful. I was made an elder because of my gold. Then I found—"

A moan trembled on the old man's lips.

"—they had forced her to marry—the son of a Mormon—"

He stopped, and for a moment his eyes seemed filling with the glazed shadows of death. He roused himself almost fiercely.

"But he loved my Jean, Nat—he loved her as I loved her—and he was a good man!" he whispered shrilly. "Quick—quick—I must tell you—they had tried to escape from Missouri and the Danites killed him—and Joseph Smith wanted Jean and at the last moment she killed herself to save her honor—as—Marion—was going—to—do, and she left two children—"

He coughed and blood flecked his lips.

"She left—Marion and Neil!"

He sank back, ashen white and still, and with a cry Nathaniel turned to the lieutenant. The officer ran forward with a flask in his hand.

"Give him this!"

The touch of liquor to Obadiah's lips revived him. He whispered weakly:

"The children, Nat—I tried to find them—and years after—I did—in Nauvoo. The man and woman who had killed the father in their own house had taken them and were raising them as their own. I went mad! Vengeance—vengeance—I lived for it, year after year. I wanted the children—but if I took them all would be lost. I followed them, watched them, loved them—and they loved me. I would wait—wait—until my vengeance would fall like the hand of God, and then I would free them, and tell them how beautiful their mother was. When Joseph Smith was killed and the split came the old folks followed Strang—and I—I, too—"

He rested a moment, breathing heavily.

"I brought my Jean with me and buried her up there on the hill—the middle grave, Nat, the middle grave—Marion's mother."

Nathaniel pressed the liquor to the old man's lips again.

"My vengeance was at hand—I was almost ready—when Strang learned a part of the secret," he continued with an effort. "He found the old people were murderers. When Marion would not become his wife he told her what they had done. He showed her the evidence! He threatened them with death unless Marion became his wife. His sheriffs watched them night and day. He named the hour of their doom—unless Marion yielded to him. And to save them, her supposed parents—to keep the terrible knowledge of their crime from Neil—Marion—was—going—to— sacrifice —herself—when—"

Again he stopped. His breath was coming more faintly.

"I understand," whispered Nathaniel. "I understand—"

Obadiah's dimming eyes gazed at him steadily.

"I thought my vengeance would come—in time—to save her, Nat. But it failed. I knew of one other way and when all seemed lost—I took it. I killed the old people—the murderers of her father—of my Jean! I knew that would destroy Strang's power—"

In a sudden spasm of strength he lifted his head. His voice came in a hoarse, excited whisper.

"You won't tell Marion—you won't tell Marion that I killed them—"

"No—never."

Obadiah fell back with a relieved sigh. After a moment he added.

"In a chest in the cabin there is a letter for Marion. It tells her about her mother—and the gold there—is for her—and Neil—"

His eyes closed. A shudder passed through his form.

"Marion—" he breathed. "Marion!"

Nathaniel rose to his feet and ran to the cabin door.

"Marion!" he called.

Blinding tears shut out the vision of the girl from his eyes. He pointed, looking from her, and she, knowing what he meant, sped past him to the old councilor.

In the great low room in which Obadiah Price had spent so many years planning his vengeance Captain Plum waited.

After a time, the girl came back.

There was great pain in her voice as she stretched out her arms to him blindly, sobbing his name.

"Gone—gone—they're all gone now—but Neil!"

Nathaniel held out his arms.

"Only Neil,"—he cried, "only Neil—Marion—?"

"And you—you—you—"

Her arms were around his neck, he held her throbbing against his breast.

"And you—"

She raised her face, glorious in its love.

"If you want me—still."

And he whispered:

"For ever and for ever!"

THE END.

Wedding Music Wanted.

Has it ever occurred to young composers that the shortest road to fame and fortune lies in writing good wedding music? In no other department of the art does the supply fall so lamentably short of the demand. There are hundreds of thousands of weddings in America and Europe every year, and at nearly all of them appropriate music is wanted, yet there are barely half a dozen that have been universally accepted as suitable. In nine cases out of ten the Mendelssohn wedding march is played or the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin," or both. Here are two great models of what is wanted; music which is simple, tuneful, sentimental, stirring, exultant. The exultant strain is missing in the "Lohengrin" bridal chorus, but it is all the more conspicuous in the introduction to the third act, which expresses the wedding festivities within, and which should be played more frequently at marriages.—New York Evening Post.

Irish Wit.

Swift scoffed at Irish "wit" in some biting lines, nevertheless Irish wit is one of the most precious things. One soon has a surfeit of the professional funny man in England, the pawky Scot, the American humorist. The Irish peasant never disappoints, and with him it is all so naive and natural.—London Saturday Review.

MISS SELINA LUE

and the Soap-box Babies

A Story of Good Cheer by
Maria Thompson Daviess

Soon to Appear in This Paper

You can't resist Miss Selina Lue. Spinster, store-keeper of River Bluff, and general neighborhood manager, she is a very real, very energetic and delightfully funny character.

Miss Selina Lue plays the part of Providence in all the comedies and tragedies of the Bluff. Her specialty is a row of soap boxes in which she keeps a free day nursery. The story is overrun with children, always in comical trouble.

Interwoven with the quaint doings and sayings of Miss Selina Lue, is the love story of Cynthia, from the white pillared house on the hill, and Alan Kent, the artist, a "near soap-boxer" of Miss Selina's. Even the romance is tinctured with humor. Miss Selina Lue will put you in love with the world.

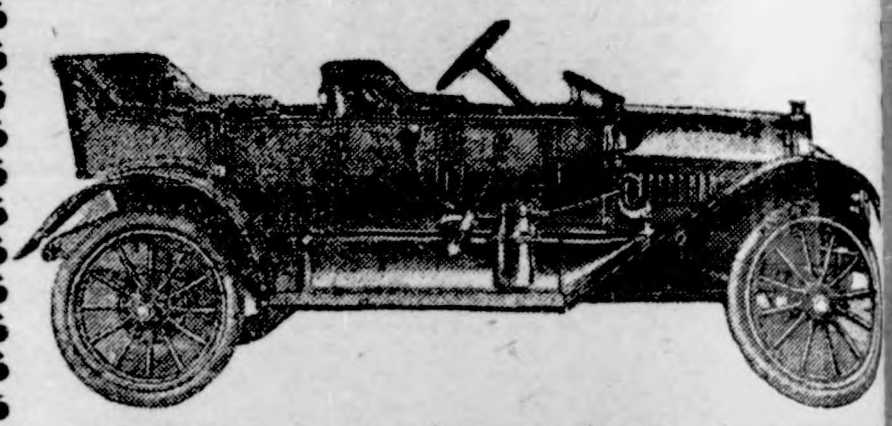
THE IMPERIAL

"THE GET THERE KIND"



It is with pleasure that we advertise the IMPERIAL. When so doing it is hard to say too much in favor of this line of IMPERIAL Automobiles. They have the record up-to-date for running and covering more miles of hard road-going, with the least expense, least adjustments.

The Burd Auto Co., Waterloo, Iowa, says: "The Imperial Automobile has not been equaled yet regardless of price." They run out 37 last season. Up to date there hasn't been one adjustment made. Their contract calls for 100 Imperials for 1911.

The Imperial is built in ten models, from a 35 H. P. two-passenger gentleman's Roadster, to a 60 H. P. seven passenger touring car. Buy the car that bears the name IMPERIAL, and get a dollar's worth of automobile for every dollar you invest.

GUMPTION ON THE FARM

Your oats will not be so apt to rust if you get them in early.

The more a man goes around, the less he is apt to develop into a crank.

Don't be in too big a hurry. It's unwise to work soil when it is soggy and very wet. Wait until it dries into crumbly, workable condition.

Now mind this: Make two sowings of clover seed, one now and one early in April Use half red, other half alsike. Do not miss the alsike.

The more corn the more stock, the more stock the richer the land; the richer the land the more corn—and there you have the secret of a rotation that is sure to bring success.

Entirely too many people in this world are making themselves cross-eyed looking for the street of easy money. This is as vain and foolish as hunting for the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

Just as soon as the frost is out of the ground it will do to sow onion seed and peas. Beets, early potatoes, spinach, radishes and lettuce may be planted early, too. Tender vegetables should wait until April or May.

It is a mistake to plant the same types of vegetables in the same spot year after year; keep them moving to prevent insects and diseases from getting a foothold, and it is a mistake to forget that a garden needs plant food in order to nourish vegetables properly. Stable manure and a sprinkle of bonemeal will do nicely. — From March Farm Journal.

Mrs. Amalia Kruse died at the hospital at Iowa City last Thursday, February 23, where she was taken a week or two before for treatment. She had been sick for two or three months before she was taken to the hospital.

Amalia Kraak was born May 15th, 1854, at Lunden, Holstein, Germany. She came to America when she was about eighteen years of age and first settled at Toledo, Ohio, where on December 20th, 1884. she was married to John Kruse. To this union six children were born, three sons surviving the mother. She moved to Klemme from Toledo some three years ago. Deceased was a good-hearted, hard-working woman, and has supported herself since living in Klemme by performing whatever labor she was able to procure. All who knew her held her in high esteem and all sympathize with those who mourn her loss.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon from the Klemme German Reformed church, Rev. Achtermann officiating. Burial was made in Klemme cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Velau wish to thank those who were so kind in offering sympathy and assistance during the sickness and at the time since the death of Mrs. Kruse.

$3.50 RECIPE CURES WEAK KIDNEYS, FREE

RELIEVES URINARY AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, BACKACHE, STRAINING, SWELLING, ETC.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a QUICK RECOVERY, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K-255 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

Denominational Puzzle.

The wife of a prominent Unitarian clergyman is still wondering what her cook meant. She was a new cook, and there was every reason to believe she was a good cook. At any rate, she had unquestionably served in good families, and she brought the best of references. Nevertheless, her new mistress did not hesitate to give her a few instructions.

"One thing I want you to remember, Nellie," said she, "is the way we like our oatmeal. Don't leave it watery. But we don't like it hard and dry, either."

"Trust me, ma'am," responded the cook, confidently. "I'll get it right, never fear. I've worked in Unitarian families before."

Ellen Terry's Joke.

When Ellen Terry was presented with a Founders' gold medal at the New theater, New York, recently—an honor conferred in recognition of her great services to dramatic art—she was called upon to make a speech of acceptance. It so happened that the actress was exceedingly hoarse and she was therefore forced to cut her remarks short. So she told this story: "A friend of mine once bought a parrot and gave much money for it with the understanding that it could speak fluently, but when he reached home with it he found to his dismay that the bird was dumb. So he took it back. 'This parrot cannot say a word,' he said indignantly to the bird fancier. 'It can't talk at all.' 'Talk!' the dealer exclaimed. 'Come to think of it, I know it can't, but it's a devil to think.'"

CHILDREN AFFECTED
By Mother's Food and Drink.

Many babies have been launched into life with constitutions weakened by disease taken in with their mothers' milk. Mothers cannot be too careful as to the food they use while nursing their babes.

The experience of a Kansas City mother is a case in point:

"I was a great coffee drinker from a child, and thought I could not do without it. But I found at last it was doing me harm. For years I had been troubled with dizziness, spots before my eyes and pain in my heart, to which was added, two years later, a chronic sour stomach.

"The baby was born 7 months ago, and almost from the beginning, it, too, suffered from sour stomach. She was taking it from me!

"In my distress I consulted a friend of more experience and she told me to quit coffee, that coffee did not make good milk. I have since ascertained that it really dries up the milk.

"So, I quit coffee and tried tea and at last cocoa. But they did not agree with me. Then I turned to Postum with the happiest results. It proved to be the very thing I needed. It not only agreed perfectly with baby and myself, but it increased the flow of my milk.

"My husband then quit coffee and used Postum and quickly got well of the dyspepsia with which he had been troubled. I no longer suffer from the dizziness, blind spells, pain in my heart or sour stomach.

"Now we all drink Postum from my husband to my seven months' old baby. It has proved to be the best hot drink we have ever used. We would not give up Postum for the best coffee we ever drank." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

VETOS OREGON PLAN

GOVERNOR CARROLL RETURNS BILL TO JOINT ASSEMBLY WITH VETO MESSAGE.

LEGISLATURE TO ACT MARCH 8

Governor Declares Oregon Plan Measure Practically Undermines the Constitution, and Is a Danger and a Menace to the Nation.

Des Moines.—On Tuesday, Governor B. F. Carroll vetoed the Oregon plan bill. Representative Klay's bill providing for the establishment in Iowa of the Oregon plan of electing United States senators, which was vetoed by the governor is expected to pass the legislature over the governor's veto, according to the opinion of prominent members of the general assembly.

In vetoing the Oregon plan bill, Governor Carroll declares in his message to the house that the measure is unconstitutional, a violation of both the constitution of the state and that of the nation. The bill is morally wrong, he says, and seeks to circumvent the constitution. He states further that the Oregon plan bill practically undermines the constitution and is a danger and a menace to the nation.

In the state of Iowa, says Governor Carroll, it is required that amendments to the constitution of the state be approved by the majority of the general assembly and then submitted to the people. The national constitution cannot be amended unless two-thirds of the legislatures of all of the states call for the amendment or by a vote of two-thirds of both houses of the national congress. The entire measure, according to the message, constitutes an effort to accomplish something indirectly which cannot be done directly and is therefore an attempt to evade the constitution.

C. C. Nye, secretary to the governor, read the message to the house.

Following the veto message the matter came up in the house, and its consideration was made a special order for March 8.

Exempts Monies and Credits.

Monies and credits are to be exempt from taxation in Iowa by the terms of a bill introduced in the senate by Van Law of Marshall. Included in the list of exemptions are corporation shares and stocks, cash, circulating notes of national banking associations, United States legal tender notes, accounts and notes secured by mortgages. Another bill by the same author lowers the legal contract rate of interest from 8 to 6 per cent. This bill, if it becomes a law, will make any rate of interest above 6 per cent usuary.

S. F. No. 223—by Quigley—Amending the fish and game laws and setting forth the season in which fish of certain kind and weight may be captured.

S. F. No. 225—by Ames of Tama—To give control of the college for the blind at Vinton to the state board of education and to take control of said school from the board of control of state institutions.

AN INCOME TAX IS FAVORED

Iowa Assembly Goes on Record in Favor of Amendment—Three Senators Dissented.

Des Moines, Iowa.—The Iowa legislature has gone on record as favoring the income tax amendment to the constituttion of the United States, which has passed congress and awaits the approval of three-fourths of the legislatures of the states of the union before it becomes effective.

Senator Parshall, who fathered a joint resolution in the senate by which Iowa ratifies the amendment, put his measure through the senate by a vote of 45 to 3.

A similar resolution by Dabney of Davis went through the house some time ago.

The three votes recorded against the measure were cast by Savage, Stuckslager and Spaulding. All other senators voted for the resolution except Smith of Shelby and Legel, who were not voting.

Rail Board Fathers Bills.

The state railway commission is the beneficiary in four bills introduced in the upper house of the legislature by Senator Neal.

One measure appropriates $25,000 to enable the commission to investigate and prosecute suits involving interstate rates.

Another appropriates a like amount so the commission can prosecute cases involving interstate rates before the interstate commerce commission.

Another makes an appropriation of $1,000 to the commission to make up a deficit in the expense fund of the commissioners.

And a fourth measure authorizes the payment of a claim of $1,227.37 by Hulse and Allen for making transcripts for the state railway commission in rate cases.

School Reform Becomes Law.

An important school measure passed the senate and will become a law as soon as the governor affixes his signature to it. The bill has already passed the house. The measure was fathered by Representative Shane of Wapello, and makes it possible for a person living in a district in which there in no four-year high school, to attend the nearest four-year high school, his tuition to be paid by the district of his residence. In case the student does not desire to attend the nearest high school, he may attend any other, and his district will pay as much tuition as would have been charged by the high school nearest his district. It was called up and pushed in the senate by Senator Hammill. The vote was 41 to 1.

Population Fixes Pay.

Representative Dixon of Sac county introduced a bill in the house which establishes standards for compensations of county superintendents, according to the population of the counties. The measure provides that county superintendents shall receive $1,400 in counties of less than 25,000 population, $1,500 in counties of from 25,000 to 35,000 population, $1,600 in counties of from 35,000 to 50,000 population, $1,800 in counties of from 50,000 to 60,000 population, and $2,000 in counties of more than 60,000 population.

Dolliver Event is Postponed.

Upon request of Mrs. J. P. Dolliver, wife of Iowa's late senior senator, the memorial serivces of the Iowa legislature in honor of his memory have been postponed from March 8 to March 16. Senator Frederic Larrabee, chairman of the joint committee in charge of the affair, made this announcement. Robert G. Cousins of Tipton, former congressman, will be the principal speaker on the occasion.

Counties May Appropriate.

A bill empowering the county boards of supervisors to appropriate money for educational purposes in the prevention of tuberculosis to the extent of $500 per county was introduced in the house by Representative Ripley of Hancock county. A similar measure by Senator Larrabee in the senate has been recommended for passage by the senate committee on public health.

Big Bounties Are Provided.

Representative Beans of Mahaska county introduced a bill in the house providing for bounties on wild animals. Bounties of $20 are awarded for adult wolves, $4 for cub wolves and $1 for lynx or wildcats. The whole skins of the animals must be presented to secure bounties.

Pay May Be Increased.

Another effort will be made by members of the general assembly to increase their pay. The senate committee on compensation of public officers has taken favorable action upon the bill by Senator Sammis, increasing the salary of legislators from $550 for the session to $1,200.

A WOMAN'S KIDNEYS

Are Often Responsible for Untold Suffering.

Mrs. August Wittenberg, 1083 Hopkins St., Milwaukee, Wis., says: "Kidney trouble came on me almost before I was aware of it. There was a constant inclination for the kidneys to act and the secretions were accompanied by burning and scalding. The headaches and giddy feelings that oppressed me were almost unbearable and life soon lost all interest. Doan's Kidney Pills came to my attention at that critical time and I used them faithfully until entirely cured."

IF YOU HAVE A SICKLY YOUNGSTER TRY THIS

The family with young children that is without sickness in the house now and then is rare, and so it is important that the head of the house should know what to do in the little emergencies that arise. A child with a serious ailment needs a doctor, it is true, but in the majority of instances, as any doctor knows, the child suffers from some intestinal trouble, usually constipation.

There is no sense in giving it a pill or a remedy containing an opiate, nor is flushing of the bowels to be always recommended. Rather give it a small dose of a mild, gentle laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which, by cleaning out the bowels and strengthening the little stomach muscles, will im correct the trouble.

TAFT NAMES DATE

Extra Session Call is Fixed for the 4th of April

HOPE FOR VOTE IS VERY DIM

Rumored at Washington that Senator Aldrich Will Hasten Back at Urgent Request of President Taft.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—So probable is it that an extra session of congress will be necessary to get action on the Canadian reciprocity agreement that President Taft has fixed April 4 as the date on which such a session may be called. The date was selected after consultation with Champ Clark, who will be speaker of the next house, and Representative Underwood of Alabama, who will be chairman of the ways and means committee, who will have charge of and report the reciprocity bill in the house.

The president had intended to convene the extra session at an earlier date, but Representatives Clark and Underwood told him they desired a month's time, after the present congress adjourns, in which to make out democratic plans for the next session.

There was no change in the situation in the senate regarding the Canadian reciprocity agreement and the leaders see no hope of bringing the McCall bill to a vote in this session.

Many rumors were circulated of moves to remedy the situation, but apparently they were without foundation. The most persistent was one that Senator Aldrich, famed for winning legislative battles which his colleagues thought lost, was speeding to Washington at the urgent solicitation of President Taft, to take charge of the situation in the senate.

As a matter of fact no one believes that the coming of Senator Aldrich would alter the situation in respect to the McCall bill. The measure is opposed by Senators Cummins, Bristow, Clapp and many other insurgent republicans.

The arrival of Mr. Aldrich and any attempt by him to force consideration of the bill would be like shaking a red rag in the face of a bull. It would serve, according to the consensus of opinion in the senate, only to intensify the insurgents' fight against the measure.

Not only that, but his friendship for the bill unquestionably would alienate some of his best friends, like Senators Hale, McCumber, Smoot and others who aided him in framing the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill but who are opposed to the Canadian agreement.

Senator McCumber spoke against the bill today, basing his argument on the disastrous effect which he said its enactment would have on the farming industry.

FACTORIES GO UP IN SMOKE

Flames at Council Bluffs Cause Damage of About $250,000—Fire Cause Unknown.

Council Bluffs, Ia., Feb. 27.—Fire destroyed the four-story brick building on lower Main street near the Burlington and Rock Island station, which housed two large and five small concerns, and entailed a total loss approximately of $250,000. The building was owned by the Warehouse Construction company, E. H. Merriam, president, and was valued at $50,000, and insured for $40,000.

The main part of the building was occupied by the Kontinental Kompound Kompany, which leased the building and sublet to the others. Its entire plant was consumed, including a large amount of stock ready for shipment. The loss was $50,000, and the insurance about $25,000.

CANAL FORTIFICATION SURE

Representative Walter I. Smith of Iowa Leads in Fight for $3,000,000 Appropriation.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—After nearly five hours of debate the house of representatives voted overwhelmingly for fortifying the Panama canal and appropriated $3,000,000 to begin the work, the total cost of which has been estimated to be $12,000,000.

The action of the house practically settles the question of fortification, for the sentiment in the senate is said to be more than two to one in favor of protecting the Isthmian waterway by seacost batteries.

Honored Dolliver's Memory.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—Eulogies were delivered in the house yesterday afternoon in honor of Senator Dolliver. Representative Woods member from the late senator's home district, presented the resolution. Addresses were made by the Iowa delegation, Speaker Cannon and Champ Clark.

Housework Drudgery

Housework is drudgery for the weak woman. She brushes, dusts and scrubs, or is on her feet all day attending to the many details of the household, her back aching, her temples throbbing, nerves quivering under the stress of pain, possibly dizzy feelings. Sometimes rest in bed is not refreshing, because the poor tired nerves do not permit of refreshing sleep. The real need of weak, nervous women is satisfied by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

It Makes Weak Women Strong and Sick Women Well.

This "Prescription" removes the cause of women's weaknesses, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures those weaknesses so peculiar to women. It tranquilizes the nerves, encourages the appetite and induces restful sleep.

Dr. Pierce is perfectly willing to let every one know what his "Favorite Prescription" contains, a complete list of ingredients on the bottle-wrapper. Do not let any unscrupulous druggist persuade you that his substitute of unknown composition is "just as good" in order that he may make a bigger profit. Just smile and shake your head!

The "Dean For-Gott."

When the bishop of Truro, Doctor Gott, was dean of Worcester, his absentmindedness was so notorious that he earned for himself the sobriquet of "Dean For-Gott." On one occasion he had invited some friends to dine with him; on their arrival a short time before the dinner hour he suggested that in the interval of waiting his friends would perhaps like to walk through the grounds. After spending about a quarter of an hour in admiring the flowers, shrubs and greenhouses, they suddenly came upon a door in the garden wall. "Ah!" said the dean to his astonished guests, "this will be a much nearer way for you to go home than by going back to the front." And, all unconscious of his invitation, he opened the door and bowed them out.

E-M-F 30 THIRTY

How long will the Car I buy, the Car I sell, the Car I make, LAST?

WITH MOST MANUFACTURERS this is a question that cannot even be comparatively answered. And, right here there is a reason which every intending buyer of an automobile should investigate. So, we pass the tip along. Find out whether the car you intend buying is what is known to the wise as an "assembled" car.

ONLY A LITTLE OVER TWO YEARS OLD. How can we tell "How long the car will last?" It is not the revolution, but the friction which wears out machinery. Everybody knows that—but the E M F Company, conscious of a superiority in the quality of their product over cars selling at double and treble the price, have tried to wear out an E-M-F "30."

SEVENTY-THREE THOUSAND MILES is the present mileage of this epoch-making car and it is as good as on the day it was wheeled out upon our shipping platform some two years ago, the most remarkable and convincing argument ever presented to the public—an argument that is attracting world-wide attention among buyers and dealers for it has placed the E-M-F Company at a pinnacle of motor car construction and proven beyond cavil or question, our oft-reiterated statement that in design, materials and workmanship, the E-M-F "30" chassis is the most envied ensemble of mechanical perfection extant.

$1,000 THE PRICE and you cannot buy, because it isn't made, any car to compare with this 30 Horse Power Masterpiece. There's no Black Art in the "how" it is done. Here's the chain of events behind it—an ideal to build as good or better a car than the other fellow who asks anywhere from $1,500 up to $2,500 and over. Then coralling the brains to do it. Then the car. Then the merits of the car creating a huge demand. Then an adequate plant and machinery to meet the demand. Then the distribution of cost of manufacture over immense quantities, instead of a limited number of cars, bringing the price within the reach of the most moderate income, and, moreover, offering a car as good as "across the water kind."

NOW, A WORD about what the high quality and low price of the E M-F "30" have accomplished. They have pricked the bubble of inflated values and literally forced rival manufacturers to give more dollar for dollar value. The newspapers have been filled of late with the significant headlines— "Reduction in Price." What does this mean? Simply this, that the purchaser had not been getting his money's worth.

OUR YEAR'S GUARANTEE is interesting reading to the prospective purchaser. It is a liberal service insurance covering the car and its equipment for one year. This guarantee is really unnecessary, as we have hundreds of letters from owners proudly stating that their E-M-F "30" has stood, not only the test of time, but every condition that can possibly be expected of an automobile—and more.

Not only pleasant and refreshing to the taste, but gently cleansing and sweetening to the system, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is particularly adapted to ladies and children, and beneficial in all cases in which a wholesome, strengthening and effective laxative should be used. It is perfectly safe at all times and dispels colds, headaches and the pains caused by indigestion and constipation so promptly and effectively that it is the one perfect family laxative which gives satisfaction to all and is recommended by millions of families who have used it and who have personal knowledge of its excellence.

Its wonderful popularity, however, has led unscrupulous dealers to offer imitations which act unsatisfactorily. Therefore, when buying, to get its beneficial effects, always note the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package of the genuine Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna.

The Point of View.

This is a true story. A certain belle was present at a recent Chopin recital. During the "March Funebre," her eyes glistened and her whole attitude of rapt attention was as if the music had entranced her very soul. Her whole face was expressive of admiration and intense interest. When the pianist had finished, the escort of Miss "Belle" turned to her and said: "How beautiful!" To which she replied: "Yes, indeed; doesn't it fit her exquisitely in the back? How much do you suppose it cost in Paris?"

WONDERFUL!

She—I wonder if the waiter speaks the new language—what do they—call it—? Esperanto?

He—Oh, yes! He talks it like a native.

HONEST CONFESSION
A Doctor's Talk on Food.

There are no fairer set of men on earth than the doctors, and when they find they have been in error they are usually apt to make honest and manly admission of the fact.

A case in point is that of a practitioner, one of the good old school, who lives in Texas. His plain, unvarnished tale needs no dressing up:

"I had always had an intense prejudice, which I can now see was unwarrantable and unreasonable, against all muchly advertised foods. Hence, I never read a line of the many 'ads' of Grape-Nuts, nor tested the food till last winter.

"While in Corpus Christi for my health, and visiting my youngest son, who has four of the ruddiest, healthiest little boys I ever saw, I ate my first dish of Grape-Nuts food for supper with my little grandsons.

"I became exceedingly fond of it and have eaten a package of it every week since, and find it a delicious, refreshing and strengthening food, leaving no ill effects whatever, causing no eructations (with which I was formerly much troubled), no sense of fullness, nausea, nor distress of stomach in any way.

"There is no other food that agrees with me so well, or sits as lightly or pleasantly upon my stomach as this does.

"I am stronger and more active since I began the use of Grape-Nuts than I have been for 10 years, and am no longer troubled with nausea and indigestion." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

PROFITABLE PIGEON RAISING REQUIRES INEXPENSIVE PENS

Buildings Should be Comfortable and Convenient but Need Not be Elaborate—It Is of Vital Importance That Drinking Founts be Clean.

(By F. A. SOTTER.

Pigeons do not need a fancy house; an old barn or building of any description can be fitted up to serve their needs. If the building is to house 25 pairs of homers, it should be seven feet wide by ten feet long, and if more than one house is to be built under the same roof, leave an alley way from three to four feet wide separating it from the pen by a wire netting.

The front of the building should be eight feet high, with six light windows.

Directly above the windows two holes seven by eight inches should be placed, through which the pigeons can come and go. They should be provided with a slide to be closed when the weather is very cold. These can be opened and closed from the alley-way by pieces of rope and pulleys.

The fly pen should be as high and wide as the front of the pen proper and about 18 feet long. It should be enclosed with wire netting small enough to keep sparrows out.

Six feet from the ground a six-inch wide board should be placed from front of house to end of run on either side as an alighting board.

The bathing-pan should be placed in the fly, and there should be a door in the front of the fly through which a person can pass in and out. These doors are simply a frame covered with wire.

In the pens, nest-boxes in tiers are built on either side, preferably on the east and west walls. These boxes are 4 feet high, 10 feet long, arranged in pairs 1 foot deep, 1 foot high and 2 feet long, divided by a capital T front, thus making two nests of each box.

Each side now has 20 pairs of boxes, ample for 25 pairs of breeders or more, up to 35 pairs, but this is rather overcrowding the birds.

When the building just described has been furnished with receptacles for feed, water, oyster shell, salt, grit and charcoal, and thoroughly white washed inside, it is ready to have the birds placed in it.

On a well conducted pigeon plant the routine should be as follows:

In summer at five o'clock in the morning, all birds are watered; 7:30, fed; 12:30, watered; 4, fed. In winter, 6:30 in the morning, watered; 8, fed; 12:30, watered; 3, fed. At five in the afternoon all the founts are emptied of their water to prevent freezing.

It is of vital importance that the drinking-founts should be kept perfectly clean by frequent washing and scouring. They should be washed with water containing ¼ cupful of crude carbolic acid to a bucketful of water.

A pigeon will not bathe in deep water. It always measures the depth of the water with its head and bill, and if it is so deep that another bird by sitting on its back can push it under and drown it, the bird will not bathe in that water. Make your pans not over four inches deep. Twice a week in summer is often enough to bathe birds, and once a week in winter.

Position of Water Can.

A good rain is equivalent to a bath, as the birds will sit on the running-board and hold up their wings to catch the drops. If the weather should turn cold soon after bathing, they should be driven into the house and the windows should be closed.

Use a two-gallon drinking-fount for 50 birds. The cut shows exactly how this fount should be placed in the loft. The fount must be kept perfectly clean always.

Feeding troughs should be 4 feet long, 4 inches wide, 1½ inches deep, placed in the center of the loft, so the feed can be thrown into the trough from the alleyway. Keep it always clean and dry.

Keep plenty of grit, oyster shell and charcoal, together with a sack of baked salt, before the birds all the time.

CHARCOAL FED YOUNG DUCKS

Experiments in Ireland Indicate That Burnt Wood in Some Form Is Important in Fattening Poultry.

In a recent issue of the Journal of Agriculture for Ireland was given an account of experiments conducted for the purpose of deciding the exact value of charcoal as a means of keeping birds that are closely confined in good health during the period of fattening. Eighteen large, healthy Aylesbury ducklings were selected from a large flock, and divided into three pens, each pen containing 6 ducklings. The ducklings were fed upon foods which previous experiment had shown to be profitable and economical, namely, boiled potatoes, barley meal, ground oats, skim milk and tallow greaves. The method of preparing the food was to boil, strain and pound up the potatoes, which before boiling would constitute about one-third by weight of the mash. Barley meal and ground oats were then in equal parts mixed with the potatoes. Skim milk was added to form a rather wet mash. This was fed to the ducklings from the end of the fifth to the beginning of the ninth week. During the last two weeks of fattening, animal food in the form of rough fat or tallow cracklings was added to the mash, the allowance being about two ounces per day to each duck. Grit and water for drinking were liberally supplied. Apart from the charcoal, the food received by all the ducklings was the same.

Tables were given as to the results of the trials, which seem to indicate that charcoal in one form or another is important in the profitable fattening of ducks. It appeared to keep the ducklings healthy, and enabled fattening to be continued with profit for a much longer period than when charcoal was not allowed. Experiments with geese were conducted on similar lines, and gave almost identical results. The foods fed to the geese were the same as those fed to the ducks, except that they got steeped oats instead of mash for the evening meal, mash being fed in the morning. The charcoal fed to both ducks and geese was burnt wood, broken fine.

Lettuce on Benches.

Good lettuce can be grown upon benches, but those who make a specialty of it plant out in thoroughly prepared soil at the usual ground level of the house. In the latter case more of the space can be given the crop, as the walks are reduced to 10 or 12-inch boards laid on the beds. The best soil for lettuce is a good, rotted sod, liberally enriched with well-rotted manure. Avoid fresh manure for this crop. Give water moderately when first planted, increasing the supply as the plants develop in size.

Exercise Fat Ram.

If the ram gets too fat, do not reduce his fatness by starving him, because that is as bad as a fat woman trying to reduce her flesh by the same process. Give him plenty of exercise, and cut down his rations so gradually that he will not suffer from hunger.

Sowing Corn Fodder.

Corn fodder should be sown thickly, either with a grain drill or corn planter, at the rate of 30 to 50 pounds per acre. Cultivate one way, cut with a corn binder, shock in the field and allow to stand until fed or hauled to the barn.

A Big Potato Crop.

Lehigh county, Pennsylvania, last year harvested a 2,000,000-bushel potato crop, which will bring the growers about $1,000,000. The potato farmers in that section rotate their crops; that is, grain one year, grass the next and potatoes the third year.

Farms in Holy Land.

According to Mr. Frank G. Carpenter, the noted traveler, "farms" in the Holy Land are often not bigger than bed quilts and seldom contain more than three or four acres. There are but few farms of large size in the country.

HEAD SOLID MASS OF HUMOR

"I think the Cuticura Remedies are the best remedies for eczema I have ever heard of. My mother had a child who had a rash on its head when it was real young. Doctor called it baby rash. He gave us medicine, but it did no good. In a few days the head was a solid mass; a running sore. It was awful, the child cried continually. We had to hold him and watch him to keep him from scratching the sore. His suffering was dreadful. At last we remembered Cuticura Remedies. We got a dollar bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, a box of Cuticura Ointment, and a bar of Cuticura Soap. We gave the Resolvent as directed, washed the head with the Cuticura Soap, and applied the Cuticura Ointment. We had not used half before the child's head was clear and free from eczema, and it has never come back again. His head was healthy and he had a beautiful head of hair. I think the Cuticura Ointment very good for the hair. It makes the hair grow and prevents falling hair." (Signed) Mrs. Francis Lund, Plain City, Utah, Sept. 19, 1910. Send to the Potter Drug & Chem. Remedies are Needed

Were we perfect, which we are not, medicines would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and broken down through indiscretions which have gone on from the early ages, through countless generations, remedies are needed to aid Nature in correcting our inherited and otherwise acquired weaknesses. To reach the seat of stomach weakness and consequent digestive troubles, there is nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a glyceric compound, extracted from native medicinal roots—sold for over forty years with great satisfaction to all users. For Weak Stomach, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Pain in the Stomach after eating, Heartburn, Bad Breath, Belching of food, Chronic Diarrhea and other Intestinal Derangements, the "Discovery" is a time-proven and most efficient remedy.

The genuine has on its outside wrapper the Signature R. V. Pierce M.D.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic, medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

B. F. Carroll, at Recent Banquet of Newspaper Men, Praises Booster Slip Which He Found on His Plate.

Des Moines.—When Governor B. F. Carroll picked up a slip of paper on which were facts and figures off of his plate as he sat down to the banquet given the Iowa publishers by the Greater Des Moines committee he was so impressed that he mentioned the data in his toast. He advocated that the information so condensely furnished by the Iowa League of Commercial Clubs should be spread far and wide.

A copy of the slip, headed "Iowa Statistics," follows:

"The climate from the standpoint of healthfulness and productivity of its soil cannot be surpassed in any other portion of the country.

"It is far enough south to escape the rigors of the severe winters and far enough north to modify the intensity of the long continued and debilitating effects of the southern summer.

"The periods of cold and hot weather are of short duration. The winters are comparatively dry, with clear weather and bright sunshine. The summers are pleasant, with frequent showers.

Henry Austin is Dead.

Waterloo.—Henry Austin, founder of Austinville, in Butler county, passed away at the hospital here as the result of injuries sustained when he was struck by a Chicago Great Western switch train recently. At the time of the accident Mr. Austin was driving a heavy automobile, which was completely destroyed.

The deceased was born in England eixty-eight years ago, and came to Butler county in 1870, acquiring a large acreage of valuable land. His stock shipments were so extensive that the Illinois Central built stockyards for his exclusive use, and called the place Austinville. He was also extensively engaged in the lumber and grain business, and of recent years became interested in many big concerns.

Wage Scale Signed.

Marshalltown.—After negotiations that have covered a period of about a month between committees of the different branches of union labor employed in the Iowa Central shops here and General Manager W. G. Bierd of —Minneapolis, the schedules were signed recently, and become operative at once. Small increases in all the different departments were granted.

Scarlet Fever at Red Oak.

Red Oak.—Red Oak health officers and mayor have announced that all places of amusement, parties and dances, church gatherings and all public gatherings be suspended for fifteen days to try and stamp out the scarlet fever epidemic that is raging there. It was decided to allow the schools to remain open.

You Should Test Your Seed Corn.

Ames.—According to Prof. P. G. Holden of the Ames Agricultural College the important work of testing seed corn should be completed not later than March twentieth. Many farmers who have reaped the benefit of seed testing last fall carefully selected their best ears for planting this coming spring. Even these should test every ear according to Prof. Holden to be sure of the vitality of the corn. Those who did not select and carefully preserve their seed last fall should exercise all the more care, choosing the best appearing ears they can and testing every one. This testing can now be done when the farm demands are not so exacting on the worker. It can be done by the farmer and members of his family. Any person not familiar with the method can be informed free by writing to Prof. Holden who in discussing the testing recently said: "There is everything to be gained and nothing to lose in testing seed. If this work is fairly well done it will increase the yield on our farms from the present average of 34 bushels per acre to 44 bushels per acre. One additional fourteen-ounce ear of corn to each hill will make 44 bushels per acre. It is not only possible to do this but the yield can eventually be raised to 54 bushels per acre. The average township grows about 66,000 bushels of corn worth approximately $33,000. In the average county with 100,000 acres, we would have 1,000,000 bushels increase over the present yield." Further discussing seed selection Prof. Holden says: "You must not import seed corn from a distance with which to plant a general crop. You must secure the same from some reliable person in your vicinity."

Seed Corn in Iowa Bad.

Marshalltown.—That the Iowa farmer is not going to have much better seed corn this spring than he did last year is declared by M. A. Hauser of Albion, a grain expert, who has been working with the extension department of Iowa state college at Ames this winter, addressing farmers' institutes and judging corn shows. In over thirty shows that he has judged this winter, Mr. Hauser says that an average of 23 per cent of the corn exhibited was dead when placed in the germinating boxes. This condition, according to Hauser, is due to the fact that the farmers believed the weather perfect for maturing corn last fall and therefore took no precautions to select their seed and get it under cover. The result was it froze in the field and is now worthless for seed. In several parts of the state Mr. Hauser says that the seed corn this spring will not be any better than it was a year ago, which was the poorest season known in years.

Button Factories Close Up.

Muscatine.—For more than 2,000 operatives in the local pearl button factories, Sunday's holiday did not end with the day as notices were posted in all but three of the larger factories and in most of the smaller ones announcing a suspension of work for an indefinite time. Manufacturers declare overproduction of buttons is responsible for the step. Members of the newly organized and rapidly growing button workers' union say it is a move against that organization. It is expected that work will be resumed within two weeks.

New Highway to be Built.

Correctionville.—If the plans of the automobile owners and commercial clubs at Sac City and nearby towns are realized, there will be such a desirable branch route of the Hawkeye highway from Fort Dodge to Sioux City that the preponderance of the river to river traffic will be through this section, instead of over the regularly selected northern route of the Hawkeye highway.

Farmers Organized.

Des Moines.—Three companies organized by Iowa farmers filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state. They are the Farmers' Mutual Co-operative Creamery company of Orange City, $10,000; the Farmers' Shipping company, Kimballtown, $15,000; and the Owens Grove Telephone company, Cerro Gordo county, $9,990.

Fred G. Brown Dead.

Cedar Rapids.—F. G. Brown, a prominent architect here, died of pneumonia after an illness of one week. He was a member of the Masons, Elks and Knights of Pythias. The remains were sent to his former home at Champaign, Ill., for interment.

Colfax to Pave Streets.

Colfax.—At a meeting of the city council they passed the ordinance for street improvement, the paving, curbing and grading of the principal streets in the business section of the city. The work is to begin as soon as practicable.

before leaving the factory. It is the motto of the manufacturers not to see how cheap the U. S. can be made, but how strong and everlastingly durable they can be constructed.

We know the U.S. is the cleanest skimmer and the BEST in every respect and we want you to know it. Call and examine the 1909 Model United States Cream Separator.

U.S. SOLD BY

The reason for this is very apparent, if you stop to consider, and that is the statement and claim we have repeatedly made, that the same force which separates the cream, viz., centrifugal force, washes the sections clean in an instant, if the instructions are followed. Every man can do it as quick as this if he practices on it.

The statement is as follows –

Early, Iowa. Feb. 1st, 1911.

This is to certify that we, the undersigned dairymen, witnessed a demonstration of a No. 16 U. S. Interlocking Cream Separator at the Creamery this morning and see the skimming device washed clean and in a sanitary condition in just ten seconds by the watch, after skimming 40 lbs. of milk at normal temperature, delivering cream that tested 60 per cen butter fat, skim-milk test three-hundredths of one per cent."

INCUBATORS BROODERS

A Few Facts About the Cyphers Incubator

The Cyphers Incubator is a self regulator, that is, after it is once regulated it is almost neglect proof. It holds a more even temperature than any other make of Incubator, can be run with one-tenth the care that is necessary in running a hot water machine. A Cyphers can be run in the cellar the year round, and you can with a Cyphers start a hatch whenever you please; you don't have to wait until the middle of April or first of May to start it, and you don't have to sleep with it nights after you have started it. Come in and look at our line of Cyphers Incubators and Brooders Try one and be convinced. We have also on hand a few hot water machines that we will sell very reasonable. They are made by the Des Moines Incubator Co. and are considered the best hot water machine on the market. We have on hand at present one 150 egg Eclipse and a 250-egg Successful both new machines and both manufactured by above company.

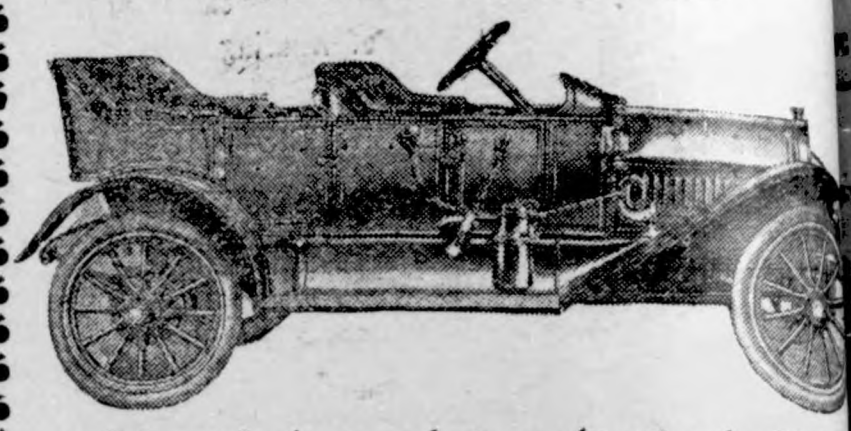
THE IMPERIAL

"THE GET THERE KIND"



It is with pleasure that we advertise the IMPERIAL. When so doing it is hard to say too much in favor of this line of IMPERIAL Automobiles. They have the record up-to-date for running and covering more miles of hard road-going, with the least expense, least adjustments.

The Burd Auto Co., Waterloo, Iowa, says: "The Imperial Automobile has not been equaled yet regardless of price." They run out 37 last season. Up to date there hasn't been one adjustment made. Their contract calls for 100 Imperials for 1911.

The Imperial is built in ten models, from a 35 H. P. two-passenger gentleman's Roadster, to a 60 H. P. seven passenger touring car. Buy the car that bears the name IMPERIAL, and get a dollar's worth of automobile for every dollar you invest.

Governor Carroll Issues Proclamation for Red Cross

CONTRIBUTE TO RELIEF FUND

To Aid the Multitudes In China Who Are Dying of Starvation Because of the Famine Existing.

Des Moines, March 4.—Governor B. F. Carroll, president of the American Red Cross society for the state of Iowa, issued a proclamation calling upon the people of Iowa to respond to President Taft's appeal to the citizens of the United States to contribute to the relief fund for the famine stricken residents of China.

The proclamation follows:

As president of the American Red Cross for Iowa, I want to call the attention of the people of our state to the proclamation issued by President William H. Taft, as president of the American Red Cross, asking aid for the multitudes in China who are dying of starvation because of the famine now existing there. The reports from that far distant country show that the people are in dire distress. Terrible suffering is resulting from complete crop failures in the interior, and no call for charitable aid in recent years is more deserving of immediate response on the part of our prosperous and generous-minded people.

On former occasions when pestilence and misfortune have visited other countries and other communities, the people of Iowa have responded liberally to the call for help and charity. It is hoped that they will again contribute generously to this urgent call of the American Red Cross.

This organization in Iowa, the officers of which have been appointed by the national board, will work in conjunction with the boards in other states. Hon. W. W. Morrow, the treasurer of state, is the treasurer of the Iowa Red Cross, and he is authorized to receive all moneys and the contributions of supplies tendered to him for this purpose. Arrangements have been made by President Taft for the use of army transports and with transportation companies for the delivery of such supplies. The Seattle Commercial club has been named as the distributing agent and all contributions made by our Iowa people will be immediately forwarded to them.

I wish to repeat here the proclamation of President Taft and to recommend generosity and liberality on the part of our people in the carrying out of the same. The president's proclamation is as follows:

"As president of the American Red Cross, I appeal to the people of this country to aid the unfortunate multitudes who are dying of starvation because of famine in China, either by money contributions, which should be sent to the local Red Cross treasurers, or to the Red Cross, Washington, D. C., or by assisting in raising a cargo of flour and other suitable supplies to be sent to these people.

"Congress has granted the use of an army transport to the Red Cross for this purpose. The Seattle Commercial club of Seattle, Wash., is cooperatiog with the Red Cross and will act as receiving and forwarding agent for all supplies. I trust that our people will respond generously, and that the transportation lines will aid in the delivery at Seattle."

B. F. CARROLL.

New Town is Incorporated.

Representative Brockway of Louisa introduced a bill in the house, legalizing the corporation of the town of Grandview, Louisa county, Iowa. It is claimed by those who oppose the incorporation that the judges of the election were favorable to the issue and that illegal votes were cast and legal votes rejected.

Signature Awaited.

The house concurred in the amendments to the Oregon plan bill made by the senate. All that remains to make the measure a law is the signature of the governor. There is some question as to whether Governor Carroll will approve of the measure.

State Juvenile Officer Provided.

The office of state juvenile commissioner is established by a bill introduced in the senate by Senator Van Law. The commissioner is to have offices in the capitol, is to be appointed by the governor, and is to have a salary of $1,800 a year.

Wants Colony for Epileptics.

Representative Ripley of Hancock introduced a bill in the house providing for the establishment in Iowa of a state colony for epileptics. The measure carries with it an appropriation of $200,000 for the establishment of the institution.

CARRIERS FOR BILL

Postmen Appear for Free Transportation on Street Cars.

A committee of Des Moines mail carriers appeared before the house committee on railroads and transportation in support of a bill by Goodykoontz of Boone providing for free passes for peace officers, health officers and mail carriers while on duty within the city limits. The committee was composed of William Chambers, E. J. Strater and W. E. Hodkinsen.

Since the anti-pass bill was passed it has been necessary for the post-office officials to buy tickets and distribute them among the carriers. Those carriers whose routes begin and end within six blocks of the office are not allowed checks. Carriers are not allowed to ride short distances while on duty.

"I believe the government and the street car company are both willing to enter into a contract which will allow carriers to ride at all times while on duty," said Mr. Hodkinsen. "Under the law, however, the street car company fears trouble if it carries the mail carriers without tickets."

New Commission Created by Bill.

Representative Escher of Shelby county introduced a bill in the house appropriating $15,000 for the establishment in Iowa of a state dairy and beef cattle board. The board will be composed of the professor of animal husbandry of the state agricultural college, the secretary of the state board of agriculture, the state food and dairy commissioner and two practical dairy and stock men to be appointed by the governor. Three inspectors are provided for at a salary of $1,500 each. It will be the duty of the board to provide instruction in practical and scientific breeding of dairy and beef cattle.

Substitute for Clarkson Measure.

The senate judiciary committee has sidetracked the Clarkson employers' liability measure and in its stead has reported out a substitute calling for the appointment by the governor of a commission of seven men to investigate the workings of employers' liability measures in other states. This committee of seven is to be composed of three workmen, three employers and one disinterested person. The committee must make a report to Governor Carroll in September, 1912. In all probability the substitute measure will pass, as the labor people are making no objection to it.

"Black Plague" Bill.

Certain venereal diseases are classified as contagious and infectious in a bill introduced in the house by Representative Halgrims of Humboldt county. The measure requires all physicians to report all such cases in their care to local health boards under the penalty of a misdemeanor. It also imposes a fine of not more than $500 or one year in the county jail, or both, upon those who knowingly transmit such diseases to others.

Would Improve Old Capitol.

A bill appropriating $50,000 for remodelling the old state capitol building at Iowa City was introduced in the house by Representative Koontz of Johnson county. The measure provides for the general restoration of the old structure but provides that the general appearance of the building shall not be changed. It is now being used by the state university.

House Passes Fraley Bill.

The house passed the Fraley bill extending the park tax levy through the years 1911, 1912 and 1913. The present bill extended the levy only to the present year. The bill of Smith of Shelby extending the exemption of property of honorably discharged veterans of Mexican and civil wars also passed.

Women Petition Solons for Votes.

Senators and representatives in the general assembly are beginning to receive petitions urging them to submit the proposition of votes for women to the voters of the state.

One of the strongest petitions which has been received comes from the Corydon branch, Men's League for Woman's Suffrage.

To Distribute Cholera Serum.

Representative Edmunds of Taylor county introduced a bill in the house providing for the distribution of hog cholera serum in the state. An appropriation of $5,000 for the maintenance of a laboratory for the manufacture of the serum is provided for.

Wants Health Laws Revised.

A bill creating a legislative commission for the purpose of supervising the heatlh laws of the state and determining upon the expediency of revising laws and making appropriations, was introduced in the house by Representative Smith of Decatur.

CHAPTER I.

Ethel Maud Sews Her Thumb.

"If grown-ups would jest chaw one another's good luck, they could get a heap of satisfaction from it."
—Miss Selina Lue.

"Miss Seliny Lue! Oh—Oh—o—ho, Miss Seliny Lue! Boo—hoo—hoo ——"

"You, Bonnie, honey, quit crying this minute and tell me what the matter is. Come here and let me see!" And Miss Selina Lue made a grab for the grief-contorted youngster who was dancing with excitement in the grocery door. "Now, where is the place? Put your hand where you hurt if you can't say it!"

"Oh—ho—ho, 'tain't me a-tall! It's Ethel Maud, and she's sewed herself in the sewing-machine and pa's cussing something orful and ma's sick to her stomick. Please, ma'am, come quick and git her out!"

"Lands alive!" said Miss Selina Lue as she reached with one hand for a sunbonnet hanging on the wall and pulled the top on the pickle barrel with the other. "Miss Cynthia, honey, can't you stay here for a few minutes until I can send Mr. Dobbs back to tend the store? And whatever you do, don't let nothing happen to the babies in the soap-boxes. The red-headed Flarity twin has been trying to turn his'n over all morning; watch him. Please hand me that turkey-tail duster hanging over there on the wall, while I straighten out my water waves. They ain't nothing like burnt feathers or hair to bring up them that's in a faint, and I never go without 'em to burn." And after a quick glance into her little bedroom mirror, Miss Selina Lue hurried down the street, leaving an uncertainty as to whether the turkey-tail or her own soft waves were to be sacrificed in the cause of resuscitation.

"Gracious me, Miss Seliny Lue, who's hurt now?" called Mrs. Kinney from her side door, standing with a hot flat-iron dangling from her hand. Mrs. Jim Peters also hailed from her kitchen window, but Miss Selina Lue kept sternly on her course, piloted by the sobbing but important Bennie.

In the first of the three rooms that formed the Dobbs residence Miss Selina Lue found the pathetic little figure of Ethel Maud hanging against the corner of the sewing machine while Mr. Dobbs, red and embarrassed, stood trembling by the window, and the maternal relative of the young sufferer leaned against a chair, white and heaving.

At sight of the deliverer, Ethel Maud gave a relieved whimper and her tousseled head fell over on Miss Selina Lue's bosom, the depths of which were stirred by more than the mere suffering of a pinioned finger, and which took sympathetic note of sweating, masculine misery and white-faced, inefficient mother-flutterings.

"Hurry on over to mind the store for me, Mr. Dobbs," she said with a kind glance at him. "I can git her loose in a minute. And, Mis' Dobbs, quick as you can, set the kettle on the stove in the kitchen for some hot water to take out the swell. We'll be ready as soon as you git back with it." So, vastly relieved, with one accord the parents disappeared through opposite doors, thus leaving Miss Selina Lue with the limp and whimpering bag to hold.

"There, there, chickie-biddie," she crooned to the little white ear buried against her neck as she raised the arm and hand and with a quick, dexterous turn of the needle released the small pink thumb. "It ain't injured much. However did you come to sew your thumb?"

"We was trying to see what made the top of it go and she got in the way," volunteered Bennie, who was the only member of the family that had stood by the afflicted one. Although his distress had been genuine, there is an attraction to ten years in flowing blood, even though that same blood be consangineous. "Shoo! that didn't bleed half as much as my toe did last week," he further remarked.

"It did! It did!" wailed the small sufferer, for the first time giving away to the to-be-expected lamentations of one injured. "Everybody stumps they's toes, but they didn't ever anybody get sewed up in a sewing machine before."

Bennie was on the point of arguing the question when he was overtaken by swift retribution for his seeming heartlessness in the shape of a wet dish-towel that spanked across his shoulders with a sting.

"Bennie Dobbs, I am ashamed of you fer your unfeelingness to your little sister," cried his mother, who stood in the doorway with a cracked, yellow bowl of hot water in one hand and the towel in the other. "You are just like all men folks, a-trying to make light of the sufferings of women which they can't none of you know nothing about. Men always look at women troubles outen the little end of the horn. There was Dobbs standing there a-cussing me 'cause my stomick turns at the sight of blood, and him the one to unsew his own children if so comes they need it." Mrs. Dobbs was still white about the mouth, and the tears were still undried on her red, round, shiny cheeks. She slopped the water over Miss Selina Lue's shoulder and soused one of Ethel Maud's little pigtail plaits as she handed over the bowl with a sniffle.

"There, there, Mis' Dobbs, you know they ain't a mite of harm in Mr. Dobbs; and as fer cussin', looks like that sinful habit is all the let-off a man have got, while a woman can break up dishes, slam the stove lids, spank the children, and make herself a cup of tea to ease her nerves, and nobody even knows she's upsot."

"That's all very well for a woman that's as free as you is, Miss Seliny Lue; but a married woman has feelishly, with his face turned away from her, "if it had a-been Ben, now, I could —er—done it; but the little 'un—I—I ——"

"Mr. Dobbs, I respect you fer your feelings fer I seen the thought ter help were in your mind, but Ethel Maud is a slimsy little thing as would be hard for a man to handle. She is asleep, and I expect Mis' Dobbs have got your dinner ready by now."

"I thank you, Miss Seliny Lue, ma'am, and I do say as how you be the master hand with the young 'uns. I was jest a-telling Miss Cynthie, who is a-waiting to see you, that it do seem a pity——"

Miss Selina Lue's progress down the street was resumed before Mr. Dobbs had exactly formulated the regrets he wished to express, but whose nature Miss Selina Lue inferred from experience.

But her hurried return to her own affairs was not to be permitted by the anxious neighbors along the path of duty which she had trod so excitedly with Bennie Dobbs an hour before. Mrs. Kinney had been sitting on the hot stove or curiosity, and her face was determined and her voice was compelling as she hailed from her stoop.

"Wait a minute, Miss Seliny Lue, can't you? Whatever was the matter with the Dobbses?" she said, draping herself over the picket-fence as if she had come to hear the news if it took all morning and all the backbone she possessed to extract it.

"It was a bad accident, but it might-er been worse if she had a-run it in her eye, though that woulder been hard for her to do unless it had been something like a knitting-needle. A thumb ain't so much use except in peeling potatoes and sich, as a sorter balance wheel for the rest of the ings you can't never understand, and one of 'em is a cussing husband."

"That's so, and I reckon I can't hardly sense your feelings in that case, but if I had a-married, and he had a-felt a cause fer cussing—There now, she's done doze off with the soothing of the hot water! Open my bag there and git me that old linen handkerchief tored into strips. Don't take off this rag tonight, and I'll fix it again in the morning." Miss Selina Lue laid the relaxed little figure on the bed without causing a tremor of the white eyelids.

"Law, Miss Seliny Lue, it do seem a shame you ain't got ten of your own, you are that kinder hovering-like with them. I shore am sorry for you," said the grateful mother as she jabbed in the dart of her sympathy with a smile.

"Well, I don't know but it's best as it is," answered Miss Selina Lue with spirit, "fer you all are so good about letting me help with yours. People kinder grow along towards what they think about; and as I think baby tending a good part of the day, come night I feel like I was the mother of twenty. Mind not to take off that rag until I see it again."

In a few minutes Miss Selina Lue departed and attempted to hasten down the street, but was interrupted at every turn, it seemed. On the corner she met Mr. Dobbs, whose steps were faltering towards home.

"Miss Seliny Lue," he said sheephand," answered Miss Selina Lue, commencing in the dramatic part of the tale without any unnecessary preamble.

"Now, ain't that like Mary Ellen Dobbs? I never seen sich a person fer keerlessness. It's a wonder she ain't did it before! It will be powerful awkward to be without a thumb when it comes to going to meeting in a genteel way with gloves——"

"It was Ethel Maud, Mis' Kinney ——"

"Ethel Maud? Who ever heard of a child injuring her mother? Miss Seliny Lue, she must have the rabies. Maybe she was bit by a mad dog when her mother didn't know it. I reckon I better call my children on this side of the street till I see what happens."

"Mis' Kinney, ma'am, please wait till I tell you the straight of it. Ethel Maud sewed her thumb in the sewing machine, and she ain't hurted bad at all. In a day or two——"

"Well, Miss Seliny Lue, I take it hard indeed that you let me get so upsot over the troubles of one of my neighbors that ain't anything at all. I never expected no such treatment from you that I calls——"

"Oh, Mis' Kinney, honey," pleaded Miss Selina Lue, with an eager pat on the heaving shoulder, "I wouldn't hurt your feelings fer worlds. Now, who but you coulder been so kind and thought up all them afflictions fer the Dobbeses?"

"That's jest it," sobbed the friendly one; "I takes more interest in my friends' doings than I do in my own, and I don't believe they appreciate it like they oughter, neither. Sometimes they are so cold to me when I ask questions jest outen sympathy."

"Yes, they do, Mis' Kinney, honey, and don't you go to doubting your friends, which is a poor thing for anybody to do. When you want to sympathize with me I am always glad to git it and consider it a blessed thing to have, whether I need it or not. Sympathy is jest the pure juice of the heart squeezed out fer a friend."

"That's like you, Miss Seliny Lue, a-patching up people's hurt feelings and children with kind words and rags. I was a-saying to Mr. Kinney last night, when he went and got that cough medicine for Luella from you, that it's a plumb shame you ain't got a round dozen husbands and children of—— Oh, must you go? Please, ma'am, don't fergit to make me another mess of that medicine; she do cough so, come night."

The haven of her grocery door, her neglected business, and the shade of her own hackberry tree which hung over the front stoop of the store lay in the sight of Miss Selina Lue, when another hail sounded from the other side of the street. Mrs. Jim Peters' shining face nodded at the window as she held up a small white bundle and beckoned by waving a tiny red hand.

"You ain't been in to see him fer two days, Miss Seliny Lue, and we's both gittin' downright hurt with you," she said. Mrs. Jim Peters was very, very young; Jim was also young and was conductor on the "'Lectric;" and Jim, Junior, was the youngest of all; in fact was of such a youngness that he was still blushing into fiery red with mortification over his very recent citizenship.

"Don't you think he have growed?" she demanded. "He will be four weeks old tomorrow and I have promised Jim to take him fer a ride on the ten-forty car. He wants to show him to Mr. Hill, the motorman. Poor man, he hasn't been married yet and we feel so sorry fer him! Jim said last night, when I let him hold the baby while I got supper, that he jest couldn't help but wish that Mr. Hill could have something to live fer. And I told him as that was jest the way I felt about you, Miss Seliny Lue. It do seem that if ever a woman—— Oh, please don't hurry, I want you to see his feet, how they have growed, and I think if you could set down a spell he might smile like he did this morning!"

"Did he show any signs of colic last night, like them squirmings, and drawing up of his knees?"

"Oh, no, ma'am! I put the flannel band you sent over right on and Jim said when he brought it that there never was such a person as you for knowing what to do with a pain in a baby. People might think you had half a—— Oh, good-by good-by, if you must go! Look, he is kissing his hand to you!" and Mrs. Jim Peters watched her guest out of the gate dreamily. "My! I clean fergot to ask what was the matter with the Dobbses," she woke up and exclaimed to herself.

On the other side of the street, only a few hundred yards away, the cool door of the grocery yawned and the top branch of the hackberry beckoned in a friendly little breeze. Miss Selina Lue hurried her steps and as she walked she waved the turkey-tail in vigorous encouragement of the tiny zephyr. She was generous of proportion was Miss Selina Lue, tall, broad and strong, deep bosomed, and flashing of eye, though with a spirit of such gentleness that one might almost read as one ran.

A King's Shooting Lodge.

York Cottage, Sandringham Park, which is to be the king's shooting lodge, is not very commodious house, and it bears some likeness to the letter E. In consequence it may be said to be divided into three parts connected by a cross piece.

The central part is the loftiest, possessing three floors, while the other parts have two only. The house could be easily enlarged by producing the arms, and if desirable adding a second cross piece, so that the whole block would be an oblong built round two inner courtyards, and it is probable that the king will begin some such alteration next year. York Cottage as it now stands was put up by King Edward as a bachelor annex to Sandringham and was added to in 1893, when the present king was about to be married. It is Elizabethan in style, with high gables and projecting windows.—London World.

Disraeli's Humor.

I was introduced by particular request to Mrs. Wyndham Lewis, a pretty little woman, a flirt and a rattle; indeed, gifted with a volubility I should think unequaled and of which I can convey no idea. She told me she liked "silent, melancholy men." I answered that I had no doubt of it.—Letter of Benjamin Disraeli to his sister.

A Generous Gift

Professor Munyon has just issued a most beautiful, useful and complete almanac. It contains not only all the scientific information concerning the moon's phases, in all the latitudes, but has illustrated articles on how to read character by phrenology, palmistry and birth month. It also tells all about card reading, birth stones and their meaning, and gives the interpretation of dreams. It teaches beauty culture, manicuring, gives weights and measures and antidotes for poison. In fact, it is a Magazine Almanac, that not only gives valuable information, but will afford much amusement for every member of the family, especially for parties and evening entertainments. Farmers and people in the rural districts will find this Almanac almost invaluable.

It will be sent to anyone absolutely free on application to the Munyon Remedy Company, Philadelphia, Pa.

THE YOUNG BRIDE'S FIRST DISCOVERY

Their wedding tour had ended, and they entered their new home to settle down to what they hoped to be one long uninterrupted blissful honeymoon.

But, alas! the young bride's troubles soon begin, when she tried to reduce the cost of living with cheap big can baking powders.

She soon discovered that all she got was a lot for her money, and it was not all baking powder, for the bulk of it was cheap materials which had no leavening power. Such powders will not make light wholesome food. And because of the absence of leavening gas, it requires from two or three times as much to raise cake or biscuits as it does of Calumet Baking Powder.

Thus, eventually, the actual cost to you, of cheap baking powders, is more than Calumet would be.

Cheap baking powders often leave the bread bleached and acid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and often unpalatable. They are not always of uniform strength and quality.

Now the bride buys Calumet—the perfectly wholesome baking powder, moderate in price, and always uniform and reliable. Calumet keeps indefinitely, makes cooking easy, and is certainly the most economical after all.

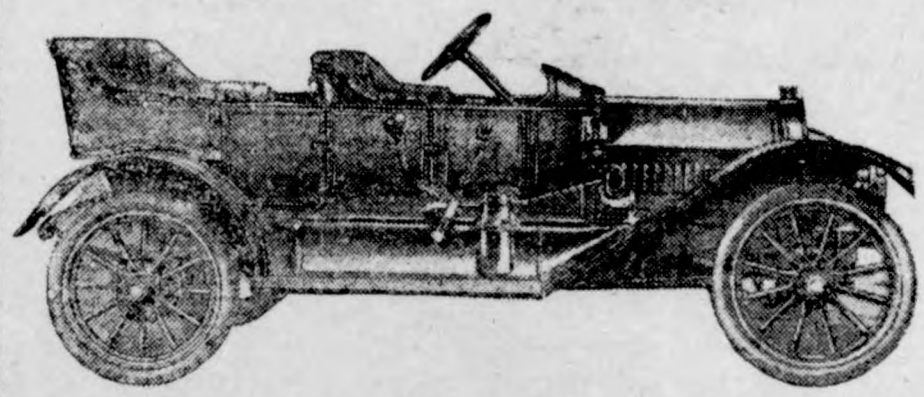
THE IMPERIAL

"THE GET THERE KIND"



It is with pleasure that we advertise the IMPERIAL. When so doing it is hard to say too much in favor of this line of IMPERIAL Automobiles. They have the record up-to-date for running and covering more miles of hard road-going, with the least expense, least adjustments.

The Burd Auto Co., Waterloo, Iowa, says: "The Imperial Automobile has not been equaled yet regardless of price." They run out 37 last season. Up to date there hasn't been one adjustment made. Their contract calls for 100 Imperials for 1911.

The Imperial is built in ten models, from a 35 H. P. two-passenger gentleman's Roadster, to a 60 H. P. seven passenger touring car. Buy the car that bears the name IMPERIAL, and get a dollar's worth of automobile for every dollar you invest.

Appropriations Committee Recommends State Assistance

MORE MONEY FOR DAIRY WORK

To Be Expended Solely to Advance Scientific Dairying Under the Direction of a Committee of Seven.

Des Moines.—The Iowa State Dairy association will get another appropriation of $10,000 from the state, if the legislature follows the recommendations of the senate committee on appropriations.

This body decided to report the measure out to the senate with the recommendation that it be passed.

The bill was introduced and is being fathered by Senator DeWolf of Grundy. It provides that the state will give $10,000 to the Iowa State Dairy association when a statement is filed with the secretary of state showing the organization to have 500 members.

The money is to be expended solely to advance scientific dairying in Iowa and is to be used only under the direction of a committee of seven, of which the governor is an ex-officio member. This committee consists of the officers of the association, the dean of the state college at Ames and the professor of dairying at that institution. The state food and dairy commissioner is also an ex-officio member of the finance committee.

A similar bill was passed by the last legislature, and it is claimed by the dairymen that the fund has been used to great advantage in this state.

To Inspect Domestic Animals.

Domestic animals must be inspected before being shipped into the state of Iowa, according to a bill introduced by Felt of Clay county. Transportation companies will be subject to a fine of from $500 to $1,000 if they transport into Iowa animals having infectious or contagious diseases. All shipments of domestic animals must be accompanied with health certificates from state or government veterinarians. If the certificate is not obtained, the animals will be stopped at the first station within the state until inspected properly.

Carriers Must Pay Loss.

Common carriers must adjust or pay all claims for loss or damage to property in transit or overcharges within certain limits of time and pay 6 per cent on all such claims overlapping the limit, according to a bill introduced by Moore of Linn county. The limit for freight delivered from points within the state is sixty days and from points outside the state, ninety days. The measure also provides for recovery of attorney fees in cases of failure of the railroad to adjust and pay claims within the limit of time.

New Exemption Bill.

The ways and means committee looked with favor on the bill by Senator Balkema of Sioux, which subjects 10 per cent of the wages of a married man who receives more than $40 a month to execution upon a judgment. The measure will be reported with the recommendation that it be passed

WILL MAKE PRISONERS WORK

What They Earn Should Go to Their Families Is the Committee's Opinion.

Able bodied prisoners in the jails of the state ought to be made to work and the wages they earn should go to their families, is the opinion of the senate judiciary committee.

The latter body decided to report out for passage the bill by Ream of Mahaska, making it possible for the boards of supervisors of all counties to put able bodied prisoners between the ages of 16 and 60 years, out at work.

The only restriction is that the men do not work under any contract system and that in no case shall their pay be more than $1 a day. It is further provided that they are not to be clothed and marked in any way so as to humiliate them, but that in case any prisoner may try to escape, a ball and chain may be attached to his leg.

All money earned by the prisoners in this manner is to be turned over to their families.

Five Mile Bill Not Dead.

Under the pressure of sharp parliamentary jockeying the Smith five-mile limit bill was forced onto the house calendar despite the fact that the house committee on the suppression of intemperance had recommended that it be indefinitely postponed and the house had previously accepted the recommendation.

George of Story called up his motion to reconsider the vote by which the house on February 25 accepted the committee report. Klay of Sioux and Dawson of Cherokee spoke for the motion to reconsider, and Koontz of Johnson against it. The motion carried, 61 to 34.

Schee of O'Brien moved to postpone till March 24th all further consideration of the report and the bill. Klay amended by asking immediate consideration and demanding a roll call. Klay's amendment won, 66 to 29. Klay then moved that the committee report be rejected.

New Iowa Corporations.

Farmers' Shipping company, Kimballton, capital stock, $15,000; incorporators, N. A. Hanson, Peter Peterson, Chris Christensen, H. P. Bonnesen, Paul Bjorn, Lars Christensen.

Farmers' Mutual Co-operative Creamery company, Orange City, capital stock, $10,000; incorporators, John Nieuwenberg, J. Van Klomplenberg, A. Heemstra, E. J. Kraai, M. Korver, A. B. DeHaan, W. Huesman.

Owens Grove Telephone company, Mason City, R. R. No. 3; mutual; incorporators, A. L. Runyan, Elmer Deach, J. H. Woodward, Evan Jenkins, Rinaldo Richardson, S. S. Stevens.

Abolish Treasurer.

The bill by Senator Hammill abolishing the office of school treasurer was called up and discussed.

Senator Hammill urged its passage from the standpoint of economy and wisdom, claiming that the school treasurers in the past have cost the state of Iowa $170,000 annually and that the school funds have always been the cause of a war between banks and school officers. His bill puts all the school funds in the hands of the county treasurer.

Salary Bill Wins.

The house by a vote of 66 for to 4 against it, passed the Cunningham bill giving power to the state agricultural department to fix the salary of the state fair secretary, and take the funds from the state fair receipts.

Beebe of Franklin presented an amendment providing that the salary to be so fixed by the board should not exceed $5,000 per year. The amendment was adopted.

Would Prohibit Highway Blocks.

Representative McCullough of Dubuque county introduced a bill in the house making it unlawful to obstruct public highways. The measure imposes a penalty of $100 or thirty days' imprisonment upon anyone who obstructs the public highways. The township trustees and members of county boards of supervisors are subject to the same penalties for failure to remove obstructions.

To Put Roads In Same Class.

Street railway companies and interurbans are put in the same class as railway companies and subject to the same provisions of the law insofar as being liable for wrongs done employes, by a bill introduced in the senate by Sullivan of Polk. Heretofore interurbans and street railways have not operated under the same provisions of the law as the steam roads.

House Passes Bill for Fifth Judge.

The house passed the Sullivan bill creating the fifth judge in Polk county. The bill, as amended, must go to the senate for passage.

The appointment of the fifth judge is a subject of much discussion. Governor Carroll's choice, it is said, will be either O. M. Brockett or Mose Cohen.

WEAK BACKS MADE STRONG

Backache in most cases is kidney ache, and usually accompanied by irregularities of the urine. To remove the pain and weakness, you must cure the kidneys. Do as with Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. Rosa Weimann, 1927 Grenwood Terrace, Chicago, Ill., says: "The intense rheumatic pains were my back, I felt like screaming. The gradually became more severe until they ran all over my body. I could not sleep and could hardly move. I steadily grew worse until I could scarcely open or close my hands. No relief was obtained until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. Soon I felt better and ere long the pain left me. Remember the name—Doan's. For sale by all dealers, 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

STRIKING PEOPLE DIFFERENTLY

Servant—Heavens I have knocked the big flower pot off the window ledge, and it struck a man on the head.

Mistress—What! My beautiful Majolica?

WOULD LIE AWAKE ALL NIGHT WITH ITCHING ECZEMA

"Ever since I can remember I was a terrible sufferer of eczema and other irritating skin diseases. I would lie awake all night, and my suffering was intolerable. A scaly humor settled on my back, and being but a child, I naturally scratched it. It was a burning, itching sensation, utterly intolerable, in fact, it was so that I could not possibly forget about it. It did not take long before it spread to my shoulders and arms, and I was almost covered with a mass of raw flesh on account of my scratching it. I was in such a condition that my hands were tied.

"A number of physicians were consulted, but it seemed beyond their medical power and knowledge to cure me. Having tried numerous treatments without deriving any benefit from them, I had given myself up to the mercy of my dreadful malady, when I thought I would take the Cuticura treatment as a last resort. Words cannot express my gratitude to the one who created 'The Cuticura Miracles,' as I have named them, for now I feel as if I never suffered from even a pimple. My disease was routed by Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and I shall never cease praising the wonderful merits they contain. I will never be without them, in fact, I can almost dare any skin diseases to attack me so long as I have Cuticura Remedies in the house. I hope that this letter will give other sufferers an idea of how I suffered, and also hope that they will not pass the 'Cuticura Labor Saving Station.'" (Signed) C. Lorenz Green, 929 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 29, 1910.

A Matter of Size.

Wife—I want a cap, please, for my husband.

Shopkeeper—Yes, madam. What size does he wear?

Wife—Well, I really forget. His collars are size sixteen, though I expect he'd want about size eighteen or twenty for a cap, wouldn't he?

MISS SELINA LUE and the Soap-box Babies

SYNOPSIS.

Selina Lue, spinster grocery-store of River Bluff and guardian angel community, presides over an im- tu day nursery for the babies of eighborhood in the rear of the Her charges are kept in soap and are known as the "Soap-Box ." The fact that she is single her somewhat of an object of thy to the mothers, although pos- of stronger maternal instinct than of them.

her door she was welcomed with siasm. Miss Cynthia Page stood e top step, in her arms a baby was uttering a protest against world in general, and Miss Cyn- in particular, in such a stac- volume of voice that his could but be a surprise to beholder. On the floor his exact terpart, except in the matter of —that of counterpart being of the known in some walks of life as gold but called on the Bluff "car- —sat with solemn eyes chewing ring and clutching determinedly e hem of Miss Cynthia's white skirt with grimy hands. Just d him a pink-clad little bunch succeeded in squirming between pickle barrel and a large bushel et of snap-beans, and only the quarters and ten pink toes of the rer evidenced her whereabouts. a certain ecstatic wave of one t might be suspected that a find been made and was being secret- d rapidly consumed. In the mid- of the floor another infant lay e, with legs and arms waving tically, resembling nothing more an overturned beetle helpless in appeal to be righted before the d. And from behind the counter the left there issued a voice, a e that rose and wailed an accom- iment to the Flarity in Cynthia's s that could not but impress the rer. It was no fretful cry for at- tion and amusement, but was the l of a soul in torment, hungry, hot, htened, with a pain all over and spots.

Dearie me!" exclaimed Miss Selina . "You all seem to be upsot!" d as she spoke she took the wailer m Miss Cynthia and reaching for rrots on the floor, tucked him un- the same arm with his brother, ile she drew out by one foot the lorer and revealed the treasure, nd to be a snap-bean, now partly sumed. The beetle shared the hol- of her arm with the explorer, but voice from behind the counter iled on unpacified.

'Miss Cynthia, honey, please pick Clemmie from behind there and ng her on back here to the boxes." ss Selina Lue spoke of the boxes as stalls in a training stable. "What- er did you let them out for? I am raid you was pestered to death with m."

"Oh, Miss Selina Lue, they all be- n to cry at once and I didn't know hat to do," apologized Miss Cynthia s she struggled to the back of the ore with the voice in her arms still aking itself heard, though the sight Miss Selina Lue had brought it own a note or two.

"Oh, that's all right; crying's good r 'em, the darlings," said Miss Selina ue as she deposited the wriggling ad on the floor.

There was a large south window at he back of the grocery, and a morn- g-glory vine peeped in on one side nd clutched with little tendril fingers t a group of sides of bacon that hung n the wall. A large yellow cat tretched on the sill in the sun, which oured in over him to the floor. anged back from the heat, but in the ool breeze, were five empty soap box- s, capacious and clean, with calico ushions stuffed down each back. Miss elina Lue shook out each cushion nd deposited theron a baby, picked rom the group on the floor. Carrots ame last and was enthroned with are on a "chiny-blue" cushion.

"Ain't he too sweet on that blue iver?" said Miss Selina Lue as she moothed the flaming kinks. A ten- der hand ran over each bobbing head nd peace reigned in the River Bluff grocery, whose back regions were giv- en over to a hospitable day nursery conducted on entirely original and al- so utterly unremunerative lines by its owner. With Miss Selina Lue to love was to minister, and she never dreamed that she was testing a widely- discussed and little practiced philan- thropic measure.

"Miss Selina Lue, you are a wonder! How do you ever manage with them all the time?" ventured Cynthia as she stood by, disheveled and panting. Her cheeks were shell- pink and warm, little gold curls clung to her damp forehead. Her violet eyes were wide with admiration at Miss Selina Lue's generalship, but were given a desperate cast by a huge smudge on the side of her nose which had by accident tried conclusions with that of the vocally strong Clementine. Her hat had been pulled to a rakish angle and the starch was out of her linen blouse. She had the appearance of one who has fought a losing fight.

"Now, Miss Cynthie, honey, they was jest hungry. They's as good as gold most times; but babies is like human beings—they can't always be counted on to do the best they knows. It's time they was fed, and I better be about it. Want to stay and see 'em feed?"

Miss Cynthia had a number of times in her life heard invitations issued from various tented sawdust rings of which she was instantly reminded by Miss Selina Lue, and it was with something of the same feeling of trepidation that she accepted.

"Now," said Miss Selina Lue as she rolled up her sleeves and cleared the deck for action by drawing the boxes into a close semicircle around a three-legged milking stool, "you can see how good I've got 'em trained, the darlings. I cook up this bowl of oatmeal outen that as spills outen the packages what bust, and I pour on a good dose of Charity's new milk, which is that of real human kindness, if she is just a spotted cow."

As she talked she seated herself on the stool and dipped out a spoonful of the sticky porridge dripping with milk.

At Her Door She Was Welcomed With Enthusiasm.

Instantly five small, pink, toothless or partly toothless mouths popped open and five bobbing heads became rigid and five roly-poly necks craned. The moment of suspense was keen. Presto! the spoon descended into the mouth of Blossom, the explorer. Her ecstatic gurgle had four anticipatory echoes. Again the pink caverns yawned and again the poised spoon descended, this time into the rosy lips of Clementine, who swallowed her portion with the remnant of her last sob. The echoes gurgled again and presented open mouths at attention instantly.

"Seems like," said Miss Selina Lue, "they all swallows one another's dinner and gits jest that much more pleasure outen it all. If grown-ups would jest chaw one another's good luck, they could git a heap of satisfaction from it, I say. Now ain't they good, and jest as patient, a-waiting their own turn?"

"Indeed they are just a cunning nest of baby birds, Miss Selina Lue, and you are the mother bird with the worms, the nicest sort of worms. You —you,"—Miss Cynthia hesitated, trying to give coherence to a thought Miss Selina Lue had heard voiced before,—"if you were being mother bird to your own you couldn't——"

"Miss Cynthie, honey," said Miss Selina Lue as she scraped the last drop of milk into the spoon and skillfully administered it to the nodding head of Flarity, the brother of Carrots, "I think the good Lord intended that a mother should come into this world with every child, but sometimes she don't git borned when it does; and sometimes—sometimes the mother is borned and the child ain't there. The mother job is one that ain't cut out to suit everybody and them it fits have got a duty laid on 'em strong, even if it is jest being a kinder soul-mother. Don't let Clemmie fall and cut her head on the edge of her box! She is nodding so and I have to ease down both the Flarities, who is plumb gone. Thanky, child, they are all safe now and I can git to work. Seems like my heart is at rest when I've got 'em asleep in the soap boxes. I sometimes wonder if the Lord don't feel the same way about us grown-ups when he sends the night down to kiver us up in our beds. But then when he's got us all safe asleep the folks over in Chiny wakes and begins they devilitries, so I reckon the Bible is true when it says he neither slumbers nor sleeps."

CHAPTER II.

The New Soap-Boxer.

"Vanity in a man is like a turkey-gobbler a-strutting in November."
—Miss Selina Lue.

"Miss Cynthie, honey, it's a good thing you come down to see me this morning first thing. When you are in town on one of them week-end-and-begins with Miss Evelyn, sweet as she is, I don't rest calm as I might. Seems like, so to speak, I am afraid you will turn over your soap box or bump your head or swallow a fly or something, if you are outen my sight."

"You mean you are sure I will have the strength of mind to refrain from taking in the camel, but are uneasy about my seeing the gnat in time, Miss Selina Lue?" said Miss Cynthia, as she stood smiling before the grocery door where Miss Selina Lue sat, busily engaged in sorting over a basket of June apples.

"Child, I can't always help but have more respect for a great big, sinful camel than a mean, little, busybody gnat that pops in your mouth and does you a injury before you know he's there. And of the two I choose the camel to swallow, if swallow I must. But, dearie one, I've got too much to think about to watch out for either one, and I reckon them as keeps good and busy is protected from wrong-doings, big or little. Set down, honeybunch, and tell me what you've been a-doing."

"How are the babies, and is Ethel Maud's thumb well again?" said Miss Cynthia as she seated herself in the door for a chat.

"The babies are blooming fine, except Clemmie et something that was strange to her and was sick day before yesterday. I hope it wasn't a cockroach, but I have my suspicions from seeing two legs of one on the floor by her. Ethel Maud's thumb is well, but we like ter had a time with her, and a pea in her nose what got stuck up and wouldn't come down no matter how she snorted. But I put a clothespin up above it to keep it from going further up and coaxed it down with a hairpin and a buttonhook. It swelled some but she's all right today."

Miss Cynthia laughed merrily at the idea of Ethel Maud's nose, which was a tiny, turned-up dot, supporting a clothespin and a pea at the same time, and Miss Selina Lue's chuckle showed that she appreciated the humor of the picture. When Miss Cynthia laughed it provoked a smile from everybody in seeing or hearing distance, and Miss Selina Lue's mirth was ever responsive to the slightest call.

"Miss Cynthie, honey," she said after a few minutes, "I've got a new soap box baby and I was mighty anxious for awhile as to how it would be, but now——"

"Oh, Miss Selina Lue, with all you have to do!—another? Where is it? In a box with the others? I am going back to see it," and Miss Cynthia sprang up with alacrity.

"Oh, no! He stays in the barn with Charity and he won't be home till noon, so set down and let me tell you about it, for I mistrust myself in doing it, though the pictures are beautiful. Of course I oughter be willing to do something fer art's sake, which it looks like is jest his love of this beautiful world put right down fer others to see. And then, it's true they ain't another barn about here that's as good as mine to paint in. Anyway, ain't he a stranger within my gates?"

"Miss Selina Lue, what are you talking about? At first it sounded like a baby, then a calf——"

"You'd think it was both by the way it drinks milk, and the helplessness of it, but it's a man."

"A man?"

"Yes, a man! And I ain't sure I had oughter done it, fer a strange man might be a mistake fer a single woman like me to have about the house. But he was that persuading and nice, and I couldn't see no good reason not to take him; so what could I do?"

"Miss Selina Lue," said Miss Cynthia, the dawn of an alarmed wonder showing in her big eyes, "you don't mean—you can't mean that you have got married while I——"

"Child," said Miss Selina Lue, "don't never ask me that question again! When they buried all of Adoniram Millsaps they could find to bring home from the explosion, the marrying part of me went into the grave with the fragmints and I ain't seen fit to ever dig it up again. Though there is many a good woman as have done that very thing after having been married to they husband fer years before they lost him. But I ain't one to criticize 'em for it, 'cause some seem to think it compliments one good husband to git another,—and maybe it do."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Lacked Length of Legs.

A large pompous person, wearing a high-hat, a long coat, yellow spats and a congenital sneer, for several days made himself obnoxious around a Washington hotel a bit ago.

He announced he was from New York, nagged the bellboys, jawed the clerks, cussed the service, roared at the food, complained about his room and the elevator and the telephones and the bar, and everything else.

One afternoon he walked over to the porter and said: "Here you, I'm going to quit this town and go back to New York, where I can get some decent service. I want you to buy me two seats in a parlor car on the 4 o'clock New York train. Get me two seats now, and meet me at the station with the tickets. I want one chair to sit in and one to put my feet in."

The seats were delivered at the train just before it pulled out. One of the seats was in car No. 3 and the other was located in car No. 4.—Cleveland Leader.

May Teach Monkeys to Talk.

The monkey is not only more intelligent than the parrot, but is even more imitative. It is (excepting man) the only creature on earth that is capable of articulate speech. Prof. Bell believes that apes can be taught, at all events, to say a few words—at first by manipulation of their mouths and throats, as is done with the deaf born. We may live, he thinks, to hear chimpanzees talk, and with some degree of understanding of their own remarks.

Omen Quickly True.

Hostess—Mr. Squibs is going to recite a comic song.

Guest—I knew something would happen. I upset the salt at the dinner table.—Stray Stories.

What Goats Eat.

A goat eats only one-eighth as much as a cow, but gives more than that proportion of milk.

It doesn't take half the effort to smile over a trouble that it does to tell all about it to everybody you meet.

Stage thunder brings no showers of spiritual blessing.

RHEUMATISM

Munyon's Rheumatism Remedy relieves pains in the legs, arms, back, stiff or swollen joints. Contains no morphine, opium, cocaine or drugs to deaden the pain. It neutralizes the acid and drives out all rheumatic poisons from the system. Write Prof. Munyon, 53d and Jefferson Sts., Phila., Pa., for medical advice, absolutely free.

All Depends.

"Want a good anecdote about a statesman?"

"Was he re-elected?"

Constipation causes and aggravates many serious diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. The favorite family laxative.

THIRST.

"Of all the tortures I should think the most terrible would be to be awfully thirsty where no water could be secured."

"Why water?"

The Tragedy That Wasn't.

He raised the shining knife; his face was dark. The woman before him shrank back a step. The knife fell, plunged into the flesh, again, and once again.

Then the woman spoke thickly:

A Ruling Passion.

"Yes. He couldn't be persuaded to stop looking for that dollar George is said to have thrown across the Potomac."

EDITOR BROWNE
Of The Rockford Morning Star.

"About seven years ago I ceased drinking coffee to give your Postum a trial.

"I had suffered acutely from various forms of indigestion and my stomach had become so disordered as to repel almost every sort of substantial food. My general health was bad. At close intervals I would suffer severe attacks which confined me in bed for a week or more. Soon after changing from coffee to Postum the indigestion abated, and in a short time ceased entirely. I have continued the daily use of your excellent Food Drink and assure you most cordially that I am indebted to you for the relief it has brought me.

"Wishing you a continued success, I am Yours very truly,
J. Stanley Browne,
Managing Editor."

Of course, when a man's health shows he can stand coffee without trouble, let him drink it, but most highly organized brain-workers simply cannot.

The drugs natural to the coffee berry affect the stomach and other organs and thence to the complex nervous system, throwing it out of balance and producing disorders in various parts of the body. Keep up this daily poisoning and serious disease generally supervenes. So when man or woman finds that coffee is a smooth but deadly enemy and health is of any value at all, there is but one road—quit.

It is easy to find out if coffee be the cause of the troubles, for if left off 10 days and Postum be used in its place and the sick and diseased conditions begin to disappear, the proof is unanswerable.

Postum is not good if made by short boiling. It must be boiled full 15 minutes after boiling begins, when the crisp flavor and the food elements are brought out of the grains and the beverage is ready to fulfill its mission of palatable comfort and renewing the cells and nerve centers broken down by coffee.

"There's a Reason."

QUALITY QUALITY

Quality Chick Food

is a food prepared for young chix. We have used it ourselves for two years and have found it to be the best balanced ration on the market—no foul seeds, no rice, and nothing but the best grain money can buy. Those who have used QUALITY have found it to be just the right thing for chicks just hatched and until they are ready for a larger feed. Have a hatch in the window in our store that have had nothing but QUALITY and you will find them good strong healthy chicks. Come in and see our feed before you buy. Have QUALITY in 3 sizes 25c Package, $1 Package, and in 100 lb lots at $2 50 per hundred.

Quality Quality

We wish you to read carefully and digest fully the statement that follows, made by the local selling agent, traveling salesman and creamery buttermaker. You will notice that they state the internal parts of the Interlocking Separator were washed clean and left in a perfectly sanitary condition in ten seconds. Of course you recognize that this is an extreme case and they had everything convenient but it shows what enterprising and quick moving operators can do in washing the Interlocking Separator.

We have demonstrated thousands of times that there is no Separator on the market that can be washed thoroughly clean in so short a time as the Interlocking.

THE NAME

UNITED STATES SEPARATOR

is all the guarantee necessary when buying a 1909 Model U. S. Cream Separator.

You can't be half as particular about the material, workmanship and durability as the makers of the United States Separators are.

The 1909 Model United States Cream Separators have smaller bowls than ever before and every separator before leaving the factory. It is the motto of the manufacturers not to see how cheap the U. S. can be made, but how strong and everlastingly durable they can be constructed.

Is Thoroughly Tested

We know the U. S. is the cleanest skimmer and the BEST in every respect and we want you to know it. Call and examine the 1909 Model United States Cream Separator.

U.S. SOLD BY

The reason for this is very apparent, if you stop to consider, and that is the statement and claim we have repeatedly made, that the same force which separates the cream, viz., centrifugal force, washes the sections clean in an instant, if the instructions are followed. Every man can do it as quick as this if he practices on it.

The statement is as follows –

Early, Iowa, Feb. 1st, 1911.

This is to certify that we, the undersigned dairymen, witnessed a demonstration of a No. 16 U. S. Interlocking Cream Separator at the Creamery this morning and see the skimming device washed clean and in a sanitary condition in just ten seconds by the watch, after skimming 40 lbs. of milk at normal temperature, delivering cream that tested 60 per cen butter fat, skim-milk test three-hundredths of one per cent."

A Few Facts About the Cyphers Incubator

The Cyphers Incubator is a self regulator, that is, after it is once regulated it is almost neglect proof. It holds a more even temperature than any other make of Incubator, can be run with one-tenth the care that is necessary in running a hot water machine. A Cyphers can be run in the cellar the year round, and you can with a Cyphers start a hatch whenever you please; you don't have to wait until the middle of April or first of May to start it, and you don't have to sleep with it nights after you have started it. Come in and look at our line of Cyphers Incubators and Brooders Try one and be convinced. We have also on hand a few hot water machines that we will sell very reasonable. They are made by the Des Moines Incubator Co. and are considered the best hot water machine on the market. We have on hand at present one 150 egg Eclipse and a 250-egg Successful both new machines and both manufactured by above company.

It does beat all how quick the weather can and does change. Tuesday was a mild, balmy day up to about five o'clock in the afternoon. when a stiff breeze began to blow down from old Medicine Hat and in a few hours the mercury went back down to mid winter position.

William Schuldt arrived in Klemme the past week from Colorado. And thereby hangs a pretty good record for travel. We believe Will is a young man of about eighteen summers, and an equal number of winters, and he made the trip from Colorado on his pony, unaccompanied, and he consumed only a little over three weeks on the whole trip of about 800 miles. It seems to us that this is a pretty good record for a boy to hang up and it would be hard for anyone to beat.

Win Prizes in Missouri Contest.

Ames.—The famous "five-acre farm" contest held by the state poultry board of Missouri has just closed. This contest consisted in laying out a five-acre poultry farm, drawing plans for all the buildings and giving a detailed estimate of the profit and loss for three years. There were more than 200 contestants from nineteen different states. The following are the names of the first three winners: Frank E. Mixa, Ames, five-acre farm; Miss Lillie S. Tidwell, Arkansas City, Kas., Prairie State incubator; Rud H. Hicken, Ames, Ia., five sacks poultry feed.

F. E. Mixa, who won first and has had five acres of Missouri land deeded to him by the governor of Missouri, is superintendent of the Iowa State college poultry farm. Mr. R. H. Hicken, who came in third, is also an Iowa boy and a student taking poultry work at Iowa state college.

Plans New Auto Road.

Hampton.—Good roads and dairy meetings are in session here. Prentice Rawson, good road expert; W. B. Barney, state dairy commissioner; Professor Van Pelt, state dairy expert, and F. L. Odell, government dairy expert, are in charge of the meetings.

There has been considerable talk favoring the putting through of an automobile road from Ackley to Sheffield. The road would begin at Ackley and run through Geneva, Hampton, Chapin and then to Sheffield.

Church Burns at Waterloo.

Waterloo.—Fire of unknown origin in the choir loft Sunday morning, destroyed the $5,000 pipe organ and damaged the new First Methodist $75,000 church to the extent of $15,000 and forced a postponement of the dedicatory exercises which were to have been held later in the day. The loss is fully covered by insurance.

Pupils' Teeth Examined.

Waterloo.—Waterloo is the first city in the state to have a complete examination of the teeth of grade pupils made at the instance of the board of education and superintendent, and the results of the recent examination of nearly 2,000 children in West Waterloo will be awaited with interest.

Mumma Will be Promoted.

Iowa City.—Lieut. Mumma, Eleventh cavalry, commandant of cadets here, will get a promotion to captaincy because of the passage by congress of the bill promoting several hundred officers. He is likely to be assigned as inspector general of the Iowa National Guard.

Accepts Appointment.

New York.—John Gabborth Bowman recently secretary of the Carnegie foundation, will be the youngest college president in the United States so far as statistics here show.

Mr. Bowman, who is 33 years old has accepted the presidency of the Iowa State university in a letter sent to the Iowa state board of education yesterday.

Mr. Bowman is a graduate of the university whose affairs he will direct. He came to this city in 1904, took a post graduate course at Columbia university was appointed to his present position in 1906. The Iowa State university which has nearly 1,800 students and 100 instructors, sent him a call to the presidency several weeks ago.

Butter Makers to Help Barney.

Des Moines.—Forty creamery men from Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Minnesota and Illinois met in Des Moines and appointed a committee to assist Food and Dairy Commissioner Barney in the enforcement of the Iowa pure food laws. The committee appointed to assist Mr. Barney is made up of J. W. Fowler, Grinnell; H. B. Dunlap, Des Moines; W. S. Wilcox, Mason City; F. A. Leighton, Des Moines and J. J. Jeck, Atlantic.

How to better the butter making of Iowa was the principal subject for discussion.

Cold Storage Houses Blamed.

Des Moines.—Cold storage house owners are responsible for the high prices prevalent during the winter on butter and eggs and other produce, according to Henry Rhynsburger of Pella, president of the Iowa Wholesale Butter and Egg Dealers' association in an address before that body at the annual convention. Mr. Rhynsburger declared that better prices can be realized the year round for producer and dealer alike when a steady flow of the marketable goods is maintained.

At Work for "Greater Iowa."

Waterloo.—Plans have been arranged for starting a Greater Iowa industrial movement in the city. Mayor John R. Rector and representatives of commercial bodies of the city were present at the meeting, presided over by W. W. Marsh.

Trustees of the townships of Black Hawk county will be invited to be present at a dinner in this city Friday afternoon, March 24, with delegations from all commercial bodies in northeastern and northern Iowa.

Storm Lake Veteran Fire Fighters.

Storm Lake.—At the close of the firemen's ball, Fire Chief A. R. Biddle was presented with a gold chief's pin by the veteran fire fighters of the department. Chief Biddle has the distinction of being the oldest fire chief, in point of service, in the United States. He has served as chief of the Storm Lake department for thirty-two years and has in his company twelve firemen who have served under him for thirty years.

Eighty Per Cent to be Dry.

Des Moines.—Eighty per cent of Iowa is to be "dry" territory the next five years under existing laws of the state.

This is the report from the various counties as to the status of the "wet" vs. "dry" controversies.

There are seventy-two counties where the prohibitory law is in full force and effect; sixteen that have already gone for saloons, ten still undecided or in litigation.

University of Iowa President.

Iowa City.—Prof. John G. Bowman, secretary of the Carnegie foundation, who has just accepted the presidency of the University of Iowa to succeed George E. MacLean resigned, will assume his new duties next September. During the latter part of this term he leaves for a tour of Europe, returning to America just in time to get to Iowa City for the opening of the first semester.

Many to Witness Ceremony.

Fort Dodge.—Two hundred and fifty invitations have been forwarded to dignitaries of the Catholic church and laymen friends of Monsignor J. T. Saunders, inviting them to witness his investiture as monsignor on St. Patrick's day, March 17. Bishop P. J. Garrigan of Sioux City, Bishop Davis of Davenport and Monsignor Flavin of Chicago will take part in the ceremonies of investiture.

Former Iowan Burned.

Monticello.—Brooks Grant, formerly a resident of Hopkinton, was badly burned while experimenting with chemicals in the laboratory of the Fort Worth (Texas) university. The chemicals exploded in his face, putting out both eyes and so badly burning him he may die.

Denison Man Dies In South.

Denison.—A telegram from Florida conveys the news of the death of George W. Nicholson, one of the leading business men of Denison. For many years he was a heavy dealer in butter and eggs at Vail, Grand Junction and Denison.

RAILROAD MAN WRITES REMARKABLE LETTER

In 1903 and 1904, I was a terrible sufferer for about five months with kidney and bladder trouble. I could not sleep nights and was obliged to get up ten or fifteen times to urinate. I passed mucus and blood continually. One doctor said I was going into consumption and gave me up to die. Had two other doctors but received no help from either of them and am sure I would have been in my grave had I not seen your advertisement in the "Daily Eagle Star." After taking several bottles of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root I was entirely cured.

In the last two years I have been a railroad fireman and have passed two examinations for my kidneys successfully, so that I know that my kidneys are in excellent condition now as a result of your great preparation, Swamp-Root.

Yours very truly,
GEORGE KENSLER,
1422 Mary St.
Marinette, Wis.

Personally appeared before me this 25th of September, 1909, George Kensler, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

HENRY GRAASS,
Notary Public,
Door County, Wis.

Letter to Dr. Kilmer & Co. Binghamton, N. Y.

Prove What Swamp-Root Will Do For You

Send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. It will convince anyone. You will also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling all about the kidneys and bladder. When writing, be sure and mention this paper. For sale at all drug stores. Price fifty-cents and one-dollar.

In Its Due Order.

Champ Clark, at a dinner in Washington, pleaded indulgence for a somewhat rambling speaker.

"He'll arrive," said the Democratic leader, "if you'll only give him time. He is like Dr. Thirdly.

"Dr. Thirdly was dividing up his sermon into its appropriate heads one Sunday morning when a member of the congregation shouted irascibly:

"'Meat, man! Give us meat!'

"'Well,' said Dr. Thirdly promptly, 'hold on, then, till I'm done carving.'"

MILD, GENTLE LAXATIVE FOR WOMEN GIVEN FREE

So many of the ills of women are due to habitual constipation, probably because of their false modesty on the subject, that their attention cannot be too strongly called to the importance of keeping the bowels open. It is always important to do that, regardless of the sex, but it is especially important in women.

From the time the girl begins to menstruate until menstruation ceases she has always vastly better prospects of coming through healthy if she watches her bowel movements. If you find yourself constipated, with bad breath, pimply complexion, headaches, belching gas and other symptoms of indigestion and constipation, take a small dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a woman's favorite laxative. You will find that you can do away with salts, strong cathartics, etc., which are entirely unsuited to woman's delicate ments.

Mrs. Katherine Haberstroh of Mill Rocks, Pa., and Mrs. A. E. Herrick Wheeler, Mich., who was almost paralyzed in her stomach and bowels, are cured by the use of this remedy. A sample bottle can be obtained by addressing Dr. Caldwell, and after you are convinced of its merits buy it of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle.

For the free sample address Dr. W. Caldwell, 201 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Agricultural Exhibit of Great Northern Ry., at 315 Seventh St., Des Moines

As a part of their "Back to the Farm" movement, the Great Northern railway has just installed, at 315 Seventh street, Des Moines, Ia., an exhibit of grains, fruits and grasses raised in Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Washington and Oregon along the Great Northern railway.

Attractive literature, containing data and statistics, is freely distributed. The exhibits, showing the fertility of the free homestead lands in Montana and Oregon, are specially interesting. There are fifty million acres of free homestead land along the Great Northern railway that are available for various kinds of agriculture.

A cordial invitation is extended all to call at the exhibition room, 315 Seventh street, when in Des Moines. Mr. W. M. Romine, district passenger agent of the Great Northern railway, will furnish information on request.

IN HUGE LANDSLIDE

But Four Survivors of Accident at Shaft Near Virginia, Minn.

THIRTY MINERS ARE TRAPPED

Avalanche Came Without Warning And Extended 100 Feet Beyond Where the Victims Were Entombed—3 Recovered

Duluth, Minn., March 13.—Thirty men were caught in a great slide of earth at the Norman mine near Virginia last night. The pit is 125 feet deep and was more than half filled by the avalanche which came without warning and extended 100 feet beyond where the victims were entombed. There are only four survivors, all injured, three of them probably fatally crushed.

Three bodies were recovered by rescuing parties. The others still remain beneath the debris. The dead are mostly Finlanders and Austrians, several of them leaving large families. The news of the disaster caused a rush of sobbing women and children to the pit.

LEGISLATORS ARE NOT GUILTY

Pemberton and Clark Freed of Charge of Conspiring to Secure Money for Votes.

Springfield, Ill., March 13.—At 9:45 o'clock last night, after three and one-half hours of deliberation, in which twenty-one ballots were taken, the jury in the trial of State Senator Stanton C. Pemberton, and of former Representative Joseph Clark of Vandalia, charged with entering into a conspiracy to secure money corruptly for their votes in awarding the contract of the furnishing of the senate and house chambers of the state house, returned a verdict of "not guilty."

Four Miners Entombed.

Gilbert, Minn., March 13.—Captain Benny and three miners are entombed 250 feet down in the Elba mine. Through an iron pipe three inches in diameter, air is being transmitted to them and the continued rappings upon this pipe encourage the rescuing parties to believe the four may be reached tomorrow. Benny and his companions were caught at 4 o'clock this afternoon on the first level by a cave-in of ore and rock. The rock was piled up many feet high.

The Senatorial Vote.

Des Moines, March 13.—There was no change in the last ballot for United States senator. The attendance was light, and the voting slow. The names of several legislators were called several times to secure a response. The result was as follows:

Candidates	Mar. 10	Mar. 11
Deemer (R)	56	51
Porter (D)	52	47
Kenyon (R)	45	41

Iowa Millers Will Meet.

Des Moines, March 13.—A. L. Goetz of Chicago, secretary and treasurer of the Millers' National Federation will be present at the annual convention of the Iowa Millers' which meets in this city on the 15th. Notices of the convention were sent out yesterday to 350 millers in the state.

Claims Breach of Promise.

Bloomfield, March 13.—In the Davis county district court with Judge Shelberger on the bench, the first case for trial, a breach of promise suit, will begin today. Mary E. Wilson has brought suit against John McCarty. The plaintiff is 69 years of age and the defendant 77.

Road's Money Released.

Council Bluffs, March 13.—Judge W. D. Wheeler of the district court has issued an order releasing $8,200 of $20,000 tax money tied up in Cass county, Ia., by injunction, the same to be used in the payment of the claims of laborers of the Atlantic, Northern & Southern railroad.

Fire at Picture Show.

Waterloo, March 13.—Fire in the Orpheum theatre, a motion picture show, last evening did damage to the house to the sum of about $500 and painfully injured the operator.

MUST BE PERFECTION

SALAD NEVER A DISH THAT CAN BE SLIGHTED.

Clear Judgment and Much Care for This Absolutely Indispensable Adjunct of the Modern Dinner Table.

Among the luxuries of our bills of fare there is not one that is more appreciated by everyone than a well-made salad; there is no department of cooking that demands clearer judgment in making and serving than this same salad; while all kinds, from the richest to the simplest, depend on the materials selected and their wise combination.

All salads should be served very cold and long standing injures them. Therefore make the dressing and place it near the ice in the cooler before preparing the salad proper. When ready to serve, chill the bowl and the individual salad plate if you would have your salad at its best.

Bread and butter sandwiches or Boston brown bread thinly sliced and delicately spread with fresh butter and filled with a shredded lettuce leaf sprinkled with ground nuts may be served with any salad. But with lobster, shrimp or fish salad, "brunettes" are the proper caper; they are made from the white bread and butter sandwiches filled with Neufchatel and minced cress. Mutton sandwiches are liked with vegetable salads. They are seasoned with herbs, as mint, pepper grass, celery, salt, curry and minced pickles.

For potato salad prepare cheese straws, or spread graham bread with a mixture of snappy cheese and the hard boiled yolk of eggs and seasoning. The home-made cheese straws are far better than the made ones, that are sold in cartons, and will keep as well; they may be reheated just before using.

Miss Grauel's recipe for cheese straws: These are particularly nice, and, if cut evenly, look dainty. Grate three tablespoonfuls of dry, highly seasoned cheese, to it put one-half pint of sifted flour seasoned with salt and paprika; rub together with a tablespoon of butter and cold water as for pastry. Turn onto the floured baking board and roll out thin. Cut half the paste into straws and the rest into rings. Bake until yellow and crisp in a moderate oven and serve with the straws laid in the rings.

Rich and elaborate salads are served as a course by themselves, but when a salad is to accompany a meat course, it should be simple in character and served on individual salad plates. Very often the salad is placed on such plates and the dressing passed with it on a separate boat or bowl; this manner has much to commend it.

With duck, rich fish and water fowl, acid salads are served. These are made with a good allowance of lime, lemon juice or Tarragon vinegar. Cheese is passed with all green salads and black coffee and saltines go with all accompaniments.

Sweet drinks, as punch and fruit drinks, are never served with fruit or sweet salad.

Philadelphia Ice Cream.

Allow a quarter of a good vanilla bean and seven ounces of sugar to each quart of cream. Split the bean in halves, scrape out the seeds and mix them with the sugar. Cut the pod into small pieces, add to it one-half the cream, add the sugar and stir in a double boiler over the fire until the sugar is thoroughly dissolved and the cream hot. Strain and stand aside to cool. When cold add the remaining cream, turn the mixture into the freezing can, pack and turn rapidly until the mixture begins to freeze, keeping the motion perfectly even. Turn more slowly for a few moments, remove the dasher, repack and stand aside for two hours to mellow.

Corned Beef Croquettes.

Take two cups of cold corned beef cut fine; season with mustard; moisten with vinegar; then melt two and one-half tablespoons butter, add one-third cup of flour and gradually one cup of milk; when thickened remove from the fire and add the seasoned corned beef; spread on a plate to cool; then shape, allowing one rounding tablespoon to each croquette; add two tablespoons of water to the whites of two eggs; dip in crumbs, then in egg, then crumbs again; fry in deep fat and drain on brown paper.

A Novel Relish.

Guests at an informal luncheon were at first puzzled by a dainty looking relish brought on with the meat. Not until tasted was the secret revealed, when they discovered that the crisp, brown little tubes, about two inches in length, were of celery. Large, firm stalks were chosen, and after being cut were dipped in egg and cracker crumbs, fried in deep fat or sauteed in butter, and were served with a brown sauce. In the original instance this vegetable was served with fowl. It is also nice with fish.

Rheumatism Advice

Gives Prominent Doctor's Best Prescription—Is Easily Mixed.

"Get one ounce of syrup of Sarsaparilla compound and one ounce of Toris compound. Then get half a pint of good whisky and put the other two ingredients into it. Take a tablespoonful of this mixture before each meal and at bed time. Shake the bottle before using." This is not new in this city as many of the worse cases of rheumatism and back-ache have been cured by it. Good results come the first day. Any druggist has these ingredients on hand or will quickly get them from his wholesale house. Any one can mix them.

Snappy.

"Ten cents' worth of canine pepper," said the litttle boy in the suburban store."

"Canine!" echoed the astonished clerk. "Why, my little man, I guess you mean cayenne pepper."

The little boy was doubtful.

"Maybe I do, mister," he hesitated, "but mamma said it was the kind of pepper that had a sharp bite, so I thought it was 'canine.'"

LOW COLONIST FARES

are now in effect to California, and shrewd, far-sighted persons are taking advantage of them to visit that state and buy land in the famous Marcuse tract in Sutter County, near Sacramento, California, because the rise in value that will inevitably follow the holding of the Pan-American Exposition, San Francisco in 1915, will bring them handsome returns, to say nothing of the good income that can be made from fruit raising, dairying, and general farming. A Helpless Invalid

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

A woman who is sick and suffering, and won't at least try a medicine which has the record of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, is, it would almost seem, to blame for her own wretchedness. Read what this woman says:

Richmond, Mo.—"When my second daughter was eighteen months old I was pronounced a hopeless invalid by specialists. I had a consultation of doctors and they said I had a severe case of ulceration. I was in bed for ten weeks, had sinking spells, and was pronounced to be in a dangerous condition. My father insisted that we try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and brought me six bottles. I soon began to improve, and before it had all been taken I was as well and strong as ever,—my friends hardly recognized me so great was the change."—Mrs. Woodson Branstetter, Richmond, Mo.

There are literally hundreds of thousands of women in the United States who have been benefited by this famous old remedy, which was produced from roots and herbs over thirty years ago by a woman to relieve woman's suffering.

Read what another woman says:—

Jonesboro, Texas.—"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for myself and daughter, and consider it unequalled for all female diseases. I would not be without it for anything. I wish every mother in America could be persuaded to use it as there would be less suffering among our sex then. I am always glad to speak a word of praise for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and you are at liberty to use this testimonial."—Mrs. James T. Lawrence, Jonesboro, Texas.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering from the same trouble?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

If the slightest trouble appears which you do not understand, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for her advice—it is free and always helpful.

Clear Soup.

Cook in fireless cooker. Select a 15-cent soup bone with one pound of lean meat. Add three quarts of cold water, three peppercorns, and one onion. Set where it will come to a boil slowly. Add one teaspoonful of salt and half a teaspoonful of celery seed. Simmer eight hours, or until the water is reduced one-half. The next day remove the fat, simmer for ten minutes, strain through a napkin, and heat to the boiling point before serving with croutons.

Small Pointers of Value.

A little baking powder added to the cracker dust in which oysters are fried will greatly improve them.

If your gas range bakes cakes, etc., more quickly on the bottom than the top you can brown them nicely by putting them in the broiler for a few minutes.

When sweeping carpets use cornmeal dampened with kerosene oil. It freshens the color, takes out all dust and is fine for the oiled edges of floors.

Cream Pie.

Heat pint milk to a boil. Add ½ cup sugar, two tablespoons cornstarch, yolks of two eggs. Cook, but do not burn. Take from stove and flavor. Have crust baked and add above. Spread on top beaten whites sweetened Brown in oven.

Ham Hash.

Take equal parts of cold baked potatoes, fine chopped cold ham and fine bread crumbs; mix well and fry for about ten minutes; garnish with slices of hard boiled eggs.

GUMPTION ON THE FARM

The toad is the gardener's friend.

When you don't know just what to do, go in and have a good talk with your wife.

Save your metal roofing by giving it a good coat of paint, and do it before it is too late.

The mountain of work before you can all be worked off if you just keep a cheery heart and peg away.

A man with a large family can live better on the farm, where money grows, than in the city, where money goes

Take time to look into every project that is suddenly sprung on you. Life's greatest successes come out of the most careful consideration.

Can't you fix it so that you will not have to buy any garden stuff this year? Of course you can. What any farmer can do, you can. Get right at it now and make the best garden in town. Surprise yourself and the neighbors.

Here is the formula for treating seed potatoes to prevent scab: Soak the whole seed for two hours in a mixture of one-half pint of formalin (formaldehyde) and fifteen gallons of cold water; dry the seed, cut and plant in ground that has not recently grown potatoes.

If you are planning to grow your own asparagus plants, sow the seed as soon as the ground can be worked. Palmetto is a splendid variety and you will make no mistake in planting it. Be sure to get seed from a reliable grower. Make the drills wide enough apart to permit cultivating with a horse. Thinning the plants to two inches in the drill, and thorough shallow cultivation are necessary to secure strong, well-rooted plants by fall.—From April Farm Journal.

Fully nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism is simply rheumatism of the muscles due to cold or damp, or chronic rheumatism, neither of which require any internal treatment. All that is needed to afford relief is the free application of Chamberlain's Liniment. Give it a trial. You are certain to be pleased with the quick relief which it affords. Sold by all dealers.

FIRE NEAR GOODELL

From Marshalltown T-R:

The farm house of George Birkett, two miles east of Goodell, burned to the ground Thursday evening. A good share of its contents were saved, but it was a heavy loss as there was no insurance on the house, his insurance having expired last fall and he refused to renew the same, stating that he would carry his own insurance which he did and it came quite expensive.

Are you frequently hoarse? Do you have that annoying tickling in your throat? Does your cough annoy you at night, and do you raise mucus in the morning? Do you want relief? If so, take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and you will be pleased. Sold by all dealers.

MASON CITY MAN INJURED

John Jackson, engine dispatcher at the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul round house at Mason City, was seriously injured Saturday. The engine was being moved to the coal chute and came in contact with one of the chutes, practically tearing the cab off. Jackson was caught and badly crushed. Several ribs were broken and he was injured internally.

Medicines that aid nature are always most successful. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Sold by all dealers.

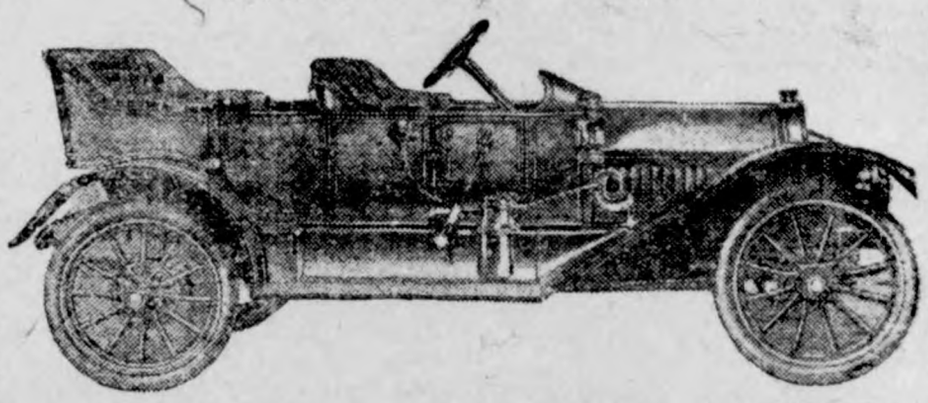
THE IMPERIAL

"THE GET THERE KIND"



It is with pleasure that we advertise the IMPERIAL. When so doing it is hard to say too much in favor of this line of IMPERIAL Automobiles. They have the record up-to-date for running and covering more miles of hard road-going, with the least expense, least adjustments.

The Burd Auto Co., Waterloo, Iowa, says: "The Imperial Automobile has not been equaled yet regardless of price." They run out 37 last season. Up to date there hasn't been one adjustment made. Their contract calls for 100 Imperials for 1911.

The Imperial is built in ten models, from a 35 H. P. two-passenger gentleman's Roadster, to a 60 H. P. seven passenger touring car. Buy the car that bears the name IMPERIAL, and get a dollar's worth of automobile for every dollar you invest.

Prescription Known for Results Rather than Large Quantity.

Go to your druggist and get "Two ounces of Glycerine and half an ounce of Concentrated Pine compound. Mix these with half a pint of good whisky. Shake well. Take one to two teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bed time. Smaller doses to children according to age." Any one can prepare this at home. This is said to be the quickest cough and cold cure known to the medical profession. Be sure to get only the genuine (Globe) Concentrated Pine. Each half ounce bottle comes in a tin screw-top sealed case. If the druggist is out of stock he will quickly get it from his wholesale house. Don't fool with uncertain mixtures. It is risky.

EYES WOULD BURN AND STING

"It is just a year ago that my sister came over here to us. She had been here only a few weeks when her eyes began to be red, and to burn and sting as if she had sand in them. Then we used all of the home remedies. She washed her eyes with salt water, used hot tea to bathe them with, and bandaged them over night with tea leaves, but all to no purpose. She went to the drug store and got some salve, but she grew constantly worse. She was scarcely able to look in the light. At last she decided to go to a doctor, because she could hardly work any more. The doctor said it was a very severe disease, and if she did not follow his orders closely she might lose her eyesight. He made her eyes burn and applied electricity to them, and gave her various ointments. In the two and a half or three months that she went to the doctor, we could see very little improvement.

"Then we had read so much how people had been helped by Cuticura that we thought we would try it, and we cannot be thankful enough that we used it. My sister used the Cuticura Pills for purifying the blood, bathed only with Cuticura Soap, and at night after washing, she anointed her eyes very gently on the outside with the Cuticura Ointment. In one week, the swelling was entirely gone from the eyes, and after a month there was no longer any mucus or watering of the eyes. She could already see better, and in six weeks she was cured." Short Route Near Keosauqua Is Being Considered

WILL PROVIDE WATER POWER

Engineer Bradley of Chicago and Van Buren Surveyor Examine Ground to Determine Feasibility of Project.

Keosauqua.—Engineer R. D. Bradley of Chicago, with County Surveyor E. J. Craig is examining the ground preparatory to starting the work on the cut off across what is known as Great Bend, in the Des Moines river, the object being to establish and maintain a canal for waterpower purposes. The canal, when completed, it is estimated, will furnish 2,500 horse power, which will be used for interurban and manufacturing purposes.

The project was agitated several years ago and work done to the extent of securing surveys, adopting plans and making all preliminary arrangements. The original survey showed a fall of 27 feet in the river from a point at the head of the bend to the foot, and by tunneling or cutting through the highlands and straightening the river, this fall could be secured in a matter of three miles, one-half of which would necessitate extensive excavation, while a natural waterway would serve as the balance of the cut it was decided.

The second survey reduced the fall to about 17 feet and this was considered inadequate and the matter was dropped Now, however, it is proven that a fall of 23 feet is possible, which will furnish all the power necessary for local commercial purposes, and an early resumption of the work is assured.

Overflow and other rights are being asked and the farmers and people in general are evincing an encouraging spirit, by disposing of options on the property at a reasonable figure

New Corporations.

Des Moines.—Articles of incorporation for the Central Button Manufacturing company of Muscatine, Ia., were filed in the office of the secretary of state. The capital stock of the concern is $250,000.

Articles of incorporation also were filed for the First Trust and Savings bank of Sumner, Ia., incorporated at $10,000.

The Buffalo Center Co-operative Creamery company has incorporated with a capital stock of $6,000.

North West Iowa Teachers.

Sioux City.—Dean W. C. Wilcox of Iowa university in his address before the Northwest Iowa Teachers' association took several slaps at the laws which govern the United States, taking up in particular conditions surrounding divorce, and the need of punishing the murderer for his crime.

The dean stated that he believed in divorces. "The trouble is in marriage, not in divorce," Mr. Wilcox declared.

Will Build Synagogue.

Mason City.—The Jewish colony of this city has filed articles of incorporation for a new synagogue which is incorporated after the manner of the rules of the church.

Mier Wolf, a well known resident of this city, is president of the congregation, which starts with twenty-five members. The annual meeting is to be held "on the first and last days of the Holy Days of Suchas of each year."

Bank's Paper Sells Cheap.

Garner.—A public sale was held by W. C. Oelke, receiver of the First State bank, Corwith, of notes and judgments of the assets of the bank. Nearly $20,000 were sold and brought a little over $300. Sheriff John Surballe bought $4,000 worth of notes against John Standring, the missing cashier of the bank, for ten cents.

Railway Service Suspended.

Ames.—Service on the old Newton & Northwestern railroad between Des Moines Junction and Newton has been suspended. The depots at Cambridge, Loring and Farrar have been closed, the doors and windows boarded up and all section men and other employes removed.

Danbury Pioneer Dead.

Danbury.—William Lill, a well-known citizen of this community, passed away at his home 8 miles southeast of here, after an illness of several weeks. He was about 60 years of age.

To Investigate Cause of Death.

Shenandoah.—Because of the suddenness of the death of Jefferson Williams, a prominent citizen of this place, the heirs and their attorney, Frederick Fisher, will have the body exhumed and an examination will be made of the contents of the stomach by experts brought here for the purpose. Because of the peculiar manner in which his will was drawn it does not, in the idea of the heirs, seem consistent with the life and the intentions of the deceased.

Paul Billingsley of Manchester, has been offered a position in river and harbor work with the United States government. He will be stationed at Dubuque for the present.

Fights Big Oil Concern.

Sioux City.—N. K. Wicks and the Iowa Tank Line company have started suit in the district court here against the National Refining company, asking $50,000 for breach of contract. The petition charges that the refining company, harassed the concern by disposing of inferior oil in its name, and misrepresented conditions. The battle of the Sioux City company started when the concern incorporated in Iowa at $200,000. The National Refining company is the strongest competitor of the Standard Oil company and it is alleged the refiners saw in the local concern dangerous competition.

New Claimant for Estate.

Shenandoah.—A new claimant for the A. A. Miller estate has appeared here in the person of Clarence Griffin, who claims to be an illegitimate son of A. A. Miller. Griffin demands one-third of the estate, and has instituted an action at law to get it.

Mrs. A. A. Miller filed suit some time ago to contest the will and had about reached a settlement with the other heirs when the new claimant appeared. In addition to the real estate and personal property there is about $10,000 in cash in the banks to be distributed.

Conrad Geise is Dead.

Council Bluffs.—Conrad Geise, one of the best known men in western Iowa is dead. The deceased came here in '53, and when the prohibitory law went into effect, was operating a large brewery. While the brewery did not come under the operation of the law, Mr. Geise closed it from a sense of duty. For many years he has operated a model stock farm of 800 acres, one of the finest in the state, near here. On it are buildings that cost $30,000 and they house stock of much value.

New Church is Dedicated.

Charles City.—The new $34,000 Congregational church was dedicated Professor. Graham Taylor of Chicago preaching the dedicatory sermon. There was to be raised $12,000 and during the morning services more than $8,000 of this amount was raised. About $300 was raised in the evening, leaving only a few thousand yet to be subscribed. All the churches of the city united with the Congregational at the evening services.

Pensions Granted.

Washington, D. C.—Pensions have been granted the following Iowans: Franklin Aukerman, $20; Charles Cady, $20; D. Curtis, $15; Marie F. Eddy, $12; A. Gose, $15; J. M. Gudgel, $12; Maria C. Hanse, $12; F. C. Johnstone, $15; E. R. Gordin, $20; Andrew Soupesland, $20; Joseph Sylvester, $24 special act; I. N. Wilson, $15; William Wimmer, $30, special act; W. W. Wright, $20.

Children Assaulted.

Council Bluffs.—Friends of the family of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Raasch, living near Greenfield, Ia., are in a mood to administer summary punishment upon the two unknown men who entered the Raasch home during the absence of the parents and assaulted two of their children, should the fiends be overtaken.

Aeroplanes For All Fairs.

Waverly.—Representatives from thirteen fairs held a meeting here and made plans for fairs to be given this season. There were thirty men at the meeting. Nearly all were for securing aeroplanes as the leading attractions.

Many Attend Creamery Meet.

Strawberry Point.—Over 400 farmers were here attending the annual meeting of the Strawberry Point Creamery company. J. R. Alderson was elected president.

Jumps From Train; Hurt.

Fort Dodge.—Farlo Kellum of this city after being carried past the passenger station, jumped from a fast-moving Chicago Great Western train and was seriously injured.

Mrs. Sharp Celebrates.

Burlington.—Mrs. Sarah Sharp, living in Des Moines county near Danville, Ia., celebrated her one hundredth birthday anniversary.

Doubting His Word.

Two Irishmen occupied beds in the same room. By and by one of them woke up.

"Mike," said he, "did you put out the cat?"

"I did," said Mike.

An hour later Patrick woke up again.

"Mike," said he, "Mike, did you put out the cat?"

"Sure I did," said Mike, sleepily. "On me word of honor."

Some time later Patrick again waked up.

"Mike," said he, "Mike, ye divvle; ye did not put out the cat."

"Well," said Mike angrily, "if ye will not take the word of honor of a gintleman get up and put her out yerself."

CURE THAT SORE THROAT

Sore throat is inflammation of the mucous membrane of the throat, and if this membrane happens to be at all sensitive a predisposition to sore throat will exist.

Paxtine Toilet Antiseptic is both a preventative and a cure for sore throat because it possesses extraordinary cleansing, healing and germicidal qualities. Just a little in a glass of water, used as a gargle, will quickly relieve all soreness and strengthen the mucous membrane of the throat, and thus overcome all tendency to sore throat.

Paxtine is far superior to liquid antiseptics or Peroxide for all toilet and hygienic uses.

Paxtine may be obtained at any drug store, 25 and 50c a box, or sent postpaid upon receipt of price by The Paxton Toilet Co., Boston, Mass. Send for a free sample.

WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Elwood, Ind.—"Your remedies have saved me and I have only taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was sick three months and could not walk. I suffered all the time. The doctors said I could not get well without an operation, for I could hardly stand the pains in my sides, especially my right one, and down my right leg. I began to feel better when I had taken only one bottle of Compound, but kept on as I was afraid to stop too soon."—Mrs. MAGGIE MULLEN, 2728 N. B. St., Elwood, Ind.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, heartsick existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion, and nervous prostration.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

A FOOD STORY

Makes a Woman of 70 "One in 10,000."

The widow of one of Ohio's most distinguished newspaper editors and famous leader in politics in his day, says she is 70 years old and a "stronger woman than you will find in ten thousand," and she credits her fine physical condition to the use of Grape-Nuts:

"Many years ago I had a terrible fall which permanently injured my stomach. For years I lived on a preparation of corn starch and milk, but it grew so repugnant to me that I had to give it up. Then I tried, one after another, a dozen different kinds of cereals, but the process of digestion gave me great pain.

"It was not until I began to use Grape-Nuts food three years ago that I found relief. It has proved, with the dear Lord's blessing, a great boon to me. It brought me health and vigor such as I never expected to again enjoy, and in gratitude I never fail to sound its praises." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

FARM and GARDEN

SET OUT BRUSSELS SPROUTS

Are Great Delicacy and Represent Choice Dish of Cabbage Family—Allow Plenty of Room.

This plant deserves more attention than it usually receives in most gardens throughout the country. Many people do not grow it at all. The little sprouts borne in great profusion in the axils of the leaves are a great delicacy and represent a choice dish of the cabbage family.

They are cooked similar to cabbage. They are very hardy and may be grown in the north as well as the south, as they may be left out until freezing weather begins. Light freezing does not injure this plant, and it is thought by many that freezing really improves it.

The plants may be started in the hot bed and handled similar to cabbage They should be transplanted when the seedlings show the third leaf. Grow them rapidly and transplant to the open ground as soon as weather permits in the spring. Set out in a rich, moist section of the garden, and allow plenty of room. There are many varieties of Brussels sprouts, but one will have no difficulty in securing a satisfactory variety as most all of them are desirable.

Sheep Raising in Palestine.

Sheepfolds are common in Palestine. In the villages there are corrals and sometimes caves in the hills. According to Mr. Frank Carpenter, the great traveler, the village sheepfolds are closed at night, and the shepherds keep the keys. Those of the mountains are usually open and the sheep go in and out as they will.

One of the most important duties of the shepherd is to water the flock. He does this at streams or wells. At the wells the women draw the water for the sheep, as they did in the days of the scriptures. They use bags of goatskin untanned. The skins are taken from the goats, and the legs and other openings tied up so that the skin is waterproof. There is but one hole, at the throat, and it is in this that the water is poured.

Guard Against Stink Bug.

The squash stink bug must be guarded against on squashes as well as other cucurbits. Remove and destroy the leaves containing the shining brown eggs. The insects may also be trapped and killed under boards early in the spring and the young insects may be destroyed with kerosene emulsion.

Repair Farm Buildings.

We see no logical reason—do you?—why a prosperous farmer should put all his money in the bank and let the repair of farm buildings, fences, etc., be neglected. Money and time are well spent in keeping up farm buildings and fences. It's all right to save something, as we go along, for a rainy day; but there is more pleasure for the whole family in a smaller bank account, and in having things neatly kept—to improve rather than to deteriorate.—Farm Journal.

Enemies of Cucumbers.

Dark green plant lice or aphids often feed on the under side of the leaves of cucumbers, causing them to curl and wither. Spraying with kerosene emulsion is the best way of getting rid of these insects. Vines should be burned as soon as harvested.

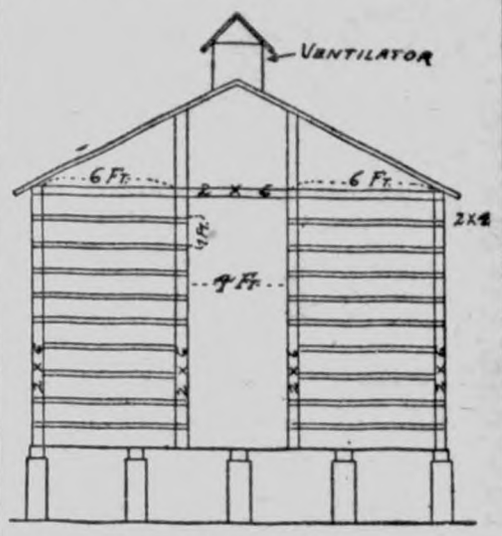
Tile From Cement.

A machine has been invented which will make tile from cement. The machines are small enough to be used by individual farmers, and the cost is small

PLAN FOR SEED CORN HOUSE

Detailed Instructions Given for Construction of Building to Be Set on Concrete Piers.

The small seed corn house shown in the accompanying diagrams should be built at least 3 feet off the ground and set on concrete piers, writes J. Dwight Funk in the Breeder's Gazette. The building is 16 feet square and 10 feet from floor to square. There are five rows of piers 4 feet apart and the piers are 4 feet apart in the row.



Front Elevation.

Five 6x6s, which are 16 feet long, are laid on the five rows of piers. Sills answer for joists. The floor is of 2-inch stuff. The studding are 2x6 inches and are spaced 2 feet apart. The rafters are 2x4 inches and spaced 2 feet apart. Shingles are used for the roof, which is one-third pitch, and there are two ventilators in it. The studding is 2x6 inches and 10 feet long, making 10 feet from floor to square. There are two rows of uprights from the floor to the rafters, the uprights being 2 feet apart and the rows 4 feet apart; each row is 6 feet from the outside wall. Make floors of wire cribbing every foot from the floor to the square between the studding and corresponding rows of uprights, using 2x4s on which to lay the wire cribbing. These 2x4 supports are 2 feet apart in each floor. The floors are 1 foot apart. Place a 6-inch board at side of each floor to keep corn from rolling off. There are doors on each side, eight doors to the side; they are 2 feet wide and 9 feet high. Keep them open in fair weather. Place 6 inches of corn on each floor. There will be 11 floors to each side of the seed house.

FARM NOTES

Clean seed is a big factor.

Do not wet the hands at milking time.

Two garden crops a season means almost double profits.

Amber cane and kaffir corn are good crops for rough forage.

For cheap roughage there is probably no better crop that the millets.

It is perfectly feasible to apply rock phosphate to ground recently manured.

Corn easily heads the list as the best single grain for fattening lambs.

Straw may be only a small item on the farm, but still it should not be wasted.

As a ditch filler, to prevent additional and washing, water-soaked straw is good.

Onion seed for ripe onions should be sown as early as the ground can be worked in good order.

Oats respond readily to good treatment, so a thorough preparation of the seed bed is important.

No factor perhaps tends to add more to the successful growing of sugar beets than proper rotation of crops.

The importance of maintaining the fertility of our high priced land is gradually becoming more and more evident.

Some farmers may think it unwise to use a big tractor in drawing a small load, but by wise and judicious planning the expense can be materially decreased.

The worst enemy of cantaloupes and cucumbers is the leaf blight or "rust," a fungous disease, and this positively can be prevented by timely and thorough spraying.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

For

All Spring Blood Diseases and Ailments

Possesses medicinal merit Peculiar to Itself and has an unequaled record of cures. Take it this spring, in usual liquid form or tablets known as Sarsatabs.

Spring Humors are due to the impure, impoverished, devitalized condition of the blood brought about by the unhealthful modes of living during the winter, too close confinement, too little outdoor air and exercise, too heavy diet. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures them and builds up the whole system.

Hood's Sarsaparilla has no equal for cleansing the blood and expelling the humors that accumulate during the winter. It effects its wonderful cures because it combines the utmost remedial values of more than twenty different ingredients. Insist on having Hood's. It has no substitute.

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heart-burn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at these will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of native American medical, forest plants. The automobile business promises to be a flourishing one this year. The weather is fine; the roads are in first class condition and there seems to be a sort of an auto fever pervading the atmosphere.

Speaking of the singing of Blanche Maeda Spratt, who is to give a recital at the Klemme opera house on the evening of March 31st, the Hawarden Independent says: "The musical entertainment was very much appreciated by a large and enthusiastic audience. The general opinion expressed was, that it was one of the best entertainments ever given in Hawarden."

The home talent play and entertainment given last Thursday by the Royal Neighbors was fine in every respect and gave universal satisfaction. Every number on the program was roundly applauded and deservedly so. The comedy "How the Husbands Got Even," was good, and tended to show how husbands generally do get even, as Charley and August will find to their dismay when they succeed in ensnaring some young damsel in the matrimonial trap. But Charley handles a baby like a veteran. We are pleased to report that the attendance was very good, the proceeds of the evening being $65.75. and everybody got their money's worth. The Klemme orchestra furnished some nice music.

CHASE BILL KILLED

20

Put Burden of Proof of Negligence on Defendant

MOST IMPORTANT MEASURE

Railway Companies and Corporations Subject to Suits for Damages Are as a Rule Opposed to the Measure.

Des Moines.—By a vote of 24 to 16 the senate killed the bill by Chase of Hamilton, putting the burden of proof of contributory negligence on the defendant in all damage cases, when the plaintiff had established violation of any state law or proved negligence on the part of the defendant. The operation of the law, if passed, as explained by Senator Chase, was as follows: If a man should be run down by a train and injured and in prosecuting his suit for damages, he should establish that the train was running at an excessive rate of speed, or gave no warning of its approach, or proved the trainmen to be negligent, then it would be incumbent upon the railway company to prove that the plaintiff was negligent. Under the present law it is up to the plaintiff to show that he was not guilty of contributory negligence under such circumstances. Railway companies and corporations subject to suits for damages, are, as a rule, opposed to the measure, and in the past have been successful in defeating it.

Money and Credit Tax Bill.

The senate ways and means committee bill putting a tax on moneys and credits, comes up as a special order of business in the senate. The bill is certain to be the center of a storm of debate. In addition to putting a flat tax of 5 mills on the dollar on all moneys and credits, it provides that banking capital shall be taxed as other property, with no exemptions for debts. National bankers are understood to be opposed to this section of the bill for the reason that it deprives them of exemption privileges they have enjoyed under the existing law. The state bankers are said to be generally in favor of the section. A claim has been raised, too, that the levying of a flat tax against capital stock makes them pay taxes on the full value of the stock, dollar for dollar, whereas in assessing land and other property, the value can be greatly lowered.

Anti-Rebate Bill.

Rebates on insurance rates are prohibited in a bill introduced in the house by the house committee on insurance. The measure prohibits discrimination in fire insurance rates and provides a penalty of $500 for violation of the law.

Another bill introduced by the committee provides for the appointment of two insurance commissioners by the auditor of state at annual salaries of $3.000 and $2,000.

Recommends More Salary.

The house committee on the compensation of public officers recommended for passage the bill by Finlayson of Grundy county increasing the salary of the superintendent of public schools to $3,000. The committee also recommended for passage bills by Boettger of Scott county providing for increases in the salaries of deputy county clerks, recorders, treasurers, sheriffs and auditors.

Closed Season for Trapping.

A closed season for killing and trapping beaver, mink, otter and muskrat will be established in Iowa if a bill by Representative Bruce of Floyd county is passed by the legislature. The measure prohibits the killing and trapping of these animals between March 1 and Dec. 1, except to protect public and private property.

House Supports Dolliver.

The house unanimously passed the Dixon concurrent resolution petitioning the Iowa delegation in congress to vote and work for the Dolliver agricultural and vocational educational bill.

The Dolliver bill provides for a federal appropriation extending over a period of years, of $13,400,000 for agricultural and vocational educational.

Vote for United States Senator.

The following table gives the vote cast for leading candidates for United States senator:

Ballot.	Deemer	Kenyon	Porter	Hamilton
42d	49	46	1	0
43d	37	65	1	0
44th	28	62	42	4

COMPELS STUDY OF ECONOMICS

Every Teacher In Iowa To Be Examined on Knowledge of Farm and Kitchen.

According to the provisions of the bill introduced by Dixon of Sac county in the house and passed by that body, every teacher in Iowa, regardless of rank or previous course of instruction will have to write a state examination upon elementary agriculture and home economics.

The bill makes it compulsory upon every teacher in the state to write the examination on these subjects within the next two years, giving them no more than two years to brush up their theoretical and practical knowledge on the facts relating to the farm and the kitchen.

Fair Managers Indignant.

Indignant protests were made by members at a meeting of the Inter-State Fair Managers' association which was held at Waverly against the treatment which they declare has been given the county and district fairs of the state by the legislature. The meeting was attended by twenty-five managers representing Cerro Gordo, Black Hawk, Buchanan, Bremer, Butler, Chickasaw, Clayton, Fayette, Franklin, Kossuth, Marshall, Mitchell and Winneshiek counties.

Pleas have been made, according to the delegates to this meeting, to the legislature for aid, but none has been given. It was explained by some of the fair men present that a majority of the members of the legislature were in favor of a liberal appropriation but that in each case bills to that effect had been throttled in committee. The district fair men resolved to take up an active campaign for an appropriation.

Farmers Showing Much Interest.

Farmers are coming in from all over the state to appear before the appropriations committee of the house and senate in joint session to ask the passage of the bill appropriating $100,000 for short courses.

The state board of education, through President Trewin, told the senate appropriations committee two weeks ago that $10 000 added to the $32,000 now appropriated for the short courses, would be sufficient.

The farmers declare that this is too small amount and that the full sum called for by the DeWolf bill should be allowed

It was the feeling of the state board of education that if $100,000 was appropriated for short courses, that other departments of the educational institutions of the state would be cut down in their allowances. The members of the board believed that the distribution of appropriations should be made evenly.

Sheriffs Win.

Representative Whitney's bill allowing boards of supervisors to fix the compensation for boarding and lodging prisoners or to purchase and furnish at the expense of the county all necessary food for prisoners was killed in the house. Sheriffs of Iowa counties will continue to board the prisoners in their care at "so much per."

Jacobs of Calhoun immediately introduced a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was lost. It is probable that the measure will be the center of another heated discussion before the end of the session.

Money Tax Up.

The bill of the ways and means committee establishing a tax of 5 mills on the dollar on all moneys and credits, and providing for the taxation of banking capital like any other property, was not taken up by the senate.

It was made a special order of business for next Wednesday.

The request for postponement came from senators who have special charter cities in their districts. Because of the peculiar taxation systems in some of these special charter towns, there is some question as to how the bill of the committee will operate.

Favors State Aid.

By a vote of 30 to 1 the senate went on record as favoring an increase in state aid to recognized county fairs of from $200 to $400 annually. It passed the Van Law bill calling for this raise. The measure provides that that state shall pay one-half of the premiums offered by county fairs, providing that this 50 per cent does not exceed $400.

Would Exempt Sioux.

Representative Harding of Woodbury county introduced a bill in the house exempting the Big Sioux river from the laws referring to the use of seines and nets.

Provides For Bounty.

Dabney of Davis county will introduce a bill in the house for a bounty not to exceed $2 on the cooper hawk, commonly known as the blue hen hawk.

THEY WANT DESERTERS BACK

Kenyon Men Do Not Expect Any Losses During This Week—Election of Fort Dodge Man Predicted.

Des Moines, March 20.—Recognizing that Judge Kenyon has reached a position from which he may in the senatorial contest on almost any ballot, the standpat leaders are planning stringent rules to govern the conduct of the standpatters in the future.

The loss of a half dozen of their strongest men and the indication that more are to follow, resulting in the election of Judge Kenyon, is the cause for the action. At a conference yesterday in which Senator Stuckslager, Cowles, Representative Adams of Decatur, Stipe and others participated, a permanent pairing committee was appointed.

Henceforth no members of the standpat faction now supporting Judge Deemer is expected to be absent on the noon vote without the consent of the pairing committee or without reporting to this committee that a pair with a Kenyon man and a democrat may be secured if possible. They expect to make a gain today, due partly to the fact that some half dozen Kenyon supporters may be out of the city on official trips of inspection to various state institutions under control of the state board of control. It is asserted, too, that pledges have been received from several of the late supporters of Judge Deemer but now in the Kenyon ranks, that they will return on the ballot today.

The Kenyon supporters do not expect any losses, however, and feel justified in believing that the election of Judge Kenyon is imminent.

The Vote.

BUILDING OF ROAD ASSURED

Keota and Wellman Subscribe for Large Amount of Stock in Interurban.

Iowa City, March 20.—New assurances of the construction of the Iowa City-Ottumwa Interurban Railway company's line between the two cities comes with the completion of the canvass for stock in Keota, Wellman and Iowa City. Keota has purchased $63,400 stock, after pledging but $60,000, and Wellman has bought $27,000 worth, although pledged only to $25,000. Iowa City is to purchase stock to the amount of $100,000 and has nearly reached that point. Robert Campbell, the agent, will sail for London next week to dispose of $3,000,000 worth of bonds.

AUDITORIUM IS DESTROYED

The Largest Playhouse in Des Moines Transformed into a Shell Within An Hour.

Des Moines, March 20.—The Auditorium, one of the largest theatres in Iowa, was destroyed by fire at midnight.

The origin is unknown, but it is thought to have started from defective electric wiring under the stairway leading from the first floor to the balcony.

The loss is estimated to be $45,500 to the Auditorium company, the Shubert theatrical syndicate and the Van Dyke-Eaton stock company.

Railroad and Mining King Dead.

Des Moines, March 20.—David H. Moffat, banker and railroad man of Denver, Colo., formerly a resident of this city, died in New York yesterday from the after-effects of grip. Mr. Moffat was up and about his apartments in Hotel Bellville on Saturday in unusually good spirits.

Pioneer of State Dies.

Ames, March 20.—Charles Van Duzer died at the home of his son, Rev. W. H. Van Duzer, in Ontario, after a continual residence in Iowa of seventy-five years.

Probable Suicide.

Des Moines, March 20.—The body of Mrs. Lena P. Parrish, 43 years old, was found in the Des Moines river half a mile north of the Center street dam at noon yesterday. The police believe it is a case of self-destruction.

Looks like prosperity's kinder shying at us, fer Mis' Jackson Page can't sell a foot of her land fer a decent price, and she's jest downright land-poor, as the saying is."

"Is Mr. Flarity the Flarity who is the owner of Carrots and his brother?" asked Mr. Alan. He had deposited Blossom on the counter and she had immediately curled up in a little bunch and plunged into the depths of sleep. He seated himself on the steps as he questioned Miss Selina Lue about the parental history of the twins—anything to get his mind off the scornful lady of the Hill mansion and give his ears a chance to cool down.

"Yes, and he is the most misfortunate man I ever did know about some things. His wife have had twins twice, and a tapeworm, and now she's gone to the hospital to stay three months to get cured of it. The poor thing wouldn't go until I promised to invite the babies fer a visit while she were away. All the others are dead is what makes her nervous about these." Miss Selina Lue was s busy dusting the row of bluing bottles that she failed to see the effect of her naive revelations of the domestic situation in the Flarity household. "Flarity's a mothering sort of a man and he comes by and gits the twins after eight o'clock and takes them home fer the night and leaves them on the back steps with the cat when he has to go on the very early morning runs. a yard of Miss Selina Lue stood the helpless victim of her enthusiasm, Blossom in his arms swaying with sleep. The color of his face and ears and the set of his square jaw told the tale of his embarrassment which flared up into rage surpassing that which burned in the bosom of his adversary as she answered gently, very gently:

"Thank you, Miss Selina Lue; I am sadly in need of instruction in many things." And with her chin in the air and the suspicion of a tilt to her very classic little nose, Miss Cynthia swept out of the door without so much as a glance either to the right or the left.

"Now ain't she the sweetest thing!" exclaimed Miss Selina Lue as she leaned out of the door and watched the retreating figure with admiring eyes, all unconscious of the snub and the feelings of the snubbed. "She's jest that good and kind and loving that you couldn't hardly believe it, could you?"

"No, it's hard to believe that anybody could be—like that! Does she happen often in these parts?" answered Mr. Alan in a weak voice.

"Why, she's our Miss Cynthie from up on the hill—you know the big house with the white pillars and the long walks with box scrubs on each side. Her ma, Mis' Jackson Page, owns all this Bluff and most of the land 'twixt here and the edge of town, and she is one of the first families though we all do come here from Adam and Eve. They ain't rich, because the city took a notion to grow out west of the University, and here we are left just high and dry except out and git them right away as soon as I can slip on some clothes."

"Does Miss Clemmie spend the night?"

"Oh, no—Mis' Simmons don't bring her over till after ten. She takes the ten-forty car into where she washes dishes fer the Women's Exchange lunch. She has to stay until almost sundown, and comes home dead-beat. I don't want to say anything hard of Mr. Simmons, but it do seem he uses his family keerless like on a good salary."

"What," inquired Mr. Alan from the doorstep, "does the brute do?"

"Well, I wouldn't skeercely call him a brute, I think," said Miss Selina Lue, as she shook out her duster and began on the shelf of canned tongue. "He runs a laundry wagon and he says it is a advertisement fer the house fer him to be a stylish dresser, but I can't see why the house has to have his pants pressed every morning and have him wear purple socks and tan shoes, when his wife is all drug out with trying to piece along and keep going. Sometimes I think it must be vanity in Mr. Simmons, and vanity in a man is like a turkey gobbler a-strutting in November."

"What about vanity in the ladies, Miss Selina Lue? You surely don't approve of that."

"Now, Mr. Alan, you're mad at what I said about the men and are trying to git even with me." And Miss Selina Lue smiled over her shoulder at him. Miss Selina Lue's smile was like a broad beam of sunshine on a summer morning. "Don't you know the Lord wouldn't have gave women folks shiny curls, cheeks pink like a peach, figgers plump beautiful and eyes blue as the wild violets on the creek, like Miss Cynthie there, lessen he intended to excuse them some fer being proud?"

"I don't believe he would quite stand for that amount of pride and grudge Mr. Simmons the purple socks," murmured Mr. Alan over his cigar in careful sotto voce, and immediately steered Miss Selina Lue off the disturbing topic of her friend's perfections.

"Anything interesting in the family histories of the other two soap boxes, Miss Selina Lue? It seems the thing on the Bluff to know all about your neighbors, and my intimacy with your kiddies grows apace." There was a winning wholesomeness in Mr. Alan's voice that struck a kindred note in the soul of Miss Selina Lue, and she reveled in the unbosoming of herself to him. His dark eyes shone with interest and his straight mouth had an unexpected quirk in the left corner, easily interpreted as indicative of a sense of humor.

"Well, Pattie Tyne, the little one that can't hardly set up good yet, is jest so to speak a transient, as her ma have gone on a visit to her sister over to Union City. After she had got the other five ready to go, there jest wasn't nothing to fix Pattie up in fitten for a visit, so she left her with me. I wash the blue gingham out of nights and piece out with a dress of Blossom's when it's needed bad. Looks like Mis' Tyne dreads the sewing machine and a bolt of calliker like they was typhoid smallpox."

"And last, but not least, tell me the tale of Blossom, the lady of my heart the only person who really appreciates me for my true worth, which is peppermint candy in limited quantities and a shoulder cushioned in brawn and exalted in height. Blossom is a lady of discernment and has the courage of her predilections."

"Mr. Alan," said Miss Selina Lue as she sat down on the step by him and picking up the little white calico bonnet he had let drop off the noddin head of the lady in question, began t plait the ruffle with caressing fingers "they ain't many people I would te the story of her to. One way or an other, I have shet up every soul o the Bluff as has asked me. Of cours Miss Cynthie knews, fer people can' help talking pitifulness to her, but th rest jest found her here, and that i all they need to know.

"It was a year ago last Christmas it happened to me and Charity to fin her. About dark when I was busy t death doing up supper truck—as yo see, that's my busiest time of day— a girl come in here I never saw be fore and she looked wild and white She carried a bundle in her arms, bu I never suspicioned anything, so jest sold her a box of crackers and she went on out. Then I plumb forgo her, as I oughten to have done, fo she wasn't happy-seeming, and sic as she oughter be on my mind."

The Table Groaned.

"There are several names for it," ex plained the talkative boarder; "it ma be called the dehorned conundrum o the amputated conundrum or the hal point conundrum. It's a conundrun that has had its enacting clause strick en out. Here's a sample: The one h a Barkis that's willin', and the other i a Willis that's barkin'."

"But what is the question that goes with it?" asked the argumentativ boarder.

"There isn't any question that goes with it. It has been deprived of its interrogation point. That is why it may be called a half point conun drum."

Nobody said anything in rejoinder. But the table groaned.

Those Dangerous Hatpins.

One of the many objections to the big hats which the women are wearing nowadays is that they need to be secured by pins of proportionate magnitude, and that the points of these pins protrude in a manner which renders them a menace to all who come within their reach. No one can ride in a crowded car without incurring the risk of being jabbed by one of these formidable weapons, and it really is time that the public were protected from this by no means negligible danger by the adoption and enforcement of legislation appropriate to the need.

From Business Point of View.

The English doctors have discovered acromegaly, a new and quite widely prevalent disease. It would seem that a disease with such a formidable name ought to be worth a whole lot of cure.

Encourage the Boys.

When a boy presents an idea that is feasible, pat him on the back and encourage him, and he will develop a love for agriculture and become the pride of your heart in your declining years and will love the homes and the farms that you have worked so hard to pay for.

If farming has not paid in your case by all means give the boy a chance to begin without your handicap. "What was good enough for me is good enough for the boy," is a maxim unworthy of a New England farmer. Give the boy a chance at an agricultural education and he will help you to stop the leaks and turn the past and present into a brighter future.

OUR ROADS

Editor Klemme Times:

Dear Sir—Thinking that a consideration of the above subject as applied to the highways of our neighborhood, might interest many of your readers. I venture a few thoughts on the same, hoping thereby to induce a more thorough study of the subject by those most concerned.

The general principles of road building are the same everywhere, but these must be applied so as to suit local conditions.

Even in our own neighborhood there is considerable variation as to soil, natural drainage, slope, and size of streams to be crossed. Let me attempt to define a good road. I think we will generally agree that it is desirable that a road be level, smooth, and reasonably hard. It should not be slippery nor sticky, and be of good width; and should be free from fence to fence of ditches, sharp ridges, or steep banks.

This kind of a road in its perfection is of course practically impossible; but we need to have the ideal road constantly in mind when planning and building our roads.

When a road is used but little we will have to get along with many imperfections; the more a road is used the greater the effort that should be made to put it in perfect condition.

It has been quite customary of late to complain of the manner in which our roads have been worked. Now we all have made mistakes in this. Let us not forget however that much good work has been done. All of us have been handicapped by lack of funds, suitable machinery, timely help and adverse weather conditions.

In my next I will consider the question—What do our roads need?

G. P. MERTEN.

Are you frequently hoarse? Do you have that annoying tickling in your throat? Does your cough annoy you at night, and do you raise mucus in the morning? Do you want relief? If so, take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and you will be pleased. Sold by all dealers.

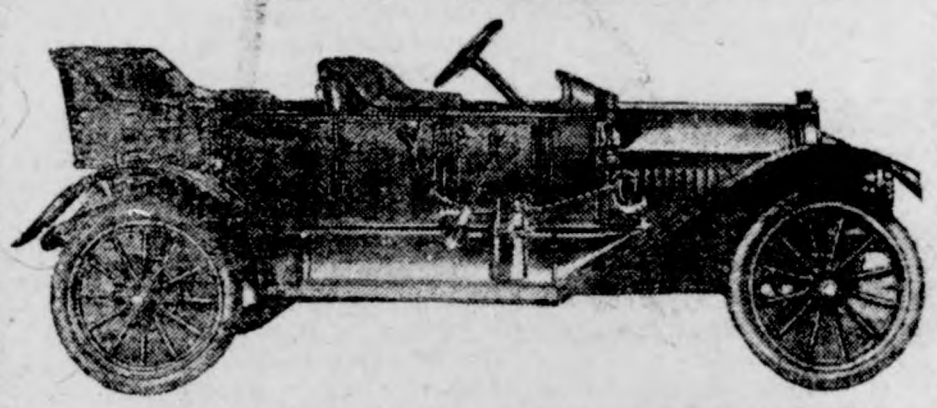
"THE GET THERE KIND"



It is with pleasure that we advertise the IMPERIAL. When so doing it is hard to say too much in favor of this line of IMPERIAL Automobiles. They have the record up-to-date for running and covering more miles of hard road-going, with the least expense, least adjustments.

The Burd Auto Co., Waterloo, Iowa, says: "The Imperial Automobile has not been equaled yet regardless of price." They run out 37 last season. Up to date there hasn't been one adjustment made. Their contract calls for 100 Imperials for 1911.

The Imperial is built in ten models, from a 35 H. P. two-passenger gentleman's Roadster, to a 60 H. P. seven passenger touring car. Buy the car that bears the name IMPERIAL, and get a dollar's worth of automobile for every dollar you invest.

COMMITTEE BILLS

27

Wade Through Bunch of School Measures; Many Killed

ABOLISH RURAL DISTRICTS

Recommendation Made for Assembly to Pass Measure Providing That School Funds Be Deposited for Interest.

Des Moines.—The schools committee of the senate has waded through a bunch of school bills. But few of the proposed measures came out with favorable reports, the others being recommended for the scrap heap.

One of the important bills which received favorable action at the hands of the committee is the Balkema measure which eliminates independent rural school districts and makes the township the school unit. The effect of this measure is to wipe out the numerous schools which have from six to eight pupils.

Another important bill which comes out of the committee with the recommendation that it pass, is the measure by Hammil of Hancock, which requires all school treasurers to place the school funds out at interest, which interest must be turned over to the contingent fund of the school corporation. There are a number of school treasurers in the state now who give the interest to the school district, but most of them think the interest is part of the emoluments of the office. The bill requires interest of 2 per cent on 90 per cent of the daily balances.

The Dunnegan bill which calls for an appropriation of $50,000 to buy the Western Normal school at Shenandoah and convert it into a state normal school like the institution at Cedar Falls, will be returned to the senate without any recommendations whatever.

The bill by Brown of Decatur to appropriate $10,000 for the establishment of a similar institution at Tabor, taking over the Tabor college, and the bill by Crow of Monona for the building of the school at Denison, were both reported for indefinite postponement.

The other measures which the committee hit in the head with a view of killing them are the Chase bill creating a county board of education and the measure by Allen of Jefferson providing for the commission plan of school government in all school districts of 30,000 population or more. The committee deemed both these measures inadvisable.

Sheriffs Win.

Representative Whitney's bill allowing boards of supervisors to fix the compensation for boarding and lodging prisoners or to purchase and furnish at the expense of the county all necessary food for prisoners was killed in the house. Sheriffs of Iowa counties will continue to board the prisoners in their care at "so much per."

Jacobs of Calhoun immediately introduced a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was lost. It is probable that the measure will be the center of another heated discussion before the end of the session.

Work Prisoners.

The senate put its stamp of approval on the bill by Ream of Mahaska which provides for the working of all able bodied prisoners in the county and city jails and for the turning over to their families of all money thus earned.

Only able bodied prisoners between the ages of 16 and 60 years are subject to the provisions of the bill. They can be put at any kind of work just so there is no contract system. They are not to receive more than $1 a day and are not to work more than eight hours a day or on holidays or Sunday.

Shane Bill Recommended.

Representative Shane's bill rendering ilegal the compounding of physicians' prescriptions by others than registered pharmacists was recommended for passage by the house committee on pharmacy.

Another bill by Shane allowing the commissioners of pharmacy to designate what remedies may be sold by others than druggists was recommended by the committee for indefinite postponement.

Allow Dentists to Prescribe.

Representative Kulp of Palo Alto introduced a bill in the house allowing dentists to prescribe drugs or medicines and to perform surgical operations necessary to the proper treatment of special classes of diseases involving the care of the teeth and included in the curriculum of the colleges from which the dentists graduated.

STILLMAN SOUNDS WARNING

Informs House of 400 Bills Yet to Consider—There are 236 Bills In Committees.

There are about 400 bills yet to be considered by the house, according to the warning by Speaker Stillman to the representatives.

According to the speaker's calculations, there are 236 bills in committees yet to be reported to the house. There are sixty bills on the calender yet to be acted upon. He figures that from eighty to one hundred more measures will be introduced and will come over from the senate.

The astounding total had a reactionary effect on the house, however. It seemed to take the "pep" out of the members.

Would Regulate Scales.

War on false or incorrect scales used by unscrupulous merchants in the state has been declared by Miller of Bremer county in a bill which he will introduce in the house soon. The measure provides for the inspection of weights and measures by the state food and dairy department, and provides penalties for using false and incorrect weights.

Under the provisions of the bill, the state food and dairy commissioner is required to secure standard weights and measures for the purpose of inspections, which shall be made upon complaint.

Any person engaged in the sale of merchandise or other commodities by weight or measurement whose scales, weights or measures do not conform with the standards will be guilty of a misdemeanor. The first offense shall be punishable by a fine of from $10 to $100. Subsequent offenses will be subject to a fine not exceeding $500 or imprisonment for ninety days.

Vote for United States Senator.

The following table gives the vote cast for leading candidates for United States senator:

Ballot.	Deemer	Kenyon	Porter	Hamilton
42d	49	46	1	0
43d	37	65	1	0
44th	28	62	42	4
45th	32	64	43	6
46th	34	65	46	6
47th	36	64	46	6
48th	34	65	50	1
49th	33	64	46	2
50th	29	50	38	0

Organize Board.

Senator Wilson of Clinton introduced in the senate a bill which calls for the organization of a teachers' board of retirement and the pensioning of all teachers who have been teaching for twenty-five years. The state superintendent of instruction, the state auditor and the state treasurer compose the board of retirement. The fund with which to pension the teachers is to be created by a tax on all teachers, the latter to contribute a certain per cent of the salary each year, the size to depend on the length of their service. On petition of the majority of teachers in any independent school district, the board of directors of such district may declare its intent to avail itself of the provisions of this act.

Boost Salary of Assessors.

Representative Boettger's bill providing for the employment of more competent assessors in the larger cities was passed by the house. The measure provides that in cities of the first class having populations of more than 40,000 the compensation of the assessors shall be not more than $2,500, to be fixed by the board of supervisors. Deputy assessor in such cities shall receive not more than $4.

Want Another Prayer.

Citizens of Panora, Ia., telegraphed Speaker Stillman of the house of representatives asking him to have Rev. F. W. Mutchler of Des Moines give another prayer in the general assembly. They believe the prayer offered by the Rev. Mr. Mutchler recently when he asked for divine aid in settling the senatorial problem has bettered Kenyon's prospects for the senatorship.

Beebe's Bill Is Likely To Pass.

Indications are that Representative Beebe's anti-bootlegging bill will pass by a large majority. The "wet" and "dry" factions of the house have joined hands for the first time to assist in stopping illegal sale of liquor. The bill, provides for the publication of the names of all those who hold government permits and sell liquor in violation of the state laws.

Recommend Hogan Bill.

The house committee on compensations recommended for passage the bill by Representative Hogan increasing the salary of the attorney general and providing for a special counsel in the attorney general's office. As it now stands, the measure carries an annual salary of $5,000 for the attorney general and $2,500 for the counsel.

Changed His Mind.

Tabor.—Temporarily insane, Sam Savage, 76 years old, prominent farmer and early settler, residing three miles south of Tabor, attempted suicide. He went to an old house in the back yard, sharpened a butcher knife, and cut his throat from ear to ear, but was unsuccessful. Next he tried to puncture his jugular vein with a rusty spike, then slid down a pump pipe into a stock well. The cool water, however, restored his reason. He shouted and was rescued.

Route of Road Chosen.

Shenandoah.—At a meeting here of the executive committee of the Waubonsie Trail association, which is boosting a river to river road in the southern counties of the state, the route across Ringgold and Decatur counties was chosen. The road is to pass through Mount Ayr, Kelerton, Lamoni, Davis City, and Leon.

John McCabe Slugged.

Davenport.—A man sufficiently conscious to tell his name, John McCabe, but unable to account for his condition was brought into the Davenport police station from the west end of the city with a hole in his head, thought to have been caused by some dull instrument. He died a few hours later.

Lead Deposit Found.

Marshalltown.—What may result in proving to be a valuable deposit of lead ore has been discovered up the Iowa river, two miles north of the Iowa Soldiers' home. Samples taken are pronounced to be lead of a fine quality. The ore was found in what are known as the clay bluffs.

Percy Hopper Sentenced.

Logan.—After pleading guilty to the charge of assault with intent to commit manslaughter, Percy Hopper, who shot his brother over wage troubles on the latter's farm near Beebeetown, Monday, Jan. 23, was sentenced to a five-year term in the Anamosa reformatory.

Identifies Gypsy Girl.

Des Moines.—While mingling with a dozen women prisoners in the Polk county jail, Maud Brewer, the gypsy girl, was identified by John Huser, the retired farmer, as the one who duped him out of $4,200 cash.

Fire Destroys Cafe.

Albia.—Laird restaurant was destroyed by fire following the explosion of a five-gallon can of gasoline. This had been placed on a coffee percolator by a waiter who did not know there was a fire in it. Loss, $4,000.

Oldest Druggist Dead.

Cedar Rapids.—George C. Haman, 73 years old and a pioneer druggist, died at his home here. Mr. Haman was the oldest druggist in the state. He opened his drug store in 1858 and never changed location.

Many Iowa Farmers Back.

Estherville.—Eighty-three car loads of machinery and household goods have arrived here the past week, belonging to farmers coming back to the county after trying farming in the Dakotas and northwest.

Boy Scouts Organized.

Manchester.—Boys affiliated with the First Methodist Episcopal church of this city have formed a Boy Scout organization, the membership numbering thirty-five. The boys range in years from 10 to 16.

Will Spend $1,000,000.

Clinton.—It is announced that the Chicago & Northwestern will spend about $1,000,000 during the coming year at Missouri Valley, Boone and in double tracking the line between Otis and Beverly.

Harrison Has Resigned.

Boone.—J. O. Harrison, superintendent of motive power for the Ft. Dodge, Des Moines & Southern company has tendered his resignation to become effective May 1st.

Neighbor Is Sent to Jail.

Council Bluffs.—Judge McPherson has sent Charles T. Atcher, Red Oak, one of his neighbors, to jail for sixty days for bootlegging. Atcher is said to be worth $60,000.

Child Killed by Fall.

Audubon.—The infant child of Ingham Sherman, agent of the Chicago & Northwestern railway, four miles north of this place, fell from a buggy and was killed.

Adair Suicide.

Adair.—Hanging from a slender wire, the dead body of Charles Krause, aged 65, was found in the coal house at his home here by his daughter.

Crushed By an Engine.

Mason City.—John Jackson, engine dispatcher for the Milwaukee, was caught by an engine in the round house and perhaps fatally crushed.

Calumet has been backed for years by an offer of $1,000 for any substance injurious to health found in the baking prepared with it.

Does not this and the fact that it complies with all pure food laws, both State and National, prove that Calumet is absolutely pure?

With the purity question settled—then Calumet is undoubtedly the best Baking Powder. It contains more leavening power; it is more uniform—every can is the same. It assures better results—and is moderate in price.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

KEEP RESINOL OINTMENT IN THE HOUSE

And Keep it Where You Can Put Your Hand on it at a Moment's Notice.

The prompt application of Resinol ointment to burns or scalds will not only soothe and heal but prevent the formation of disfiguring scars. Resinol ointment is the greatest of all emergency remedies for home use. It is the best dressing for cuts, wounds and abrasions of the skin of any kind. It is a specific for various forms of eruptive skin diseases, eczema, tetter, herpes, erythema, ringworm, barber's itch, erysipelas, poison ivy, stings of insects, etc. Resinol stops itching instantly, and is the indicated remedy for itching piles. Resinol ointment contains no harmful, poisonous or irritating ingredient. Resinol soap is a healing as well as a cleansing compound, and should be used when necessary in conjunction with Resinol ointment. Resinol comes in opal jars at fifty cents and one dollar. At all druggists. Resinol Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

Why Maria Laughed.

Hiram paused at the door and holding up a steel trap, said:

"Mariar, when you see this trap again it will have a skunk in it."

Fifteen minutes later he reappeared.

"Mariar," he yelled, "you come here and loosen me out of this all-fired trap."

And then he got mad at "Mariar" because she laughed.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

It must have been a spinster who said that some widows wear heavy veils to conceal their joy.

Garfield Tea stimulates the liver, corrects constipation, cleanses the system and rids the blood of impurities. All druggists.

FREE SAMPLE OF LAXATIVE CURED THEIR CONSTIPATION

When a person has become discouraged through years of failure to find a cure, and finally, perhaps, gives up trying, it is small wonder that he becomes skeptical. And yet, to all who have constipation, we would say, "Try just one thing more."

We wish you would try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a laxative tonic that has been used for a generation. Thousands are using it; surely some of your friends among the number. You can buy it of any druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, but better still, send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell for a free sample bottle. He will send you enough to convince you of its merits, and then if you like it you can buy it of your druggist. Mr. J. J. Petty of Unionville, Mo., Mr. George W. Zimmerman of Harrisburg, Pa., and many others of both sexes and in all parts of the country first used a sample bottle and now have it regularly in the house.

You will learn to do away with salts, waters and cathartics for these are but temporary reliefs while Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is guaranteed to cure permanently. It will train your stomach and bowel muscles so that they will do their work again naturally without outside aid. Cast aside your skepticism and try Syrup Pepsin.

For the free sample address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Colds and Chills Bring Kidney Ills

February, March and April are the backache months, because they are months of colds, chills, grip and pneumonia, with their congesting, weakening influence on the kidneys. Colds, chills, or grip strain the kidneys and start backache, urinary disorders and uric acid troubles. You feel lame, weak and tired and have headache, dizzy feelings, achy muscles and joints; too frequent, painful urinary passages, sediment, etc. Chills hurt the kidneys. Likewise well kidneys often prevent taking cold, by helping to pass off the waste matters of cold congestion. Doan's Kidney Pills are very useful in the raw winter and spring months. They stop backache and urinary disorders, keep the kidneys well and prevent colds from settling on the kidneys. Strong testimony proves it. What better evidence could you ask?

CONVINCING PROOF FROM GRATEFUL USERS

TERRIBLE CASE OF DROPSY.

Lebanon, Ind., Man Gives Vivid Description of His Suffering.

John T. Anderson, 613 W. Main St., Lebanon, Ind., says: "I was taken suddenly with agonizing pains through my kidneys, followed by a stoppage of the urine. I called in a physician, but he gave me only temporary relief, by drawing the urine with a catheter. I was soon in such agony I could not lie in bed, and for four weeks sat in a chair, propped up by pillows. After about a month, it seemed as if something burst and I passed a regular flood of water, mixed with blood and mucus. After that I had not a particle of control over the secretions. The doctor said he could do no more for me, and everyone thought I would die. My friends marvel at my recovery. Nine boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills saved my life and made a permanent cure. I gained 28 pounds and have had no trouble since."

TEN YEARS OF SUFFERING.

Restored at Last to Perfect Health by Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. Narcissa Waggoner, Carterville, Ill., R. F. D. No. 2, says: "For over ten years I suffered terribly with backaches, headaches, nervous and dizzy spells. I was restless at night and in the morning arose so tired as to be almost unable to do my housework. The kidney secretions were unnatural and gave me a great deal of trouble. One day I suddenly fell to the floor where I lay for a long time unconscious. Three doctors who treated me diagnosed my case as paralysis and said they could do nothing for me. As a last resort I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and was permanently cured. I am stronger than before in many years and my kidneys are in perfect condition."

THE POULTRY YARD

This is the month the turkeys begin laying.

There is no better time than now to set geese eggs. Set them under a hen, allowing her five eggs. which are about all she can conveniently cover.

Some folks are forever planning ahead and figuring how to make chickens pay, and while they are pottering along with their plans and figures the hens and their broods are neglected.

No fowl is so hard to doctor as a turkey. A secret of success with turkeys lies in avoiding inbreeding. A little turk debilitated at the start by inbreeding has a poor chance for its life.

The baby chick trade has grown wonderfully. Twenty years ago poultrymen never dreamed of starting a business in that line, while now hundreds of thousands of these innocents are annually sent out.

As the nights are still cold it is advisable to give the hens but eleven eggs at the time of setting them. This affords the hen a better chance to cover and warm the eggs properly bringing forth better results.

Its all right to have the brood coops wind tight but not air-tight. It does not take much of a carpenter to put a pane of glass in a brood coop, and the chicks do better if they can have light when they must be shut up during cold, stormy weather.

When a spell of bad weather comes, look out for lice. They multiply fast when hens and chicks have to be confined to their coops much of the time. These pests will soon reduce the vitality of the liviest chick ever hatched, so that it will be in good condition to take gapes or some other ailment.—From April Farm Journal.

Town Officers Elected

The town election is over and officers have been elected for the ensuing two years. Some of those who have served the town and served it well in years past, retire from the field without regrets. Others have received re-election at the hands of the voters. Some new men have been honored, and they all bear the honors gracefully. And again some candidates were lucky enough to get snowed under. All in all, it was a dandy election. 73 ballots were cast.

E. H. Lenz, for treasurer, was the most popular candidate, receiving the highest vote. Tom Nelson stood first among the candidates for councilmen. The vote on mayor was very close. August Lau receiving 38 and E. G. Ell 34. For assessor, Fred Henschen and Louis Sampson each got 36 votes. and in the draw Sampson won. We give below the town officers who will serve the municipality in the future:

Mayor—August Lau.
Treasurer—E. H. Lenz.
Assessor—Louis Sampson.
Councilmen—A. G. Koerner, Thos Nelson, John Baumgartner, C. L. Yahnke and T. Blank.

Minstrel Coming

The people of Klemme will have a chance to hear and see a good minstrel show next Monday night, when Wm. McCabe's Georgia Troubadours will appear at the Klemme opera house. The manager of the Sanborn, Iowa. opera house has the following to say concerning this company:

"This is to certify that I played Wm. McCabe's Company at my house Nov. 25 to good business, $137. They gave the best of satisfaction and I cheerfully recommend them to opera house managers as worthy of their patronage."

August Lau is confined to the house on account of sickness.

Heiko Rust. of Goodell, died last week after an extended illness.

We understand that Charley Stiehl has purchased a new Buick auto

I. B. Bleeker took the Royal Arch degree of Masonry at Garner Friday night.

Remember taxes become delinquent after April 1st. You can pay your taxes at either bank in Klemme.

The town council met last evening to close up all the old business, preparatory to turning the keys of the town over to the new regime.

Some of the boys are making arrangements towards the organization of a band for Klemme. A meeting is called for next Monday night.

Bro. Brackett, of the Democrat, is having an awful time trying to educate Senator Hammill and Representative Ripley to vote in sympathy with his democratic doctrines.

The many friends and the neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilkins and family will sympathize with them in the loss of their young son and brother, whose death occurred Monday morning. Funeral services were held at Goodell yesterday and interment made in the Belmond cemetery.

EPITOME OF A WEEK'S NEWS

Most Important Happenings Told in Brief.

Washington

President Taft had a cordial interview with the Japanese ambassador, Baron Uchida. He sent for the baron to felicitate with him upon the ratification of the new treaty with Japan. He assured the ambassador that never in the history of the two countries had the relations been so pleasant as they are today, and never had talk of war been more absurd.

It now is admitted in administrative circles at Washington that an extremely serious condition of affairs prevails in Mexico and that it may be necessary for the United States to intervene for the protection of American residents and interests. President Taft himself is reported to have made statements to visitors at the White House which bear out this view of the situation.

Hereafter employees in the postal service will have one day off a week. Mr. Hitchcock, postmaster general, issued instructions to that effect. In order to give the letter carriers a day of rest on Sunday the present system of delivering mail through the letter carriers' windows for three or four hours on Sunday will be discontinued.

Conversations have been held between President Taft and M. Jusserand, French ambassador at Washington, respecting a comprehensive agreement for arbitration between the United States and France upon the general outline of the president's ideas regarding international peace treaties.

• • •

Domestic

The workmen's compulsory compensation law passed the New York legislature last year, which provides compensation to workmen injured in certain specified dangerous employments, regardless of the employer's negligence, was declared unconstitutional by the court of appeals.

John F. Gaynor, who, with Benjamin D. Greene, served four years in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., for participation in the Savannah harbor improvement frauds, was allowed to take the pauper's oath and was released from custody. This clears him of paying the $575,000 fine imposed.

• • •

Four firemen were killed and twelve were injured, two perhaps fatally, by falling through a roof during a fire in the building of the Middletown Manufacturing company, wholesale hatters, at Milwaukee.

Federal officers joined in the search for four masked men who blew up with nitro-glycerin and robbed the express car safe of north-bound passenger train No. 104 of the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern railroad on a lonely prairie, 12 miles south of Coffeyville, Kan. The bandits secured booty amounting to $20,000.

A verdict of $10,000 damages was awarded to Percival L. Harden, who sued William T. Hoops in New York courts for alienating the affections of Maude Alene Sullivan Harden Hoops.

• • •

Mrs. Gertrude H. Horrigan, thirty-four years old, niece of James J. Hill, was granted a divorce from William J. Horrigan, president of the Northwestern Ice and Fuel company, at St. Paul, Minn.

After October 1 it will be unlawful to have a "common drinking cup" in any park, public building, factory, theater, school, railroad station or ferry house in New York city.

• • •

Dr. C. F. Caracristi of the Mexican revolutionary junta, issued a statement at San Antonio, Tex., declaring that the United States will intervene in Mexico unless some definite progress toward peace is made by May 1. He urges Madero, the leader of the revolt, to accomplish the capture of Chihuahua by that date.

The Honduras National railroad, of which L. H. Fairbanks of Mansfield, Ill., brother of former Vice-President Fairbanks, is president and chief promoter, was placed in the hands of a receiver, according to information received from Trujillo, Honduras.

Active opposition to revision of the tariff was undertaken by the officers of the National Wool Growers' association after a conference at Salt Lake City on the tariff situation as it affects wool.

• • •

The federal government scored a sweeping victory when Federal Judge Noyes overruled the demurrers interposed by James A. Patten, Eugene M. Scales, Frank B. Hayne, William P. Brown and Robert M. Thompson. They are under indictment for conspiracy to monopolize interstate trade and commerce in conducting the famous cotton pool last summer.

The Illinois state senate passed the woman suffrage bill, with a referendum clause, by a vote of 31 to 10.

• • •

Shattered by a storm of shell, the old battleship Texas rests on the mud in Chesapeake bay. The veteran of the United States navy sank under the spectacular marksmanship of her newer sister, the New Hampshire. Gaping holes in her port side and two jagged wounds in her forward armor, where shells passed completely through her, showed how she succumbed.

MANY DIE IN FIRE

Because of Height of Building Life Nets Are Broken

LOSS OF PROPERTY SMALL

Scores of Victims Prefer a Speedy End On Pavement Far Below Rather Than Face Fiery Furnace.

New York, March 27.—One hundred and forty-eight persons, nine-tenths of them girls from the east side, were crushed to death on the pavements, smothered in smoke or burned to a crisp in a factory fire in the worst disaster ever known since the steamship Slocum was burned to the water's edge off North Brothers' Island in 1904.

One hundred and forty-one bodies have been removed from the ruins at midnight and seven of the forty inujred had died in hospitals. This, it is believed, completes the list of dead, most of whom are unidentified. Grief-crazed relatives besieged the morgue as the bodies were laid out.

Nearly all, if not all of the victims, were employed by the Triangle Waist company on the eighth, ninth and tenth floors of a ten-story building at 23 Washington Place, on the western fringe of the downtown wholesale clothing, furniture and millinery district. The partners of the firm, Isaac Harris and Max Blanck, unchathed from the office on the tenth floor, carrying with them over an adjoining roof Blanck's two young daughters and a governess. There was not an outside fire-escape on the building.

DEFENSE WILL BE INSANITY

Father of Murderer Says Son Is a "Dope" Fiend and Not Responsible.

Des Moines, March 27.—Strong drink and drugs were the causes assigned by J. W. Kelly of Council Bluffs for the downfall of his son, Dr. Harry B. Kelly, who murdered Deputy Sheriff Clarence Woolman and Edward Sterzing, a bartender, while in a drunken frenzy. Mr. Kelly arrived in the city in response to a telegram which notified him of the double tragedy in which his son had figured.

Kelly was confined in the county jail after being arraigned before Police Judge Van Liew on the double murder charge, and will probably remain there until his case is called in the district court. The grand jury will not report on his case before April 3. It is understood that the defense will be based on insanity superinduced by the excessive use of alcoholic stimulants and drugs.

PECULIAR AFTER EFFECTS OF GRIP THIS YEAR.

Leaves Kidneys In Weakened Condition

Doctors in all parts of the country have been kept busy with the epidemic of grip which has visited so many homes. The symptoms of grip this year are very distressing and leave the system in a run down condition, particularly the kidneys which seem to suffer most, as every victim complains of lame back and urinary troubles which should not be neglected, as these danger signals often lead to more serious sickness, such as dreaded Bright's Disease. Local druggists report a large sale on Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root which so many people say soon heals and strengthens the kidneys after an attack of grip. Swamp-Root is a great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, and, being an herbal compound, has a gentle healing effect on the kidneys, which is almost immediately noticed by those who try it. Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., offer to send a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, free by mail, to every sufferer who requests it. A trial will convince any one who may be in need of it.. Regular size bottles 50 cts. and $1.00. For sale at all druggists. Be sure to mention this paper.

SYNOPSIS.

Selina Lue, spinster grocery-store of River Bluff and guardian angel community, presides over an im- u day nursery for the babies of ighborhood in the rear of the Her charges are kept in soap and are known as the "Soap-Box ." The fact that she is single her somewhat of an object of thy to the mothers, although pos- of stronger maternal instinct than of them. One of her intimate is Miss Cynthia Page, daughter ow Page, who lives in the white- house on the hill. Cynthia visits elina and learns that she has ta- other "Soap-boxer" in. Alan Kent, g artist who wishes to establish o in her barn. Their first meeting too cordial when Blossom, Miss adopted baby, and one Cynthia is nd of, shows an evident preference an. When Cynthia leaves, Alan more about her and hears that her , one of the first families of the is land poor and in danger of los- old homestead.

CHAPTER II.—Continued.

s Selina Lue, please forgive me king. Perhaps I ought not to " And Mr. Alan caught one of the limp little bonnet and it tenderly around his finger. lly do—love the little mite, if any excuse for my——" . Alan, that's a excuse for ev- ng in the world and Heaven ! When you give it, you've gave the password to Kingdom and I ain't a-holding back the ence of my heart from one as peak it. It ain't the baby's fault y, that I found her laid in Char- tall, what is like a manger we both heard on many a time. y had a new calf then, what I the habit of turning in with mother on cold nights if the lo run short in the morning, and what saved the child's life. y had crowded her spotted baby corner of the stall to keep it and had hung her head down Blossom and her own baby in a manner as to hover them both there I found her. I wisht I ed where that wild-eyed girl- er is a-wandering, lonesome and ppy."

CHAPTER III.

Miss Selina Lue Came to the Bluff.

don't hold with thinking up bad enings onto people, for sometime it t kinder hit 'em on some blind side don't know about and take."

—Miss Selina Lue.

Now," said Miss Selina Lue with gh of relief, "every string is tied The camphire held out fine and e are two pink rags left. Every- forget all about the yellow- ets and put your mind on the ing of the lemonade. I'll get the ons." And as she spoke she rose the top step and started into grocery. She paused for a mo- t and ran her eyes over the group dled along the steps, while laugh- strove with sympathy in her ex- sion.

st at that moment Miss Cynthia e down the Hill with her rose swinging in her hand and her s a-ruffle in the breeze. She sed and took in the maimed and daged crew of youngsters with nd-eyed amazement. And a picture wholesale catastrophe they pre- ted! Bennie sat on the top step. d neatly around his head was a e white bandage, from which his ckled face peered with swollen mnity. Ethel Maud drooped on corner of the step below and sed a red and enlarged little wing t had been an ear when last Miss thia had beheld it. Luella Kinney ked back sobs with an abnormally thumb which she kept fast in her uth, seemingly deriving comfort refrom. Around one ankle was a blue gingham rag, which set the pink bit tnat swathed one of el Maud's brown little feet. Sev- l thin knees had seemingly doubled their mates in matter of size. The t of the congregation had suffered h more or less poignancy. And an aroma of mingled tears and camphor rose from the steps.

"Why—why!" gasped Miss Cynthia, "was there a—a cyclone?"

"Oh, no," answered Miss Selina Lue cheerfully. "Just a little yellow-jackets' nest that made a mistake to get mad at the children. They have 'most fergot all about it, fer we was jest about to make a whole water bucket full of lemonade. Nice day, ain't it, fer drinking sich as lemonade?" Miss Selina Lue bestowed a significant glance on Miss Cynthia, as she spoke, which was very enlightening as to her rational method of treating the hornet cyclone. Miss Cynthia hastened to lend the weight of her mental influence to that of her friend, for she saw that her consternation had started a faint echo of sobs.

"Yes, indeed it is," she affirmed enthusiastically. "I feel as if I could drink several glasses myself. Somebody must draw the water for it right from the well."

"Yes, Bennie can do that while you and Ethel Maud and Luella roll the lemons. There are the glasses to hunt up, and everybody must git ready to help squeeze."

And for at least a half-hour the front of the grocery teemed with cheerful activity. If sharp little pains occasionally obtruded themselves, they found no encouragement from the busy drink-mixers, who squeezed and stirred and slopped and drank to their hearts' content. After they had themselves consumed the third concoction from the yellow rinds, they conceived the idea of adding sugar and water still again and carrying the bucket down for the refreshment of Mr. Leeks, who was a dear friend, to be remembered at what they considered an early stage of the lemonade game.

"Lands alive!" said Miss Selina Lue as she sank on the top step and watched the last scampering pair of bare feet and fluttering rags disappear down the hill, "that's almost the worst ruckus we ever had on the Bluff! I was afraid they would all cry themselves sick before I could git they thoughts switched."

"Yes," answered Miss Cynthia as she seated herself beside Miss Selina Lue, exhausted and panting with the efforts she had made in their behalf, "it was pretty bad, and I was out of the direct path of the hurricane. How did you weather the full force?"

"Well, you know," answered Miss Selina Lue, "I've got 'em trained some. I always did believe that courage is jest to keep going and fergit the pain. I don't hold with making light of suffering, but if distractments will help to ease along, I for one say make a bucket of lemonade."

"Lots of people in the world are agreeing with you on that line, Miss Selina Lue," answered Miss Cynthia as she laughed up into the kind eyes above her.

"Course common sense makes people think alike from Tennessee to Jericho, but ain't it funny how little of it is let loose all along the road? I wished we coulder had more of it in that mothers' meeting we had this morning, which is the cause of all this cyclone-trouble, along of letting the children git away and into a mess of hornets while we talked about how to raise 'em."

"A mothers' meeting?" questioned Miss Cynthia in astonishment.

"Oh, she didn't mean any real harm. She was sent out by some kinder foolish Women's Union. She came into the grocery about nine o'clock this morning. I got a chair quick fer her to puff and rest in from the hill-climb. She looked kinder feeble and pinched, but my! she had fire in her eyes and she het up when she talked."

"Did she come up for—missionary purposes?" demanded Miss Cynthia indignantly.

"Oh, yes, I reckon that is the way she put it to herself. And it was kind of her, but it did set back the work, as this is wash-day. Mis' Dobbs was glad enough to leave her tubs and come over to Mis' Peters's and set and listen 'stid of rubbing, but Mis' Kinney was as put out as could be."

"And what did she have to impart to you about child culture?" Miss Cynthia again demanded.

"Oh, they was all good enough little receipts that most women what has owned a baby a week finds out for herself; but I was glad ter see them took notice of and writ up in fine talk in a book, 'cause how do we know that some woman, some day, might not need sich? I was glad ter have Mary Ellen hear her tell over a few things I have said to her time and time again."

"Well, it makes me indignant to think of her——"

"But wait until I tell you about the husband experiences she began on. The way she talked sounded kinder like training a lion or tiger by a kindness method. I seen Mis' Kinney begin to swell and I got right uneasy. You've saw Mis' Kinney when her temper has riz. She stood up and sorter shet that left eye of her'n, and asked in a pleasant voice:

"Did I understand that you was Miss Bumpas or Mistress Bumpas, ma'am?'

"'I am Miss Bumpas,' answered the lady, with vinegar and persimmons mixed in her voice.

"'Well,' said Mis' Kinney, 'then I excuses your remarks. Child, some woman have been joking with you about her men-folks. You wasn't talking about no United States husband at all; it must a-been some Chinee man your friend was complaining over.' I was surprised how mild and patient Mis' Kinney was handling her remarks.

"'When women are content to sit with folded hands and let——' The lady got so far, but Mis' Kinney interrupted her in a very unpolite way.

"'Set with folded hands,' she kinder repeated, dazed-like. 'Why, I make mine do the work of four any day, and if Mr. Kinney was to come home and fine me a-setting cross-handed——' But here the ruckus began, and I heard it coming down the street lickety-split. Ethel Maud was in the lead, but the others was close behind, and the yelling was like what you call it, a cyclone."

"Oh, how delicious!" gasped Miss Cynthia as she shook with laughter at the picture. "What did Miss Bumpas do?"

"Honey, I don't know. I didn't have time to see. Mis' Peters says she didn't wait for the ten-fifty car, but took to the Hill. This is the first breathing minute I have had since. And now I'm worrying 'cause she will think we haven't got a bit of manners."

"Why, you couldn't help the—cyclone!"

"Yes, I know, but you oughter be thankful fer kindnesses done to you, whether they are caps that fit or not. Mis' Kinney was riled and—but it's easy for me to talk who ain't got no husband to bit and bridle like she recommended and—— Lands alive! it is almost dinner-time and not a thing on the stove. Set still, honey, while I bring the beans out here to string."

Miss Cynthia sat for a few minutes in smiling silence, and then there floated down from the barn a tenor-whistled rendition of an Aida aria. Miss Cynthia stiffened, rose, and called a hasty good-by to Miss Selina Lue, who came to the door to look up the street after her.

"I do wonder why she had to go so suddenlike," she said to herself as she turned again toward the kitchen. Just then Mr. Alan entered the back door with Carrots wriggling in his hands. He was a whimpering bunch of the exact hue of that part of the mother-earth inclosed in the garden fence.

"Lands alive, Mr. Alan, did Carrots turn over his box at last?" exclaimed Miss Selina Lue as she plucked him by the neck of his apron and set him down by the sink.

"He was squirming over the geography of the garden paths when I found him," answered Mr. Alan with a laugh.

Carrots gave one sleepy little purr and rolled over on the floor for a nap.

"Well, such a time as we have been a-having!" remarked Miss Selina Lue, as Mr. Alan followed her to the front of the grocery and they both seated themselves in reach of the river breeze. She began to snap the beans busily.

"I heard about it," answered Mr. Alan, "and I had a drink of lemonade."

"That bucket saved a-many of yells and soothed a heap of pain," answered Miss Selina Lue with a laugh. "But, dearie me, I wonder if Miss Cynthia coulder been stung by one of them yaller-jackets as a reason for leaving so sudden! I saw one crawling around the steps a little while ago. I've just thought of it." Miss Selina Lue's hands were idle from anxiety as she peered up the Hill, with distress in her usually serene eyes.

"No," said Mr. Alan calmly, "I don't think it was a yellow-jacket that caused her flight. It might have been a gray serge," he added under his breath.

"Well, I jest feel too uneasy to rest calm until I find out," said Miss Selina Lue. "You, Bennie, come here a minute! I want you." And she hailed the wounded hero as he straggled up the road with the empty bucket.

FEW RULES FOR DIETING

Too Much Trifling With Digestion These Days and Much Harm Results.

Here are a few rules that the girl who is determined to diet does well to observe. There is too much trifling with our digestion these days, and not the least harm is done by the notion for undereating.

Never diet on the advice of a friend. Her regimen may have done wonders for her and will put you to bed or make you a sorry-looking wreck.

Don't diet to excess at any time. Girls, make sure she knows dietetics. Many physicians, good in other things, have little knowlege of the effect of food upon the system.

If you want to diet from a cause, as from diabetes or kidney trouble, do it religiously; almost better not begin than to do it spasmodically, letting up whenever food temps you.

If you only diet for the sake of figure or complexion, count the cost before starting. Cutting out the foods of ordinary family meals is hard. Ask yourself, "Which means most to me, the loss of a few pounds or being a nuisance at mealtime?"

Don't keep on dieting if you feel that it disagrees with you. This holds good even when your food list is carefully censored by a physician. The best of them will make mistakes. Find out in time what is wrong.

Don't diet to excess at any time. Women often go to the point of weakening their entire system by injudiciously following a doctor's advice.

Common sense and moderation are good things to hold to in the matter of food.

The blue of the heaven is larger than the cloud.—E. B. Browning.

Perhaps Not.

An instructor in a church school where much attention was paid to sacred history, dwelt particularly on the phrase "And Enoch was not, for God took him." So many times was this repeated in connection with the death of Enoch that he thought even the dullest pupil would answer correctly when asked in examination: State in the exact language of the Bible what is said of Enoch's death.

But this was the answer he got:

"Enoch was not what God took him for."—Brooklyn Life.

DISFIGURED WITH ECZEMA

"Our little boy Gilbert was troubled with eczema when but a few weeks old. His little face was covered with sores even to back of his ears. The poor little fellow suffered very much. The sores began as pimples, his little face was disfigured very much. We hardly knew what he looked like. The face looked like raw meat. We tied little bags of cloth over his hands to prevent him from scratching. He was very restless at night, his little face itched.

"We consulted two doctors at Chicago, where we resided at that time. After trying all the medicine of the two doctors without any result, we read of the Cuticura Remedies, and at once bought the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Following the directions carefully and promptly we saw the result, and after four weeks the dear child's face was as fine and clean as any little baby's face. Every one who saw Gilbert after using the Cuticura Remedies was surprised. He has a head of hair which is a pride for any boy of his age, three years. We can only recommend the Cuticura Remedies to everybody." (Signed) Mrs. H. Albrecht, Box 883, West Point, Neb., Oct. 26, 1910.

BRITT

From the News:

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Rasmuson are the parents of a boy born the 18th inst.

Martin Larson has sold his bus line to A. E Raw, Raw has sold his dray business to James Ross, and Ross has sold his express and transfer business to W. E. Raw and will devote his entire time to the dray business.

E. H. Arnett is making arrangements to commence the erection of a new residence on fair ground street.

A. Baumgartner, of Garner, was in Britt Friday and was initiated into the Redman lodge in the evening.

H. P. Husby was quite badly injured by having his team run away and throwing him out of the wagon. It is very unfortunate for Mr. Husby as he had just recovered from a long sick spell.

Prairie fires burned over an immense area of low ground the past week between Hayfield and Crystal Lake. Two abandoned houses and much hay was burned. There have also been a number of fires east and south of Britt, which destroyed a lot of hay.

Medicines that aid nature are always most successful. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Sold by all dealers.

OUR ROADS

WHAT THEY NEED

As a rule in this neighborhood, the drier the road the better. So that the chief requirement is drainage; under drainage and surface drainage.

Some parts are naturally well enough underdrained. Where this is not the case. we must drain, preferably of course with tile. Where underdrainage is not practical, grading up will have to be resorted to, in order to raise the roadway as high as possible above the usual water level.

Surface drainage will be found to be necessary all along the road to take away as quickly as possible the water that falls upon it in the shape of rain or snow.

GRADING

In order to have proper drainage there must be more or less grading done. The center of the roadway should of course be the highest with sufficient slope toward both sides, so that the water will get off from the grade quickly and not run lengthwise of the road. The height and width of the grade and the steepness of the slope should be suited to the various conditions as: the kind of soil; the ease or difficulty of obtaining dirt; the amount of labor that can be put into that particular stretch; and the amount of travel over it.

Where to take the Dirt From—In case a stretch of roadway is practically level, the dirt may be taken from the sides of the proposed grade. Particular care should be taken to make the slope from the center of the grade to the gutter as also from the gutter to the outside so gradual if possible that vehicles may be readily driven across the whole roadway.

All parts of the roadway should be left so smooth that any part of it, including the gutter, may be used to drive on. The value of this arrangement will be apparent directly after a rain, or in winter when hunting for a sleigh track when snow is scarce. The gutter should if possible slope with an even grade toward its outlet, so that there will be no low places in it for the water to stand.

Where land is sloping or hilly it will generally be best to use "end work" in order to obtain a more nearly level road. It will however require careful study to determine just how far it will pay to move the dirt. The labor required to move dirt will be considerably lessened if care is taken to move the scraper while filling toward the place where it is desired to leave the dirt. Much care should be taken not to spoil, but rather to improve the shape of the roadway at the place from which the dirt is taken.

Diarrhoea should be cured without loss of time and by a medicine which like Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy not only cures promptly but produces no unpleasant after effects. It never fails and is pleasant and safe to take, Sold by all dealers.

KANAWHA

From the Record:

Mont Gorton has an incubator hatch of 78 chicks, from 90 eggs; a good record.

G. W. Mason and Emery Sanford will build garages for their new E-M-F autos.

Mr. Johnson and family from Corwith are occupying the house near the Dixon blacksmith shop. He is the new section boss.

F. D. Young, of Webster City, is here this week looking after some improvements on his 520 acre farm, the Bailey Grove place.

John A. Eekhoff had his right ear nearly cut in two while using an axe; he was using it overhead and it glanced off and struck his ear.

Farmers state that there are very few fish in the west branch of the Iowa river, and lay the cause to lack of means for the fish to ascend past the dam at Belmond.

Chris C. Mayne, of Twin Lakes township, had a birthday on the 12th of this month and the following neighbors came to the Maple Hill farm to help him remember the event: Mr. and Mrs. Ruka, Mr. and Mrs. Okreag, Mr. and Mrs. Deiger, Mr. and Mrs. Heginger.

There is usually a second fire to quickly follow the first, which Kanawha had early Thursday morning of last week, but fortunately this was a small one. A spark from the chimney set fire to the shingles on the house occupied by Marshal Barge; it was discovered by a neighbor and the blaze extinguished before the arrival of the hose cart.

Every family and especially those who reside in the country should be provided at all times with a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment. There is no telling when it may be wanted in case of an accident or emergency. It is most excellent in all cases of rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by all dealers.

$3.50 RECIPE CURES WEAK KIDNEYS, FREE

RELIEVES URINARY AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, BACKACHE, STRAINING, SWELLING, ETC.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a QUICK RECOVERY, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K-255 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

A Cold Comparison.

"So you are going to give up poetry?"

"I am," replied the earnest youth. "I'm going to study medicine. A prescription commands enormously more respect than a poem."

BIG DAY FOR "WETS"

Five Measures Regulating Saloons Are Killed in Senate

FIVE MILE LIMIT BILL DEAD

Van Law Measure Loses Out Only After Most Strenuous Debate of the Legislative Session.

Des Moines, April 3.—Proposed laws regulating the sale of liquor in this state had a bad day in the senate.

The following measures were consigned to the dead pile in one way or another:

The Van Law "five-mile limit" bill.

The Jackson daylight closing bill for saloons, limiting day from 7 o'clock in the morning until 8 o'clock at night.

The Allen of Jefferson bill requiring saloons to close at 8 o'clock at night.

The Smith of Mitchell measure cutting down the life of saloon petitions of consent from five to three years.

The Moore bill, prohibiting treating in saloons.

The Wilson bill permitting the sale of liquor within 1,000 feet of the fair grounds, instead of one-half mile, as at present.

Only one other measure was considered and that got through with a favorable report. It is the measure by Crist of Clarke and increases the penalty to be imposed on persons found guilty of illegal sale of liquor. The first of these bills—the Van Law five-mile limit bill—went down to defeat after one of the hottest debates on the floor of the senate this session.

The other measures all met defeat through being recommended for indefinite postponement by the senate committee of intemperance. The senate made specific provision in ordering the appointment of a sifting committee, that no bills bearing the indefinite postponement label shall be considered either by the senate or the sifting committee. That provision knocks out these bills.

The process by which the five-mile limit law went down to defeat was filled with tense moments and exciting situations, together with some of the fanciest jockeying and hottest arguments that has been seen or heard on the senate floor this session.

Senator Van Law, trying to save his bill, and Senator Sammis, leading the opposition to the measure, held the center of the stage, with the latter carrying off the plum through the medium of a speech filled with biting jabs and sharp criticisms of the friends of the bill.

ROBBERY WAS HATCH'S IDEA

Al Rhoades Makes Written Confession Telling Details of Court House Plot.

Des Moines, April 3.—The man who engineered the attempted robbery of the treasurer's vaults at the Polk county court house Friday night was not James O'Callaghan, deputy treasurer, but Tom Hatch, the notorious criminal, according to the written confession of Al Rhoades, one of the men held to answer for the crime, a portion of which follows:

"Tom Hatch and his partner blew the safe at the Polk county court house. James O'Callaghan and I knew the job was to be attempted: we helped to plan it, and were to receive a portion of the money, but we were not at the court house. Hatch and his pal came to my house about two weeks ago. He said he had been in town but a few days and that he came to inquire about a certain party now serving a sentence in the penitentiary at Fort Madison. Two days later he paid me a second visit and divulged his plan to blow the county treasurer's safe. He wanted to know if I was acquainted with any one working at the court house who might be of assistance. I told him I did, and the next day went to see O'Callaghan. O'Callaghan then consented to render all the assistance he possibly could, providing he was given a portion of the money. Afterwards O'Callaghan, Hatch and his pal came to my house at different intervals and we made all plans. Hatch and the 'little' man were to do the job and we were to meet them near the Y. M. C. A. building and divide the money. We were having our meeting according to agreement when the police ran onto us. Hatch and the 'little' man fired on the officers and fled. O'Callaghan accompanying them."

COFFEE HEART

Very Plain in Some People

A great many people go on suffering from annoying ailments for a long time before they can get their consent to give up the [illegible] from which their trouble arises.

A gentleman in Brooklyn describes his experience, as follows:

"I became satisfied some years ago that I owed the palpitation of the heart from which I suffered almost daily, to the use of coffee, (I had been a coffee drinker for 30 years) and found it very hard to give up the beverage.

"One day I ran across a very sensible and straightforward presentation of the claims of Postum, and was so impressed thereby that I concluded to give it a trial.

"My experience with it was very satisfactory till I learned how it [illegible] to be prepared—by thorough boiling for not less than 15 or 20 minutes. After I learned that lesson there was no trouble.

"Postum proved to be a most delicious and satisfactory hot beverage and I have used it ever since.

"The effect on my health has been most salutary. The heart palpitation from which I used to suffer so much, particularly after breakfast, has entirely disappeared and I never have a return of it except when I dine or lunch away from home and drink the old kind of coffee because Postum is not served. I find that Postum cheers and invigorates while it produces no harmful stimulation." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

know I'm foolish," said Miss Se- Lue as she began on the beans "I don't hold with thinking d happenings onto people, for time it might kinder hit 'em on blind side we don't know about ake, but that child is jest the of my heart. She is one of hys of me, Miss Cynthia is, since e to the Bluff."

hy, I thought you had always —the Bluff, Miss Selina Lue," Mr. Alan, anxious to turn her hts from her favorite topic of ersation. He bore no malice, but ub is likely to bring return rip- of resentment; and that witching hievous smile—his ears began to from reflex action.

h, no, indeed, I've only been here years," answered Miss Selina and her eyes rested on the far hills across the river. "Just years and two months, for Ethel was borned the night after I here."

low on earth did they get along out you before you came?" asked Alan with sincerity in his tone.

Vell, they wasn't so many babies he Bluff then—jest Bennie, though as a mighty poor specimen when k a hand with him. They've kept ming along in bunches ever since, 's 'em!"

low did you happen to come—to n?" asked Mr. Alan gently, for aw that Miss Selina Lue's mind back in the past.

es," she answered softly, "it do look like the little unborned things called me—me a-setting lonesome up on a side of one of the hills over in Warren county. I didn't have nothing but some land, a empty home—and a full graveyard over by the garden wall. It was jest about sundown one day and I was a-fixing round the graves—the wild vi'lets was a-blooming on Adoniram's fer the first time—when I looked up and seen the light of glory on the hills. And somehow, I don't know, but all of a sudden, the grieving love in me turned into love of God that He jest poured down into my heart, and I was so filled with it that it hurt me not to be a-giving some of it out to other folks. The next day I sold the land and home to Cousin Dave Elkins, and hitched up and started down to where I could find folks to need me."

"I'm surprised you got this far," said Mr. Alan, his voice a bit husky as he looked into Miss Selina Lue's face of beautiful tenderness.

"Well, it was with a-many a stop," she answered as her face broke up into a shower of smiles. "It took two full weeks to make the seventy miles, and if ever a woman found things a-waiting to be did it was me as I come along the road." Miss Selina Lue laughed reminiscently.

"Tell me about it, please do," begged Mr. Alan like a small boy wheedling for an adventure tale.

"Well, let me see! I was all hitched and ready to start by sun-up. I had been real stern with myself about leaving 'most everything behind me packed up in a corner of the garret, but I never had any mind not to drive Charity's mother down before me, 'cause no matter where a body lands, a cow is a convenience to have along."

Mr. Alan laughed and moved a step nearer. "How far did you get that first day?" he inquired.

"Oh, only as far as Cousin Patty Sedberry's. They had word and was a-looking for me. I heard the children barking like dogs when I turned in the gate. It was the worst crowd of whooping-coughers I have ever saw. It was a mercy I got there when I did, fer it took me three days' dosing with onion syrup and brown sugar, which she had never heard on, to git 'em where they could pull through. I left 'em squeeky, but on the road to mend. I was so glad I found a job of helping that I could wade through so well."

"If you couldn't wade through people's troubles, Miss Selina Lue, you would be sure to strike out and swim," said Mr. Alan as he snapped a bean across the step.

"Well, I found a trouble down the road to Mis' Deacon Jennings' that come mighty nigh going over my head, and I had to hold on tight to the hand of God and try and pull against the tide fer them and me, too. It was a baby's funeral—she had six living boys and jest this one little woman-child. Seemed like I sewed stitches in my own soul as I made the little white shroud." Miss Selina Lue's voice quivered.

"But I'm glad you were there to—make it," faltered Mr. Alan.

"So was I, and I helt 'em up all I could in the arms of prayer. But it was the ice-house's caving in that saved her."

"The ice-house's caving in?"

"Yes, for it broke two boys' arms and one collar-bone. You see sorrowing can go hand in hand with work all day, and they can lie down together at night—but they both sleep."

"Yes," said Mr. Alan thoughtfully, "that is as true as it sounds. But where next, Miss Selina Lue?"

"Then next I got to Uncle Jere Sommers in time to witness the calamity of a man that's been deaf thirty years gitting his hearing back agin by a hearty sneeze."

"Well, do you call that a calamity?" asked Mr. Alan.

"Well, whatever people don't want to happen to 'em is a calamity when it comes," announced Miss Selina Lue. "He said he had been minding his own business and not having to bother with other folkses affairs for more'n thirty years, and now he had to hear every fool rooster in the neighborhood express his opinion as to whether day was nigh or not. He jest wrapped his head up in a old flannel shirt and went about his work as usual, hearing only what the shirt wouldn't stop. He was mad plumb through and he had 'em all walking around on they toes like crawfish. It's strange how one person's crank can turn the wheels of the whole family."

Mr. Alan laughed heartily at the idea of the old recluse's protest at being dragged into the world again, and Miss Selina Lue joined in merrily. From the back of the grocery came a faint, sleepy chirp which had a more energetic echo.

"There now ,they are all a-waking up," said Miss Selina Lue. "But maybe they'll be quiet while I tell you about the bridegroom and the cake that I had the trouble with at Carrie Louise's wedding as I come on over the Ridge. It always did seem a shame to me how folks hand a bride around on a feather, so to speak, and jest let the poor groom shift fer hisself, like he were some sort of a criminal. Andy were all dressed in his wedding clothes about four o'clock and a-waiting. Somebody oughter been setting by ter keep his mind offen hisself; but the poor boy wandered down the back hall to the porch to git a drink of water to quench his thirst and help him swoller the lump in his throat and had the misfortune to git mixed up with the wedding cake what they had set on a table in a dark corner by the door to be lit up with candles. When I got there they was both on the floor, and he had run his foot plumb through it and was gormed with frosting something terrible. I used soft soap and patience, and by hard work I got him and the clothes ready to stand up at the wedding. Then I whirled in and mixed another sixty-egg cake in a milk crock and baked it in a dish-pan with astonishing luck. I frosted it liberal with curly-cues, and me and it both was ready by the time folks got to coming. I laughed all the way down the road next day at the remembering of his face when I found him." And Miss Selina Lue chuckled at Mr. Alan's shout of amusement.

"Wait," he said, as she rose to go in and quell the calls from the soap-boxers, which were fast becoming a demonstration. "Tell me some more; let them roar."

"There's not much more to tell," she said, as she looked up and down the quiet street. A temporary lull had descended upon the back regions. "I drove in here along about sundown. I knew that Tom Withers, a Warren county man, kept a grocery somewhere on the Bluff. But it wasn't like this is now. They was a crowd of loafers setting on the steps talking loud—and they was a counter back there where the soap-boxes are now, with kegs and bottles under it. And his poor wife was consumpted almost to death. Before I laid my head on the pillow in the lean-to that night I had bought him out at a fair price, with the horse and rockaway to boot, so he could start right off with her to the west. It dug a hole in my sock of money, but that woman was a-dying and had to go."

"So you hadn't intended to enter commercial life?" asked Mr. Alan, his eyes bright with interest.

"Oh, no," answered Miss Selina Lue, "but I had to put my mind so as to follow any good leading that come. If you had seen me go at this grocery with a broom and a mop the next day—and first thing I rolled all the kegs out into the street and emptied 'em, and the bottles, too—you would have thought I had come jest fer that special purpose. A young man team-driver started to say something impolite ter me about the river of beer down the street, but Mr. Dobbs stepped over by him and that ended it. And Ethel Maud was borned that very night—and I've had my hands full ever since."

"And your heart, too," added Mr. Alan.

"Yes, looks like God do pour it full to running over on other folks. I—but here comes Bennie! How was Miss Cynthie, honey?"

"Shoo," answered Bennie. "Didn't nothing sting her; she jest laughed and said, 'Thanky, ma'am, fer the camphire, she'd save it till something did.' Mr. Alan, I told her you give me the dime to hurry back and tell you if she was hurted, but she got red and said you could wait to hear till I could git a hot tea-cake from the cook. But here's the dime, 'cause I didn't hurry." Bennie tendered the bit of silver in a hot, dirty, but nonest little hand.

"You oughter done as Mr. Alan said, Bennie, honey," said Miss Selina Lue in mild reproof. "Course he was worried until he heard; so was I."

"Bennie," said Mr. Alan with a glint in his eyes, "keep the dime; you earned it."

To Talk Across Ocean

Transatlantic Communication by Telephone Is Promise of Near Future.

Transatlantic communication by telephone is a promise of the near future if the new cable just laid between Dover and Cape Gris Nez, to increase the facility of telephonic communication between England and France, performs the wonders expected of it, some of the difficulties to be overcome in talking across, or under, the Atlantic ocean will be removed. We already send the sounds of human speech under the water for tolerably long distances. England talks with France and Belgium. Telephonic communication between our mainland and islands off the coast is in common use, and excites no comment, though our grandfathers would have considered it impossible. The new channel cable has a system of coils which is expected to reduce the distortion of current impulses and make the transmission of speech clearer. If the experiment is successful, further improvements in this system are expected to make an ocean telephone cable a possibility.

It is not conceivable that ocean telephoning will ever be cheap. To talk between Europe and America will likely be an expensive luxury, but there will be occasions when the opportunity to do so will be eagerly seized, no matter what it costs. The ocean telephone, when it comes, will scarcely be a formidable rival of the cable telegraph and the wireless for the transmission of long messages. But it will be still another means of obliterating distance, of overcoming the remoteness of nations, and the consequent lack of mutual understanding which caused many of the international complications of history. Science, working for the improvement of the arts of peace, is doing more to remove the causes of war than the great modern armaments which science has developed can do to make nations hesitate before plunging into war.

Samovar of the Romans.

The samovar seems so distinctly a Russian invention that it will be a surprise to hear that it was a Roman invention.

In the Swiss city of Avenches, which was the Roman Aventicum and before that the ancient capital of the Helvetii, there has just been dug up a bronze instrument that has all the internal mechanism of the samovar.

The jar itself is of a different shape but the use of charcoal was clearly indicated, and the ornamentation showed that it was meant for keeping wine hot.

New Word Coined.

To designate the handling of a piece of work by machinery the word "mechanipulate" has been coined.

WHAT DID HE MEAN?

The Judge—No, my conscience doesn't hurt me when I give a man a life sentence, if I'm sure of his guilt. But I suppose yours does?

The Preacher—How do you mean?

The Judge—Why, you sentence many innocent men for life and then collect a fee for doing it.

Saving Trouble.

The husband of a fashionable woman, whose gowns are at once the admiration and despair of her feminine acquaintances, was discussing the cost of living with a friend at the Union League the other night.

"By the way," ventured the friend, "—er—don't you have a good deal of trouble keeping your wife dressed in the height of style?"

The woman's husband smiled and then shook his head, emphatically.

"Oh, no," he said, "nothing to speak of. Nothing—nothing to the trouble I'd have if I didn't."

After a Big Haul.

"Binks used to be daft on the subject of buried treasure. What's he up to now?"

"He's got up an expedition to Asia Minor to try to find the place where Methuselah stored his birthday presents."

The musical recital given in the opera house last Friday evening was one of the most enjoyable musical events of the season, and it is indeed to be regretted that more of our people did not avail themselves of the opportunity to hear this most excellent program. Blanche Maeda Spratt, soprano, was recommended as a singer of much ability, and she far exceeded the claims made. She has an exceedingly strong, sweet voice, with a wonderful range. Mrs. Anderson, pianist, and Miss Ramsay, reader. are also artists of rare ability, and their numbers pleased the audience very highly. We feel sorry for those who love good music and did not hear this recital.

HANGE WOMAN'S LIFE

e Safe by Lydia E. Pinkham's etable Compound.

aniteville, Vt.—"I was passing ugh the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's etable Compound has done for me ng this trying period. Complete oration to health means so much ne that for the sake of other suffer- women I am willing to make my nble public so you may publish letter."—MRS. CHAS. BARCLAY, .D., Graniteville, Vt.

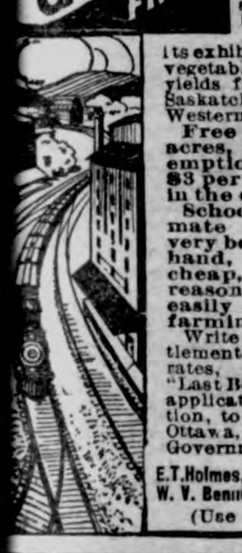
o other medicine for woman's ills received such wide-spread and un- lified endorsement. No other med- e we know of has such a record cures as has Lydia E. Pinkham's getable Compound.

or more than 30 years it has been ing woman's ills such as inflamma- n, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irreg- rities, periodic pains and nervous ostration, and it is unequalled for rrying women safely through the iod of change of life.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., vites all sick women to write r for advice. Her advice is free, d always helpful.

4 Bu. to the Acre

heavy yield, but that's what John Kennedy of monton, Alberta, Western Canada, got from 40 acres of Spring Wheat in 1910. Reports from other districts in that province showed other excellent results—such as 4,000 bushels of wheat from 120 acres, or 33 1-3 bu. per acre. 25, 30 and 40 bushel yields were numerous. As high as 182 bushels of oats to the acre were threshed from Alberta fields in 1910.



The Silver Cup

at the recent Spokane Fair was awarded to the Alberta Government for its exhibit of grains, grasses and vegetables. Reports of excellent yields for 1910 come also from Saskatchewan and Manitoba in Western Canada.

Free homesteads of 160 acres, and adjoining pre-emptions of 160 acres (at $3 per acre) are to be had in the choicest districts.

Schools convenient, climate excellent, soil the very best, railways close at hand, building lumber cheap, fuel easy to get and reasonable in price, water easily procured, mixed farming a success.

Write as to best place for settlement, settlers' low railway rates, descriptive illustrated "Last Best West" (sent free on application) and other information, to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to the Canadian Government Agent. (86)

I, W. C. HAYWARD, secretary of state of the state of Iowa, hereby certify that the foregoing, giving the population of the state of Iowa, by counties, and the population of the cities and towns of Iowa, is an exact copy of that part of the federal census of 1910 certified to me by the director of the census at Washington, D. C.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of the secretary of state of the state of Iowa.

Done at Des Moines, the capital of the state, this 25th day of March, A. D. 1911.

[SEAL.] W. C. HAYWARD,
Secretary of State.

Want to Hear From Saloon Day Limit

A determined effort will be made to force a report of the senate committee on suppression of intemperance on the bill by Jacobs of Calhoun, limiting the saloon day to thirteen hours.

Senator McColl of Dallas is looking after the measure for Representative Jacobs and will request the committee to report the bill out to the senate.

If the committee does not do this in a reasonable length of time, it is stated that a motion will be filed asking the senate to direct the committee to bring out the bill.

The committee has had the bill for several weeks.

Bill is Postponed.

The house committee on ways and means recommended for indefinite postponement a bill by Representative Bauman of Van Buren county providing for the deduction of debts secured by mortgages on real estate for the purpose of taxation.

Senator Balluff's bill making it possible for cities under a special charter to levy a tax to defray general expenses was recommended for passage. A bill by Hunt of Harrison providing for domestic and domestic local building associations received the same treatment.

Coinsurance Wins.

Coinsurance clauses, requiring the insurance of 80 per cent of property and thereby allowing the insurance companies to give lower rates will be authorized by law if a bill by Moore of Linn county is approved by the senate. The measure, which is intended to benefit large companies who take out heavy insurance was passed in the house.

BETTER TEETH FEWER DENTIST'S BILLS

Your teeth decay because particles of food get into crevices between and around the teeth and create germs of decay. Ordinary tooth powders and washes are entirely inadequate to prevent it.

Try Paxtine Toilet Antiseptic, a delicious, harmless germicide. Just a little in a glass of water, and rinse the mouth and brush the teeth thoroughly.

It will whiten the teeth, prevent and remove tartar, destroy all germs of decay and save you dentist's bills.

Paxtine thoroughly cleanses, deodorizes and keeps pure and odorless false teeth and bridgework. Paxtine is far superior to liquid antiseptics and peroxide for all toilet and hygienic uses. At Druggists 25 and 50c, or sent postpaid upon receipt of price by The Paxton Toilet Co., Boston, Mass. Send for a free sample.

Moissant's Comparison.

"The late John B. Moissant was a genial as well as a skillful airman," said a Chicago editor.

"I remember well a visit he once made me, with drawings of an aeroplane of his own invention under his arm. I joked him a little about the machine—it certainly had a heavy, awkward look. But he said with a laugh:

"'Oh, don't judge even an aeroplane by its outside. What if the man who discovered the oyster hadn't stopped to pry open the shell?'"

SCALES ALL OVER HER BODY

"About three years ago I was affected by white scales on my knees and elbows. I consulted a doctor who treated me for ringworm. I saw no change and consulted a specialist and he claimed I had psoriasis. I continued treatments under him for about six months until I saw scales breaking out all over my body save my face. My scalp was affected, and my hair began to fall. I then changed doctors to no avail. I went to two hospitals and each wanted to make a study of the case and seemed unable to cure it or assure me of a cure. I tried several patent medicines and was finally advised by a friend who has used Cuticura on her children since their birth, to purchase the Cuticura Remedies. I purchased a cake of Soap, the Ointment and the Resolvent. After the first application the itching was allayed.

"I am still using the Soap and Ointment and now feel that none other is good enough for my skin. The psoriasis has disappeared and I everywhere feel better. My hands were so disfigured before using the Cuticura Remedies that I had to wear gloves all the time. Now my body and hands are looking fine." (Signed) Miss Sara Burnett, 2135 Fitzwater St., Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 30, 1910.

Cuticura Soap (25c) and Cuticura Ointment (50c) are sold throughout the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole props., 135 Columbus Ave., Boston, for free book on affections of the skin and scalp.

OUR ROADS

CULVERTS

Get along with as few culverts as possible, without neglecting to place one where it is needed. Sometimes, however, where a culvert seems necessary. we can cause the water to flow along the gutter to some place where there is one; but a grade that simply acts as a dam to hold the water will do more harm than good and should be pierced by a culvert. Place the culvert so that the bottom will be as low as the land that forms the outlet. The slope should be about the same as that of the land upon which it is laid.

Avoid as much as possible using posts or cross pieces on the inside of the culvert to interfere with the flow of the water. Avoid also as much as possible placing them near road crossings or square turns. Small culverts should be well covered with dirt.

WHO SHOULD DO THE ROAD WORK?

As things are at present I think the farmers living nearest to where the work is to be done should do most of it. The "boss" besides supervising the work should do as much of it as is practicable.

OTHER PROBLEMS

Now there are a number of other problems that have not been considered in this article; such as: When to do the work. What tools to use. Kinds of culverts; and others.

Let such questions be studied and discussed and the labor be so applied to "Our Roads" that they may be more rapidly improved; for this is one of the things that we can not afford to neglect.

E. M. F. Touring Car - - - $1,000

E. M. F. Fore Door Full vestibuled type $1,100

Following the sensational announcement that the E-M-F Company of Detroit was offering a fore-door, three-speed, five-passenger Flanders "20" for $800 comes the second statement from this progressive concern that a full vestibuled, five-passenger E-M-F "30" touring car will be sold for $1100.

It seems to be "second nature" with the E-M-F Company to furnish the industry and trade with surprises—surprises that come when most unexpected and at a season of the year when new things are not looked for.

By building a Flanders "20" fore-door, three-speed car at $800 and an E-M-F "30" full vestibuled at $1100 the company has now a line of high quality cars at lowest prices that cannot be overlooked by buyers of medium priced machines.

In announcing the E-M-F "30" vestibuled touring car, the company has undoubtedly given the public an automobile that in uniformity of body conformation, grace of line, and distinguished appearance, is another triumph for this organization. The E M-F "30" vestibuled body is built on clean cut, straight, pleasing and original lines.

The new body is mounted on the standard E-M-F "30" chassis which has given such universal satisfaction. The four cylinder motor has a piston displacement of 226 cubic inches. The three speed selective transmission is of the type used on all high grade cars. The cone clutch is leather-faced, while the dual system of dry cells and magneto furnish the ignition.

The E-M-F "30" vestibuled body is designed to carry out the most beautiful and effective ideas of fore-door construction. In the dash has been built adjustable ventilators, giving free circulation of air in summer, or closed for warmth in winter. The dash is of the semi-torpedo design and harmonizes with the wide sweeping lines of the fenders and the graceful body lines. The body is made of alumnoid steel with wood trimmings. Like all high class cars the doors are fitted with invisible sliding handles of latest design.

In order to insure the delivery of an E-M-F touring car or Fore-door car you are advised to place your order early.

REASONED IT OUT
And Found a Change in Food Put Him Right.

A man does not count as wasted the time he spends in thinking over his business, but he seems loth to give the same sort of careful attention to himself and to his health. And yet his business would be worth little without good health to care for it. A business man tells how he did himself good by carefully thinking over his physical condition, investigating to find out what was needed, and then changing to the right food.

"For some years I had been bothered a great deal after meals. My food seemed to lay like lead in my stomach, producing heaviness and dullness and sometimes positive pain. Of course this rendered me more or less unfit for business, and I made up my mind that something would have to be done.

"Reflection led me to the conclusion that over-eating, filling the stomach with indigestible food, was responsible for many of the ills that human flesh endures, and that I was punishing myself in that way—that was what was making me so dull, heavy and uncomfortable, and unfit for business after meals. I concluded to try Grape-Nuts food to see what it could do for me.

"I have been using it for some months now, and am glad to say that I do not suffer any longer after meals; my food seems to assimilate easily and perfectly, and to do the work for which it was intended.

"I have regained my normal weight, and find that business is a pleasure once more—can take more interest in it, and my mind is clearer and more alert."

BILL BEFORE SENATE

10

Would Regulate Operations of Fraternal Insurance Concerns

PROUDFOOT FATHER OF BILL

Opposition Led by Adams of Fayette, Declares Officers Are Too Extravagant With Companies Funds.

Des Moines.—The senate has under consideration the Proudfoot bill revising the laws of the state regulating the operation of fraternal insurance companies. This is considered the most important piece of proposed insurance legislation before the legislature.

The object of the bill is to gradually bring about an increase in rates of the fraternal company, the claimed object being to put the fraternal companies on a higher and paying plane.

Following Senator Proudfoot, Senator Adams of Fayette charged that any statement to the effect that the fraternal men of the state were almost unanimous in support of the bill, was in error. "It is probably true that most of the officers of these companies are for this bill, but it is not true that the men who furnish the money, the premium payers, are demanding the passage of this bill. I represent one of the premium payers. The trouble with the fraternal companies is that the officers are too extravagant. If you want evidence of this, just go over town some day and walk up Seventh street and see the magnificent buildings — monuments to the extravagance of the fraternal officers. Then, too, look at the automobiles of the officers—moving monuments of their extravagance with honkhonks on them. It is these things that we premium payers consider when the officers tell us in a demand for such legisation as this, that unless the rates are increased the companies can not live. Senator Saunders, formerly a director in a fraternal company, declared his friendliness to the bill and asserted that charges to the effect that officers of fraternal companies frittered away the funds of the organizations in useless expenditures, were unwarranted.

He averred that it is necessary for the fraternal companies to increase their rates if they are to live.

Election Contests.

It cost the state of Iowa $766.40 to settle the three election contests held early in the present session of the legislature. A bill by the house committee on appropriations defraying the expenses of these contests was passed in the house.

In Fremont county, the Spencer-Penn contest caused an expense to the state of $307.50. The Dent-Newell contest in Plymouth county cost $142.75. The Boomgaarden-Olsen contest "set the state back" to the extent of $316.15.

Another Trust Bill.

Representative Stipe introduced another bill directed at trusts. The measure provides for the production of books, papers and documents of corporations, associations and individuals and compels the attendance and testimony of witnesses in proceedings relating to pools, trusts and combinations.

Stipe Bill Killed.

A bill by Reprcsentative Stipe of Page county, prohibiting discrimination in the prices of commodities in various sections of the state was defeated in the house. The house refused to adopt the minority report of the committee on commerce and trade recommending the bill for passage.

Recommend Felt's Bill.

The committee on appropriations has recommeded for passage Representative Felt's bill authorizing the state veterinarian to destroy diseased stock. The committee could not see its way clear to provide for the payment of compensations to the owners of such destroyed stock.

Fire Marshall Bill.

The senate committee on appropriations has decided to report for passage the state fire marshall bill by Harding of Woodbury. This measure carries with it an appropriation of $20,000. It has already passed the house and indications are that it will carry in the senate.

Free Transportation.

Free transportation for mail carriers is provided in a bill by Goodykoontz of Boone, which was passed in the house. The bill amends the anti-pass law and permits common carriers to make contracts with the government for the transportation of mail carriers.

SHARES OF STOCK NOT CREDITS

Iowa Supreme Court Hands Down Decision of Much Importance to the State.

The Iowa supreme court, in a decision handed down Tuesday, holds that corporation shares of stock are not credits within the meaning of the law and therefore the personal debts of shareholders cannot be used as an offset against assessment on shares of stock. The case was that of Morrell against Bentley, treasurer of Black Hawk county.

Four similar cases which affect Polk county and in which the Des Moines Insurance company, H. R. Howell and W. D. Skinner are plaintiffs, are now pending before the supreme court.

"The supreme court decision is one of the most important rendered by the supreme court for several months," declared City Solicitor Brennan. "It is a victory for every city and county in the state and will save them many thousands of dollars."

Bootleggers Hit Again.

Another attack upon bootleggers and druggists who practice the illicit sale of intoxicating liquors was made by Representative Beebe of Franklin when he introduced in the house a concurrent resolution urging the Iowa representatives and senators in congress to use their efforts to pass laws prohibiting the issuance of government liquor permits to those who are not authorized by the state laws to engage in liquor traffic.

According to the resolution, the special government taxes for manufacturing or selling liquors are imposed without reference to the legal right of the holders of government permits to sell or manufacture intoxicants under the laws of the states in which they reside. This policy interferes seriously with the enforcement of the state laws. It is the intent of the resolution to persuade the Iowa members of the national congress to use their influence to bring about a modification of the federal laws which will improve these conditions.

To Remove Shaft.

The senate committee on appropriations decided to recommend out for passage the Brown bill, calling for the removal of the soldiers' and sailors' monument from its present location, south of the capitol building, to a site on the east river bank, just south of the new city hall.

The only manner in which the appropriations committee changes the original bill is in that it provides that the $30,000 called for shall not be available until July 1, 1913. It is the belief of a majority of the members of the appropriations committee that it will take the city of Des Moines that long to condemn the land and prepare the site for the shaft.

Deer Bill Killed.

A fish and game committee bill, providing for the distribution among the parks of the state of wild deer running at large, was defeated in the house. The measure allowed the state fish and game warden to farm the wild deer out to park managements under contracts for their care on the condition that they were not to be removed from the state or sold. It was the intent of the bill to do away with the large expense to the state incurred by damage to property caused by the wild animals.

Fat Addition To Salary.

One thousand dollars per annum is added to salary of the attorney general under the provisions of a bill by Hogan of Cass county, which passed the house this morning by a vote of 57 to 36. The bill also raises the salaries of the assistant attorney general and the special counsel to not exceeding $2,500 per annum. If the bill passes the senate, the attorney general also will receive his expenses while traveling on state business.

County Officers to Receive Raise.

The senate passed the bill by Chase of Hamilton making a slight increase in the salary of county recorders in counties under 25,000 population. The bill fixes the salary of the county recorders as follows: In counties of 15,000 population o- less, $1,200; in counties of from 15,000 to 20,000 population, $1,300; in counties of from 20,000 to 25,000 population, $1,400. Salaries of county recorders in other counties remain unchanged.

New Department.

The senate passed the Bennett bill creating a state department of anti-toxin under control of the state health board. An appropriation of $2,000 for the department is carried by the bill. The sole duty of the new department, in case the bill becomes a law and is passed in its present form by the house is to distribute anti-toxin at cost to the people of the state. The state health board is behind the bill.

Classification.

"Sir," said a little blustering man to a religious opponent; "I say, sir, do you know to what sect I belong?"

"Well, I don't exactly know," was the answer; "but to judge by your make, shape, and size, I should say you belonged to a class called the insect."

Before Allowing an Operation

Please Read These Two Letters.

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock will prove how unwise it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffering worse than before. Then after all that suffering Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored her health.

HERE IS HER OWN STATEMENT.

Paw Paw, Mich.—"Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displacement—I could not be on my feet for a long time. My physician treated me for several months without much relief, and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. To-day I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise every woman who is afflicted with any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. Orville Rock, R. R. No. 5, Paw Paw, Mich.

"There never was a worse case."

Rockport, Ind.—"There never was a worse case of woman's ills than mine, and I cannot begin to tell you what I suffered. For over two years I was not able to do anything. I was in bed for a month and the doctor said nothing but an operation would cure me. My father suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; so to please him I took it, and I improved wonderfully, so I am able to travel, ride horseback, take long rides and never feel any ill effects from it. I can only ask other suffering women to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation."—Mrs. Margaret Meredith, R. F. D. No. 3, Rockport, Ind.

We will pay a handsome reward to any person who will prove to us that these letters are not genuine and truthful—or that either of these women were paid in any way for their testimonials, or that the letters are published without their permission, or that the original letter from each did not come to us entirely unsolicited.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

CONGRESS GETS TAFT'S MESSAGE

Brief Document is Transmitted to Country's Lawmakers.

IS ALL ABOUT RECIPROCITY

President Tells of Negotiations Leading to the Canadian Agreement, and Asks Early Action Confirming the Pact.

Washington, April 5.—President Taft's message to the 62nd congress in extraordinary session was transmitted to both branches of congress today. The message in full was as follows:

To the senate and house of representatives: I transmitted to the sixty-first congress on January 6th, last, the text of the reciprocity trade agreement which had been negotiated under my direction by the secretary of state with the representatives of the Dominion of Canada. This agreement was the consummation of earnest efforts extending over a period of nearly a year, on the part of both governments to effect a trade arrangement which, supplementing as it did the amicable settlement of various questions of a diplomatic and political character that had been reached, would mutually promote commerce and would strengthen the friendly relations now existing.

The agreement in its intent and in its terms was purely economic and commercial. While the general subject was under discussion by the commissioners, I felt assured that the sentiment of the people of the United States was such that they would welcome a measure which would result in the increase of trade on both sides of the boundary line, would open up the reserve productive resources of Canada to the great mass of our own consumers on advantageous conditions and at the same time offer a broader outlet for the excess products of our farms and many of our industries. Details regarding a negotiation of this kind necessarily could not be made public while the conferences were pending. However, the full text of the agreement with the accompanying correspondence and data explaining both its purpose and its scope became known to the people through the message transmitted to congress.

Approved by the People.

It was immediately apparent that the ripened fruits of the careful labors of the commissioners met with widespread approval. This approval has been strengthened by further consideration of the terms of the agreement in all their particulars. The volume of support which has developed shows that its broadly national scope is fully appreciated and is responsive to the popular will.

The house of representatives of the Sixty-first congress, after the full text of the arrangement with all the details in regard to the different provisions had been before it, as they were before the American people, passed the bill confirming the agreement as negotiated and as transmitted to congress. This measure failed of action in the senate. In my transmitting message of the 26th of January, I fully set forth the character of the agreement and emphasized its appropriateness and necessity as a response to the mutual needs of the people of the two countries, as well as its common advantages. I now lay that message and the reciprocal trade agreement, as integrally a part of the present message, before the Sixty-second congress and again invite earnest attention to the considerations therein expressed.

Early Action Is Urged.

I am constrained in deference to popular sentiment and with a realizing sense of my duty to the great masses of our people whose welfare is involved, to urge upon your consideration early action on this agreement.

In concluding the negotiations the representatives that the two countries bound themselves to use their utmost efforts to bring about the tariff changes provided for in the agreement by concurrent legislation at Washington and Ottawa. I have felt it my duty, therefore, not to acquiesce in relegation of action until the opening of the congress in December, but to use my constitutional prerogative and convoke the Sixty-second congress in extra session in order that there shall be no break of continuity in considering and acting upon this most important subject.

TRAIN LOAD AFTER TRAIN LOAD OF SETTLERS

ARE GOING TO CENTRAL CANADA.

The question of reciprocal trade relations between the United States and Canada has provoked considerable discussion and interest. Whatever else the discussion may have done, it has brought out the fact that on the Canadian side of the line the agricultural situation is one that forces attention, and it has also brought forth the fact which it is well to face, that on the American side of the border, there is a vastly increasing population to be fed with a somewhat decreasing proportion of food products. This article is intended to point out to those who may wish to become of those who can raise wheat, oats, barley, flax, cattle and hogs at the least cost that the opportunities in Central Canada are what they are seeking. During the past year the official figures show that upwards of 130,000 Americans located in Canada, and the greatest majority of these have settled on farms, and when the time comes, which it will within a few years, they will be ready to help serve their parent country with the food stuffs that its increasing population will require. The immigration for the spring has now set in in great earnest, and train load after train load of a splendid class of settlers leave weekly from Kansas City, Omaha, Chicago, Detroit, St. Paul and other points. Most of these are destined through to points in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The reports that come from the different farming districts there are that the spring is opening up well, and the prospects for a splendid crop this year are very good. In some districts good homesteads are yet available. The price of all farm lands has naturally had an increase, but it is still away below its earning capacity. The immigration branch of the Dominion Government has just published its 1911 illustrated pamphlet, which may be secured on application to the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, Canada, or any of the agents of the Dominion Government, whose advertisement may appear elsewhere in this paper.

Truly Wonderful Cat.

A wonderful cat is that owned by Mr. A. J. Gorringe, a tradesman of Ditching, England. Mr. Gorringe has a bantam which lays her eggs in different parts of the yard, but his cat never fails to find them. She takes the egg between her teeth, places it on the step, and rattles the door handle with her paws until her mistress arrives to take in the egg. Not one of the eggs has yet been broken.

An Individualist.

The reason for the individual drinking cup had been explained again and again to the children and they had become sturdy supporters of the idea.

So it was not surprising to hear Henry calling: "Ma, ma! Melville's got my individual apple!"

Grouch Still With Him.

When Brown died he left an old friend living, by the name of Jones, who always had a grouch. After Brown had been in heaven some time, he met Jones just coming through the gate, and as the newcomer did not look as happy and contented as he should, Brown asked him what was the matter. "Well," Jones said, "I got my feet wet coming across the river Styx and caught a nasty cold, broke my left wing and have to carry it in a sling, and my halo don't fit worth a darn."

FREE SAMPLE CURED OLD PERSON'S BOWEL TROUBLE

One of the most remarkable proofs of the unusual laxative merit contained in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is that it is effective not only in people in the prime of life, but at the extremes of ages. As many letters are received from mothers regarding the cures of children, as from men and women of sixty, seventy and eighty years of age. It must be truly a wonderful laxative.

In the cure of constipation and bowel trouble in old people it has no equal. It corrects the constipation, dispels the headache, biliousness, gas, drowsiness after eating, etc. People advancing in years should see to it that their bowels move freely, and if they do not to take Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You can prolong your life by healthy bowel action. Clogged bowels invite disease. Women about to pass the menstrual period cannot do better than use Syrup Pepsin several times a week until the system has settled to its future condition.

Among the strongest supporters of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are Mr. W. G. Zorn of New Decatur, Ala., and Mr. George S. Spaulding of the National Soldiers' Home, Kansas, both elderly men. The regular size bottles can be bought of any druggist at fifty cents and one dollar, but a free sample bottle can be had by sending your address to the doctor.

Silver Wedding

It was a complete surprise to Mr. Albert Riemer, when last Friday evening the immediate relatives and friends of the family entered their spacious home to commemorate Mr. and Mrs. Riemer's 25th wedding anniversary. It was a mystery to Mr. Riemer how the family could make the necessary preparations without his knowledge. A number of very useful pieces of silverware were presented. The evening was spent in music, singing, an address by Rev. H. W. Schneider and games by the young people. Excellent refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs Riemer and children are highly respected in the community.

Cloudy with rain and snow has been the order of the Iowa weather the past week, with just a little sunshine on Saturday and Sunday. And in the meantime the farmers are waiting patiently for a chance to get into the fields.

COMING TO GARNER

United Doctors, Specialists, Will be at the Garner Hotel

MONDAY AND TUESDAY, APRIL 24 & 25, AND WILL REMAIN

Two Days Only

Remarkable Success of These Talented Physicians in the Treatment of Chronic Diseases

Offer Their Services Free of Charge

The United Doctors, licensed by the state of Iowa for the treatment of deformities and all nervous and chronic diseases of men, women and children, offer to all who call on this trip, consultation, examination, advice free, making no charge whatever, except the actual cost of medicine. All that is asked in return for these valuable services is that every person treated will state the result obtained to their friends and thus prove to the sick and afflicted in every city and locality, that at last treatments have been discovered that are absolutely sure and certain in their effect.

These doctors are considered among America's leading stomach and nerve specialists and are experts in the treatment of all chronic diseases and so great and wonderful have been their cures that in many cases it is hard indeed to find the dividing line between skill and miracle.

Diseases of the stomach, intestines, liver blood, skin, nerves, heart, spleen, kidneys, or bladder, rheumatism, sciatica, diabetes, bed wetting, leg ulcers, weak lungs and those afflicted with long-standing, deep-seated, chronic diseases, that have baffled the skill of the family physician, should not fail to call.

MANY WONDERFUL CURES

According to their system, no more operations for appendicitis, gall stones, tumors, goiter or cancer. They were among the first in America to earn the name of the "Bloodless Surgeons" by doing away with the knife, with blood and with all pain in the successful treatment and cure of these dangerous diseases.

If you have kidney or bladder troubles bring a two-ounce bottle of your urine for chemical analysis and microscopic examination.

Deafness often cured in sixty days.

No matter what your ailment may be, no matter what others may have told you, no matter what experience you may have had with other physicians, if you want to get well again it will be to your advantage to see them. Go at once. Have it forever settled in your mind. If your case is incurable they will give you such advice as may prolong your life. Do not put off this duty you owe yourself or friends or relatives who are suffering because of your sickness, as a visit this time costs you nothing and may save your life.

Remember, this free offer is for two weeks only.

Married ladies must come with their husbands and minors with their fathers.

IS HERE TO STAY

Control and Publicity for Public Service Corporations.

VERDICT OF PROMINENT MAN

Theodore N. Vail, President of Western Union and Telephone Companies, Recognizes Rights of the American Public.

Public regulation of public service corporations has come to stay. It ought to have come and it ought to stay. That is the flat and unequivocal assertion of Theodore N. Vail, president of both the American Telephone and Telegraph company and the Western Union Telegraph company. It came in the form of his annual report to the seventy thousand stockholders of the two great corporations. Although Mr. Vail's advocacy of full publicity in connection with the affairs of such concerns was well understood, nobody in financial circles had anticipated so frank an avowal of full public rights in the shaping of their general conduct. It came consequently as a surprise, not only because of its novelty and squareness, but also on account of the unqualified acquiescence of a board of directors comprising such eminent and conservative financiers as Robert Winson, of Kidder, Peabody & Co., and Henry L. Higginson of Boston, Henry P. Davison of J. P. Morgan & Co.; Senator W. Murray Crane, George F. Baer, T. Jefferson Coolidge, Jr., Norman W. Harris, John I. Waterbury and others.

President Vail's declaration is heralded as the first recognition by those in high corporate authority of the justice of the demand that the public be regarded as virtual partners in all matters that pertain to the common welfare. He goes directly to the point.

"Public control or regulation of public service corporations by permanent commissions," he says, "has come and come to stay. Control or regulation, to be effective, means publicity; it means semi-public discussion and consideration before action; it means everything which is the opposite of and inconsistent with effective competition. Competition—aggressive, effective competition—means strife, industrial warfare; it means contention; it oftentimes means taking advantage of or resorting to any means that the conscience of the contestants or the degree of the enforcement of the laws will permit.

"Aggressive competition means duplication of plant and investment. The ultimate object of such competition is the possession of the field wholly or partially; therefore it means either ultimate combination on such basis and with such prices as will cover past losses, or it means loss of return on investment, and eventual loss of capital. However it results, all costs of aggressive, uncontrolled competition are eventually borne, directly or indirectly, by the public. Competition which is not aggressive, presupposes co-operative action, understandings, agreements, which result in general uniformity or harmony of action, which, in fact, is not competition but is combination, unstable, but for the time effective. When thoroughly understood it will be found that 'control' will give more of the benefits and public advantages, which are expected to be obtained through such ownership, and will obtain them without the public burden of either the public office-holder or public debt or operating deficit.

"When through a wise and judicious state control and regulation all the advantages without any of the disadvantages of state ownership are secured, state ownership is doomed."

"If Mr. Vail is right," says Harper's Weekly, in a concise summing-up, "then it seems pretty plain that we are entered upon a new era in both economics and politics. And it is high time we did if evolution is to supplant revolution as an efficient force in the development of civilization."

Fighting Man.

It is man's nature to fight. It is his merit to fight for what he believes to be right. Courage and bravery are not achieved by hiring a lawyer. A man who is not willing to fight to the death for the right or for his own is not as good or complete a man as one who is is willing. But opinions about this are not so important as the fact that it is man's nature to fight, and that neither resolu[illegible] nor legislation nor provision to get over all kinds of trouble in any other way than fighting will avail.—Ellwood Hendricks, in Atlantic.

More to the Purpose.

"Are you in favor of a ten-hour day?"

"I don't care anything about the days," replied young Rounderley, "but it would be a jolly good thing if we could have 24-hour nights."

LOSS IN POPULATION

Miller Explains Is Due to High Cost of Living In Iowa

BLAMES PRICE AGREEMENTS

Tells Committee That Price Combinations Result in Boosting Iowa Prices Above Other States.

Des Moines, April 10.—Advocating before the senate committee on appropriations a favorable report on his bill, to give the attorney general money and machinery to enforce the anti-trust laws of the state Representative C. W. Miller of Waverly declared that the high cost of living has gone hand in hand with the high tax on moneys and credits in depopulating Iowa.

"On account of price agreements," he declared, "it is costing the people of Iowa, located in the very heart of bread and butter and meat districts, far more to live than it costs the people of the east, from whom comes most of the protest. The high prices prevent industries from coming into Iowa, as well as driving industries from beyond its border. The small increase in the population of Iowa cities was not due, as a rule, to any material gain in such industries, but on account of people deserting the source of production, the farm, and entering into pursuits of distribution in the cities and towns, lured there by the ignis fatuus of extortionate profits.

"Such extortionate profits, not by any means confined to any one line, but covering a wide range of things entering most intimately into the every-day needs of the household, attract and overcrowd the marts of distribution while in the same degree depleting the avenues of production. And this operates in two ways, both to the detriment of the consumer, by promoting a natural upward tendency of prices on account of the lessened production and by multiplying the number enticed into the business of distribution, for all newcomers in the latter respect immeditely are taken into the combination, and since all have to live, each addition naturally must enhance the prices at which their wares must be sold. The result is that the consumer is compelled to pay for the cost of maintaining upon a profitable basis, a half-dozen business establishments where there ought to be but one.

MERCER IS PRINTERS' HEAD

Master Printers Of Iowa Complete Organization Of State Association.

Des Moines, April 10.—Master printers of Iowa in session just closed in this city organized the first state association in the United States. It is the Master Printers' Association of Iowa, the outgrowth of the expressed sentiment of the many Iowa printers at the National Typothetae meeting in St. Louis last fall.

The betterment of the business in every way is the object sought.

One hundred and twenty-two master printers were registered for the two days' sessions which opened Friday morning. Twenty-six cities and towns of Iowa were represented, and five cities outside the state. The value of plants represented at the session was placed at $3,000,000.

ELECTION IS NOT PROBABLE

Many Legislators Leaving Regular Candidates To Cast Complimentary Votes.

Des Moines, April 10.—With but three more joint ballots to be taken there is no evidence of a break in the senatorial deadlock.

Several of the legislators have left the beaten path to cast complimentary votes for various persons, but there has been no changing of a sufficient number of the assemblymen to materially change the relative standing of the leading candidates.

Dwight N. Lewis Appointed.

Des Moines, April 10.—Dwight N. Lewis, secretary of the Iowa state railroad commission, has been appointed special examiner for the interstate commerce commission. The position carries with it a salary of $3,000 for the first year and an advance thereafter.

ITCHED SO COULD NOT SLEEP

"I suffered from the early part of December until nearly the beginning of March with severe skin eruptions on my face and scalp. At first I treated it as a trivial matter. But after having used castile soap, medicated washrags, cold cream, various cooling cream, etc., I found no relief whatever. After that I diagnosed my case as eczema, because of its dry, scaly appearance. The itching and burning of my scalp became so intense that I thought I should go mad, having slept regularly for months past, only at intervals, waking up now and then because of the burning and itching of my skin. Having read different testimonials of cures by the Cuticura Remedies, I decided to purchase a set of Cuticura Ointment and a cake of Cuticura Soap. After using them for a few days I recognized a marked change in my condition. I bought about two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and five cakes of Cuticura Soap in all, and after a few days I was entirely free from the itching and burning. My eczema was entirely cured, which is due to using Cuticura Soap and Ointment daily. Hereafter I will not be without a cake of Cuticura Soap on my washstand. I highly recommend the Cuticura Remedies to anyone suffering from similar skin eruptions and hope you will publish my letter that others may learn of Cuticura Remedies and be cured." (Signed) David M. Shaw, care Paymaster, Pier 55, N. R., New York City, June 2, 1909.

r," she counseled her neighbors, ng on hand, most of times means ng, and the piece of meat er go in the pot according to you know you oughter have and hat you think you want. Lots lks stomiks ain't as greedy as is."

Alan had come in for his din- little before the time. He spent of his mornings down at the sketching the roustabouts as loaded the early boats; but when harf was deserted, he found it ant to come and chat with Miss a Lue as she prepared the simple he shared with her. He liked tch the babies tumble and crawl the grocery before their noon for the floor and low-lying re- of the store offered unlimited rtunities for adventure to creep- and it always interested him to what they could manage in the of exciting catastrophes.

ss Selina Lue at such times fair- adiated with good cheer and in- t and he felt constrained to do vise. In fact, Miss Selina Lue ered confidences as the sun invites buds in the springtime, and her views of life were sound if unusual.

The non-appearance of Miss Cynthia was uppermost in her thoughts, and she seemed possessed of an inexhaustible store of admiring anecdotes of that disturbing young person. There was in his mind a sneaking suspicion—nay, a shame-faced certainty—that his own presence was the cause of her seeming neglect of Miss Selina Lue, and his conscionce hurt him. Bother the girl! Why should she pass him in the lane as if he were nonexistent and manage to convey an impression of his utter obnoxiousness every time he so much as caught a glimpse of her in the distance? He was of her world and accustomed to the amenities thereof, and he was not in the way of being trodden under even a very pretty pair of "first family" feet. His pride rebelled. He was something of a "first family" himself, and was in the habit of receiving unlimited expressions of regard from the fair sex, especially those who were admitted through the sacred portals of his studio.

And, forsooth, what had he done to arouse such animosity? It really seemed an old-fashioned spell of jealousy over his place in the affections of Miss Selina Lue and the soap-boxers. He felt decidedly annoyed that anyone should presume to question his rights in the River Bluff Grocery household. Indeed, he felt entitled to call himself a soap-boxer if he chose—and—he was about to say so aloud when he was interrupted by a glad cry from Miss Selina Lue as she hurried down the steps and waved her hand to the inspiration of his disturbing thoughts, who was leisurely approaching from up the street, surrounded by a group of small adorers.

"I Believe He's Mad 'Cause We Didn't Name the Puppy for Him—Boo-Hoo."

Bennie Dobbs, having deposited his packages at home, was backing before her with upturned, beaming face, and Luella Kinney and Ethel Maud pressed close to her side, while her arms held young Jim Peters, carefully regardful of his youngness. She was smiling at Bennie, who held a small and very active puppy up for her to see, and Ethel Maud and Luella were joining vociferously in her admiration of the recent Dobbs acquisition.

He was about to step to the door, really excited at the sight of so much animation, when suddenly he felt himself an alien and alone. Clemmie had crawled to the top step and was leaning out, enraptured at the uproar, and Blossom hung over her broom fence and gurgled at the glimpse she could get through the window of the high-held, squirming puppy. They had all forgotten him; he was a stranger who had no right even to look on at the triumphal return of the queen to her realm of babies and puppies, with smiling Miss Selina Lue and proud Mrs. Jim in the background. He seized his hat and sketching kit and slipped out of the back door and off to the river, sore, and determined to go dinnerless, though not exactly deciding whom he would injure by such a proceeding. Bother the girl and bother and bother the eyes that toned with the hat that toned in with her cheeks, the sky!

As he disappeared behind the barn he heard Bennie's shrill voice high up in the scale saying: "Oh, Miss Cynthie, we've named him for Mr. Flarity 'cause he got him for us, but the first puppy he has we are going to give it to you."

"If it's a boy puppy you can name it for Mr. Alan, too," chimed in Ethel Maud, with boundless enthusiasm showing in the tone of her voice and shining through the dirt on her little face. "Ain't he just the cutest puppy?"

By this time they had arrived at the steps and were, figuratively speaking, in the hospitable arms of Miss Selina Lue, though young Jim soon occupied that position literally, as she seated herself on the steps the better to enjoy his company. She looked up at Miss Cynthia with shining eyes.

"Honey," she said. "I was thinking I had got to making you out in my mind prettier than you was, but I see it was t'other way round. Where have you kept yourself fer more'n a week?"

Miss Cynthia answered her from the top step where she had settled down in affectionate embrace with Blossom, whose flower head nestled against her friend's cheek with a contented little sigh. "I have been busy, Miss Selina Lue—and a little bit worried. I came down, hoping for a comfy time with you. You—you—always seem so busy—and—entertained these days that I—I——"

"Why, Miss Cynthie, child, whatever do you mean? I ain't never too busy for bothers to be told to me, and I always have been entertained from five o'clock, when I get up to shake up the stove and unlock the back door, until I put out the lamp at night. But night or day I want to hear anything you might have to say."

"I know you do, Miss Selina Lue, and I wanted to come, but——"

"Looks like they's a special sort of string tied 'twixt you and me, and my hungering for you must have drawed you this morning. I was jest a-telling Mr. Alan—why where did he go all of a sudden? And Bennie and Ethel Maud and Luella after him, I'll be bound! If Blossom and Jim here could walk they would be hanging on him somewheres." Miss Selina Lue was intent on a shifting of young Jim's swaddling bands and failed to catch the expression on the fair face bent over Blossom's yellow head, which was anything but acquiescent.

"Is Blossom then so fickle a person that she only stays with me because she hasn't the locomotive powers to run away? Why, Miss Selina Lue, think of the affection I have—lavished on her!"

"Law, child, I was just a-running on; but I guess Blossom is like the rest of women folks, a-follering the smiling eye of a man as far and as long as he'll let her. What ails Ethel Maud now?"

From around the barn appeared the three deserters, Bennie and Luella in the lead with Ethel Maud trailing sobbing behind. "'Taint nothing the matter with her," announced Bennie with scorn. "She's jest bawling 'cause Mr. Alan couldn't take us up the river with him. He says he ain't coming home till night, Miss Seliny Lue, and don't want no dinner or nothing."

"I believe he's mad 'cause we didn't name the puppy for him—boo—hoo—" wailed Ethel Maud, whose intuitions were most truly feminine.

"He ain't tall! Didn't you tell him that Miss Cynthie was a-going to name the one we're going to give her fer him? It was jest because you hung on his leg and cried so; I heard him say something about 'bothering girls' So shut up and let's take the puppy down and see if Mr. Leeks thinks it's time to cut his tail off yet."

"Oh—ho—ho, Miss Seliny Lue, don't let him cut off his tail, please! What would the poor little dead tail do without the puppy? Oh—oh—oh——"

"Now, Ethel Maud, don't cry, honey. Bennie shan't cut off the puppy's tail until the time comes, and then you'll have to stand it like we all stand afflictions what has to come. Don't you want to carry Jim across the street to his mother? Will you be right careful with him?" Ethel Maud, instantly pacified, reached out and clutched the bundle offered her with an inarticulate, caressing murmur; Miss Cynthia gasped with remonstrance.

"Don't worry, child; Ethel Maud nurses every baby on the Bluff regular, and I seen Mis' Peters let her tote Jim down to Spout Spring only yesterday. We Bluff folks has to trust the babies to the good Lord a heap of the time, though I must say some of the mothers seem to leave 'em on His hands more'n is fair."

The children trooped down the street, and with a little sigh of absolute contentment the Blossom drooped her head on Miss Cynthia's arm and closed her long, fringed lids over her wondering baby eyes.

Miss Selina Lue tenderly regarded the picture the girl and the rosy baby made in the open doorway, and said as she moved a step nearer, "Honey, what's been a-bothering you? Would it help to tell me? Is your ma worse?"

WANT BARGAINS IN PEWS

Thrifty Church-Goers Who Seek Cut Rates Sometimes Will Overlook All Other Considerations.

Ministers have so many things to worry about that it is pretty hard to add the bargain-hunting habits of their parishioners to their other cares, but some of them are doomed to shoulder that extra burden. Old members of the congregation are not likely to go out hunting cut-rate pews in other churches, but newcomers who are just deciding upon a church home all do it.

"A reduction of two dollars a year in pew rent will fetch the bargain-hunter every time," said a sexton. "Only last week a young woman who expects to make her home in this city concluded that of all city churches of this denomination she liked ours best and would take a pew here, but when she found she could get a pew that suited her about as well in another church for three dollars a year less she let all other considerations go by the board and identified herself with that church. The cut-rate pew hunter is a recognized feature of modern church life. Because a new member elects to join our congregation does not at all signify that he shares our religious convictions or likes the pastor and our service; it may mean that we charge less for the pew he likes than another church up street."

A Strange Situation.

"Humor is a funny thing," said Binks.

"It ought to be," said the philosopher.

"Oh, I don't mean that way," said Binks. "I mean that it is a strange thing. Now, I can't speak French, but I can always understand a French joke; and I can speak English, but I'm blest if I can see an English joke."

"Most people are," said the philosopher.

"Are what?" said Binks.

"Blest if they can see an English joke," said the philosopher. "It is a sign of an unusually keen vision."—Harper's Weekly.

The Best Way.

When you resist the temptation to go the Sour Way, don't go too far and go the Sweet Way. Some people have such sweet dispositions that they are disagreeable. The best way is the Quiet Way—to let people alone as much as possible.—Atchison Globe.

Duty.

It is thy duty oftentimes to do what thou wouldst not; thy duty, too, to leave undone what thou wouldst do.—Thomas a Kempis.

Vagaries of Finance.

"I understand you have paid the mortgage off your place."

"Yep," replied Farmer Corntossel.

"Then why do you complain of hard times?"

"All the neighbors have done the same thing. That leaves me with money on my hands that nobody wants to borrow."

His Hope.

"I suppose," the beautiful girl said, "you write for the mere love of writing?"

"Yes," the sad looking poet replied, "but I still hope to some day be able to write for at least fifteen cents a line."—Judge.

A GOOD RECORD

Des Moines, Iowa, April 17—No one man in the Thirty-fourth General Assembly, just adjourned, came out of the three months' law-making with more credits than Hon. A. C. Ripley, of Garner. Mr Ripley was honored with the chairmanship of a newly created committee "Board of Control" which demanded much work and energy, as many problems had arisen in connection with the conduct of the state institutions. While devoting most of his energy to this work, however, Mr. Ripley was not found wanting in the considera ion of other measures and his vote will be record e l on all the important bills. He was not a dodger. He was earnest in his convictions and voted his convictions regardless of criticism. That his work and influence counted is demonstrated in the large number of bills he had enacted into laws. Among these were:

A law to encourage the building of new steam and electric railways in Iowa by permitting the capitalization of promotion expenses.

A law extending the term of office of members of the State Board of Control to six years.

A law permitting the superintendent of asylums to call assistants to his help as officers in apprehending escaped patients.

A law relating to the recording of notice of forfeiture of contract

A law vesting the title of school property acquired by purchase, gift or device, in the school corporation.

A law revising the present statute relative to the paroling of patients at the state inebriate asylum.

A law authorizing the state board of control to place boys and girls from industrial schools in private families.

A law regulating committment of boys and girls to reform schools.

A law making the estate of non-resident insane patients and persons legally bound for their support at state hospitals.

A law making an appropriation for protecting the "Whitestone Hills Battlefield" in North Dakota, where some Iowans are buried.

Two other important measures which Mr. Ripley had passed by the House but which the Senate failed to act upon, were for a commission to investigate the causes of insanity, epilepsy and criminality; and another to establish a state colony for epileptics.

Diarrhoea should be cured without loss of time and by a medicine which like Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy not only cures promptly but produces no unpleasant after effects. It never fails and is pleasant and safe to take. Sold by all dealers.

OMNIBUS MEASURE

Bill Determines Salaries In State Departments and Attaches

WAS ASSEMBLY'S LAST ACT

This Legislature Appropriates $60,000 More Than Previous Session—Capitol Building Repairs Included.

Des Moines, Iowa.—One of the last acts of the senate was to pass the general omnibus bill of the appropriations committee. This measure is a "catch-all" bill, allowing money to the various state departments, paying salaries of legislative attaches and the like.

This is the wind up of the appropriations. Chairman Mattes of the senate appropriations committee stated that this assembly has appropriated about $60,000 more than the last assembly. Of this increase $23,000 is for additional help and $36,000 is for repairs for the capitol building. In all, Chairman Mattes estimates that this legislature has appropriated about $3,000,000.

Some of the larger items in the bill are:

For attorney general	$ 15,400
For auditor of state	35,960
For clerk of the supreme court	6,080
For governor	16,000
For state librarian	9,360
For railway commission	15,800
For secretary of state	36,600
For state superintendent	6,600
For supreme court	14,600
For state treasurer	12,360
For historical department	12,320
For secretary of executive council	17,160
For geoglogical survey	1,800
For mine inspector	2,000
For state board of health	7,200
For state food and dairy commissioner	5,160
For custodian's department	64,520
For providential contingencies	50,000
For use of executive council for furniture, stoves, supplies, fuel, etc	145,000
To improve state house	33,675

Amounts Voted for State Schools.

The house by a vote of 61 to 8 approved the expenditures of the three state educational institutions amounting in all to $730,000.

The approval was in the form of a senate joint resolution by Smith of Mitchell.

Under the provisions of the resolution approval is given to the following estimates of cost of improvements:

At State university—
Hospital heating plant	$ 30,000
Woman's building	50,000
Addition to hospital	100,000
Nurses' home	50,000
Total	$230,000
At State Agricultural college—
Mechanical engineering laboratory	$ 50,000
Stock Judging pavilion	20,000
New library	225,000
Addition to Margaret hall	55,000
Total	$350,000
At State Teachers' college—
New training school	$150,000

Game Bill Passes.

The senate passed a house bill which makes the ownership and title of all fish and game in the state of Iowa, so that when it is desired to take out fish it may be done legally and they be transferred. It also makes it possible for the game warden to corral and dispose of the wild deer found in western Iowa.

Senate Passes Smoke Bill.

The senate promptly passed the smoke bill which Des Moines people want, to get rid of the smoke from the big chimneys. It provides that the use of chimneys which issue great volumes of smoke shall be a misdemeanor and the person responsible may be sent to jail.

HOUSE VOTES AGAINST MOVE

Wants Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument to Remain on Present Site.

After coming through the senate with practically no opposition, the bill by Senator Brown appropriating $30,000 for the removal of the soldiers' and sailors' monument from its present location to the river front met its Waterloo in the house appropriations committee. The measure was recommended for indefinite postponement.

A number of old soldiers have been particularly active in opposition to the bill. It is their opinion that the money could be spent more judiciously in other ways. The opinion of the committee was the same. Senator Van Law's bill providing for state aid to county and district fairs also was recommended for indefinite postponement. A committee bill providing for a reorganization of the horticultural department received the same treatment.

Senator Neal's bill appropriating $15,000 to the Iowa railroad commission to prosecute interstate rate cases fared well at the hands of the committee. It was recommended for passage.

Three senate bills making necessary appropriations for the state industrial schools were recommended for passage.

Crist-Sammis Bill Killed.

The Crist-Sammis public utilities bill very unexpectedly met its Waterloo in the senate. The bill passed the house by a big majority and indications were that it would pass the senate after a hard fight.

Immediately after dinner yesterday Senator Sammis began a brilliant and able defense of the bill. He went into every detail with a thoroughness which showed him master of the question under consideration.

Hardly had the Plymouth county solon finished than Smith of Mitchell moved to lay the bill on the table. It carried, 23 to 22. Sammis changed his vote so as to move a reconsideration, but Smith having the floor, beat him to it and he moved to reconsider and lay the reconsideration on the table. It carried. This put the padlock on the whole proposition, as it takes a two-thirds vote of all the senators to get the bill off the table.

A Constitutional Question.

Speaker Stillman of the house of representatives was confronted with a difficult problem to solve when he ruled on the passage of the house appropriations committee bill establishing a state beef and dairy cattle board and appropriating $15,000 for expert inspection and instruction to the beef and dairy cattle interests of the state. After a consultation with Attorney General Cosson and Lieutenant Governor Clarke, Speaker Stillman ruled that the bill had passed the house on a constitutional majority. Under the constitution of the state, all bills appropriating money for special or private purposes must pass both houses by two thirds majorities. The dairy and beef bill received a vote of 69 to 17 in the house, lacking three votes of having the two-thirds majority. The speaker ruled that the bill had failed to pass.

For Tax Commission.

The senate passed the bill by Senator Savage of Adair, calling for the appointment of a temporary commission of five men to examine into and investigate the subject of taxation. The commission is required to make a report to the governor of the state by Oct. 1, 1912, stating the results of its research and making suggestions for changes in our present tax system.

Border Bridges.

Border counties are empowered to erect and maintain bridges across border streams in conjunction with counties and municipalities of other states under the provisions of a bill by Senator Saunders which passed the house. The measure provides that a petition of 10 per cent of the voters shall be necessary to call an election to issue bonds for such bridges.

New Iowa Corporations.

Oxford State bank, Oxford, articles of incorporation renewed for twenty years.

Hazleton Farmers Co-Operative Creamery company, Hazleton; capital stock $10,000; incorporators, E. McKenzie, W. A. Nelson, John Bashaw, E. J. Short, J. H. Manzel, Adam Keifer, John Kunkle, Henry Surh and F. A. Harrington.

For Uniform System.

A uniform system for drafting bills of lading is provided for in a bill by Senator Smith of Mitchell which passed the house. The bill already has passed the senate. It is the intent of the bill to make bills of lading more negotiable. The law is especially desired by bankers' associations.

MISS SELINA LUE
and the Soap-box Babies

by MARIE THOMPSON DAVIESS

SYNOPSIS.

Miss Selina Lue, spinster guardian angel of River Bluff, presides over an impromptu day nursery for the babies of the neighborhood in the rear of her grocery. Her charges are known as "Soap-box Babies." The fact that she is single makes her an object of sympathy to the others. One of her friends is Miss Cynthia Page, daughter of Widow Page. Cynthia visits Miss Selina and learns that she has taken another "Soap-Boxer" in Alan Kent, a young artist who wishes to establish a studio in her barn. Blossom, Miss Lue's adopted baby, and one Cynthia is very fond of, shows an evident preference for Alan. When Cynthia leaves, Alan hears that her mother is in danger of losing the old homestead. A bar ruckus. Alan admires Cynthia. Selina tells how she came to locate in the place and start the haven for little ones. She suspects that Cynthia is responsible for Alan's neglect of herself.

CHAPTER IV.—Continued.

"No, Miss Selina Lue, not worse; it's the mortgage again. Mr. Everson was out Monday, and he says the—the whole place will have to be sold. He has a good proposition from the land company, which wants to pave and improve the whole tract and push it on the market for us; but they must have the house too, for the situation is valuable and they can sell it to the Golf club, which will insure the sale of all the lots. If we don't take their offer, it means we shall have to sell it all at a disadvantage and perhaps only make the mortgage. Mother refuses to decide for herself and has left it to me. What shall I do? I don't want—to sell—my home, but there seems no way to keep it." Miss Cynthia's lips quivered, but her eyes smiled bravely down at Miss Selina Lue.

"Honey, my heart is jest a-aching for you, but there ain't nobody can tell what a mortgage and a Golf club will do. If worst comes to worst, we can build another room by tearing down some lumber offen the barn, and you can bring your ma right here to live with me. I would admire to have her." Miss Selina Lue made her offer with heroic eagerness, for she and the invalided Mrs. Jackson Page had failed to find the accord which existed between the grocery owner and the scion of all the Jacksons and Pages, albeit their few interviews had been marked by great cordiality for the sake of their common interest in the conductor thereof.

"Miss Selina Lue, you are a darling and I would rather be a soap-boxer than almost anything; but we shall have a small competency if we sell now in the right way. It's giving up the home—I'm afraid it will kill her—she worries so."

"No, it won't, honey, not when she's got you—you'd be a set-off against any kind of trouble. Leaving an old home is a wrench, as I found when I hitched up and started down from Warren county; and, Miss Cynthie, I left graves behind me that I might not never see again in this world But it looks like the Lord floated mine and Charity's mother's ark on the right mountain, and He'll do the same by you and your ma. Now, don't go and mistrust His wisdom in selecting mountains."

"Oh, Miss Selina Lue, I knew you would say the right thing about it all. What would I do without you?" and Miss Cynthia's slim white hand stole in Miss Selina Lue's strong brown one, whose sympathetic clasp was only rendered the closer by the smudge of sorghum off the Kinney molasses pitcher which held their fingers tight together.

"Looks like I couldn't hardly stand it if I couldn't git even the edge of my shoulder under any burden you was a-carrying, honey. Now, I've got something to show you that'll take your mind offen all distractments. Lay Blossom in her box and come along of me to the barn."

Considering its relation to the grocery and the Bluff in general, the barn was a most ostentatious structure. It was large and roomy and sat on the brow of the Bluff overlooking the river, while the little handful of houses that clustered about the grocery seemed stranded at its feet. It had been built for the teams that had worked on the dam up the river, and had become the property of the grocery owner for a song when the work that had brought the horses and men to the settlement was finished. The army had moved on, leaving the barn and the grocery in a sort of guardianship of the few families which elected to stay and find work on the river or over in the city. Only the Hill Mansion of Mrs. Jackson Page farther up the river on the Bluff had any such outlook, and for all its wide, tall-pillared verandas and spreading wings it failed entirely to dwarf the imposingness of the barn.

"Is it a new calf, Miss Selina Lue?" demanded Miss Cynthia as they entered the door together.

"Lands alive, child, the little spotted one ain't more'n two months old, what's sold to Mr. Si Bradford's cousin on 'count of the richness of Charity's milk to raise from."

"I beg your pardon, madam," said Miss Cynthia with elaborate courtesy, as she threw Charity a bough of sugar-maple leaves she had pulled for that exact purpose on the way up. Charity gave her tail a friendly switch and her large soft eyes roamed over the radiant vision by her stall with placid appreciation.

"Don't you and Charity gossip too long," called Miss Selina Lue from half-way up the ladder. "Mind your dress don't get snagged on that nail there."

A little breathless, Miss Cynthia pushed her head up through the opening and cautiously swung herself to the floor above; then halted and stood spellbound. The barn loft had become another world! A large window that stretched half across the end, opened out to the blue hills across the valley, and the river wound through the picture like a silver thread. On the walls were rough sketches and some pictures, bold and startling, and in the middle of the room stood an easel on which was a huge canvas. A cot with one of Miss Selina Lue's old patchwork quilts covering it stood in one corner, and a familiar gray coat hung from a peg.

With horror Cynthia realized that she was in the camp of the enemy, and her first inclination was for precipitous flight, but Miss Selina Lue's bright eyes held her, and for the life of her she could not voice her dismay to that plainly overjoyed lady.

"Now, there!" she exclaimed, breathless from the climb and from delight. "I've got you here at last, and I can see how happy you are from your face. Ain't it a surprise to have a art gallery jest sprout up at your back door unbeknownst to you or anybody else? It do beat all how that boy can paint! Now come here and get a good light on this one here in the middle. You would think that any light up here would be a good one, with that big window he knocked in the wall there—Mr. Flarity helping him of nights and Mr. Dobbs a-putting in the glass—but it ain't, and you've got to step around to git jest the right view of them."

Miss Cynthia stood before the canvas, lost, unable to utter a word. He had painted the sunset hour on the wharf and the roustabouts unloading bales of hay from up the river in the mellow light. It was a tremendous, decorative thing of which Miss Cynthia had never seen the equal.

"It's a order for a big building in Chicagy, and, Miss Cynthie, what do you think? It's to be hung on the walls of a room where workingmen can go and have meetings, and some big rich men are going to pay him ten thousand dollars for this one and two more! I tell you he don't make nothing but a-number-one, triple X art, he don't! All three of 'em are to be about the doing of something, and I think it will be mighty uplifting to men that has to work as hard as them men does to have a great artist paint pictures of the doing of it. He says this one is his best—has got more climate than the others."

"More climate?" asked Miss Cynthia in a small voice.

"Yes, climate all around it; like that sunset light on the prow of the boat and the men's backs and sich."

"Didn't he call it atmosphere?" ventured Miss Cynthia delicately.

"That's it! I knew it had something to do with the weather. Anyway I am learning to know it when I see it, like out the back door at early sun-up when I take in the Flarity twins. It seems like all the men in the Painters' Union tries to paint with it. Once along come a man named Singer and painted it better'n any of 'em 'cause it's borned in some folks, like the making of pies and cake and sich. That's a copy of the picture the man done of his own mother, over there by the cot. Mr. Alan always takes it with him 'cause he ain't got no picture of his own mother, who had the mischance to die when he was borned. He says the picture means everybody's mother anyway—and I think it do."

"Oh, Whistler's mother! How beautiful! I wonder if he made the copy himself?"

"Yes, he done it over across the ocean—in Jerusalem, I think. And the man's name is Whistler instead of Singer. I remember it was some kind of a musicianer. He talks and tells me all about every kind of art-thing and sometimes I am kinder slow at catching on, but I like it and I feel like I was a-hearing a person come back from heaven and a-telling about what's over there. And Mary Ellen Dobbs and Mis' Kinney and the rest feels the same about it, him being jest as kind about telling and showing them as can be. Mary Ellen left Ethel Maud to watch the pot for dinner the other day while she come over here to see a picture he had painted of her back yard and clothes line I was a-telling her about, and the child let the bacon and cabbage burn and then tasted 'em! When her mother got back she ran screeching something orful with a burnt tongue. Mr. Alan put some of his own tooth-wash on it to make her hush; he's such a hand with children as I never saw often."

As Miss Selina Lue talked, Miss Cynthia was looking from one picture to another, rapt in delight. The rough sketches of men and draft horses and great loaded carts and straining mule teams were awe-inspiring, but were relieved by tender bits of landscape and quick sketches of the children in charming characteristic poses. How strange it seemed to find them hanging on the walls in the old Bluff barn! And yet perhaps no stranger than to find the painter himself coming and going among the Bluff people in perfect sympathy and friendship. For a moment her heart was abased before him in admiration—and could it have had a touch of longing?—when Miss Selina Lue precipitated the old enmity upon her again.

"And this here picture of you, Miss Cynthie, is jest done to a turn. When I first seen it I took such a fit over it that he promised to do a real big likeness of you some day. But whatever made him paint the back of you I don't know. It was on the river road, wasn't it?" And Miss Selina Lue picked up a small sketch that stood against a pile of books on the table.

The recently melted blood in Miss Cynthia's veins froze again stiff and hard as she gazed on the picture in Miss Selina Lue's hand. It was a bit of the river road with the forked tree in the distance, and retreating down the vista was a back view of herself, skirts switching, ribbons flying, and roses on her hat as stiff as possible. Every line in the figure breathed stiffness and snubbery, and it was the cleverest bit of work she had ever seen. Oh, why had she passed him stonily there in the lane, only to give him such a chance? The wretch! And under the picture was a line that added injury to the insult—"What care I how fair—" Her face burned and an explosion was imminent, but was cut off in the fuse by Miss Selina Lue.

"I think the writing under it is so sweet and good, and like him; for of course he means he likes you jest as much with your blue eyes and yellow hair, even if it ain't the style he mostly admires. Looks don't make no difference in his liking; though a heap of men is all for looks, and nice goodness in women don't interest them noways. Not that you ain't got looks in plenty of your own kind. Dearie me, if I ain't left the grocery to mind itself! I must hurry on down, but you come along when you're done looking. He says his friends are always welcome to come up and look and I know he means you more'n anybody."

Miss Selina Lue paused as she gathered her stiffly starched gingham skirts about her preparatory to descending the ladder. "Honey," she said, "I've jest got to tell you what he's a-going to do for me. You know that little, old, faded tintype I've got, what is all that's mortal left to me of Adoniram Millsaps? Well, he's going to make me a life-sized likeness of it, all colored according to Mr. Dobbs, who do favor Adoniram some. I knew you'd love him too for being so feeling towards me, on 'count of Adoniram being snatched so suddenlike from this world. You know better than any one how he is jest still one of the whys of me."

"Oh, Miss Selina Lue, I love—I love his doing it for you!"

"Honey child, I knew you would. Mr. Alan's a fine man. He couldn't paint sich pictures if he wasn't beautiful inside hisself. The wonderful part is the thinking of 'em; the painting 'em is jest work."

NAVAL TIP FOR SEAGOERS

Lemon and Ginger Should Be Given to Those Not Sure of Themselves on Shipboard.

A surgeon on the naval hospital ship Solace has a remedy for seasickness which should be of interest to folks who are going on winter cruises and are apprehensive that they may have to stay below deck most of the time.

It is simply a decoction of lemon and ginger, and may be taken in the form of lemon soda and ginger ale, or a dash of seltzer may be added to a little lemon juice and Jamaica ginger. The doctor's idea is that the lemon causes a greater secretion of the gastric juices and that the ginger serves as a stimulant, the need of which can be best appreciated by the victim.

The remedy has been used on the Solace with various degrees of success, and it is not pretended that it will prove effective for everybody. It should be taken in small doses as soon as trouble seems to be approaching, although it may be of some use at a well-advanced stage.

Uninviting as the beverage may seem, it can be made after a little experimenting so that it is very agreeable. The lemon juice and ginger is not as palatable as the soda, but has been found to give better results. Usually it is best to make it with more ginger than lemon and with just enough carbonic water to make it drinkable.

It is a West end doctor, says the London Week End, who has made a new discovery regarding children who speak imperfectly. One boy, says the physician, had lost his voice for years. Mr. Stewart, the doctor in question, examined him for growth of the larynx, but finding none, insisted that the boy should use a toothbrush every day. In about six months the hoarseness disappeared and the voice came back. Simple cleanliness is a remedy for many such cases, while others, such as lisping, are often due to imitation of a parent or teacher who has this affliction.

COFFEE CONGESTION
Causes a Variety of Ails.

A happy old lady in Wisconsin says:

"During the time I was a coffee drinker I was subject to sick headaches, sometimes lasting 2 or 3 days, totally unfitting me for anything.

To this affliction was added, some years ago, a trouble with my heart that was very painful, accompanied by a smothering sensation and faintness.

"Dyspepsia, also, came to make life harder to bear. I took all sorts of patent medicines but none of them helped me for any length of time.

"The doctors frequently told me that coffee was not good for me; but without coffee I felt as if I had no breakfast. I finally decided about 2 years ago to abandon the use of coffee entirely, and as I had read a great deal about Postum I concluded to try that for a breakfast beverage.

"I liked the taste of it and was particularly pleased to notice that it did not 'come up' as coffee used to. The bad spells with my heart grew less and less frequent, and finally ceased altogether, and I have not had an attack of sick headache for more than a year. My digestion is good, too, and I am thankful that I am once more a healthy woman. I know my wonderful restoration to health came from quitting coffee and using Postum." Name given by the Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason," and it is this. Coffee has a direct action on the liver with some people, and causes partial congestion of that organ preventing the natural outlet of the secretions. Then may follow biliousness, sallow skin, headaches, constipation and finally a change of the blood corpuscles and nervous prostration.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

A Disappointing Discovery.

Any one who imagines that life is lacking in amenities among the newsboys in the big city should listen occasionally to their talk, says the Youth's Companion. When these two—each with his package of newspapers under his arm—met, one appeared somewhat glum and disgruntled; whereupon the other benevolently essayed to cheer him up.

"Say, Bill, you 'member dat dime I tought I lost yesterday—de one I was goin' to treat youse wid?"

"Sure," assented Bill, sullenly; then with growing reproachfulness of tone, "I treated youse twicet already, Jim!"

"Well," went on Jim, animatedly, 'wot d'youse t'ink I found jus' now? I wuz feelin' round in dis pocket, an' I found, right here in dis pocket, I—" A dramatically timed pause.

The Intellectual Eater.

The truly intellectual eater never asks the price of his victuals. He orders freely, and as his fancy dictates, of wild duck, terrapin, pfannehase, herring or venison, and after he has eaten as much as he wants and gone to sleep his secretary pays the bill, says the Baltimore Sun. He has no time for haggling. Every moment of his leisure is devoted to eating. His one regret is that he must stop now and then to get shaved, to vote, to kiss his wife, to spank his children, to discharge the thousand and one other oppressive duties of the civilized man.

That was a piece of fine oratory when a lecturer speaking of the drinking young man said: "The railroads don't want him, the ocean liners don't want him, the banks don't want him, the merchants don't want him," then referring to an advertisement of a saloonkeeper for a bartender who does not drink. "the saloonkeeper does not want him." Turning with his most winsome smile to the audience he said: "Now girls, do you want him?" —Exchange.

One of the best Easter programs ever heard in Klemme, was the verdict of many of those who were in attendance at the exercises rendered at the English Methodist church last Sunday morning. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The music was fine, and the recitations by the little ones were all well rendered. Much credit is due the committee which had charge of the arrangements.

LABORS COMPLETED

ADJOURNMENT OF THE THIRTY-FOURTH GENERAL ASSEMBLY ON APRIL 12, 1911.

RESUME IN CONDENSED FORM

Over a Thousand Measures Offered Of Which Many Important Bills Were Killed and Others Passed—Governor's Veto Power Also Used.

The Iowa Legislature adjourned April 12th, but not until a United States senator had been elected and much important legislative matter had been passed upon, either to become a law or otherwise. The more important matters may be summarized under three brief headings.

IMPORTANT EVENTS.

Jan. 9.—Legislature convened.

Jan. 17—Began balloting for United States senator.

Feb. 2—Sylvia Pankhurst, noted English suffragist, addressed joint convention on right of women to vote.

Mar. 7—Militant suffragist demonstration at hearing before senate committee on woman suffrage.

Mar. 16—Dolliver memorial exercises. Address delivered by Hon. Robert G. Cousins.

Apr. 6—Elected Robert Henderson state printer and John M. Jamison state binder.

Apr. 12—Elected W. S. Kenyon United States senator.

IMPORTANT MEASURES PASSED.

Transferring pardoning powers of general assembly to the state parole board.

Prohibiting exhibition of deformed, imbecile, idiotic or abnormal persons.

Giving rural school pupils free high school tuition in nearest approved high school.

Providing flat five-mill tax on monies and credits.

Giving county attorneys power of indictment during vacation of the grand jury.

Providing compulsory dragging of roads.

Prohibiting possession of roulette wheels, poker tables and chips, "Klondike" tables and other gambling devices.

The bulk sales bill.

Creating office of state fire marshal.

Repealing of tax ferret law.

Providing for uniform bills of lading.

Providing normal training courses in one high school in each county.

Increased salaries for state officials.

Providing for unsexing of certain classes of inmates of public institutions.

Taxing automobiles and providing that 85 per cent of tax shall go to good roads.

Providing for validation for life of teachers' certificates.

State inspection of scales and weights.

Creating a commerce counsel.

IMPORTANT MEASURES KILLED.

Public utilities commission.

Special primary to fill senatorial vacancy.

Municipal courts in cities.

Permitting trust companies to act in a fidiciary capacity.

Automobile liability insurance.

Resubmission of constitutional prohibition.

Woman suffrage constitutional resolution.

Providing initiative and referendum for state legislation.

Providing for daylight saloons.

Direct inheritance bill.

Nominating supreme, district and superior court judges at the June primaries.

The terminal tax bill.

Anti-discrimination and anti-rebate insurance bill, repealing a portion of the Blanchard law.

Permanent tax commission and temporary legislative tax commission bills.

Providing that general consents to sell liquor shall be obtained by secret ballot instead of by petition.

Providing that savings banks might invest monies in foreign real estate mortgages.

Providing for a state engineer for highways and state aid for good roads.

Revising all the road laws of the state and combining them into one big law.

Reorganizing the supreme court and providing nine judges.

Licensing barbers.

Prohibiting combinations among doctors to fix prices.

Reorganizing pharmacy department and providing commissioner of pharmacy with three inspectors.

Political.

It was a record breaker in many ways and will long be remembered for the long political fight on senator which lasted up to the hour of adjournment which elected W. S. Kenyon on the sixty-seventh ballot to the United States senate to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the Hon. J. P. Dolliver. About eleven hundred bills were offered, many of which were killed.

Financial.

The session just closed appropriated nearly two million dollars for state use and for claims and indemnities.

By reason of the transfer of the auto tax from the general revenue fund to the road fund and the transfer of a portion of the hunters' license fund, it may be necessary for the executive council, when it makes the next levy for the state to increase the tax levy a trifle. The chairmen of the two appropriation committees, Mattes in the senate and Moore in the house have cut down every appropriation to its limit. State institutions have received an increase in per capita allowances for the inmates and these and other matters may tend to an increase in the tax levy.

Taxation.

Taxation has had a hard row to hoe during this legislature. The big work done by the legislature along this line has been the passing of two important bills affecting taxation and the killing of two bills on the same subject. Of the tax bills passed it is a toss up whether the repeal of the tax ferret law or the new monies and credits bill is the more important. Early in the session a bill prohibiting contracts with tax ferrets by counties was passed. It does not affect existing contracts. The monies and credits bill provides for a flat five mill limit on monies and credits. Two important bills were killed. One provided for the creation of a permanent tax commission to take over all work pertaining to the levying of taxes in the state. The other provided for a legislative tax commission to recommend to the next general assembly a new system of taxation for the state. The terminal tax bill met its usual fate and died before it got well matured.

Educational.

Education has received proper and considerate notice at the hands of this legislature. Three measures of vital importance affecting the educational interests of the state have passed and gone to Governor Carroll for his signature. The first of these is the Shane bill providing for free tuition in accredited high schools, to the pupils in rural schools which do not have high school facilities and courses. The district pays the bill. The second of these is the Adams bill, providing an appropriation of $500 for one normal training course in each county of the state, this course to be part of the regular work of one high school in each county. The third of the educational bills is that which provides for the validation for life of teachers' certificates. It affects first, second and third grade certificates.

Good Roads Laws.

In the field of roads much has been done and much has been killed. The Cunningham compulsory dragging law has been passed which means much to the good roads movement in Iowa. The Kulp auto tax bill taking 85 per cent of the taxes from automobiles and putting them in the good roads fund, is also a step towards giving the state better roads. The third of the good roads bills, provides for a two-mill levy, by county supervisors, for the creation of a county road fund to be spent by the supervisors for good roads. Two important road bills were killed. The Whitney bill, which completely rewrote the road, drag, bush weed and hedge laws of the state, provided for a poll tax for good roads work and a school of instruction for good road making, was killed. With it was killed the Fourt bill which created the office of state highway engineer, the state highway board and provides for state aid in building county good roads. The Whitney bill also carried with it convict labor on roads. All in all eighteen bills affecting good roads were introduced and of these three have been passed.

Cities and Towns.

From the standpoint of municipalities considerable good legislation has been passed. This includes the monies and credits tax and the fire marshal bills, considered elsewhere. The most important bill outside of these was that defining switching limits within a city or town. It means much to urban development.

Public Health.

The most important public health measure passed is the Perkins unsexing bill. This is also the most radical health measure adopted in Iowa in years. It provides for an operation known as vasectomy to be performed on certain classes of inmates in public institutions. It prevents procreation by those on whom the operation is performed. An antitoxin department for cheap antitoxin has been created.

One thing stands out prominently, and that is that at no time has any measure been passed or defeated on a strictly party vote except the election of a United States senator. Partisan legislation, so far as the two major parties are concerned, has been entirely eliminated from the Thirty-fourth general assembly.

The five big events in the Thirty-fourth general assembly were namely, the Dolliver memorial, March 16th, with Robert G. Cousins as the chief orator; the lecture by Sylvia Pankhurst, the noted English suffragist, on February 2d; the veto of the Oregon plan bill by the governor which he had read, and the election of a state printer and binder and the election of a United States senator on the 67th ballot on April 12th.

The Insurance Field.

In the insurance field very little was accomplished. The big bill in this department was the anti-rebating and anti-discrimination bill. It was claimed by the opponents of the bill that it was a vicious measure intended to repeal in part the Blanchard law. It aroused much heated debate but was finally killed in the house. The bill was the most important insurance measure before the legislature. Another insurance measure to meet death in the house was the automobile liability insurance bill. It was killed after a heated debate. The most important insurance bill passed was the fire marshal bill. This bill has been before several preceding legislatures, but never passed until the Thirty-fourth general assembly got hold of it. It has been signed by the governor. It will tend to lower fire risks in Iowa, in the opinion of competent insurance men.

Anti-Liquor Legislation.

Anti-liquor legislation received some hard knocks. The daylight saloon bill was killed, as were several other bills. The house killed a liquor bill which provided that general consents to sell liquors should be obtained by secret ballot instead of by petition. The five-mile limit bill was also killed. This liquor bill attracted more attention than any other anti-liquor bill, except, possibly, constitutional prohibition.

One other important bill passed was that creating a commerce counsel for the railroad commission. This means much to the shipping interests of Iowa. The bulk sales bill also passed, as did the uniform bill of lading act. These are important to shippers and merchants alike and mean much for the development of the state. Improvements were made to the state anti-trust law which will be material in preventing monopolies from getting a tighter hold on the state.

Law Enforcement.

A radical move was made in law enforcement measures. This was the bill giving to the county attorneys the power, with the consent of the district judge to return indictments while the grand jury is on a vacation. This is an unusual power and when not abused will, in the opinion of its friends, do much to mitigate the cry against the slowness of American justice.

Constitutional Propositions.

Four constitutional propositions, involving either an amendment to the federal or the state constitution, came before the legislature. Three were killed and one passed. The one to pass was a resolution giving Iowa's sanction to a resolution of the Sixty-first congress proposing to amend the federal constitution so as to provide for a national income tax law. Three other propositions fell by the wayside. Two of these are biennial visitors, the woman suffrage proposition and constitutional prohibition. Both brought out lively fights, and both received their death blow. The senate acted as executioner for this legislature. The fourth of the quartet of constitutional propositions was the initiative and referendum, a proposition to submit to the people for ratification all bills passed by the legislature, and to have the people initiate legislation of a state character. They were Utopian dreams which were badly shattered when the legislature finished grilling them.

One of the big events of the session was the veto by Governor Carroll of the Oregon plan bill for electing United States senators. The senatorial fight and its resulting deadlock has brought primary legislation to the fore. Both housss passed the Oregon plan bill, but Governor Carroll departing from the precedents set by governors of other states, attacked the constitutionality of the measure and vetoed it. The house, where the bill originated, failed to pass the bill over the veto by the narrow margin of three votes. Primary election day was changed from Tuesday to Monday. An effort to have the judges of the supreme, district and superior courts nominated at the June primaries failed. The amendment to the primary law so as to provide for future vacancies in the state's representation in both branches of congress is tied up at this writing with little hope of passage. A special primary to fill the senatorial vacancy met an early death.

Distribute Copies of Legislation.

The road and drainage laws passed by this general assembly will be printed and distributed all over the state at once under the terms of a concurrent resolution adopted by the house and senate. It is the duty of the secretary of state to see to it that copies of the new laws are published and sent broadcast.

Districts Unchanged.

The state senatorial districts will remain the same. The senate committee on representative and senatorial districts reported in a bill which keeps the districts just as they are at present. It is necessary for the legislature to re-enact a similar bill after each census.

Too Fresh.

Will you promise to support my daughter in the style in which she is accustomed if I consent to your marriage?" demanded old Skinflint, when Dobby made his formal proposal.

"Well, I—I'll promise to be tolerably close with her, Mr. Skinflint," said Dobby, "but you know, I'm a soft-hearted cuss, and I'm afraid she'll be able to wheedle a few things out of me that you were strong enough to refuse her."—Judge.

THE ALARMING PREVALENCE OF ECZEMA

Finds Victims Among Every Race, Age and Condition.

Of all the diseases of the skin and scalp which torture and disfigure mankind, three-fourths are eczematous. Millions are born with eczema, and it is the only thing other millions have left when they die. Neglect in infancy and childhood, irritating conditions affecting the skin, ignorance of its real nature, improper remedies and many other causes that might be mentioned have created an eczema which, with varying severity, has afflicted countless numbers during their entire lives. Eczema is a skin disease. It is not regarded as hereditary, nor contagious, and is impartially distributed among the rich and poor, the high and low. The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, causing loss of sleep, is usually the most distressing symptom and is caused by the bursting of little vesicles filled with an acrid fluid, which burns as with fire the denuded skin. New vesicles form, fill and burst, scales form upon scales, and crusts upon crusts until disfigurement is added to torture.

One of the most successful treatments for eczema, whether applied to the youngest infant or the oldest person, is hot baths with Cuticura Soap and gentle anointings of Cuticura ointment. For more than a generation, these pure, sweet and gentle emollients have proved the most efficient agents in the speedy and permanent relief of all forms of eczemas, rashes, itchings and irritations of the skin and scalp. Although Cuticura soap and ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, in order that those who have suffered long and hopelessly and who have lost faith in everything may make trial of them without charge, a liberal sample of each will be mailed free to any address, together with a 32-page pamphlet, giving a description and treatment of the various forms of eczema, as well as other affections of the skin, scalp, hair and hands—send to "Cuticura," Dept. W, Boston.

WILLIAM S. KENYON

Chosen For Dolliver's Term in United States Senate

TERM EXPIRES MARCH 3, 1913

Judge Kenyon Was Born At Elyria, Ohio, June 10, 1869, and Will Be the Youngest Man Ever Sent to Senate From Iowa

67th Ballot

Kenyon	85

Des Moines, April 13.—The thirty-fourth General Assembly and Senate yesterday elected the Honorable W. S. Kenyon, of Ft. Dodge, United States Senator from Iowa to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon. Jonathan P. Dolliver, after one of the most stubborn deadlocks ever experienced in the State of Iowa.

Mr. Kenyon will take his office, and represent the State of Iowa as United States Senator immediately upon the Governor's signature being attached to his election certificate.

W. S. Kenyon, newly elected United States senator, was born at Elyria, Ohio, June 10, 1869, 42 years ago and will be the youngest man ever sent to the senate from Iowa. He is of Scotch descent.

Kenyon moved to Iowa with his parents while a youth, his father, a Judge Kenyon.

Presbyterian minister, being assigned to a charge at Grinnell. He attended Grinnell college two years, from 1886 to 1888, later removing to Iowa City with his parents, where he entered the law college of State University. While in school he was recognized as a brilliant student, graduating with high honors in 1890.

Ft. Dodge was chosen as a location by the newly graduated attorney and he formed a partnership there with the late Capt. J. A. O. Yeoman. Capt. Yeoman at that time was recognized as one of Iowa's most brilliant lawyers and orators.

Senator Kenyon first entered politics in 1894, when he was elected prosecuting attorney of Webster county. Two years later he was re-elected. He declined renomination but a year later when Col. W. T. Chantland resigned the office to enter the Spanish-American war, he was appointed to fill the vacancy.

In 1910 he was appointed assistant attorney general of the United States and became widely known as an attorney of ability by the able manner in which he handled some of the more important cases entrusted to him.

Kenyon's Record.

Born at Elyria, Ohio, 1869.
Attended Grinnell college 1886-88.
Graduated State University law college 1890.
Took up practice of law at Fort Dodge 1890.
Married to Mary Duncome 1893.
Elected county attorney of Webster county in 1894 and served until 1898; was reappointed county attorney in 1898 when Col. W. T. Chantland resigned to enter the Spanish-American war.
Elected to the district court judgeship 1901.
Resigned judgeship and again took up practice of law with his father-in-law, Hon. J. F. Duncome, Iowa counsel fo the Illinois Cental railroad, 1903.
Appointed counsel for the Illinois Central in Iowa at Attorney Duncome's death, 1904.
Appointed general attorney for all lines of the Illinois Central north of the Ohio river, with headquarters in Chicago, 1908.
Appointed assistant attorney general of the United States 1910.

THE PRICE OF LAND INCREASING

THE "BACK TO THE LAND" CRY IS EFFECTIVE.

Traveling through the state of Iowa the other day, and Iowa is no exception to the story about to be related, the writer was shown a farm that was offered three years ago for $250 an acre. That appeared to be a high figure for land upon which the owner depended upon the crops of corn, hogs and cattle that could be raised upon it. But it wasn't. A few weeks since the farm changed hands at $325 an acre. Over in Illinois, down in Indiana, up in Wisconsin, across the line in Minnesota, the same experience was met with. And then attention is directed to Canada, which has been the Mecca of so many hundred thousand Americans during the past few years. Not only in Eastern Canada has the price of lands increased, but in Western Canada, during the past few weeks, farm lands have increased from three to five dollars an acre, with the prospect of a similar advance during the next three months. The reason for this is very apparent, and in a few words it may be pointed out that the lands are worth a great deal more than the present prices. The Northwestern Agriculturist of Minneapolis, a paper that was one of the first of the American farm papers to discover the real merits of the lands of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, says: "The reciprocity schedule would encourage American farmers to move to Canada, where the virgin soil will produce greater crops of grain with less labor than can be produced in our own farms in the Northwest. The result will be to enhance land values in Canada." This paper is afraid land values in Canada will be enhanced at the expense of land values in the United States. In face of the fact that land values in the United States are increasing the reasoning scarcely holds. The reason for the advance in value of Canadian lands is partly accounted from the fact, admitted by this paper, that Canada's virgin soil will produce "greater crops of grain with less labor." But that is not the only reason. During the past twelve months 320,000 people have made Canada their home and these are mostly of the farming class. They want farms, and the demand as well as the wealth of the soil is regulating the price. A study of the increase in the acreage of land put under crop last year, which can be had from any Canadian government representative, will prove the point, that the demand is increasing at a greater ratio than even the most sanguine would have predicted.

HENRY LAU & SON

ARBOR DAY APRIL 28th

Department of Public Instruction
Des Moines, Iowa,

To the School Children of Iowa, Our Boys and Girls:

The influence of Spring-tide is upon us. Nature in all her beauty is spreading a mantle upon all things round about. The green grass, the flowers, the leafing trees and flowering shrubs, the songs of the birds in our tree tops indicate that Nature is active in preparing a pleasant place for you and me. May this Spring-time bring to you new hopes, new ambitions and new desires for knowledge that will be potent influences for higher ideals and better lives. It is our earnest desire that this year the influence of Nature may culminate in the observation of a day of joyous tree planting and general cleaning up of schools and grounds in which all may lend a helping hand.

The Governor of our State has appointed Friday, April 28th, as Arbor Day. I trust his proclamation may be read on this day in every school in session.

Arbor and Bird Day should be one of universal interest to pupils, teachers and patrons. Many, many school yards should, on this occasion, be improved and made more home-like by the planting of trees, vines and shrubs. Plan an arrangement for the planting that will beautify the school premises and yet not encroach upon the play-grounds. Trees invite the song birds to establish their homes among us; establish a place where we can meet new friends as well as old.

A wise choice of companions and friends will do much to promote the happiness and purity of our lives. Trees represent constancy and loyalty, while cheer and good-will are proclaimed by the birds of song. May you, boys and girls, become fast friends with the trees and birds and thus bring them under your care and protection. In study and play, let that which may be enduring and loyal mingle with cheer and good will to all, and by so doing, typify in your lives, lessons gained from Nature.

Sincerely yours,
A. M. DEYOE,
Superintendent Public Instruction.

Iowa State Boys' and Girls' Club

Courses of Work in Agriculture and Domestic Science for 1911

The Schools Section of the Extension Department of the Iowa State College at Ames is conducting some very interesting and valuable work among the boys and girls of the state in Farm Crops, Domestic Science and Vegetable Gardening.

The plan is to furnish to boys and girls and to teachers also, who desire it, full instructions for carrying on this work in a practical and at the same time, scientific manner. Printed instructions will be sent directly to each person by mail.

All boys and girls between ten and eighteen years of age, who will agree to pursue one or more of the courses offered are invited to take advantage of this opportunity to receive instruction and to carry out some very helpful work. There is no charge whatever; the services of the college, the circulars of instruction, etc., are entirely free. All the college asks is that those who take the work, follow instructions, and faithfully carry out the work they undertake.

Each boy and girl enrolling thus becomes a member of the Iowa State Boys' and Girls' Club and is entitled to wear the State Boys' and Girls' Club badge.

The courses this year are the first divisions of four year courses, planned for consecutive work in the three divisions: Farm Crops, Domestic Science and Vegetable Gardening. A proper certificate of recognition will be awarded each member who completes one or more of the four year courses.

Over 7,000 Iowa boys and girls took one or more of the courses offered last year We want our county well represented this year. I hope to have every district in the county represented by a good membership and shall depend upon the teacher in each district to explain the plan to the school and to other young people, secure their signatures, and forward them.

Very truly yours,
J. R. BAGGS.
County Superintendent.

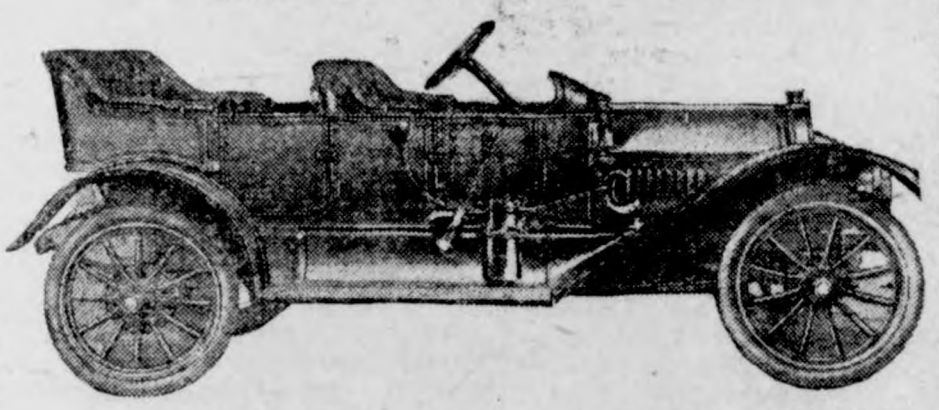
THE IMPERIAL

"THE GET THERE KIND"



It is with pleasure that we advertise the IMPERIAL. When so doing it is hard to say too much in favor of this line of IMPERIAL Automobiles. They have the record up-to-date for running and covering more miles of hard road-going, with the least expense, least adjustments.

The Burd Auto Co., Waterloo, Iowa, says: "The Imperial Automobile has not been equaled yet regardless of price." They run out 37 last season. Up to date there hasn't been one adjustment made. Their contract calls for 100 Imperials for 1911.

The Imperial is built in ten models, from a 35 H. P. two-passenger gentleman's Roadster, to a 60 H. P. seven passenger touring car. Buy the car that bears the name IMPERIAL, and get a dollar's worth of automobile for every dollar you invest.

EPITOME OF A WEEK'S NEWS

Most Important Happenings Told in Brief.

Washington

By a vote of 265 to 89 the Canadian reciprocity agreement was passed by the house of representatives. No amendments were allowed to the bill, which was very similar to the one passed last session, except that it carried an added section which "authorizes and requests" President Taft to obtain further reciprocal trade relations with Canada. Ten of the opposing votes were cast by the Democrats and the other 79 by Republicans.

* * *

Formal demands made by insurgent Republican senators that they be recognized as an organization distinct from the Republican majority in the United States senate and that they be given one-fourth of all the majority memberships of the committee and control of these assignments were rejected by a vote of 7 to 4 at a meeting of the senate committee on committees.

* * *

The majority report of the ways and means committee on the so-called farmers' free list bill, submitted to the house by Chairman Underwood, shows that the bill would reduce the tariff revenue $10,016,495, based on importations for the last fiscal year.

* * *

Representative Berger, Socialist, of Wisconsin, wants congress to have power to call a constitutional convention. He introduced a resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution granting that authority and characterized the Constitution as "antiquated and obsolete."

* * *

Former Speaker Cannon in a speech in the house vigorously assailed the proposed Canadian reciprocity agreement and declared it as dangerous to American trade, inimical to the best interests of American farmers and certain to result in depreciation of American farm lands.

* * *

Action in the United States senate indicates that the direct vote for senators bill is going to have a stormy time of it. An effort was made to refer the house measure to the judiciary committee and the plan failed, at least temporarily.

* * *

Domestic

Gianna Alongi, accused of sending threatening letters through the mails, was fined $1,000 in the United States district court at Chicago and taken to the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., to serve a five-year sentence.

* * *

Gold watch cases, said to be valued at $20,000, were stolen from an express wagon of the Parmelee Transfer company at Chicago when the driver left the wagon standing in an alley. No trace of the perpetrators of the bold daylight robbery has been found by the police.

* * *

The last word in insurance was sprung at Dallas, Tex., when the Temperance Insurance company was organized. The company will insure inebriates at 50 per cent. less than the regular sober patrons.

* * *

Citizens of New Orleans, friends of Cardinal Gibbons, have taken steps to assist the movement started in Baltimore to raise a fund for the erection of a Cardinal Gibbons memorial hall.

* * *

Joseph Clancy, son of an Oswego (N. Y.) merchant, fell dead on the brink of a newly-dug grave in St. Peter's cemetery. He was talking with the grave digger, who had just finished his work, when heart disease ended his life.

That the agreement entered into by 16 manufacturers of sanitary enameled ware, charged by the government with violating the Sherman anti-trust act, was advantageous to jobbers and consumers was testified to by prominent manufacturers from various parts of the country at the bathtub trust hearing.

The report that Booker T. Washington and a number of northern negroes would try to gain control of the International & Great Northern railroad, was denied by Emmet J. Scott, private secretary to the negro educator.

Will Potter, a negro, was the central figure in a bloody drama staged at Livermore, Ky, when 50 citizens dragged him upon the opera house stage and after stringing him up riddled his body with bullets. He shot and killed Frank Mitchell, twenty-two years old, white, in a quarrel.

* * *

Mrs. Matthew T. Scott of Bloomington, Ill., was reelected president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution at Washington, D. C., by a large majority over Mrs. William S. Storey of New York.

* * *

That a check for $10,000 toward a "jackpot" for the election of Senator Lorimer was contributed by C. F. Weihe of Virginia, Minn., a prominent lumberman, was the direct statement made before the Helm investigating committee at Springfield, Ill., by William Burgess, an electrical contractor of Duluth, who said he had the story at first hand from Weihe, who is a brother-in-law of Edward Hines, the lumber man.

* * *

New Jersey police are searching for clues to the principals in an Ontario & Western express car robbery which resulted in the loss of over $1,000 in cash and the disappearance of $5,000 worth of valuables at Weehawken.

* * *

Personal

Victor Morawetz of New York and Miss Violet Westcott of Syracuse, a daughter of the late Edward Noyes Westcott, author of "David Harum," were married at Mayfair, London.

The engagement is announced at Akron, O., of Mrs. Burke Roche, daughter of the late Frank Work, and fourth cousin of B. G. Work of Akron, to Robert Seton Beresford, brother of Lord Decies, who married Miss Vivien Gould.

* * *

William A. Day was elected president of the Equitable Life Assurance society by the board of trustees at New York city.

* * *

Edward A. Moseley, secretary of the interstate commerce commission and originator of much labor legislation, died in Washington after a long illness. He was sixty-five years old.

* * *

Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, who was stricken with vertigo at the pension office and was taken to a hospital, has sufficiently recovered to return to his hotel in Washington.

* * *

Dr. C. G. Abbott, director of astrophysical observation in the Smithsonian institution, was presented with the Draper medal in Washington for making the discovery that the sun is a variable body and that its heat and light vary.

* * *

Setting forth her own experiences in the divorce court and creating a character like that of her former husband, it is said, Edna Goodrich, who until her recent divorce was the fourth Mrs. Nat Goodwin, has written a book called "The Deynard Divorce."

* * *

Former President Roosevelt returned to New York from a seven weeks' tour of the west and middle west. As he stepped from a train from Chicago he came into contact with a crowd of outgoing Easter visitors, many of whom greeted him with cheers.

* * *

Rev. Charles Taze Russell, known as "Pastor Russell" of the Brooklyn tabernacle, Brooklyn, N. Y., has accepted the pastorate of the London tabernacle, Paddington.

Sporting

Packey McFarland, the Chicago boxer, had the better of his ten-round bout with "Harlem" Tommy Murphy before the Fairmount Athletic club at New York city. It was a case of speed and cleverness against a man of the more rugged type and the former proved the superior in a short bout.

Foreign

The Moroccan rebels have stormed Fez and massacred the garrison, according to a message received at Madrid, Spain, from Tetuan. It is also stated that the sultan has fled to the French consulate for safety.

Farming Conditions Are Changing As to Grain and Feed Planted

TAKING PLACE OF KING CORN

The Statistics From Ida County Show That the Crops Raised Are Gradually Becoming More Diversified.

Ida Grove.—County Auditor Varner has compiled the county crop statistics. The report shows that farming conditions are changing somewhat and that more and more wheat is being raised every year, more and more sheep are being fed and more and more alfalfa is being raised. The corn crop of the county last year was 4,101,571 bushels. The oats crop totalled 2,053,953. Ida county housewives gathered 512,561 dozen eggs. There are 10,510 horses, 512 mules and 41,609 cattle in the county; 15,300 head of cattle were sold for slaughter. There are 5,965 cows milked in the county; there are 3,261 sheep in the county; 7,571 were shipped in for feeding.

Iowan's Death Causes Suit.

Waterloo.—The administrators of the estate of Henry Austin, founder of Austinville, and at one time one of the wealthiest men in Iowa, have brought suit against the Chicago Great Western railways for damages in the sum of $33,225, for his death and the demolition of a valuable automobile.

Austin was struck by a switch train at the Mulberry street crossing Feb. 22, and died three days later of his injuries.

Farmer Hurt In Runaway

Perry.—John Hansen, a farmer living east of the city, was badly hurt as he was returning to his home, when the horse which he was driving became frightened at an automobile. The animal turned quickly, upsetting the rig. His right leg was broken. The fracture was a compound one, the bones protruding through the flesh. He was taken to a hospital in Des Moines.

Assaulted for Revenge.

Mason City.—It develops that the assault upon Dr. J. C. Freeman of Glenville, Minn., was not because of alleged trouble between him and his wife, but was the work of thugs who were enraged at the doctor because of his work for temperence and his desire to drive out the bootleggers in that locality.

Form Railway Club.

Marshalltown.—Employes of the Iowa Central are forming a Harmony club to promote better feeling between the employes and management. H. R. Cammack, traveling freight agent, is the organizer under direction of General Manager W. G. Bierd of Minneapolis.

Road to Use Telephone.

Hampton.—The Chicago Great Western railroad has replaced the night telegraph operator at this place by Mr. Lucius Raymond. Telephone instruments have been installed and the night business of the line will be handled in the future by telephone.

Cornerstone Will Be Laid.

Decorah.—The cornerstone of the new $67,000 government postoffice building at Decorah will be laid Tuesday afternoon, April 25. Grand Master Craig of Des Moines and Grand Secretary Parvin of Cedar Rapids will take charge of the ceremony.

Boone Saloon Petition.

Boone.—The saloon petition was filed last night containing 223 names more than necessary. The Civic league is copying the names and hopes to secure withdrawals to kill the petition. Sentiment seems to be that the petition will win.

Identify Body of Man.

Cedar Rapids.—Mystery of finding a body by the side of the Northwestern tracks near Otis has been unraveled. He was Joseph Kosnar, 27. He had a quarrel with a girl at a dance Saturday night and was not seen afterwards.

Great Dental Programme.

Des Moines.—Dental experts from several outside states will be on the programme of the forty-ninth annual meeting of the Iowa State Dental society May 2, 3 and 4 at the Coliseum.

Iowa Man Is Promoted.

Davenport.—Word comes from the Philippines that Orlo Whitaker, for years in the Philippine constabulary, has been promoted to captain of that organization. He served as an enlisted man in the Spanish war.

Ericson to Get Elevator.

Boone.—Ericson is to have a new elevator. A company known as the Farmers' Elevator company of Ericson has been formed and articles of incorporation have been filed with the county recorder. The capital stock of the firm is to be $50,000 and business will begin as soon as all stock is sold. The directors are Geo. J. Boyd, George B. Irving, H. Ricker, Joseph Kemmerer and C. W. Bowman. A new building is to be constructed at once.

Begin Sewer Work Soon.

Mount Vernon.—The first steps in the construction of Mount Vernon's new sewer system, the marking out of the route, was begun last week and dirt will begin to fly in a day or so. The tools, including a steam-power ditching machine are on their way and a large number of laborers will arrive in town the first of the week.

Iowan Caught in South

Waterloo.—Paul D. Phelps, wanted on a charge of defrauding a local bank out of a sum of money by means of an alleged fake telegram, was arrested in Mobile, Ala., while working as a wireless operator on a fruit boat. Since he left Waterloo six months ago officers have been trying to locate the lad, who is only about 20 years of age.

Luce Sues the Milwaukee.

Waucoma.—F. I. Luce of this city, his filed suit in the district court at West Union for $25,000 damages against the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway company for injuries received last summer. Mr. Luce is a horse buyer and was injured at Calmar while en route to Minnesota Transfer with a carload of horses.

Plan New Line.

Osceola.—An interurban connecting this city with Hopeville is assured. Several meetings have been held and Hopeville has subscribed the required $25,000 and Osceola will raise the remainder, $50,000. This is the first of a series of interurbans it is proposed to build from this point to towns to the south and west.

Will Boost Keokuk.

Keokuk.—N. W. Ayres & Son have been employed by the Keokuk Industrial association to boost the city for the next two years. It is expected the city will spend $50,000 during that time in advertising the town's advantages with particular reference to the new dam.

Youths Nearly Lose Lives.

Jefferson.—Chester Lampman and Byron Smith, two youths, while hunting in a boat on Goose Lake near here, came near losing their lives when one of them accidentally discharged a gun, blowing a hole in the bottom of the boat. They had difficulty in getting ashore.

Laying of Cornerstone.

Cedar Rapids.—The cornerstone for the new Elks' clubhouse which is being built at First avenue and Fifth street was laid Monday with imposing ceremonies. The principal address was delivered by the Rev. Joseph Newton, pastor of the Liberal Christian church.

May Abandon Line.

Mason City.—It appears that the projected railway, known as the Forest City, Fertile & Mason City line, has been abandoned. S. S. Baldwin and J. W. Murphy, who have been promoting the line, left for Sioux City. Fertile people claim the road will be built.

Former Lawmaker Dead.

Oskaloosa.—R. W. Gleason, city solicitor, prominent in Masonic and Grand Army circles, died here of Bright's disease. He was a member of the 12th New Hampshire infantry and represented Mahaska county in the 17th General Assembly in 1877 and 1878.

Estate Settles Damage Suit.

Perry.—Frank Smith estate has settled its claim against the Northwestern railroad for $14,750. He was killed January 4 in a wreck at State Center. The amount paid by the road without a suit is the largest ever paid in Iowa.

Files Big Damage Suit.

Webster City.—Frank Taylor has filed suit against the Webster City Brick and Tile company asking $10,000. The sum is asked for alleged injuries which it is claimed have incapacitated Mr. Taylor for working.

Asks $25,000 For Wife.

Fort Dodge.—C. E. Carlson wants C. A. Johnson to pay him $25,000 for the alleged alienation of his wife's affections. Both are farmers and live on adjoining farms.

Saunders to Be Orator.

Mason City.—Senator C. G. Saunders of Council Bluffs will be orator at the grand banquet tendered by the patriotic orders here on April 27.

MISS SELINA LUE and the Soap-box Babies

by MARIE THOMPSON DAVIESS

Illustrations by Magnus G. Kettner

COPYRIGHT 1909, THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

Selina Lue, spinster guardian angel of Bluff, presides over an impromptu day nursery for the babies of the neighborhood in the rear of her grocery. Her charges are known as "Soap-Boxbies." The fact that she is single makes her an object of sympathy to the women. One of her friends is Miss Cynthia Page, daughter of Widow Page. Cynthia visits Miss Selina and learns that Miss Selina has taken another "Soap-Boxer" in the person of Kent, a young artist who wishes to establish a studio in her barn. Blossom, Miss Lue's adopted baby, and one Cynthia is very fond of, shows an evident preference for Alan. When Cynthia learns that Alan hears that her mother is in danger of losing the old homestead. A romance ensues. Alan admires Cynthia. Selina tells how she came to locate in the village and start the haven for little ones. Cynthia suspects that Cynthia is responsible for Alan's neglect of herself. Sale of the mortgaged Page place considered. Alan's identity of Cynthia is discovered.

CHAPTER V.

The Gospel-Boat Meeting.

"When I see a curl of religion sprouting up I think it's best ter kinder shine on it pleasant-like, but not to take too much notice until it roots good."

—Miss Selina Lue.

Monday, the 13th, dawned clear and fair for Miss Cynthia, and the early morning breezes that ruffled the fair curls on her pillow breathed no hint of adventure, though they wakened her long before the usual hour. She fixed her eyes on a window-framed landscape with the down-river hills and banks in the distance. She had a vague feeling that she was going on a journey, a dream in the top of the barn from which she had been just about to wake her admiration for the picture of the tall and glorified Miss Selina Lue in gray knickerbockers, when her consciousness formed complete connected and she sat up and stretched her white arms with a smile. The imminence of the man to presume to come in her dreams, even if his pictures were wonderful!

Miss Cynthia dressed in a leisurely way she found it hard to keep her thoughts from straying to the barn and the barn. She had for more than a week controlled the inclination of her feet to wander in that direction, and now she felt impelled to see Miss Selina Lue and Blossom—and—oh, dear! how she did love those pictures!

On her way downstairs she looked cautiously in her mother's door and found her awake and in the act of taking her morning nourishment. Everything Mrs. Jackson Page did was in the way of a ceremony, and she received Miss Cynthia graciously in a point-lace breakfast-cap.

"How are you, mother, this lovely morning?" she inquired gently. Mrs. Jackson Page preferred to be spoken to in cadences of deepest sympathy at all times.

"As well as I can ever hope to be," she answered languidly, though she sipped with a degree of relish the second cup of coffee and began a business-like attack on a substantial tray of breakfast the maid had set before her. "Are you going in to town today I had hoped you would look at that house on University avenue. If I have to leave my ancestral home I want a place of abode suitable to our position. It will not be for long, I am afraid, and after I am gone—" she raised a lace handkerchief to her eyes and left Miss Cynthia in doubt as to whether she was bemoaning the prospect of her daughter's bereft condition on University avenue or her own in one of the streets said to be paved with gold.

After a proper degre of concern and consolation, Miss Cynthia beat a hasty retreat down the steps. The telephone stopped her on her way to the outside world and an animated conversation ensued, conducted by Evelyn Branch, who was up and doing far earlier than was her wont.

"You dear thing," she hailed across the city, "to be awake so early! Did you get your worm all right? I was just calling to leave my number for you. I am so excited—I—"

"Then I infer you did catch your worm," laughed Miss Cynthia into the telephone.

"It isn't a worm I am after; it's a man."

"Too early then, dear, unless you want a brisk farmer."

"Anything but, cherie! Listen! do you remember my telling you about that perfectly delicious man I met in Washington last winter?"

"Which one?"

"There was only one—like him. You know, it was Alan Kent, the artist! I told you about going to his studio and what a compliment Aunt Kate thought it was to have him ask us. Don't you remember my telling you about him? My dear, he was the whole thing all winter. Well, grip your heart tight—he's here in the city!"

"Really?" Miss Cynthia's voice tried hard to be what Evelyn expected of it.

"Yes, I saw him on the street last night, and before I could make Harold stop the auto he was gone and we couldn't find a trace of him anywhere. Isn't it exasperating to think of that gorgeous creature loose here in the streets, and times so dull in the summer? There were only three men at the Country club last night and they were grumpy and attentioned to death. So glad you weren't there, for it was bad enough without you."

"Are you sure you saw him?" ventured Miss Cynthia with no more than a polite show of interest.

"Sure? Well, Alan Kent is entirely too distingue a man for anybody to forget. My dear, he is most attractive—and it is so romantic about his father and all. The old man is a lumber king and refuses to have anything to do with him as long as he paints. And there the poor dear goes along and prefers paltry little $10,000 contracts to decorate guild halls to the old fellow's millions. Where do you suppose he can be? I had Harold telephone all the hotels, and he is not at one of them. I must have him at my dinner-dance on the 20th, dead or alive. Though I do dread his meeting you—the impression I made was too slight to run such a risk. I doubt if he remembers—"

"I am sure you needn't mind about me at all. I feel he won't be interested—"

"Dearest, I don't trust you! Well, I must say good-by. You are not so interested in finding the dear creature as I thought you would be. How is your mother?—Oh, I am so sorry! Give her my love. And has Grasse sent your pink gown home yet?—Delightful! Well, good-by again!"

The moment Miss Cynthia had hung up the receiver she realized that she had deliberately withheld valuable information from her best friend—in perfect cold blood. And why? She picked up the pink-rose hat and fled down the hill to the bluff.

When she was just in front of Mrs. Kinney's she saw the "delicious" one leave the barn and descend over the bluff to the river, kit in hand. Without acknowledging it to herself, she would have liked to lock him in the barn—out of harm's way. Well, harm was a rather emphatic name for Evelyn—but she was a very lovely thing—especially at dinner-dance times. Miss Cynthia finally reached the door of the grocery and paused a moment on the steps. Nobody being in sight, she called softly.

Miss Selina Lue poked her head out of her little lean-to-bedroom and greeted her in a voice of bustling excitement. "I'll be there in a minute, Miss Cynthia, honey. Mr. Dobbs have got a holiday and he wants us to go up to the Lock with him to three o'clock meeting on the gospel-boat what's tied up there this week. Set down in the cool till I come!"

Miss Cynthia smiled as she seated herself upon the steps, for she knew how seldom Miss Selina Lue went out of calling distance of the grocery door. She rarely went to town and then only on the most urgent business. She had a decided aversion to the cars even with Mr. Flarity and Mr. Jim Peters motoring and conducting.

"Not that they ain't good drivers," she always hastened to say, "but I prefer to travel with a thinking critter a-pulling of me, instead of being druv by a little box of lightning that ain't got no conscience about running away with me. Besides, there are more ways in the city to git killed two or three times a minute than a body could dream up in a week. I should think all the town folks would be mighty good, and live lives prepared to go I never draw a free breath hardly, with being snatched to the top of houses with seventeen stories and coming down all the time trying to swoller my heart."

"I hate those fast elevators in the skyscrapers myself," Miss Cynthia had answered her sympathetically.

"They are all jest a part and a parcel of the running around of things. They ain't no peace in it all, and I am one that holds that peace are the air that religion breathes, and when it gits shet off from it it sholy dies. I ain't tempting providence by going down, lessen business calls me." And she had held to her determination.

If Miss Cynthia was delighted at the prospect of the excursion she was still more so at the sight of Miss Selina Lue as she made her way through the boxes and barrels and cans to the full light of the front door. The picture was one of exceeding majesty, and the heart of Miss Cynthia was thrilled in awe. The foundation of the toilet was a black silk as stiff and rustling as any that hung in the wardrobe of Mrs. Jackson Page on the hill, and a genius had fashioned it some bygone day up in Warren county. It was cut without stint of material, and hung about the tall, dignified figure of Miss Selina Lue in bounteous folds; also it was adorned with a multitude of small bands known as pipings. It lay gracefully on the floor at least a foot all around and was lifted in front by one of Miss Selina Lue's black-lace mittened hands. A wide white-lace collar encircled her neck and was caught by a faded hair-brooch. But the bonnet was the crowning majesty of all; it was wide and scooped, and adorned by a decorous black bow on the outside, but in the front of the funnel there rested, just above the gray sprinkled water-waves, a rakish red rose that repeated the note of excitement in her cheeks. She was wonderful to behold was Miss Selina Lue and "too darling for words," as Miss Cynthia told her with an impulsive squeeze.

"Where did you get it all, Miss Selina Lue?" she questioned excitedly.

"Lands alive, child, this is the dress my mother had before the war. I ain't wored it often, 'count of not having time, but I thought I ought to put it on to compliment Mr. Dobbs for asking me ter go along with 'em. You see, it's this-away. Mr. Dobbs is jest the salt of the earth fer kindness, except cussing—but he ain't never perfessed and joined the church. So though it do seem a kinder queer place to go to praise the Lord—a flat-boat tied to a lock—I said we must make out ter keep him company. Mary Ellen was fer backing down 'count of its being so hot to gear up tight and she so easy overhet, but I pervailed on her. I want us all to look nice ter git Mr. Dobbs in a happy, consenting kinder mind. When I see a curl of religion sprouting up, I think it's best ter kinder shine on it pleasant-like, but not to take too much notice until it roots good. There they come now! Ain't they genteel? Bennie and Ethel Maud look jest like a picnic."

And Miss Cynthia smiled delightedly as she exchanged greetings with the enthusiastic family out on the quest for the soul-welfare of the head member. Miss Selina Lue's adjective had been an apt one that applied to them all. Mrs. Dobbs was buttoned up tight in a dark blue coat-suit, and the perspiration rolled down her happy face from the crown of her black velvet hat, with its remarkable blue bird, into her white cotton lace collar. One ungloved hand kept up a constant mopping. Ethel Maud was in white and starched to the limit of endurance, and had pink bows tied wherever they would stick. Bennie and Mr. Dobbs were clothed in their Sunday best, and Mr. Dobbs beamed with pride at Miss Cynthia's compliments. But Bennie stood on one foot and covered it with the other in evident consciousness of their brier-scratched nudity.

"He wouldn't wear them shoes he had in the spring, and I couldn't noways impel him," explained his mother.

"My feet's sore," the delinquent grumbled shamefacedly.

"So's mine," whined Ethel Maud, standing first on one and then the other.

"But you're a girl," said her mother decidedly, thus firmly settling the yoke of femininity on her young shoulders. "Are you ready, Miss Seliny Lue?"

LORE OF PRECIOUS STONES

No Woman with Light Eyes Should Ever Be Induced to Buy Emeralds.

It is astonishing that many women who display excellent taste in their gowning often have no knowledge of what suits them in jewelry.

One frequently sees artistic gowns spoiled by the insistent note of an ill-chosen brooch or necklace, and no one thing can so mar the charm of a face as earrings that are unbecoming. Yet it is the rare woman who knows what jewels suit her gown best.

Pale blond women choose blood rubies, which only suit to perfection the dark-haired, dark-eyed woman. Rubies lose much of their wonderful charm if worn by a very fair woman.

Fair women should remember that the turquoise is always the most becoming stone for their type. But they can also wear with distinction sapphires and opals, moonstones and amethysts.

Rubies, garnets and emeralds, topazes, amber and pink coral should appeal to dark women, for they are infinitely becoming to them.

But it is a safe rule to remember one's eyes when one chooses a piece of jewelry. No woman with light eyes should ever be induced to buy emeralds, no matter how beautiful they are. If she does she will find that they steal the light from her eyes, leaving them almost faded. While the woman with dark eyes, if she will wear pink coral, will find that her eyes shine with added brilliance.

No fashion in jewelry is more difficult to carry well than the present one of earrings. But women are heedless of this and one sees everywhere faces that are spoiled by these unnecessary ornaments. If they do not suit your style, they will add ten years to your age. But if they do they give one an air of immense distinction and elegance.

Christian Girl No Girl at That.

The request for "Christian Girl" at the Congress hotel in Chicago the other night, and the calls by a page for such a person created general amusement among guests and employes until it was learned that "Christian Girl" was a traveling man from Cleveland, O., stopping at the hotel and was wanted by a friend on the telephone.

"Have you a Christian Girl here?" a man asked Clerk Burke.

"Well, I don't know," hesitated the clerk. "Wait and I'll find out."

"Say," replied the guest, "I don't want a female, a sure enough girl, I just want Christian Girl from Cleveland and he's no girl at that."

The right Girl was found.

Objects to Big Hats.

A New York physician says that big hats are tending to make women round shouldered, and that they are very bad in other ways, inducing headache because of the heaviness. The lungs and chest, of course, suffer from the bending over, and the general health is consequently injured.

DAME NATURE HINTS

When the Food Is Not Suited.

When Nature gives her signal that something is wrong it is generally with the food; the old Dame is always faithful and one should act at once.

To put off the change is to risk that which may be irreparable. An Arizona man says:

"For years I could not safely eat any breakfast. I tried all kinds of breakfast foods, but they were all soft, starchy messes, which gave me distressing headaches. I drank strong coffee, too, which appeared to benefit me at the time, but added to the headaches afterwards. Toast and coffee were no better, for I found the toast very constipating.

"A friend persuaded me to quit coffee and the starchy breakfast foods, and use Postum and Grape-Nuts instead. I shall never regret taking his advice.

"The change they have worked in me is wonderful. I now have no more of the distressing sensations in my stomach after eating, and I never have any headaches. I have gained 12 pounds in weight and feel better in every way. Grape-Nuts make a delicious as well as a nutritious dish, and I find that Postum is easily digested and never produces dyspepsia symptoms."

Arthur C. Gibbs

Died: At his home in Klemme, Iowa, on Sunday, April 23, 1911, after an illness of one week's duration, Arthur Collins Gibbs, eldest son of Asa and Isabella L. Gibbs, aged 38 years. 4 months and 16 days. His death was the result of a cold which settled into a severe case of pneumonia. All that medical aid and skillful nursing could accomplish was done but to no avail. Death claimed him and we can only hope that he has gone to a better land. Funeral was held from the Methodist church of Klemme, Rev. H. Hubber officiating, and was under the auspices of Bethel Lodge No. 319, A. F. and A. M., of which he was a faithful member.

He was born in Delhi, Ohio, on the 7th day of December, 1873; was married to Emma Terhufen of Klemme, Iowa, on January 1st, 1901. Four children, the eldest dying in infancy, were the fruits of this marriage. Three children, the oldest of whom is but seven years old, with a bereaved wife survive to mourn the loss of a kind father and a loving husband. He was a noble specimen of young manhood and will be greatly missed by a wide circle of friends and relatives. He is gone and cannot be recalled, but only those who have likewise been bereft of a loved one can fully measure the grief of his kindred and of the stricken wife and little ones left behind.

Carrie J. L. Johnson

On Wednesday morning, April 26th, 1911, the Death Angel entered another Klemme home—that of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. E. Johnson—and called to her eternal rest their daughter, Carrie Josephine Lenora, aged twenty years, seven months and five days. She had been ill for some time with an attack of pneumonia, but seemed to be making a good recovery up to the day before her death, when some complications set in, and she sank rapidly—and all the aid that human hands could render was of no avail. In the Springtime season of the year and in the Springtime of young womanhood, she was called to her Maker—to the land of eternal sunshine where sickness and sorrow are unknown. She will be sadly missed, not only in the home made desolate by her passing, but among a large number of young associates by whom she was dearly beloved.

Carrie Johnson was born in Grundy county, Illinois, on September 21st, 1890. She moved with her parents to Hancock county when a small child and she has grown to young womanhood here. She leaves to mourn her loss a father and mother, five sisters and three brothers, one sister having gone before.

Funeral services are to be held from the Klemme Methodist church this afternoon at three o'clock, Rev. Hubber officiating, and the remains will be laid to rest in Klemme cemetery. The sorrowing ones have the heartfelt sympathy of all in their bereavement.

GOVERNOR MAY VETO

24

Omnibus Insurance Bill Has Not Been Signed by Executive

INSURANCE MEN INTERESTED

Governor Is Holding Up Measure Designed to Correct Discrepancies in the Iowa Insurance Laws. Objections Not Known.

Des Moines.—Governor Carroll may veto the omnibus bill.

Rumors at the state house are to the effect that he is not at all satisfied with the bill as it finally passed the legislature, and that he will veto it rather than let certain provisions, which he considers inimical to the best interests of the state, become a law.

Governor Carroll is out of the city and there was no word in his office to indicate his position.

The state insurance department admits that the governor is holding up the bill.

The bill as passed amends about fifteen sections of the insurance law so as to wipe out discrepancies.

It is said that there are several technical errors and the syntax of the bill is faulty. It may be that these things are the basis of the governor's objections to the bill.

There are only two new insurance provisions in the bill. The first provides that where a company wishes to insure bonds it can write such insurance to the extent of 10 per cent of its capital stock, and any more insurance must be re-insured in some reliable company. For instance, if the insurance company wanted to insure the Walnut street bridge work for $100,000, it would be necessary to have a capital stock of $1,000,000. If it had $500,000, it could write $50,000 of the insurance. The balance of it would have to reinsure in some reliable company. The second new feature is that giving accident assessment insurance companies the right to restock without liquidation. It is suggested that this provision may be the cause of Governor Carroll's objections to the bill.

Insurance men will wait with considerable interest the action of the governor as a veto of the bill would leave many ambiguities in the insurance law and continue many controversies now pending over provisions of the insurance law.

Sons of American Revolution.

Members of the Iowa society of the Sons of the American Revolution opened their annual meeting at the Chamberlain hotel in Des Moines Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. Officers were elected in the afternoon. A banquet in the evening was featured by the rendition of the oratorio, "The Ride of Paul Revere," by the Iowa State College Glee club of twenty-two voices. E. M. Wentworth, toastmaster, was introduced by Sec. F. D. Hadley of Des Moines. Former Governor Warren Garst was one of the speakers.

Looks Into Mabray Cases.

Attorney General George Cosson has gone to Council Bluffs to investigate the status of the various Mabray cases which he saved from being dismissed last week by entering an appearance in the name of the state.

There are a number of cass which the county supervisors of Pottawattamie county had ordered dismissed. The resolution of the board gave the county attorney power to dismiss all cases which, in his judgment, would cost too much to try.

The attorney general entered an appearance in all the cases and will not permit them to be wiped off the calendar without first ascertaining all about them.

Express Hearing April 28.

Attorney General Cosson received notice from Federal Judge McPherson that he will hear the express rate case on April 25th at Council Bluffs.

The express companies operating in Iowa have made application to him for a temporary injunction to prohibit the rates from becoming effective until the question of their legality can be tested out.

The rates were to have become effective March 30th, but the companies secured a restraining order until the question of a temporary injunction could be determined.

Dr. Huntoon on Board of Health.

Dr. G. A. Huntoon will represent this district on the state board of health for the ensuing seven years. Dr. Huntoon has been notified by Governor B. F. Carroll that he would make the appointment. The district has been without a representative during the past year. The term of Dr. A. P. Hanford, Council Bluffs, has just ended, and he retired by virtue of the rotation system observed.

WANT BETTER DAIRY METHODS

Important Meeting Of State Executive Committee of the Iowa Dairy Association Is Held.

Betterment of the dairy industry in Iowa as provided by the De Wolf law was one of the chief subjects of discussion at the meeting of the state executive committee of the Iowa Dairy association. President F. R. Shoemaker of Waterloo, Secretary Ross of Iowa Falls, and Treasurer F. L. Odell of Des Moines were the members present. They conferred with State Food and Dairy Commissioner Barney regarding the provisions of the new law and concerning the best ways of expending the $7,500 which is annually appropriated for the work outlined in the law. Professors Mortenson and Curtiss of Ames also met with the committee to discuss this new law, and one of the chief questions was regarding the choice of employes for the new work. No appointments were announced.

Waterloo was chosen as the city in which the annual state dairy show will be held this year. The dates will be October 9 to 14. Des Moines made a good offer to get the show, but Waterloo was so liberal in her promises that the executive committee was unable to resist her blandishments.

Thompson or Worst May Succeed.

Two names prominent in agricultural educational work in the middle west are being suggested as president of the Iowa State Agricultural college at Ames.

They are Dr. W. O. Thompson, president of Ohio State college, and Dr. J. Henry Worst, president of North Dakota Agriculture college.

Dr. Thompson spoke at Ames last year when the international meeting of agricultural teachers was held there. He made a favorable impression on the students and teachers who attended that meeting.

That his name is being considered by the faculty committee of the state board of education is generally believed.

The members of the faculty committee are also considering the name of Professor Stanton, acting president of the college.

Friends of Prof. C. F. Curtiss, dean of the agricultural department, are urging his appointment as president of the institution.

Members of the board say that they have not settled on any president but expect to elect a president some weeks before the college year begins next fall.

More Room Needed at State Capitol.

The new fire marshal and his office force must have quarters in the state house; the new temporary tax commission of five members must have rooms in the state house; the new employers' liability commission must also have rooms in the state house.

The state board of education wants to return to the speaker's room, which the board occupied prior to the meeting of the legislature. The departments whch are given added duties are asking for more room. Committee rooms will have to be altered for some of the new departments. Some departments which have large rooms are entering protests against any proposition to crowd any other departments into their quarters.

Then there is the commerce counsel department with its force of clerks and stenographers. Room must be found for them. The railroad commission office is crowded now.

Evidence of Prosperity.

That Iowa is enjoying prosperity is evidenced by the new banks which are daily being incorporated to do business in various sections of the state.

Two new ones filed their articles with the secretary of state and one filed an increase in capital stock. The new banks are:

Exchange State bank, capital stock $40,000; president, Jacob Hector, vice president, C. A. Rossmann, cashier, O. Mosher.

Austinville Savings bank, Austinville; capital stock, $12,500; president, W. G. Austin; vice president, R. C. Bode; cashier, S. L. Patterson, all of Austinville.

The Farmers' Savings bank of Luton filed articles increasing the capital stock from $15,000 to $25,000.

Is Preparing For Trial.

Preparation is being made by Attorney General Cosson for the trial of the express rate injunction cases in the federal court at Davenport, April 25.

By this suit the express companies hope to knock out the new tariff for express companies established by the state railway commission last winter and which were to have become effective March 31.

The case was set down for hearing originally in Des Moines, but Judge McPherson of the federal court has asked the parties interested in the suit to meet him in Davenport, April 25.

Avoid the Cheap and "Big Can" Baking Powders.

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money but it's not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food. Further, these cheap baking powders have a very small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as it does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same time moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet gives the cook the least trouble.

Good Definition.

A New York judge, it will be remembered, recently declared unconstitutional the new law that an automobilist, having run over a pedestrian, must stop and leave his name. The judge said that the automobilist had a perfect right to run away and leave the mangled victim to bleed to death alone for the reason that, in criminal cases, no man is obliged to bear witness against himself. James Halden Wilkes, president of the Defense Society of Atlanta, discussed this legal decision at the society's last meeting. "And that," he cried hotly, "is called justice. Well, indeed, was a search after justice once defined as a blind man looking into a dark room for a black hat that isn't there."

Saskatoon Offers You Success

If you are an intelligent, hardworking agriculturist in any branch. You could not credit the prosperity of our farmers unless you actually came and saw. Why not come? If you do, you will be sorry you had not come years ago. Perhaps you are not getting along very well, except in the matter of years. Better do something for your children's sake. Join our prosperity. For all information write the Commissioner, Board of Trade, Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, Western Canada.

Care of the Child.

It is announced that Los Angeles county government will in future expend as much money upon societies for the care of children as it does now upon societies that look after the welfare of animals.

This is well. Perhaps, in course of time, we may come to regard children as of equal importance with horses and dogs.

PITTSBURG LOST OUT

Have Won Great Battle of 1908 Club Had Known Facts in Connection With Chicago—Tinker's Stage Fright.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

...ball championships often depend upon the slightest turn of the ... of fortune. Often a pebble, ... tough blade of grass, will turn ...tire season and make or mar ...ospects of a club. Possibly the ... shave ever a championship ...ad was that of the Chicago Cubs ...08. That was the year that ...e forgot to touch second base, ...ear that the Chicago club fin...tie with New York after beating ...urg in the last game of the sea...nd then won the pennant and ... the world's championship by ...ng from New York in the play ... the tie game.

...s yarn is about that last game of ...eason with Pittsburg. There is ...rm in telling it now, but if the ...urg club had known the facts ...day it could have claimed the ...nt and won it without an effort. ...e Chicago club had been on the ... battling desperatetly to hold ... with New York. The Pittsburg ..., coming from behind with a tre...lous rush, had unexpectedly leap... the front. On that last day of ...eason—Sunday, the situation was ... New York was done. If Pitts... won the Pirates won the pennant ...ercentage. If Chicago won the ... and New York would be exactly ... Chicago was baseball crazy. ... 32,000 persons piled into the ...nds to see that struggle which ... to determine the championship of ... National league. The crowd was ...ed around the playing field forty ... and every ball that was fouled ... the crowd disappeared never to ...rn.

...d thereby hangs this tale. Sec...ry Williams, of the Cubs, had been ...e road with the team. When he ...ome there were hundreds of balls ...d and ready for use, he ...ed out two dozen balls, ... sent them to the umpires when ... started, but within two innings ...e balls had disappeared into the ...d and the umpires were demand... more. Secretary Williams, sum...ed from his duties of watching the ...ds, rushed for new balls and to ...dismay discovered that only a bare ... dozen balls were left. The others ... disappeared. Not a ball that was ...ed off was coming back into play ... it was certain that the half dozen ... balls would not last more than ...inning or two. Failure to furnish ...s meant forfeiture of the game and ... pennant for Pittsburg and it was ...tain that Manager Clarke would ... hesitate to seize the advantage. ...e situation called for action and ...cretary Williams acted.

...t was Sunday and Spalding's store ...s closed, but inside of three min...s an automobile containing one of ...e park employees armed with a key ... the store was racing down Jackson ...levard to bring balls. Meantime ...cretary Williams, with a bushel of ...actice balls, balls that had been ...d and were being kept for morning ...actice work, was clinging to a ...reen on top of the stand watching ...ch ball that was fouled off. Every ...ll that he saw go into or over the ...nd and disappear he replaced with ... practice ball tossed onto the field ...ar the umpires.

...n spite of his work there were only ...ur balls in the hands of the umpires. ...ither Clarke nor the umpires de...cted the trick. By the fifth inning ...ven balls were in the hands of the ...mpire. Sheckard came to bat and ...uled off four rapidly, and watch... ... could Williams could only get one ...ck onto the field. Two more were ...uled off. An honest fan over in the ...ght field crowd threw back one. He ...d not know it, but his honesty may ...ve saved the pennant for the Cubs. ...he supply had dwindled until the ...mpire was demanding balls when ...at one came back and it gave Will...ms a new chance. He took desper...te chances and threw three more ...lls onto the field, all from different ...oints on top of the stand, and with...ut arousing suspicion. Meantime the ...an who had gone after new balls ...d been held up for speeding on the ...turn trip from the store and was ...layed ten minutes. The situation ...as desperate in the seventh inning ...hen the auto flashed up in front of ...he office, and a few moments later ...ecretary Williams was able to fur...ish new balls as fast as the umpires ...emanded them and the danger was ...ast.

"The only time I ever got stage fright," relates Joe Tinker, the actor-ball player, "was the night I opened in vaudeville this fall, and the cause of it all was one of the wisest baseball fans I ever saw in my life. He knows baseball all right, but I never saw him before and I certainly hope I never will again.

"When I first started trying to act it was pretty hard on the nerves, but I got interested in the work—which was hard for me, and forgot all about the audience. After one season I thought I wouldn't have any trouble and when I went onto the stage at Danville, Ill., to try out the sketch I was as cool as if it was a ball game. Down in the second row, on the aisle was a big easy-looking fellow and I decided he would be a good man to play to as the stage director told me when I first started always to pick out one or two persons and aim at them while acting. I never made a worse guess in my life, even when trying to figure whether Bender was going to pitch a curve or a fast ball.

"I hardly had got started when that fellow began to give me the Cub signals with his eyes and hands. The first thing he did after catching my eye was to slip me the hit and run signal that Steinfeldt and I used last year. I don't know how he got it, but when he flashed it I began to weaken. Then he switched and signalled me to bunt. I tried to get my eyes off him and watch someone else, but it wasn't any use. When I looked back again he signalled me that I was to cover second, using the same signal Evers uses, and I nearly forgot what I was doing. He had me on the run. I was nearing the climax of the act and had almost forgotten him when I happened to catch his eye again. He was getting up from his seat and looked bored. Without a smile he signaled Chance's signal to steal. I stuck to the base, but I never was more tempted to try to steal—into the wings—than I was right there.

"I don't know him or how he got his his signals, but if he comes around again I'll strike out sure."

Cecil Ferguson, the Adonis of the Boston National league team, made what was perhaps the most peculiar assist ever made in the season of 1910. The play came up late in the season in a game against Brooklyn and resulted in a victory for the Boston team. At least it prevented Brooklyn from taking the lead and as Boston afterward won the game the chances are the play turned the tide.

Ferguson was pitching. Both teams had been hitting hard and making many runs and Fergy was thrown in to save the day with a runner on third base and one out. He pitched well enough, but in spite of his efforts the batter drove a fly to Miller, who was over in deep left center. The runner held his base and the batter tore around first to race to second on the throw to the plate. Ferguson went over on a line between the short stop and catcher, being ready to catch the ball and throw to second base in case he decided there wasn't a chance to catch the runner going home. He decided at the last instant that Miller's throw was good enough to catch the runner at the plate and dodged quickly into a stooping position to let the ball go on to Harry Smith, who was catching. But in dodging Fergy miscalculated the shoot of the ball, which darted downward, cracking him on the top of the head. Instead of losing the game the accident won it, as the ball carromed perfectly off the pitcher's pate into Smith's hands and the runner was out at the plate by a foot.

And, as Fergy came to the bench Manager Fred Lake cruelly remarked: "I'm glad to see you using your noodle at last."

WILL LOOK TO CANADA FOR WHEAT

ONE REASON WHY AMERICANS GO TO CANADA.

In the Chicago Inter-Ocean of a few days since reference was made to the fact that in 1909 the United States raised 737,189,000 bushels of wheat, and last year grew only 695,443,000, a decrease of 41,746,000 bushels. The article went on to say: "True we raised last year more than enough wheat for our own needs, but it is apparent that if production continues to decrease in that ratio we will soon be obliged to look to other countries for wheat to supply our rapidly increasing population."

The purpose of the article was to show that reciprocity was to be desired. This is a question that I do not propose to deal with, preferring to leave it to others who have made a greater study of that economic question than I have. The point to be considered is, with the high price of lands in the United States, and with the much lower priced lands of Canada, and their ability to produce probably more abundantly, is it not well for the United States farmer to take advantage of the opportunity Canada affords with its lower-priced lands and take a part in supplying the needs of the United States, which it is quite apparent must come sooner or later? It is probable there are now about 300,000 American farmers in Western Canada, cultivating large farms, and becoming rich, in the growing of 25- and 30-bushel-to-the-acre-wheat, in producing large yields of oats and barley, and in raising horses and cattle cheaply on the wild prairie grasses that are there, both succulent and abundant. All these find a ready market at good prices. Amongst the Americans who have made their homes in Canada are to be found colonies of Scandinavians, and all are doing well. I have before me a letter from an American Scandinavian, now a Canadian, an extract from which is interesting. Writing from Turtle Lake, Saskatchewan, he says:

"I came up here from Fergus Falls, Minn., October 24th, 1910, and thought I would let you know how I have been getting along. We had a very mild winter up to New Year's, but since then it has been quite cold and lots of snow, but not worse than that we could be out every day working, even though we had 65 below zero a few times, but we do not feel the cold here the same as we did in Minnesota, as it is very still and the air is high and dry. This is a splendid place for cattle raising and mixed farming. There is some willow brush and small poplars on part of the land, which is rolling and covered with splendid grass in the summer. Not far from here there is timber for building material. There are only 8 Norwegians here, 6 Scotchmen, 2 Germans. The lake is 20 miles long and full of very fine fish.

"There is a lot of land yet that has not been taken and room for many settlers, and we wish you would send some settlers up here, as there are fine prospects for them, especially for those who have a little money to start with. Send them here to Turtle Lake, and we will show them the land, if they have secured plats, showing the vacant lands, at the Dominion Lands office in Battleford. Send us up some good Scandinavians this spring."

The Canadian government agents will try to meet his wishes.

Willing to Make an Effort.

On a large estate in the Scottish highlands it was the custom for a piper to play in front of the house every week day morning to awaken the residents. After an overconvivial Saturday night, however, the piper forgot the day and began his reveille (can it be played on the pipes?) on Sunday morning. The angry master shouted to him from the bedroom window: "Here, do you not know the fourth commandment?" And the piper sturdily replied: "Nae, sir, but if ye'll—hic—whustle it I'll—hic—try it, sir."

It will be welcome news to dyspeptics to learn of a remedy that, in the opinion of thousands, is an absolute cure for indigestion and all forms of stomach trouble, and, better still, it is guaranteed to do so. The remedy is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

We all know the value of pure pepsin in indigestion, and add to this some exceptional laxative ingredients and you have a truly wonderful remedy. Mr. T. W. Worthy of Forsythe, Ga., got to the point where he could not even eat or digest vegetables and after many years of seeking he found the cure in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Mr. Rudy Kasner of Moline, Ill., was in the same bad predicament with his stomach, took Syrup Pepsin and is now cured. Hundreds of others would gladly testify.

It is a guaranteed cure for indigestion, constipation, biliousness, headaches, gas on the stomach and similar complaints. A bottle can be had at any drug store for fifty cents or a dollar, but if you wish to make a test of it first send your address to Dr. Caldwell and he will supply a free sample bottle, sent direct to your address. You will soon admit that you have found something to replace salts, cathartics, breath perfumes and other temporary reliefs. Syrup Pepsin will cure your permanently.

Splendid Crops in Saskatchewan (Western Canada)

800 Bushels from 20 acres of wheat was the thresher's return from a Lloydminster farm in the season of 1910. Many fields in that as well as other districts yielded from 25 to 35 bushels of wheat to the acre. Other grains in proportion.

LARGE PROFITS are thus derived from the FREE HOMESTEAD LANDS of Western Canada.

This excellent showing causes prices to advance. Land values should double in two years' time.

Grain growing, mixed farming, cattle raising and dairying are all profitable. Free Homesteads of 160 acres are to be had in the very best districts: 160 acre pre-emptions at $3.00 per acre within certain areas. Schools and churches in every settlement, climate unexcelled, soil the richest: wood, water and building material plentiful.

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN

Women who suffer with disorders peculiar to their sex should write to Dr. Pierce and receive free the advice of a physician of over 40 years' experience—a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter of this sort has the most careful consideration and is regarded as sacredly confidential. Many sensitively modest women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physician. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distasteful examinations are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in the privacy of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands, some of them the worst of cases.

It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. The only one good enough that its makers dare to print its every ingredient on its outside wrapper. There's no secrecy. It will bear examination. No alcohol and no habit-forming drugs are found in it. Some unscrupulous medicine-dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't trifle with your health. Write to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.,—take the advice received and be well.

Gumption on the Farm

You can't overwork the harrow.

That weed right in the hill is your worst enemy.

Don't let the weeds get a start—kill 'em while they are a-borning. Easiest way.

Too often the extravagant who start out in the parlor-car come back in the freight.

When you hoe corn, thin it out to not more than three good stalks to the hill. Nature doesn't like to be crowded.

It isn't the mark of a good teamster to get in off the road late at night, nor to leave the horses uncurried for two or three days.

It is less work to hoe twice soon after the crops come up than it is to hoe once after the weeds get high, and it does much more good.

Again we say: Test the seed corn before planting, for there's much poor seed in the country this year. And, also, treat the seed potatoes to prevent scab.

If you put stones under the posts of your corn house, have them thick enough and large enough so that the frost will not get below them and break them to pieces.

Don't cultivate the potatoes when out in bloom, or coming out, unless you want a lot of stunted little tubers. Cultivate them before they get that big, and hoe them clean of weeds. From May Farm Journal.

John D. Rockefeller would go broke if he should spend his entire income trying to prepare a better medicine than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for diarrhoea, dysentery or bowel complaints. It is simply impossible, and so says every one that has used it. Sold by all dealers.

GOODELL

From the Globe:

A. D. White and family were Sunday visitors at A. R. White's at Klemme.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Beier spent Sunday with relatives in German township.

Miss Ethel Hamilton, of Garner, Iowa, visited with friends in and near Goodell last Friday and Saturday.

Miss Mildred Matson, who has been spending the past week at the home of her parents, returned Wednesday morning to Dubuque, Iowa, to resume her studies at Mt. St. Joseph's Academy.

E. P. Hubbard, who has been living in Beloit, Wisconsin, the past year, returned Monday with his car of goods, and will again make Goodell his home. We are glad to see the Hubbard family return.

The splendid work of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets is daily coming to light. No such grand remedy for liver and bowel troubles was ever known before. Thousands bless them for curing constipation, sick headache, biliousness, jaundice and indigestion. Sold by all dealers.

BRITT

From the News:

Born, on Tuesday, April 25, to Mr. and Mrs. John Miller, residing north of Britt, a son.

J. O. Penton went to Manatoba last week to look at the country and may conclude to locate there.

Considerable filling in is being done on the road between Main street and the Allison hotel.

Mrs. Thomas O'Rourk returned Monday from Rochester, Minn., where she had been at the Mayo hospital for a surgical operation. She is recovering nicely.

H. Herr, residing south of Britt, had the misfortune to get a very bad kick in the face by one of his horses last Saturday. He is improving nicely.

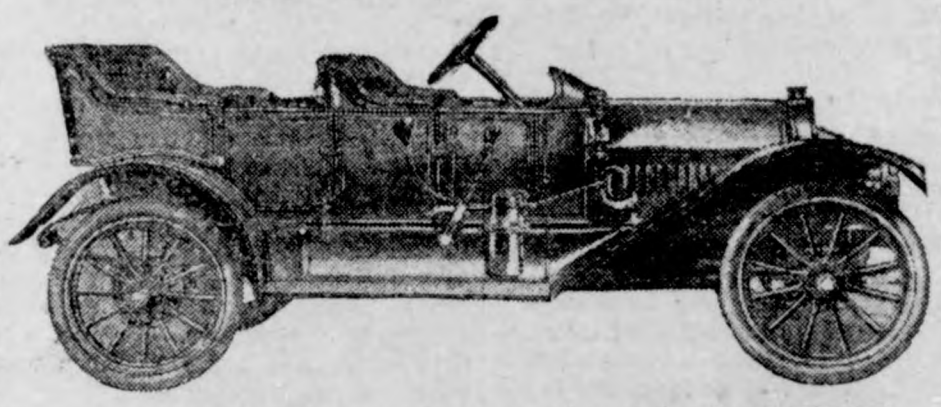
THE IMPERIAL

"THE GET THERE KIND"



It is with pleasure that we advertise the IMPERIAL. When so doing it is hard to say too much in favor of this line of IMPERIAL Automobiles. They have the record up-to-date for running and covering more miles of hard road-going, with the least expense, least adjustments.

The Burd Auto Co., Waterloo, Iowa, says: "The Imperial Automobile has not been equaled yet regardless of price." They run out 37 last season. Up to date there hasn't been one adjustment made. Their contract calls for 100 Imperials for 1911.

The Imperial is built in ten models, from a 35 H. P. two-passenger gentleman's Roadster, to a 60 H. P. seven passenger touring car. Buy the car that bears the name IMPERIAL, and get a dollar's worth of automobile for every dollar you invest.

START WORK ON DAM

Water Power Plants on Iowa and Skunk Rivers Under Way

TO MAKE 100,000 HORSEPOWER

With the Completion Of the Mammoth Dam at Keokuk 300,000 Horsepower Will Be Developed In This Section.

Fort Madison.—Work has been begun by the Iowa Power company on a series of water power dams along the Skunk river to connect with dams on the Iowa river and with auxiliary steam plants, to produce 100,000 horsepower for use by the cities of southeastern Iowa.

The Oakland dam, one of the six along the Skunk, is an old one taken over by the new company. It has been rebuilt, new machinery has been installed and will be ready for business May 1, the day set for the reopening of the Oakland mills. At Augusta, the property adjoining either side of the dam has been recently purchased and work at Augusta on the southernmost dam will be started shortly.

At Wapello, on the Iowa river, a three-mile trench is to be dug to give a greater and permanent fall and to overcome any possibilities of danger by high water.

Mount Pleasant has already contracted for a supply of the power and the offers of the promoters are meeting with encouragement in other southeastern Iowa cities. With the completion of the mammoth dam at Keokuk 300,000 horsepower will be developed by waterpower in this section.

ossom, dear, I must ask you to e go and see to the smashing of potatoes—smashing anything ls to me right now," said Miss hia. But Blossom clung the er. There was nothing for it but ke her into Miss Selina Lue's cupboard of a kitchen, that also d to the grocery, and enthrone n a corner of the table.

ow," said Miss Cynthia to her- s she surveyed the field, "I think uld better fry the eggs first, as ll take some time to do it on both . Some people don't mind put- others to any amount of trouble. sure, under most circumstances, uld be satisfied with my eggs on one side—but two it shall be iss Selina Lue says so."

oo! Ah—goo—g-o-o—" answered som from her perch.

thought you would think so, ," Miss Cynthia answered her. on't doubt you would fry them him on three sides if you could, dn't you?"

ossom nodded delightedly with an of perfect understanding.

thought so! Well, I am going to my best and then if everything is right it is not my fault. Now, is the fryer, I know, and I will it get good and hot while I find eggs. How many do you suppose the dear creature eats at a sitting, Blossom? A half-dozen?"

Again Blossom's head bobbed cheerily. She hugely enjoyed being taken into the conversation, did the Blossom.

"Well, here's the half-dozen and here goes! Dear me, I hope it's as easy to smash potatoes as it is eggs. I wonder if it is right for them to mix up so? Heavens, the things are sticking to the fryer! I'll just stir them around, for I suppose that's what Miss Selina Lue meant by both sides, to mix them up so they won't get so black. They seem perfectly hard now so I am going to put them in the dish."

"Of course, Blossom, I have known fried eggs all my life, but we don't have them, and I am not perfectly sure how they ought to look. These seem nice and brown, though those black streaks are not exactly artistic, are they?"

With reassuring eagerness Blossom reached for the dish.

"I'm glad you think so, dear, but you don't want that dinner; yours comes later. Now for 'smashing' the potatoes! When does the smashing come in, before they are cooked?" Miss Cynthia paused to think. "I don't suppose it makes much difference, and after they are cooked they will be so hot—I am going to do it now. Wasn't it lucky Miss Selina Lue had peeled them! Why, I never knew potatoes were so hard before they were cooked! No wonder the great, grand mogul likes his smashed. I like them smashed myself, but how am I going to smash them?"

Blossom gurgled interestedly.

"Thanks for the advice, Blossom. Yes, I am going to set the pan on the table and wash the hatchet nice and clean, and smash away." Miss Cynthia worked with a will and succeeded in quickly reducing the potatoes to a watery, lumpy mass. After a moment's hesitation she emptied them into the frying-pan to which clung fragments of burned eggs. Her delight was great when she remembered the salt and she poured in a double dose with exceeding liberality. Around and around she stirred the mass, which quickly burned to a hue to match the eggs and thus declared itself done.

"Blossom," she remarked earnestly, "why women make so much fuss over cooking I can't see. It is just too easy, and nothing but selfishness makes them not want to do such simple things for their families. I am going to put a plate and knife and fork here for him and tuck this ugly fryer out of sight. Then he can come and get his dinner whenever he chooses. And, Blossom, I don't know whether you and Miss Selina Lue ever do it—but I am going to put a spray of this petunia here on the table—and take the risk."

A series of plaintive little gurgles and a whimper or two through the door leading into the grocery reminded her of the soap-boxers, and she hastened to answer the summons.

Four solemn babies sat bolt upright and four pink mouths flew wide open. "Bless your darling hearts, it's time for din-din, and Miss Cynthia's a bad girl to get naughty man's dinner first! Here are the bowl and spoon right here, and she is going to hurry." But instead of hurrying Miss Cynthia stood dumb. She had forgotten where Miss Selina Lue had said the oatmeal and milk were kept!

In a panic she began a hurried search and it took her just five minutes to exhaust the possible hiding-places of milk and oatmeal in the River Bluff Grocery. She even tipped up the vinegar jug and turned on the molasses spigot. No milk and no oatmeal!

In the meantime the plaintive wails from the back of the store had developed into the roar of a hurricane which swelled by the instant but never ebbed. The sight of the bowl and the spoon which Miss Cynthia had set on the stool before them was the red rag to their rage. The two Flarities had settled down steadily to the business of making an uproar, and as they screamed each kicked the foot of his box with maniacal strength. Clemmie wasted no force in any exercise save that of the vocal chords, and shrill and high she shrieked, each output more startling than the last. Pattie had the wisdom to seek a key and note all her own, and she gave out sepulchral groans and ghastly chokings by the minute. Only Blossom, in her box where Miss Cynthia had put her, was quiet and pale with terror.

Then suddenly in the storm there came a calm, deep and breathless. Miss Cynthia looked up and, behold, relief stood on the threshold! In one hand Mr. Alan held a tin bucket full of the brown, sticky manna and in the other a jug of milk, both dripping from their immersion in the well. She sat as motionless as the babies; and if her mouth did not stretch open, no will of her own prevented it.

The mixing of the potation was the matter of a few seconds, and the feeding began without delay as the gray raven perched on the stool and ladled out dripping spoonfuls. Miss Cynthia was almost surprised that he failed to offer her some in her turn, but she sat on the floor and watched him with deepest gratitude.

"I couldn't find the dinner," she said in a small voice. "Do you think they will be ill?" As she spoke she looked up at him with wide, trustful eyes that reminded him in expression of all the other five pairs fixed upon his.

"No, indeed, the little rascals! I have heard them do worse than that when Miss Selina Lue happened to be behind time with the quicklunch." His big comforting voice revived her so that she rose to her feet.

"Miss Selina Lue has gone up to the Lock with the Dobbses, and I stayed to take care of them for her. Your dinner is on the table." Her meekness was fast vanishing and her eyes drooped in a way they had that meant mischief.

"Oh, now, really—you ought not to have troubled about me." Bother the girl—his ears were getting hot again and he was sure she was laughing at him, though why, he could not see.

"It really was no trouble," she answered, again sobered by her responsibilities. "Let me finish feeding the babies while you eat your dinner." Her voice was positively solicitous.

"Aren't you going to have some with me?" he asked politely.

"I don't think I am hungry now," she answered, intent on getting the spoon between Clemmie's uncertain lips. "I—I hope it will be all right. I never cooked that sort of dinner before, but I followed Miss Selina Lue's directions, so it must be the way you like it."

It was well that he approached his dinner in a mood of distraction, for it was with difficulty that he restrained an exclamation at the first mouthful of eggs. But across the bobbing heads of the oatmeal-and-milk diners, Miss Cynthia raised trustful, proud eyes to his.

"Is it good?" she asked with bewildering solicitude.

"Good? Watch me!" and there with those eyes fastened on him in shining delight, he swallowed all of the six incinerated eggs and devoured in gulps a panful of half-raw, stone-cold, nauseating potatoes.

Half-way through the dose he paused. Should he leave any for her to agonize over, or should he assume a reputation for abnormality of appetite? Better anything than that she should ever find out the truth, and in a rush he finished the job. If, by that time, she had not been standing directly across the table, he would have scraped the dishes, but her nearness confused him and he let her set aside a teaspoonful of potatoes and a chip of egg.

She was beaming with satisfaction and at his hastily framed apologies for having cleared the table, she answered cheerily:

"Don't say a word about leaving me any. I am too hot to eat for hours. Those blessed babies are asleep already. Could they have fainted from exhaustion?"

"I assure you they are safe, and for at least two hours," he laughed, as he rose and stepped to the door. Lighting a cigar, he lingered tentatively, hoping for some sign of invitation to remain. The petunia drooped from his buttonhole.

Then she raised her eyes to his and said sweetly and directly, with gratitude tinging every accent: "Thank you for helping me out with them. You—you won't be far if they wake up and get beyond me?"

Those eyes and that curly mouth! Mr. Alan only really "came to," as Miss Selina Lue would have put it, when seated by her side later on the steps

As for Miss Cynthia, some evil fate or perhaps a sleepy chirp from Clemmie, the roarer, led her to the back regions of the grocery, and while there she idly tasted that spoonful of potato which had been left, with misgivings. A shred of egg followed, and gone was all her complacency, the fruit of Mr. Alan's self-sacrifice.

How—how would she ever face him again after having literally forced such an awful thing upon him! Her humiliation was complete. Her one thought was a hope that she would never lay eyes on him again.

"Well, well, Miss Cynthie, honey, did you ever see such a day for happenings as this has been to us all?" And Miss Selina Lue stood at the door beaming with delight.

HERE IS THE "PERFECT" CAT

Expert Describes the Points Which Constitute the Standard Type of Feline.

Catastrophe came to many cats of all classes at the annual exhibit of the Los Angeles (Cal.) Cat club.

Here is Mrs. de Blin's description of the perfect or standard cat:

"The perfect type of male must have a large round head, small ears set far apart, and large, round eyes. He should be set low on his legs, and the upper joints of the legs should be short. The male should have large, strong legs, and the broad chest of the bulldog. He should have a general stocky build. Colors vary with the different classes. The nose should be stub, and the tail, when extended over the back, should not reach farther than the shoulder joint. In general, the brush should be short and thick, and in proportion to the build. The same characteristics are required for females, except that the rugged frame of the male is not essential.

"A tabby cat is a cat with markings, either of stripes or blotches, in light or dark shades. The name comes from the old Persian word Atabi meaning watered silk."

Signs of Rain.

The following natural weather signs are given in an old book—The croaking of frogs in the morning indicates fine weather. If frogs croak more than usual, if toads issue from their holes in the evening in great numbers, if the earthworms come out of the earth, if the moles throw up more earth than usual, if the cows look toward the heavens and turn up their nostrils as if catching some smell, if the oxen lick their fore feet, if the dogs lie on their right sides—all these are signs which announce rain.

A WORM THAT'S HARD TO KILL

But In a Short Time Disappears Entirely.

If you have been afflicted with ringworm and let it get the start of you, then you'll know how hard it is to kill the parasite that spreads the disease. This treatment is infallible. Wash the crusts with warm water and Resinol soap. Then apply Resinol ointment thoroughly over the entire diseased surface. The beneficial results will be quickly manifest. The crusts will scale off, the disease cease to spread and in a short time disappear entirely. Resinol ointment cures all eruptive skin diseases, eczema, herpes, psoriasis, barber's itch, erysipelas, erythema, acne, etc. It quickly allays irritation and inflammation, and instantly stops itching on any surface of the body. It is the one remedy for itching piles. Resinol ointment contains no irritating ingredient, nothing to harm the baby's tender skin. It is sold in opal jars at fifty cents and one dollar. At all druggists. Resinol Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

Churches and Tuberculosis.

Statistics showing how serious a problem tuberculosis is to the ordinary church congregation have been issued by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. From reports received from over 725 churches, with a membership of over 312,000 communicants of twenty denominations, and from 208 cities and towns in 12 states in vari- 7,000 deaths in 1910, over 700 or 10 per cent., were caused by tuberculosis. This means 2.24 deaths for every thousand members or communicants. While the percentage of deaths from tuberculosis compared with other diseases is not higher in the churches, according to these figures, than in the country at large, the tuberculosis death rate, as shown by the church returns, is higher per thousand communicants than that for the general population in the registration area of the United States, which the census bureau gave as 1.67 in 1909.

SUFFERED TERRIBLY.

Kidney Trouble and Rheumatic Pains Made Life Miserable.

M. R. Wilson, Humboldt, Nebr., says: "I had kidney disease in a very aggravated form. Kidney secretions contained a dark sediment and passages were very painful. I was so stiff I could hardly move. My back ached terribly. I had nervous and dizzy spells, my limbs were swollen and mornings on arising I felt weary and depressed. I doctored and tried numerous remedies but steadily grew worse until almost helpless. I began to improve under the use of Doan's Kidney Pills and it was only a short time before I was entirely well."

Expert Examining Committee Reports

The published report of the experts who have been working on the county books appeared in the board proceedings in the official papers last week.

The expert committee made the statement that the county superintendent's books were among the best they had ever examined. They also complimented the sheriff's records very highly, which is a good testimonial of the efficiency of our present county auditor, W. L. Fitkin, who was formerly deputy sheriff.

An error in addition of $75.45 was found in the books of former recorder E. P. Hanson. which made the county indebted to him to the above amount.

The only errors found in the office of former treasurer A. B. Sawyer was where some money had been placed in other funds which belonged in the county fund.

Errors in the clerk's office amounted to $468.74, which amount the former clerk promptly paid over to the county.

In the auditor's office there proved to be something doing. Thos. Duff, former auditor, turned over $2,047.12 which was found due the county. According to the published report, Mr. Duff took old paid bills from the files, changed the dates, used a rubber stamp signature of the chairman of the board, run these bills through as new claims and cashed the warrants. He will answer to the grand jury of the May term of court

The examining committee cost the county $875, and the county got its money's worth.

Control of Public Utility Corporations

Charles City, Iowa, May 4—President Frank E. Hirsch of the Charles City German College, one of the most prominent German thinkers of this state, today expressed himself as heartily in favor of a permanent commission to control public utility corporations. He believes this problem to be one of the important ones to be solved in the near future by every state in the Union. The recent discussion in the Iowa legislature and a general acknowledgment that public control must soon come makes the question an immediate economic problem here. The fact that such big corporation heads as President Theodore Vail of the Western Union Telegraph Company have admitted public control must be conceded makes apparent the fact that all states have the same problem to solve.

President Hirsch in discussing the proposition now receiving so much public attention said in an interview today:

"I am heartily in favor of the plan to control public utility corporations by a permanent commission. It is my observation that some permanent authoratative body created for the purpose of adjusting differences between the large body of direct consumers known as the public and the corporations organized for the purpose of furnishing necessary commodities for them is an essential of our modern civilization. The public should know the cost at which these commodities can be produced, and thus be placed into a position to determine whether the prices charged represent more or less than a fair margin under the circumstances; and if so, the public and the corporation should have a recourse. The claim that such a commission would rob town and city corporations of some of their proper prerogatives is unwarranted; for a Public Utility Commission would be expected to secure inside information regarding the proper conduct of the various lines of business represented by the quasi public corporations, and hence command a fund of knowledge which, under no ordinary circumstances, would be at the disposal of town and city councils. This commission could be called into counsel whenever such a corporation would be about to start business in any given town or city and thus enable the city authorities to arrive at proper conclusions regarding the prices to be charged for the respective commodities. The city would be in authority just the same, but would have at hand information that could not be secured under other circumstances.

"The commission, which would of course have authority to demand a uniform system of book-keeping of all the corporations in question, so as to make a rapid examination of their business possible at any time on short notice, could easily discover all attempts at unfair treatment of the public, whereas under present circumstances, a system of secrecy can be maintained indefinitely unless the corporation be dragged into court. It would be the business of such a commission to safeguard the interests of the public continually on the basis of the same principle on which the government now employs bank examiners for the purpose of protecting the people's money. The whole idea appears to me to be so fair and so essential to the application of the 'square deal' principle that I am free to say that, according to my view, the time sooner or later must and will come when such a commission is established in all the states of the Union."

FIT FOR COMMAND

AN ORIENTAL TALE WITH A MORAL.

Chinese General Who Taught Soldiers to Obey Orders and Won Deserved Recognition of Merit From His King.

Ho Lu said to Sun Tzu: "I have carefully perused your 13 chapters. May I submit your theory of managing soldiers to a slight test?" Sun Tzu replied: "You may." Ho Lu asked: "May the test be applied to women?" The answer was again in the affirmative, so arrangements were made to bring 180 ladies out of the palace. Sun Tzu divided them into two companies, according to Lionel Giles' translation of "Sun Tzu on the Art of War," and placed one of the king's favorite concubines at the head of each. He then bade them all take spears in their hands and addressed them thus: "I presume you know the difference between front and back, right hand and left hand?" The girls replied: "Yes." Sun Tzu went on: "When I say 'Eyes front,' you must look straight ahead. When I say 'Left turn' you must face toward your left hand. When I say 'Right turn' you must face toward your right hand. When I say 'About turn' you must face right around toward the back." Again the girls assented. The words of command having been thus explained, he set up the halberds and battleaxes in order to begin the drill. Then to the sound of drums he gave the order "Right turn." But the girls only burst out laughing. Sun Tzu said: "If words of command are not clear and distinct, if orders are not thoroughly understood, then the general is to blame." So he started drilling them again and this time gave the order: "Left turn," whereupon the girls once more burst into fits of laughter. Sun Tzu said: "If words of command are not clear and distinct, if orders are not thoroughly understood, the general is to blame. But if his orders are clear and the soldiers nevertheless disobey, then it is the fault of their officers." So saying, he ordered the leaders of the two companies to be beheaded.

Now the king of Wu was watching the scene from the top of the raised pavilion, and when he saw that his favorite concubines were about to be executed he was greatly alarmed and hurriedly sent down the following message: "We are now quite satisfied as to our general's ability to handle troops. If we are bereft of these two concubines our meat and drink will lose their savor. It is our wish that they shall not be beheaded." Sun Tzu replied: "Having once received his majesty's commission to be general of his forces, there are certain commands of his majesty which, acting in that capacity, I am unable to accept." Accordingly he had the two leaders beheaded and straightway installed the pair next in order as leaders in their place. When this had been done the drum was sounded for the drill once more and the girls went through all the evolutions, turning to the right or the left, marching ahead or wheeling back, kneeling or standing with perfect accuracy and precision, not venturing to utter a sound. Then Sun Tzu sent a messenger to the king saying: "Your soldiers, sire, are now properly drilled and disciplined, and ready for your majesty's inspection. They can be put to any use that their sovereign may desire. Bid them go through fire and water, and they will not disobey." But the king replied: "Let our general cease drilling and return to camp. As for us, we have no wish to come down and inspect the troops." Thereupon Sun Tzu said: "The king is only fond of words, and cannot translate them into deeds." After that Ho Lu saw that Sun Tzu was one who knew how to handle an army and finally appointed him general.

Chicken Paprika.

Dress and clean two chickens, cut in pieces for serving, wipe with a piece of cheesecloth wrung from cold water and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Fry ½ cup finely chopped onion in 4½ tablespoons butter 15 minutes, stir frequently, that the onions may not burn. Add chicken and sprinkle with 4½ tablespoonfuls flour, then add one tablespoon paprika and 1½ cups chicken stock. Cook on top of range 20 minutes, put in a casserole dish and cook in oven until the chicken is tender, adding more stock if necessary. Readers know that in speaking of chicken stock I mean the liquor in which a fowl has been cooked. Of course, if one does not own a casserole dish, she need not hesitate to use any earthenware dish.

Albert Koerner is busy this week with a force of men putting up new telephone poles for the lines of the Koerner Telephone Company.

A dispatch from Mason City says: The freeze here was quite severe last night, but the damage, if any, was slight. The fruit is not far enough advanced to be hurt, is the general opinion.

Vic Carlson has been limping around the past week as a result of a wrestle with the gasoline engine in Bloom's elevator. Vic came out second best in the tussle, but he will soon be able to navigate with his usual alacrity.

Editor Brackett, of the Democrat, has moved onto his claim in South Dakota and his paper will now have some lengthy articles on how not to farm. Our candid opinion is that the Doctor wont be so busy with farm work but that he will be able to find plenty of time to write.

The postal savings bank which was established at Decorah, Ia., January 1st, being the only bank of its kind in the state, is not coming up to expectations. It is stated that at the conclusion of three months' business the total deposits amounted to $722, divided among nineteen depositors.

John Griewe and Fred Warner drilled a well on the Dutcher farm seven miles east and one mile south of Klemme last week which mace their reputation. Seven holes had been drilled before on the place by others but each was abandoned on account of quicksand. The above parties drilled the eighth hole and were successful in completing the same.—Democrat.

London Globe: Conon Irving speaking the other day at Liverpool, told the following good story: A vicar was taken suddenly ill, and his church warden was in great difficulty about getting a substitute. when the bishop of the diocese, hearing of the circumstance, offered to take the Sunday services himself. The church warden, wishing "to do the right thing," at the close of the service went up to the bishop and after thanking him, stammered out: "A poorer preacher would have done for us, your lordship, but we were unable to find one."

TOLD TO KEEP BUSY

Railroad Commission Says Thorne Must Assist Attorney General

BOARD ISSUES A STATEMENT

Says There Is No Misunderstanding Between Commissioners and the Attorney General and the Two Departments Must Work In Harmony.

Des Moines.—The state railroad commission have practically put it up to Commissioner Thorne to act with the commission in the rate case or get entirely out of the way. The board makes it plain that whether Commissioner Thorne acts with it or refuses to take any part with the commission in the express rate case, that the commission, acting as a state body, will work in harmony with Attorney General Cosson to win the state rate fight.

The commission also makes it plain that Commissioner Thorne's declaration of withdrawal will have no effect on its action in the case.

The board issued a statement setting forth its position in the controversy and making it plain that the board will have nothing to do with "personal quarrels." In some few quarters there is an apparent misunderstanding of the situation with respect to the express rate cases about to be heard before Judge McPherson. This is not a final hearing before Judge McPherson; in fact, it is only the preliminary hearing upon a temporary injunction. Whichever way this case may be decided by Judge McPherson at this time, the case will have to be heard on its merits before the same judge at a later date.

Furthermore, there is no misunderstanding whatever between the railroad commission as such and the attorney general, and these two departments will work in absolute harmony and perfect sympathy in the handling of these cases. With personal "quarrels" the commission has nothing whatever to do, but with the performance of its duty under the law, it has everything to do, and whether any one person or another may decline to take part in the proceedings now under way, let the public understand once for all, that the attorney general and the railroad commission will work together without friction to protect the interests of the people of Iowa.

Milk Testers Are Anxious.

The enactment of a law by the last legislature requiring milk and cream testers to have licenses from the state dairy and food commissioner is causing considerable anxiety among the operators of the testers.

The new law is effective now. Heretofore the operators of the testers have not been required to hold licenses. Many of them, not knowing Commissioner Barney does not intend to demand an immediate compliance with the law, have been writing in to him for certificates, fearing that if they do not secure one at once that they will be prosecuted under the terms of the act.

Commissioner Barney does not plan to put the law fully into force until July 4. Within the next week he will put representatives of the food and dairy department into one or two cities in each county. These men will issue the licenses to all operators of milk and cream testers. By July 1 it is believed that by this system the state will be thoroughly covered. Thereafter any person found operating a milk and cream tester and who does not hold a license will be prosecuted.

Feeble Minded On Increase.

The inmate population of the state institution for feeble minded children at Glenwood and for the insane at Clarinda is materially increasing.

This question is agitating the members of the state board of control.

The members returned from a semi-annual visit to the state institutions at Fort Madison, Davenport, Mt. Pleasant, Clarinda, Council Bluffs and Glenwood.

"We find things in good condition," said Chairman Robinson. "The inmate population, for some unaccountable reason, is increasing very materially at the insane hospital at Clarinda. It is stationary at Mt. Pleasant and Independence, and slightly decreasing at Cherokee. But Clarinda shows a big increase in the past five months.

"At Glenwood the number of feeble minded children in the state institutions is greater than ever before. We cannot understand this. The population of the state is not increasing to such an extent that the population of such an institution would be effected as it is. There must be some other cause."

FEDERAL TERM HEAVY HERE

May Session of District Court Will Handle Some Important Cases.

Deputies in the offices of the federal court are making preparations for the opening of the May session of the circuit and district courts in Des Moines May 8. Judge Smith McPherson, who will preside, is now holding court in Davenport and the next session will be in Des Moines.

The term, according to W. C. McArthur, clerk of the courts, will be one of the heaviest ever held in Des Moines. Aside from a number of criminal cases, there are the five injunction suits against the state board of railroad commissioners and the injunction suit brought against the city by the Des Moines Water company.

It is probable the session in Des Moines will occupy the entire month of May.

State Camp Meets May 3.

An exhibit of the Modern Woodmen lodge working tools, the handiwork of the patients at the society's tuberculosis sanitarium at Colorado Springs, will be one of the features of the state camp meeting to be held in Des Moines on Wednesday, May 3.

Articles of hammered brass from the same institution also will be shown. The working tools consist of a beetle, or mallet, ax and wedge.

There are 197 accredited delegates to the state camp from the 998 camps in Iowa, and it is expected that there will be 300 visitors in the city altogether.

While the convention opens at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, the eleven district caucuses for the nomination of delegates to the head camp meeting at Buffalo will be held either Tuesday night or Wednesday morning preceding the opening session.

It is declared that now, so far as known, Head Banker F. R. Korns of the society is the only candidate for director from Iowa. The delegates to the head camp meeting will receive instructions as to who to support for director from this section of the country.

Head Advisor Daniel B. Horn of Davenport of the head offices of the society will be present for the state camp meeting.

Officials Discuss Bill.

The county superintendents of the state in conference in Des Moines with State Superintendent Deyoe, discussed features of the Cowles-Ritter bill passed by the last legislature. This bill provides for life certificates for teachers under certain conditions and also changes the law relative to normal institutes. Most of the discussion was relative to the normal institute provision in the measure. The county superintendents declare that the language of the act is ambiguous.

Indications are that the superintendents will express themselves as opposed to the Cowles-Ritter bill as a whole, while favoring heartily the Adams bill for normal training in high schools and the Shane bill for free tuition for students who have to go outside their home district to secure the benefits of an accredited high school.

Most Expensive in History.

The coming two years of the state administration will be by far the most expensive in the history of the state. The extraordinary appropriations go far beyond the record of any recent legislature, something over two million dollars was appropriated. The record of the last four legislative sessions is:

Thirty-first G. A.	$1,650,000
Thirty-second G. A.	1,830,000
Thirty-third G. A.	1,121,000
Thirty-fourth G. A.	2,100,000

The Thirty-first and Thirty-second general assemblies each ordered state tax to be collected to the amount of $2,250,000 a year; the Thirty-third ordered $2,300,000 a year and the Thirty-fourth put it up to $2,400,000 a year.

Iowa Railroads File Annual Report.

Four of the railroads of Iowa have just filed their annual reports on which assessment is made. The Burlington reports net earnings on Iowa business last year as $2,649,217; the Milwaukee reports profits of $2,304,877; the North-Western reports profits of $3,087,898, and the Omaha road reports a net profit of $394,980. These four companies reported that they paid taxes in Iowa last year amounting to $1,421,000.

Case Transferred to Des Moines.

At the request of Clifford Thorne, railroad commissioner of Iowa, the hearing injunction charges instituted by the express companies doing business in the state against the Iowa railroad commission was continued by Judge Smith McPherson in the United States district court to the next term of court in Des Moines.

RULES ON RATE CASE

Attorney General Defines Duty of The Commerce Counsel

THORNE CANNOT TAKE CHARGE

Must Institute Proceedings When Ordered by the Board and May Institute Them on His Own Initiative.

Des Moines, May 1.—Attorney General Cosson has handed down his opinion defining the duties of the commerce counsel, which office was created by the last legislature. The opinion was asked for by the board of railway commissioners.

He holds that the creation of the office of commerce counsel in no way limits or restricts the power of the attorney general and under the law he must still take part in all cases in which he is asked to do so by the railway board or in which he feels that his services are necessary.

He finds that the attorney general and the commerce counsel can appear on an equality in many cases. He makes no decision as to precedence in such instances, but states that each would have to be governed by the "comity and courtesy due between two state departments." He holds also that the commerce counsel, while not required to by the law, may legally participate for the railway board in all cases before the state or federal courts, if directed to do so by resolution of the railway commissioners.

Further, the attorney general finds that it was the intent of the legislature to make the commerce counsel a rate expert and that his field was to be primarily in prosecuting actions before the rail board itself.

BUTTON STRIKE IS SETTLED

Terms Kept Secret, But Union Forces Are Expected to Return to Work Wednesday.

Muscatine, May 1.—After four days of endeavor, Gov. B. F. Carroll succeeded in bringing warring factions in Iowa's biggest labor war together and an agreement which, if ratified by the workers, will bring to an end the strike affecting 3,000 button workers, was drawn up and signed by both parties as well as by the state executive.

The provisions of the agreement will not be made public until today at a shop meeting, but labor leaders express the belief that the workers will approve the terms of settlement and operations will be resumed Wednesday.

The militia will remain in the city until the settlement is final and the slightest possibility of disorder is removed.

"Q" ROAD WILL ERECT DEPOT

$250,000 Terminal Will Be Built At Once Between West Sixth And Eighth Streets.

Des Moines, May 1.—This city will have a new Burlington freight depot, representing a total expenditure of between $200,000 and $250,000, before the year ends. The intention of the company to build this year, which became known recently, puts an end to many reports and agitations which have arisen in connection with the proposition in the last several years.

It is learned that the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy officials have completed plans for the erection of a two-blocks-long freight terminal between Sixth and Eighth and Market and Elm streets, to be completed probably in time for the fall business.

Alleged Forger Caught.

Des Moines, May 1.—W. C. Williams, alias Charles E. Brown and James Russell, believed to be one of the cleverest forgers in the country, who is wanted in Des Moines, Albia and Atlantic on accusations of passing spurious paper aggregating more than $1,000, was arrested in St. Paul according to information received by P. W. Hall, secretary of the State Bankers' association.

Civil War Veteran Dies.

Oxford Junction, May 1.—Edward D. Morton, 76 years old and a veteran of the civil war, died at his home here. Mr. Morton has lived in Iowa for more than seventy years.

Anda Held To Grand Jury

Clinton, May 1.—Torval P. Anda, arrested for the murder of Rollie Swales, was held to the grand jury without bail, on the charge of murder in the first degree.

"Mrs. Tree's husband has only one leg."

"Well, most every tree loses a limb."

SCRATCHED TILL BLOOD RAN

"When my boy was about three months old his head broke out with a rash which was very itchy and ran a watery fluid. We tried everything we could but he got worse all the time, till it spread to his arms, legs and then to his entire body. He got so bad that he came near dying. The rash would itch so that he would scratch till the blood ran, and a thin yellowish stuff would be all over his pillow in the morning. I had to put mittens on his hands to prevent him tearing his skin. He was so weak and run down that he took fainting spells as if he were dying. He was almost a skeleton and his little hands were thin like claws.

"He was bad about eight months when we tried Cuticura Remedies. I had not laid him down in his cradle in the daytime for a long while. I washed him with Cuticura Soap and put on one application of Cuticura Ointment and he was so soothed that he could sleep. You don't know how glad I was he felt better. It took one box of Cuticura Ointment and pretty near one cake of Cuticura Soap to cure him. I think our boy would have died but for the Cuticura Remedies and I shall always remain a firm friend of them. There has been no return of the trouble. I shall be glad to have you publish this true statement of his cure." (Signed) Mrs. M. C. Maitland, Jasper, Ontario, May 27, 1910.

Subject to Restrictions.

"I was cleanin' fo' a new lady las' week an' de dirt in her kitchen was a sight, po' thing," said Rose, Mrs. Frazer's dark-skinned charwoman.

"But why did she let it get like that?" asked the lady.

"I dunno', ma'am. Guess she never seen it. Some cooks, you know, is mighty parti'lar 'bout ' lowin' de madam in de kitchen. Dey jes' take dere orders from her upstairs an' she don't have no call to go into de kitchen at all."

44 Bu. to the Acr

is a heavy yield, but that's what John Kennedy of Edmonton, Alberta, Western Canada, got from acres of Spring Wheat in 1910. Report from other districts in that province showed other excellent results—such as 4,000 bushels of wheat from 120 acres, or 33 bu. per acre. 25, 30 and bushel yields were numerous. As high as 1 bushels of oats to the acre were threshed from Alberta fields in 1910.

CURE THAT CATARRH

Our climate with its sudden changes is conducive to catarrh—which is chronic inflammation of the mucous membrane surface of head—nose or throat.

One month's local treatment with Paxtine Toilet Antiseptic will convince the most skeptical that Paxtine is not a palliative but a specific for all catarrhal conditions.

Paxtine is a perfectly harmless antiseptic and germicide in powder form which contains all of the antiseptic qualities of liquid antiseptics, but with other valuable cleansing, germicidal, and healing ingredients added.

Just a little in a glass of water as needed—used as a spray and gargle, will not only remove the accumulated secretions, but heals the inflammation, destroys the germs of disease, and dispels the disagreeable odor caused by chronic catarrh.

For sale at all druggists, 25c and 50c a box, or postpaid upon receipt of price. The Paxton Toilet Company, Boston, Mass. Send for a free sample.

It Was Muffing.

"'Bugs' Raymond, the handsome and brilliant pitcher of the New York Giants, is a great wit on the field," said a sporting editor at the Pen and Pencil club in Philadelphia.

"Raymond was disgusted one day at his team's wretched outfielding. Batter after batter sent up high flies, and these easy balls were muffed alternately by left and center.

"Bugs at the sixth muff threw down his glove and stamped on it.

"'There's an epidemic in the outfield,' he said, 'but, by Jingo! it isn't catching.'"

It's easier for a shiftless man to make friends than to make good.

Facts About Motherhood

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at the time of child-birth, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when the strain is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

LYDIA E PINKHAM

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

It isn't as though the experience came upon them unawares. They have ample time in which to prepare, but they, for the most part, trust to chance and pay the penalty.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy, and strong.

Any woman who would like special advice in regard to this matter is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. Her letter will be held in strict confidence.

FARM AND GARDEN

HARROW CART IS EFFICIENT

Old Walking Cultivator Is Converted in Few Minutes—Boys Will Do More Hard Work.

Converting the old walking cultivator into a light but very efficient harrow cart is very quickly done, according to a writer in the Homestead. Secure the wheels, frame, tongue and a short piece of 2x4 long enough to reach across the frame close up to the axles; this makes a brace for the frame, and forms a firm attachment for the seat and tongue. For a seat, one from some other piece of farm machinery will answer very well. A clevis may be attached to the end of the tongue for coupling the cart to the harrow ring. Make one for the boys and see if they'll not think harrowing does a great deal more good than they used to, when they had to walk.

HOW TO HANG DOUBLE GATE

Simple and Easy Method of Construction So That It Will Swing Perfectly When Completed.

A simple and easy method of constructing and hanging a double gate so that it will swing perfectly true when complete is shown in the accompanying sketch. Make the gate in one piece by running the crosspieces C from one post to the other. Leave a small space between the upright pieces X and Y so that they will swing free of each other when the gate is cut in two. Hinge the gate to the posts at all four corners, testing the crosspieces with a level. Then saw the gate in two at A and A and the two halves will swing perfectly true and match each other.

Gate Ready to Be Sawed in Two.

Don't Burn the Litter.

Don't burn up any kind of coarse litter that accumulates around the feedyard, but save to mulch different plants in the garden. If some manure is mixed with the litter so much the better. Such mulch will make melons, cucumbers and many other plants bear more heavily and will save cultivation after they are well started.

Planting Seeds.

It is a mistake to plant the same types of vegetables in the same spot year after year; keep them moving to prevent insects and diseases from getting a foothold, and it is a mistake to forget that a garden needs plant food in order to nourish vegetables properly. Stable manure and a sprinkle of bonemeal will do, nicely. —Farm Journal.

Early Tomatoes.

If the early tomatoes have not been started, seed should be sown immediately, transplanting before the seedings become spindling. The use of paper pots is becoming more popular. Earthen pots, berry baskets and dirt bands may also be used to advantage.

Value of Manure.

Bulletin No. 27 of the department of agriculture states that on the basis of prices charged for commercial fertilizers, the manure produced annually by each horse or mule is worth $27, by each head of cattle $19, by each hog $12 and by each sheep two dollars.

HITCHING FOUR-HORSE TEAM

Point in Favor of Arrangement Shown in Illustration Is Absence of Tied Cross-Lines.

It is often amusing to notice the arrangements of lines on four horse teams, says the Prairie Farmer. When improperly arranged much annoyance is caused by uneven pulling by the different horses and the horses' work is much harder.

When hitched four abreast the arrangement shown herewith gives excellent satisfaction. Place the lines on the center team, as if driven alone, and from each line have a branch extending over and fastened to the outer bit ring of each outside horse. Tie each outside horse to the hame of the one next him.

The point in favor of this arrangement is the absence of tied cross-lines between the center horses giving more freedom, and proves very satisfactory where two rather unruly horses are hitched with two less fractious, the latter being in the center.

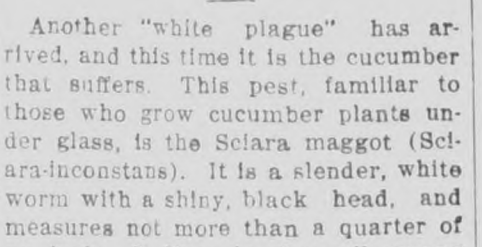
WHITE PLAGUE OF CUCUMBER

Sciara Worm Has Arrived and Manner in Which to Abolish It—Davis Perfect Not Attacked.

Another "white plague" has arrived, and this time it is the cucumber that suffers. This pest, familiar to those who grow cucumber plants under glass, is the Sciara maggot (Sciara-inconstans). It is a slender, white worm with a shiny, black head, and measures not more than a quarter of an inch. It lives in the soil among the roots of the new plants. Its custom is to gnaw the rootlets. After a plant is attacked it makes little or no new growth and in its sickly condition produces few if any cucumbers. The leaves turn brown and the plants wilt in the sun.

The adult of this worm is known as the fungus gnat. It is a very small fly and lays its eggs in fresh horse manure. It is through the fresh manure that these pests are introduced into greenhouses. The use of old manure rather than fresh will keep them out. Should they appear, water in which tobacco has been soaked should be poured about the roots of the affected plants.

Certain cucumbers seem to be immune to the attacks of these worms. Tests made indicate that the variety known as the Davis Perfect is not subject to the attacks of the maggots.



Agriculture is older than history.

Barnyard manure is almost a complete fertilizer.

Corn is the cheapest fat producing food in the corn belt.

It is as easy to produce honey of good quality as it is to produce the other kind.

The seeds of melons and cucumbers should be started under glass not over four weeks in advance of field planting.

In selecting seeds, a matter which needs careful attention is the keeping quality of vegetables.

The clover has greater soil pasturage than most other grasses. It can gather more mineral matter because it goes down deeper.

It is a good plan to plow the ground in the fall for alfalfa. If you plow in spring, plow as early as possible, then take time to harrow well.

The stomach worm does not apparently injure older sheep; but on an old pasture it is very likely to seriously injure the lamb that comes in May or June.

Clover feeds on mineral matter in the soil and nitrogen in the air out of the reach of most crops.

Every spring an unnecessarily large number of young pigs are lost by the disease known as the thumps.

Alfalfa best solves the problem of supplementing pastures and will maintain a full flow of milk all summer.

Clover is the best soil renovator, because it better fills the soil with roots, which decay and fill the soil with humus.

The keynote in getting a seeding of clover is the mechanical condition of and the humus in the soil.

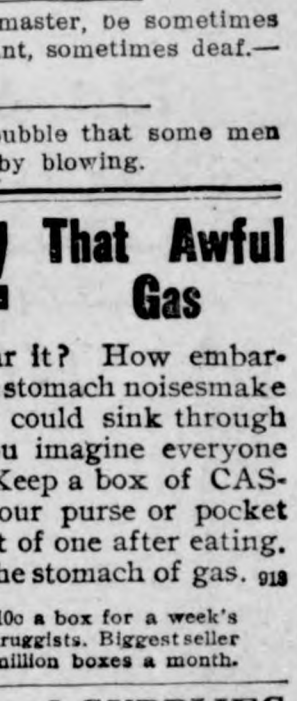
Stomach Blood and Liver Troubles



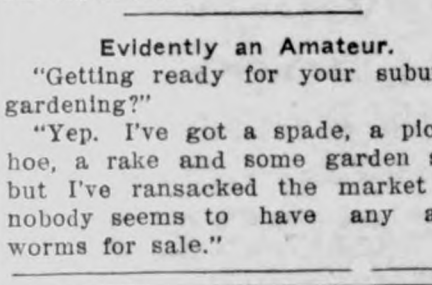
Much sickness starts with weak stomach, and consequent poor, impoverished blood. Nervous and pale-people lack good, rich, red blood. Their stomachs need invigorating for, after all, a man can be no stronger than his stomach.

A remedy that makes the stomach strong and the liver active, makes rich red blood and overcomes and drives out disease-producing bacteria and cures a whole multitude of diseases.

Get rid of your Stomach Weakness and Liver Laziness by taking a course of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery—the great Stomach Restorative, Liver Invigorator and Blood Cleanser.

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, same being attested as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate Stomach, Liver and Bowels.



COLT DISTEMPER

Can be handled very easily. The sick are cured, and all others in same stable, no matter how "exposed," kept from having the disease, by using SPOHN'S LIQUID DISTEMPER CURE. Give on the tongue, or in feed. Acts on the blood and expels germs of all forms of distemper. Best remedy ever known for mares in foal. One bottle guaranteed to cure one case. 50c and $1 a bottle; $5 and $10 dozen of druggists and harness dealers, or sent express paid by manufacturers. Cut shows how to poultice throats. Our free Booklet gives everything. Local agents wanted. Largest selling horse remedy in existence—twelve years.

HENRY LAU & SON

BRYAN AT DES MOINES

Des Moines, Iowa, May 6 The visit of William Jennings Bryan to Iowa and Des Moines May 1st to attend the State Jeffersonian banquet was a significant one, politically—not his visit so much as what he said.

Mr. Bryan firstly refused to commit himself to interviewers as to possible presidential nominees or future political issues. However, his remarks gave evidence that he is inclined to the principles being urged by Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey and it is consequently assumed by many that if he himself is eliminated from the presidential possibilities, he will favor Wilson. When his attention by way of issues was called to the recent speech of Woodrow Wilson in which he forcefully urged national and state control of public utility corporations and also to the fact that such prominent corporation men as J. J. Hill of St. Paul, Theo. N. Vail of the Western Union, President Mudge of the Rock Island, President Reynolds of the Continental Savings Bank in Chicago had conceded the fact that public control must soon come, Mr Bryan guardedly said: "The Democratic party has long favored the strict regulation of corporations furnishing public utilities and such regulation is being more and more embodied in our laws, state and national." This was enough, however, to show that he is not antagonistic to the corporation control issue which Woodrow Wilson is forcing to the front with every public utterance.

Mr. Bryan expressed a gratification that principles for which the democratic party have long contended are being endorsed and especially by those who in the past, he says, opposed them.

Bryan's interview on the Canadian Reciprocity was also of political significance as it is indicative of what attitude may be expected from the democrats of Iowa in the coming campaign. In a nutshell Mr. Bryan said: "I favor a ratification of the agreement, not because it is perfect, but because it is the best we have before us. I then favor improving it by adding the Farmers free list." According to Mr. Bryan the formation of the political issues and the selection of a presidential candidate depend very largely upon the result of the work of the present congress.

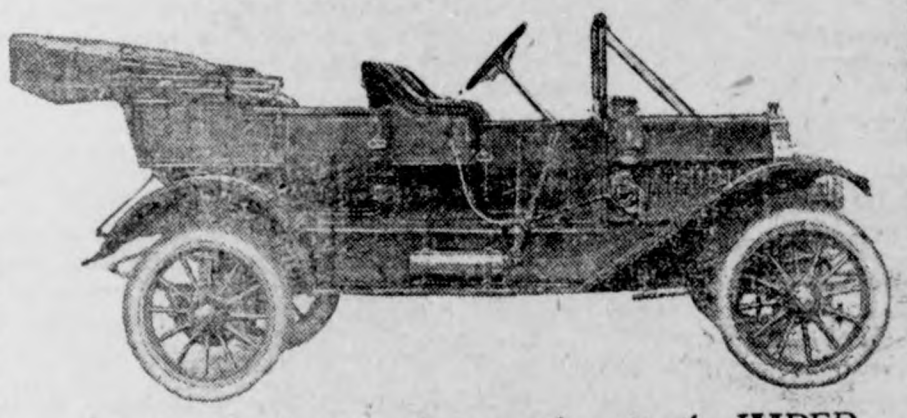
THE IMPERIAL

"THE GET THERE KIND"



It is with pleasure that we advertise the IMPERIAL. When so doing it is hard to say too much in favor of this line of IMPERIAL Automobiles. They have the record up-to-date for running and covering more miles of hard road-going, with the least expense, least adjustments.

The Burd Auto Co., Waterloo, Iowa, says: "The Imperial Automobile has not been equaled yet regardless of price." They run out 37 last season. Up to date there hasn't been one adjustment made. Their contract calls for 100 Imperials for 1911.

The Imperial is built in ten models, from a 35 H. P. two-passenger gentleman's Roadster, to a 60 H. P. seven passenger touring car. Buy the car that bears the name IMPERIAL, and get a dollar's worth of automobile for every dollar you invest.

325,000 IN ONE YEAR

THE IMMIGRATION TO CANADA SURPASSES ALL RECORD.

The returns recently issued by the Canadian Immigration Branch shows that upwards of 325,000 persons arrived in Canada during the past twelve months, declaring their intention of becoming settlers in that country. Of this number about 130,000 were from the United States, the balance being from the British Isles and Northern Europe. It will thus be seen that the sturdy farming element that has gone forward from the United States is being splendidly supplemented by an equally sturdy settlement from across the seas. The lure of Canadian wheat, oats, barley and flax grown on the rich prairie of Western Canada is constantly attracting more and more, and year by year the tide of immigrants to the Western Canada plains increases; there is no ebb to this tide. The Canadian authorities are not surprised at the number from the United States being as large as it is but they did not look for so large an immigration from the old countries. Still, they will not be found unprepared. Reception halls are in readiness at all important points in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, surveyors were at work during the past season opening up new districts on which to place those seeking free homesteads of 160 acres each, railways have been projecting laterals from their main lines, and every provision has been taken to accommodate the newcomer. A recent dispatch from Antwerp reads: "The diversion of European emigration from the United States to Canada is said to be seriously affecting the Atlantic steamship lines. The Red Star today gives up to the America-Canada line two of the best special emigrant steamers afloat, the Gothland and the Samland. These vessels heretofore in the Antwerp-New York service are now to be operated from Rotterdam to Canadian ports."

On the date of the above dispatch word came to the Immigration branch that the "Vanguard of the 1911 army of United States settlers reached Winnipeg at 1:30 o'clock this morning. There was a solid train load of effects, comprising 41 carloads and two colonist sleepers attached to the train, which contained the members of 25 families. Every man Jack in the party is a skilled farmer, and all have come north prepared to go right on the land, which was purchased last year. They are equipped with everything that experience has shown is necessary to make a start on virgin prairie. In addition to machinery and household effects there were a large number of horses and cattle. Some of the farmers had also brought along gas tractors, which will be put right to work on ground breaking."

One of the agents of the Canadian government advises that it would appear as if each month of the present year would show a large increase over the past year. The demand for the literature of the department, describing the country and its resources, is greater than it ever has been.

Breaking a Hobo's Heart.

Manager Gus Hartz was standing near the opera house box office when one of two panhandlers who had entered the lobby approached him, and, holding out an addressed and sealed envelope, begged for the price of a postage stamp.

"It's for me mudder, boss," he sniveled. "You'se wouldn't turn down er guy fer de price er de stamp, would youse?"

"Never," said the manager, deftly grasping the envelope and throwing it through the box office window. "Here, Fred," adressing himself to Treasurer Fred Coan, "stamp this and have it mailed."

The velocity of the proceeding fairly took the panhandler's breath away. Then, backing away to where his partner awaited him, he whispered: "Nothin' doing, bo—the guy's wise."—Cleveland Leader.

ROAD BILL VETOED

Insurance Measure and Clarkson Mining Bill are Signed

SCRAP OVER LIABILITY BOARD

Employers and Union Labor Leaders Confer With Governor as to the Make Up of the New Commission.

Des Moines, May 8.—Governor Carroll has vetoed the Dunlap road bill requiring teams to turn out so that automobiles may pass them to the left when both are going in the same direction along the public highway. His veto message is given to Secretary of State Hayward. It is as follows:

"As to the purpose of the bill I have no objections, but its provisions regulating passing when one party overtakes another are entirely too drastic, and, in my opinion will, if it becomes a law, lead to much abuse and even litigation."

Governor Carroll signed the omnibus insurance bill and the Clarkson mining bill. Attached to the signature of the insurance bill is an agreement between Governor Carroll and Auditor Bleakly with reference to the interpretation of the bill.

A royal scrap is on for the control of the new employers' liability commission which is soon to be appointed by Governor Carroll.

Union labor is anxious to have a majority of the commission favorable to the laws for which union labor has been fighting.

The commission was created for the purpose of investigating employers' liability conditions, codifying the laws of the state relating to that subject and recommend such additional laws as are necessary to give the state fair employers liability laws. The commission will be a big factor in the next legislature on this much debated and litigated subject.

Large employers of men are also taking a deep interest in the appointment of the five commissioners. Both sides have appeared before Governor Carroll to urge the appointment of this or that man known to be favorable to their view of such questions.

Carroll Wright, Judge Carr and James Davis have appeared before Governor Carroll to discuss the appointments. Judge Cooke of Cedar Rapids and President Earling of the Milwaukee railroad have also called at the state house. It is said they also talked with the governor about the personnel of the new commission.

SLAIN IN REVOLVER FIGHT

Killing Follows Robbers Blowing Safe of Paton, Iowa, Postoffice—Others Are Wounded.

Fort Dodge, May 8.—J. W. Busby, the marshall of Paton, and a robber, said to bear the name of Valentine, of Chicago, were shot to death and another robber whose identity is unknown and E. G. Bemble of Paton, was seriously wounded in a revolver battle following the robbery of the Paton postoffice of $26 in money yesterday. The fight occurred in a schoolhouse two miles south of Paton. The wounded yegg was captured. For three hours hundreds of residents of Paton besieged the bandits and continuous revolver firing marked the siege. The wounded man, who refuses to divulge the identity of either his dead companion or himself, surrendered only after his companion had been killed and he had been seriously shot in the leg.

Federal Court Opens Tuesday.

Des Moines, May 8.—Judge Smith McPherson of Red Oak, will open the May session of the federal court for the southern district of Iowa in Des Moines Tuesday. Grand and petit jurors have been summoned to appear May 9 and 10.

The session will be one of the largest of the federal court ever held in Des Moines. It is anticipated that court will be in session for fully a month.

Chicago, May 8.—Sixty-two babies were rescued from death by burning last night when fire destroyed the Mary Marilla Hobbs building of the Methodist Deacons' Orphanage at Lake Bluff, a suburb of Chicago.

CHAPTER VI.

A Pin and a Proposal.

't you know every woman's heart towards courting whether she's in not?"

—Miss Selina Lue.

od morning, Miss Seliny Lue! I run in to git some nutmeg, a of sugar and a quart of kero- to make up some apple-pies for Kenney's supper; he do love 'em don't know what you mean, Mis' ey, by speaking so about Miss lie. They don't nothing in this d hurt me like hearing one of my ds make light of another." And Selina Lue's Irish eyes snapped.

w, Miss Seliny Lue, I didn't no harm! I—I jest—"

"I know you didn't, Mis' Kinney, honey, but sometimes little criticizings fly the track and run into somebody that's easy hurt," said Miss Selina Lue.

"Well, I jest seen them setting here in the door yesterday when you was up the river with the Dobbses and they was as thick as two peas in a pod, her a-laughing and him a-talking fer all he were worth. You may not know courting when you see it, Miss Seliny Lue, not having ever been—"

"Mis' Kinney, child, don't you know every woman's heart is soft towards courting, whether she's in it or not—and every man's, too, for that matter, though they tries hard to hide it? It ain't only on 'count of my pitiful history with Adoniram Millsaps or your'n with Mr. Kinney that we likes to watch the doings of young folks and talk 'em over—it's borned in women to hatch out and hover lovers' matchings and the clucking over 'em is part of the good times of life. I was jest a-saying to—"

"Miss Seliny Lue!" screamed Bennie from the Dobbs' front stoop. "Come quick, come quick; Ethel Maud's caught her hair in the grapevine and's hanging by it. She was eating 'em! Ma's sick!"

Miss Selina Lue hurred with all the speed possible to the relief of the young Absalom, and Mrs. Kinney called after her, "Be sure and rub camphire on the roots," whether of the vine or Ethel Maud's hair she did not say.

When she returned to the grocery half an hour later Miss Selina Lue found Miss Cynthia smiling at her from the back door. Miss Cynthia's approach had been guarded, and instead of coming down the public street, she had slipped through the garden and the chicken yard. Miss Cynthia risked no encounters with her erstwhile victim, and her movements were stealthy when approaching his haunts.

"Well, if that ain't plumb ha'nt-like, to be thinking about you and then turn round and find you a-smiling at me!" exclaimed Miss Selina Lue delightedly. "I was skeered you was clear wore out with your snack of store-keeping and baby-tending, but you put me in mind of that pink morning-glory there, always fresher and fresher every sun-up."

"And you are the sweet, warm sun that comes every morning to cheer up the little morning-glory that droops until she sees you," answered Miss Cynthia with a smiling blush. "Are you rested from your trip?"

"That I am, honey-bunch! One day's tired never lasts me overnight. I get up every morning feeling like I have jest been cut offen the bolt. You see I'm all muscle and a heap of it, but poor Mis' Dobbs has to lift two hundred pounds out of bed every day before she can tell how she feels. But she enjoyed the trip mightily."

"Tell me all about it," said Miss Cynthia, as she sat down on her favorite place on the steps, with a cautious eye looking out for possible invasion. "Did you have a good time?"

"Yes, indeed, we did," answered Miss Selina Lue happily. "And I'm a looking fer results in Mr. Dobbs too. Course that kind of meeting was sorter confusing to me, as was raised under the quiet of the Twin Creek Circuit religion. The drum and the horn and the tammerine, with the rocking of the boat seemed a mite queer. But if it suits some folks to go marching along the narrow road to the tune of a brass band, why others can follow to their salvation quieter by a pipe organ. It's the right direction and the keeping going that counts, to my mind. Salvation Army is a good name fer them devoted people, and I don't hold it agin them that they sung hymns to some dance-sounding tunes."

"You are not one bit strait-laced, Miss Selina Lue," said Miss Cynthia with an appreciative smile.

"Dearie me, child, they's a lot of trails ter Heaven, I say. But who do you think we saw up on the river road a-horseback? You had to hurry home so yesterday after I got back that I didn't git er chanct ter tell you. It was that sweet child, Miss Evelyn. She jumped offen her horse, and the hired man in top-boots, what was riding behind her to keep care, held him while she come a-running over to where we set on the bank waiting fer the down boat. She were jest so glad to see us and made us all so to home, with laughing and joking with Bennie and Ethel Maud. We all had a good time fer most a hour. She let Bennie ride her horse with Ethel Maud on in front of the man. And Mary Ellen was tickled plumb to death with her. Honey, she jest downright deserves to be your friend; she is so nice and sochul. It's a mighty good thing to pass one friend on to another and I thank you right here fer passing that child ter me, and I'm going to hold her to me tender."

"Well, I know it gave her the greatest pleasure to see you. I wish I had been there."

"We all wished fer you and we told her all the news about you. Then we told her about Mr. Alan and the pictures and I invited her to come out tomorrow evening and see 'em and have Mr. Alan explain 'em to her. We can have one of them kinder afternoon parties fer her. I thought about making up some buckets of lemonade and having some of Mis' Kinney's apple-pies. Won't you be glad to see her?" Miss Selina Lue's delight was something wonderful to behold as she unfolded her plan to the paralyzed young woman beside her.

"What did she say?" Miss Cynthia at last managed to ask.

"She said she would be delighted to come and she was sure you would be glad to have her. And, Miss Cynthie, what do you think? She knows Mr. Alan—got 'qainted with him somewhere last winter. Now won't he be pleased to meet a old friend? Maybe she'll invite him to a party over to her house. I am so afraid he gits lonely sometimes with jest us."

"I am sure she will be—kind to him," answered Miss Cynthia with great self-control. Evelyn's merciless badinage already sounded in her ears. Why, oh why, had she withheld that information about the lair of the lion on the morning of Friday the thirteenth?

"I know she will too," Miss Selina Lue broke in on her criminations of herself, "'cause we all give him sich a good name. Mr. Dobbs was some mortified at first and got red and couldn't hardly answer when spoke to, but he forgot hisself when we was a-talk'ag about Mr. Alan and he told her how high thought of he is among the men up here, always ready to sit by the front doors and smoke a pipe with them of an evening. He said if he was to run for sheriff he would git the Bluff votes to a man, and he would too!"

"Then what did she say?" Miss Cynthia was feverishly eager to get at the attitude of her friend on the discovery of the whereabouts of the hunted one.

"Well, let's see. Oh, she asked if you saw him much and I told her, yes, indeed, I had left you home with him to tend the store and mind the babies. She said she was real pleased 'cause she was sure you enjoyed each other's company— Whatever is the matter, honey?" Miss Selina Lue's exclamation of solicitude was caused by an expression of consternation on Miss Cynthia's face which was in turn caused by the sight of the artist coming from around the corner of the barn. Miss Selina Lue was unconscious of his approach; so if Miss Cynthia acted, she must act quickly. Grasping the bow at the back of her waist, she gasped "A pin!" and vanished toward the rear of the grocery.

"In my cushion, child," called Miss Selina Lue, who thought a catastrophe threatened, and she turned to speak to Mr. Dobbs, who was coming up the street with a tin bucket in his hand, evidently in quest of some sort of provender. His errand attended to, Miss Selina Lue started back to the aid of Miss Cynthia, when she was arrested by Mr. Alan's remark that he had thought he had seen some one sitting on the steps with her. Miss Selina Lue's sense of propriety forbade any mention of Miss Cynthia and the pin, so she seated herself on the steps to await that lady's reappearance.

"Was you sick last night?" she inquired interestedly, ignoring his remark. "I seen your light burning pretty late and I hunted up the peppermint and camphire bottles before I went to bed, for I kinder looked fer you to be took down with a spell of colic. Seems as if raw potatoes might swell in the stomik. I am sorry Miss Cynthie's cooking didn't turn out better, but of course she meant for the best. Cooking don't always come to a woman young in life; it has to be sorter lived to by experience." Miss Selina Lue spoke in an ordinary tone of voice, for she was under the impression that Miss Cynthia had retired to the little bedroom, and she could see that the door was shut. In reality the culprit was seated on a box of cans behind the molasses barrel, well within range of the conversation.

"Why, Miss Selina Lue, I thought it was an uncommonly fine dinner. I am sure it was sweet of her to bother about me at all," answered the victim loyally. Miss Cynthia's heart gave a funny little start and then glowed in an inexplicable way; she had expected something different from him, perhaps. The situation was one that might have been treated humorously.

"Mr. Alan, I am afraid it was Miss Cynthie you was tasting instead of the dinner, 'cause the looks of what was in the dish and hid away in the frying-pan under the stove was enough fer me. Bless her heart! I don't guess there was any dog handy you could have throwed it to, so you had to eat it up to save her feelings."

"Well, my feelings were those of gratitude, I can assure you, Miss Selina Lue, and if you ever want to go away again, just leave the babies and me in the same hands; we like them, those hands."

"That's just like your good feelings, Mr. Alan. We was a-telling Miss Evelyn Branch about how you was friendly to every man, woman, child, dog and baby on the Bluff. Mis' Dobbs was special about your kindness in all Ethel Maud's accidents. She do feel your interest so."

"Everybody has been so kind to me that I feel like I had lived on the Bluff all my life," answered Mr. Alan with positive emotion in his voice.

Evil Spirits in Wires

How Bolivian Indians Were Induced to Stop Interfering With Telephone and Electric Light.

The modern marvels of electricity have not been appreciated by the South American Indians. A telephone line had been laid between La Paz, Bolivia, and Lake Titicaca, 45 miles away, but the Indians got the idea that the much-sounding talk of the white man that could be heard thus far would disturb the long sleep of their ancestors, so they stole the wire and used the poles as firewood. When the line was rebuilt, the Indians repeated the operation until the line was abandoned. Next they turned their attention to the electric light plant. After the plant had been in operation a few nights there was an eclipse of the moon, and the Indians, believing that the electric light was swallowing the moon, moved upon the plant to destroy it. The troops had to be called out to save the plant, but, as troops could not be employed permanently, the American engineer devised another plan. He selected three representative chiefs, took them to the power house and shocked them slightly, and then took them along the line and gave them some rousing shocks. The Indians went home and reported that the wire was controlled by evil spirits, and that it was useless to contend with an enemy that could twist them into kinks when miles away. Since then there has been no further trouble.

SCALP WAS BADLY AFFECTED

"I am more than gratified by the successful results I obtained by the use of the Cuticura Remedies. For several years my scalp was very badly affected with dandruff and scales. My scalp itched terribly at times and my hair fell out. My coat collar would be actually white with the dandruff that had fallen from my head. My profession being that of a barber, I was particular about having my hair in good condition, and was also in a position to try many lotions, etc., for the scalp. These had little or no effect. I had heard so much about the Cuticura Remedies that I resolved to try them. I shampooed my head with Cuticura Soap twice a week and after drying my head thoroughly, I anointed parts of my scalp with Cuticura Ointment. I was pleased from the outset, and continued to keep up this treatment. To think that only three cakes of Cuticura Soap and one and one-half boxes of Cuticura Ointment rid my head of this annoying trouble made me feel quite contented. I have now got a thick growth of hair and I am never troubled with any dandruff or itching of the scalp. There is no question but that the Cuticura Remedies cured me. I frequently recommend them to my customers, and they think a great deal of them." (Signed) John F. Williams, 307 Norfolk Street, Dorchester, Boston, Mass., July 28, 1910.

SWEETS FOR LUNCH

CONFECTIONS MOST PLEASING TO THE PALATE.

Grilled Figs a Delicacy Popular in France—Some Luncheon Salads—Light and Delicious Trifles to Serve for Dessert.

A sweet that will give the home luncheon a novel flavor with little trouble is grilled figs, for which a fine grade of bag or washed fruits is required. Soak for an hour in warm water, wipe dry, split open and pound flat with the kitchen mallet. Brush each thoroughly with olive oil, and brown on both sides, using a fine wire toaster or broiler. Place on a hot dish and sprinkle with sugar or lemon juice. This is an old French dish. If you wish to serve it in the French fashion you will pass with it bars of hard, sweet chocolate and unsweetened crackers.

Salads for Luncheon.—Vary the familiar tomato jelly salad for a luncheon or dinner with one made of lemon jelly. The jelly is made in the usual way, but when nearly hard one cupful of pecan nut meats slightly broken, but not ground, is added. The salad is pretty if molded in individual portions by means of egg cups or wine glasses. Arrange a nest of lettuce leaves on each plate, turn the jelly out upon them just before serving, add to the lettuce a few finely shaved green peppers and mayonnaise, to which a little stiffly whipped cream has been added.

Other Little Twists.—Some time when you want a dainty dessert without much trouble take small sponge cakes, scoop out the inside, and fill the hollows thus formed with a vanilla or chocolate sauce. That favorite salad, made of cream cheese, can be varied as follows; Put a small cheese in a bowl and beat it light with a tablespoonful of melted butter and the same of sweet cream. Season with salt and paprika, add a cupful of chopped nuts and olives, mix well, roll into balls and serve on individual beds of watercress. To accompany the salad course, vary the usual sandwiches or rolls by cutting fingers of whole wheat bread four inches long by two wide. Spread thinly with anchovy paste, after which season with salt and paprika; sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese, and place in the oven until crisp.

A Good Dessert.—Vary the inevitable family dessert of cornstarch pudding by substituting a lemon flavored with cinnamon and served with a custard sauce by way of a change now and then. When a spoonfulful or so of batter is left over, more than is needed for the cake tin, an acceptable dainty to serve with hot chocolate or lemonade is within easy reach. Thin out the left-over until it will flow readily with mixed milk and water. Pour on a buttered tin and bake in a hot oven. While warm cut in strips, brush quickly with egg white and shake over them chopped nut meats. Replace in the oven till they take on a nice brown.

A Disappointing Discovery.

Any one who imagines that life is lacking in amenities among the newsboys in the big city should listen occasionally to their talk, says the Youth's Companion. When these two—each with his package of newspapers under his arm—met, one appeared somewhat glum and disgruntled; whereupon the other benevolently essayed to cheer him up.

"Say, Bill, you 'member dat dime I t'ought I lost yesterday—de one I was goin' to treat youse wid?"

"Sure," assented Bill, sullenly; then with growing reproachfulness of tone, "I treated youse twicet already, Jim!"

"Well," went on Jim, animatedly, "wot d'youse t'ink I found jus' now? I wuz feelin' round in dis pocket, an' I found, right here in dis pocket, I—" A dramatically timed pause.

"Youse found de dime!" exclaimed Bill, brightening up.

"Say, Bill, youse always in a hurry. I wuz tryin' to tell youse dat I found de hole dat dime got t'rough."

The Intellectual Eater.

The truly intellectual eater never asks the price of his victuals. He orders freely, and as his fancy dictates, of wild duck, terrapin, pfannehase, herring or venison, and after he has eaten as much as he wants and gone to sleep his secretary pays the bill, says the Baltimore Sun. He has no time for haggling. Every moment of his leisure is devoted to eating. His one regret is that he must stop now and then to get shaved, to vote, to kiss his wife, to spank his children, to discharge the thousand and one other oppressive duties of the civilized man.

HINTS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Best Way to Prepare Waffles—Keeping Cakes and Cookies—When Cooking Rice.

Waffles are much lighter if made with sour cream and the batter kept rather thin. To eat with them fry chicken gravy or cinnamon and sugar mixed, or lumps of maple sugar melted down and served hot.

A woman who always has delicious little cakes and cookies on hand keeps a cut lemon or orange in the jar with them to give a "far away" and delightful flavor.

One cook always puts a very little lemon juice in the water in which she boils the rice. She claims that it keeps the rice white and the grains whole and separate. It may be worth trying.

If there are not peaches enough left from an opened can to go around mix them with orange pulp and a little sliced banana and the family will find them improved.

Peanut Butter.

This is not expensive to buy, but is still cheaper when made at home. Peanuts are an excellent substitute for meat, containing as they do 50 per cent. of albumen and 20 per cent. of fat. In the German army the soldiers are served regularly with bread and porridge made largely from the peanut. Peanuts are recommended now as a remedy for indigestion, whether eaten raw or made into a soup, sandwich or salad. For the peanut butter, run the shelled and blanched nuts through the meat grinder, using the finest knives. Add salt to flavor and rub into a creamy paste. As the nut is naturally oily, no other oil is needed, though some housewives prefer to add a little cream or olive oil to the well ground nuts. A spoonful of this peanut butter, added to potato or celery cream soup, imparts a delightful flavor.

Creamed Cod in Potato Case.

Boil and mash six good-sized potatoes, add one egg, a gill of milk, salt and pepper to taste and beat until light. Pick and scald a pound of salt cod, drain and scald again. Now press fish until dry. Put a large tablespoonful of butter in a frying pan and add two tablespoonfuls of flour. Mix and add a pint of milk. Stir till it thickens and add pepper to taste. Grease a pudding mold and line bottom and sides with the potato. Add the cod to the cream and fill the center. Cover the top with potato and bake a nice brown.

Vegetarian Beet Dish.

Wash two beets and boil for one hour or till tender. Remove the skin and cut them in thin slices. Peel a medium sized onion, cut it in very thin slices and divide the slices into rings.

Melt one heaping tablespoonful of butter, fry the onion in it till cooked, add salt, pepper and paprika to taste, a few drops of vinegar, also the slices of beets.

Allow the latter to become hot. Put a border of hot mashed potatoes on a hot platter and serve the beets in the center. Serve very hot.

Imitation Planked Fish.

A fair imitation of planked fish may be made on a platter. Put the baked or broiled fish in the center of the dish and rim it with seasoned hot mashed potatoes dropped around by the tablespoonful in egg shaped portions, alternating with wedges of lemon and sprigs of parsley. A broiled steak on a platter may also imitate the chef's elaborate plank work. Rim the platter with hot seasoned mashed potatoes, slices of beets, little white boiled onions and fried mushrooms.

Stewed Celery.

Use the left-over celery for the next day's luncheon by stewing it tender, mixing it with a white sauce and turning it over toast. The water in which the celery boils should be mixed with cream for the sauce. Or the water may be used to dip the toast in before the sauce is turned over it.

The "Dean For-Gott."

When the bishop of Truro, Doctor Gott, was dean of Worcester, his absentmindedness was so notorious that he earned for himself the sobriquet of "Dean For-Gott." On one occasion he had invited some friends to dine with him; on their arrival a short time before the dinner hour he suggested that in the interval of waiting his friends would perhaps like to walk through the grounds. After spending about a quarter of an hour in admiring the flowers, shrubs and greenhouses, they suddenly came upon a door in the garden wall. "Ah!" said the dean to his astonished guests, "this will be a much nearer way for you to go home than by going back to the front." And, all unconscious of his invitation, he opened the door and bowed them out.

This trip clearly demonstrated the superiority of the Imperial 30 over many other cars of the same horse power, on hard roads and under unfavorable running conditions. The Imperial is certainly well called "The Get There Kind."

ACCIDENT AT WHITTEMORE

On Tuesday afternoon of last week a bad accident occurred at Whittemore, in Kossuth county, in which three school children were killed and two others seriously injured. The westbound Milwaukee passenger train No. 3 run into a farm wagon in which a number of children were returning home from school and as a result, John and Carrie Becker, aged 16 and 11 respectively, and Mary Kollash, aged 11, were killed. and Edward Becker, aged 9, and John Kollash, aged 8, were seriously injured. The accident occurred two blocks east of the depot where a view of the track is obstructed by a number of buildings. The wagon was directly on the track when it was struck by the train, which was running at a high rate of speed, according to witnesses.

THE WORLD'S CREED

Man that is born of woman is of few days and full of trouble. He comes into the world without his consent and leaves it against his will. During his stay on earth his time is spent in one continuous round of pleasure or misunderstandings. In his infancy he's an angel; in his boyhood he's a devil; in his manhood he's a saint or sinner; if he attends to his duties he's cranky; if he raises a family he's a chump; if he raises a check he's a thief, and then the law sends him over the road; if he's a poor man he's a bad manager and has no sense; if he's rich he's dishonest, but considered smart; if he's a politician he's a grafter and a crook, if he's out of politics you can't place him, and he's an undesirable citizen; if he goes to church he's a hypocrite; if he stays away he's a heathen; if he donates to foreign missions he does it for show; if he doesn't he's stingy and a tight wad He never gives to home missions.

When he first comes into the world everybody wants to kiss him; before he goes out they all want to kick him. If he dies young there was a great future before him; if he lives to a ripe old age, then, of course, he's living only to save funeral expenses and keep his heirs from enjoying his property.—Ex.

NEW LINE STARTED

Rock Island Commences Work On Extension to Allerton

GRADING CONTRACT IS LET

The New Line Extends From Carlisle Twelve Miles South of Des Moines, to Allerton—To Be Completed July 1, 1912.

Council Bluffs.—E. A. Wickham, of the Wickham brothers, railroad contractors of Council Bluffs, returned from Chicago recently where they entered into a contract for a Rock Island construction project, which is expected to eclipse all other railway improvements in Iowa during the coming season.

The new line for which the grading will be done, extends from Carlisle, twelve miles south of Des Moines, south to Allerton in Wayne county, involving twenty-three miles of grading along the route. The cost is expected to approximate $500,000.

Most of the work contracted for is in the line of light grading, although several deep cuts and work in rocky country will retard the completion of the work. Contracts for work requiring the use of steam shovels has been let to McArthur & Co. The contract calls for the completion of the work by July 1 of next year.

One significant and unusual thing in connection with the contract is that some of the right-of-way on the work contracted has not yet been secured. The haste shown is said to have been caused by activity of the Burlington people in the same territory.

Will Entertain Masons.

Cedar Rapids.—Cedar Rapids Masons are preparing to entertain the Masonic grand lodge, which meets here June 13-15. A school of instruction will be held June 10-12, and the grand lodge sessions will be in the opera house June 13 and 14. On Wednesday, June 14, the grand officers for the ensuing year will be elected. Many prominent Masons from different parts of the state will be present.

Widow Given Insurance.

Algona.—Mrs. Laura E. Sutton, widow of J. L. Sutton, has been awarded $5,000, the amount of an insurance policy, from the Illinois Commercial Men's association. The verdict was given by Judge Coyle in the Kossuth county district court.

The insurance company based its contest on the alleged fact that Mr. Sutton had suicided.

Atlantic Road on Block.

Council Bluffs.—Judge W. R. Green of the district court has ordered the sale of the Atlantic Northern & Southern railway at a receivers' sale, July 24th, next. The road, about 75 miles in length was promoted by farmers in the territory through which it runs. It has been in financial difficulties for some months. The headquarters of the road are at Atlantic, Iowa.

Start Work on New Park.

Perry.—Work will commence this week on the new Perry Driving and Amusement park, which will be built and managed by J. W. O'Brien and E. F. Sammon. Arrangements have been made for a big race meet July 4 and 5, at which time automobile races, as well as harness and running events will be held.

Close Bond Contract.

Ottumwa.—The water works trustees here have closed a contract with the bond firm of Woodin, McNear & Moore of Chicago for the purchase of $275,000 bonds. A portion of the issue bears 4½ per cent interest and the balance 4¼ per cent. The trustees are given a premium of $2,500.

Bloodhounds After Burglars.

Iowa City.—Deputy Sheriff H. G. Sturmfer of Springfield, Ill., arrived in Iowa City with a pair of monster bloodhounds trained as man-hunters, which Sheriff Theodore Fautz of Johnson county is using in searching for burglars who robbed a clothing store at Oxford.

Manchester.—J. C. Lash found the badly decomposed body of an unknown man on the farm of John Schneider. The man's underclothing was marked "M. Kellogg B."

Boy Drowns at Dubuque.

Dubuque.—Louis Doefler, 20, of this city, employed by Wadley Bros., of McGregor, was drowned in the Mississippi when the waves from a ferry boat overturned his skiff.

Shriners to Celebrate.

Marshalltown.—A special dispensation has been granted Za-Ga-Zig temple of the Mystic Shrine of Des Moines for a ceremonial session to be held here on May 25, when the Shriners of central Iowa are planning a celebration. A class of fifty will be initiated, and the ceremonies will be followed by a banquet.

Two Injured in Accident.

Tama.—Engineer J. L. Mead was badly burned and his fireman, Frank Rush, also injured in an accident in the North-Western yards here. They were making a flying switch with their engine when it jumped the track, the tender was forced into the cab, a pipe was broken and the steam escaped.

Will Prospect for Coal.

Dayton.—The commercial association of this place has organized the Dayton Development company for the purpose of prospecting for coal in this vicinity, and the promotion of companies to develop claims. Options and leases are to be obtained, and the prospecting will begin at once.

Build New School House.

Griswold.—By a vote of 286 to 42, citizens of Griswold voted to issue $25,000 in bonds for the purpose of erecting a new schoolhouse. Of the 188 men who voted, 151 were in favor and 37 opposed to the proposition and of the 140 women who cast their ballots, 135 voted for and 5 against it.

Not to Rebuild Gruver.

Estherville.—Gruver, on the Rock Island railway about twelve miles east of here, which was recently almost completely destroyed by fire, is not likely to be rebuilt. The tendency of population decreasing in small places makes the investment of rebuilding rather hazardous.

Vaunter Given Damages.

Dubuque.—The federal jury in the case of Edward Vaunter, who sued the Illinois Central railroad for $10,000 for injuries alleged to have been sustained while employed by the defendant as a section hand, returned a verdict awarding $900. Vaunter resides at Dyersville.

Health For Sick Women

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or secured so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In almost every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Almost every woman you meet has either been benefited by it, or knows some one who has.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing over one million one hundred thousand letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved many women from surgical operations.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made exclusively from roots and herbs, and is perfectly harmless.

The reason why it is so successful is because it contains ingredients which act directly upon the female organism, restoring it to healthy and normal activity.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials such as the following prove the efficiency of this simple remedy.

Coloma, Wisconsin.—"For three years I was troubled with female weakness, irregularities, backache and bearing down pains. I saw an advertisement of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. After taking several bottles I found it was helping me, and I must say that I am perfectly well now and can not thank you enough for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. John Wentland, R. F. D., No. 3, Box 60, Coloma, Wisconsin.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

The Lesser Evil.

Gresham college in 1719 was the scene of a famous serio-comic duel between two celebrated doctors, Dr. Mead and Dr. Woodward, both of whom were lecturers at the college. While walking down Bishopsgate street one morning they quarreled over some medical question and adjourned to the square of the college to fight it out with swords. Woodward fell, wounded in several places, whereupon Mead magnanimously said, "Take thy life." "Anything but your physic," hissed back the chagrined Woodward ere he swooned away.—London Chronicle.

Now He Doesn't Believe It.

A Cleveland man was reading some jokes about how the English weren't so slow as they are supposed to be to get a joke. He believed it, too. So he tried his theory on a British guest of his.

"Did you ever hear Mark Twain's joke about how the report of his death had been greatly exaggerated?" he asked.

"No," answered the Englishman, eagerly, "but I'll wager it was good. What was it?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A READER CURES HIS CONSTIPATION—TRY IT FREE

Simple way for any family to retain the good health of all its members.

The editors of "Health Hints" and "Questions and Answers" have one question that is put to them more often than any other, and which, strangely enough, they find the most difficult to answer. That is "How can I cure my constipation?"

Dr. Caldwell, an eminent specialist in diseases of the stomach, liver and bowels has looked the whole field over, has practised the specialty for forty years and is convinced that the ingredients contained in what is called Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the best claim to attention from constipated people.

Its success in the cure of stubborn constipation has done much to displace the use of salts, waters, strong cathartics and such things. Syrup Pepsin, by training the stomach and bowel muscles to again do their work naturally, and with its tonic ingredients strengthening the nerves, brings about a lasting cure. Among its strongest supporters are Mr. John Graveline of 98 Milwaukee Ave., Detroit, Mich., Mr. J. A. Vernon of Oklahoma City and thousands of others. It can be obtained of any druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, or if you want to try it first a free sample bottle can be obtained by writing the doctor.

For the free sample address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

POTATO PROFITS IN IDAHO

The modest potato is not sufficiently taken into account as a producer of wealth for the man who tills the soil. We hear about the romance of wheat, the kingly rule of Corn, the commercial dignity of Oats and Alfalfa, of Barley and Rye, and we count them as sources of great wealth for those who make the earth their servant.

But, granting to the grains and forage the credit that is due, there are wide stretches of land in Idaho producing cash yields from potatoes that make the average grain production of states farther east appear exceedingly small.

And there are so many more acres, of the same kind, that have not yet been given a chance to show what they can do, that the money-making possibilities of Idaho, so far as potatoes alone are concerned, cannot be estimated.

Idaho won national publicity in 1910 as the result of the awarding of prizes of $500 and $250, given by Mr. D. E. Burley of Salt Lake City, Utah, for the best and second best yields of potatoes produced on a single acre of land in territory tributary to the Oregon Short Line, Pacific & Idaho Northern, Idaho Northern, Idaho Southern and Payette Valley railroads.

The Oregon Short Line, together with the affiliated lines mentioned above, traverses the states of Idaho, Utah, Oregon, Washington, Montana and Wyoming, so it will be readily seen that the winning of prizes for which there were competitors from so wide a territory was an accomplishment of great importance to the various state and of lasting credit to the successful growers.

The results of this contest, participated in by so many of the most progressive farmers in the prescribed district, were amazing, and the following account of those results, with figures showing what the returns signify in the matter of profits from the land, should prove interesting to everyone concerned in agricultural affairs.

Through Mr. L. A. Snyder, the first prize of $500 was won by Twin Falls county, Idaho, with the "Dalmeny Challenge" variety of potatoes. The second prize of $250 went to Canyon county, Idaho, through Mr. W. B. Gilmore, with the "Peachblow" variety.

On his winning acre of Idaho land Mr. Snyder raised 645 bushels of potatoes, weighing 38,685 pounds. The culls weighed 4,150 pounds, leaving 34,535 pounds of the finest marketable potatoes, or about 575 bushels.

At 70 cents per 100 pounds, or 42 cents per bushel, the price Mr. Snyder received, the one prize acre produced in money, therefore, the sum of $241.74, besides the 4,150 pounds, or almost 70 bushels, in culls, which were available for home use.

Mr. Snyder has given to the Commercial Club of Twin Falls some further facts showing the possibilities of potato raising in his section of the country. He reports that from three acres of land he harvested 895 sacks of potatoes, averaging 110 pounds to the sack. He sold 1,500 bushels at 42 cents per bushel, receiving $630, and he had 75 sacks left for seed.

An average gross profit of $210 per acre, when we consider how much smaller is the average gross profit from an acre of grain, gives the reader a fair idea of what the intensive potato farming opportunities of Idaho really are.

Going a little more extensively into figures, we may safely presume that the average family of, say, five persons consumes about five pounds of potatoes per day. That ought to be a liberal estimate—a pound of potatoes per day for each member of the family, large or small.

The 38,685 pounds of potatoes raised by Mr. Snyder on his prize acre of Idaho land would, therefore, supply the potato needs of more than 22 such families for a year, allowing each family 1,725 pounds, or 28¾ bushels.

It is fair to say that a $30 gross yield from an acre of wheat is a good return. So we see that Mr. Snyder's prize acre of potato land brought forth as much money as would eight acres of wheat land.

If Mr. Snyder were to realize from ten acres of his potato land as well as he did from the three acres which gave him $630, he would have $2,100 at the end of the season, besides more than enough spuds for his own use and for the next season's planting.

There's "real money" in Idaho potatoes.

"The combination that won the Burley prize," says Mr. Snyder, "was the most productive soil in the West, climate unexcelled, plenty of water for irrigation at all times, one of the best varieties of spuds, and a man with some experience and not afraid of work."

His words make clear the advantages and possibilities of the Oregon Short Line country. All of the farmers who entered the contest in which Mr. Snyder carried off first honor came out wonderfully well. Mr. Gilmore harvested 37,476 pounds of "Peachblow" potatoes from the acre that won for him the second prize, and many others were close competitors.

Added encouragement for those who have never tried potato growing as a profit-making business is found in the fact that Mr. Snyder's potato experience began only five years ago.

Up to 1905, when he moved to Idaho, he had lived upon cattle and hay ranches, had engaged in dairy, livery and mining work, but had not had experience as a farmer. He took up potato growing in Idaho because he thought it offered an agreeable and profitable occupation, and he has made the results of each year better than those of the year before.

Speaking a short time ago, Mr. Snyder said: "I have always said that we have the best irrigated country in the United States. Mr. Burley gave us a chance to prove it, and it was as much the opportunity of showing that we could make good, as the money, which induced me to go into this competition."

Notwithstanding his achievement, Mr. Snyder does not believe that his record will stand. He has too great a faith in the potato industry and in Idaho to permit such an opinion. "I do not think we have reached the limit, by a long way," he remarks, confidently, and there are thousands who are familiar with that country who are ready to echo the assertion.

The fact is that large profits from potato raising in Idaho are the rule, not the exception. H. P. Frodsham, a farmer in the American Falls district, commonly takes 500 bushels from an acre, his yield per acre thus being, at 42 cents per bushel, $210.

Someone who knows the conditions in and the possibilities of Idaho has said that "it is a maxim in southern Idaho that the new settler, with little or no capital or implements, but with a willingness to work, can plant potatoes on his irrigated farm the first year and make a good living for his family, besides laying aside money to make all necessary payments on his land."

William B. Kelley, who owns a ranch near Gooding, says: "We get so many potatoes to the acre that we don't stop to count the sacks."

Samuel Lewis, also living near Gooding, reports as follows: "Potatoes grow large and thick. Six potatoes from my field weighed 21 pounds. The crop runs 500 to 600 bushels to the acre, and can aways be depended upon."

The price received by Mr. Snyder for his prize-winning potatoes does not by any means represent the "top" of the Idaho market. Much higher prices have been commanded at various times, yet at the 42-cent rate received by Mr. Snyder his profits were very large.

Scores of instances may be cited to show what the lands of Idaho hold in store for those who will put forth the effort that must precede success.

Those who have succeeded in this one task of potato raising, trace their accomplishments to industry, of course, and to a study of conditions and needs. But they could not have reaped such harvests if industry and determination had not been fortified by ideal conditions of climate and soil.

Such conditions prevail in the agricultural districts of Idaho. There the ground is rich and eager. There the climate is conducive to the outdoor task. There the scheme of irrigation has been so well prepared and is so unfailing in its supply that growing crops have water when they need it.

With water, sunshine and cultivation to bless the crops at proper intervals, the growing of potatoes, or any other agricultural or horticultural industry in Idaho, is as sure of abundant cash returns as any of man's tasks can be.

TO TAX ITINERANTS

Decision of State Tribunal Defines Power of Town Councils

THE LOWER COURT REVERSED

Supreme Court Holds That Even Though Parties Are Located in City They May Still Be Itinerants.

Des Moines.—The supreme court, in a decision just rendered, has defined the term "transient merchant" so that hereafter city and town councils can have no trouble in ascertaining what merchants can be compelled to pay an itinerant merchant's license.

The case has an interesting feature in that while the court reversed the judgment of the lower court, the lower court judgment must stand, so far as the results of the trial are concerned.

The case was that of the town of Scranton against Lewis Henson and J. L. Black, accused of being itinerant merchants and selling goods without obtaining the license provided for by the town council.

They were convicted by the mayor, but appealed to the district court which acquitted them. The supreme court reversed the district court as to its propositions of law, but as the offense was semi-criminal the results of the acquital cannot be changed.

The court, defining an "itinerant merchant," uses the following language:

"Three things must be considered. First, the kind of business; second, the place where it is conducted; third, the duration or intended duration thereof. If the business was or was intended to be intermittent in character and not permanent, then the seller is an itinerant vender and not a permanent tradesman. And it makes no difference that he has his residence in the city or town where he offers the goods for sale."

The ruling is important as it settles the question of whether a man living in a city can buy a stock of bankrupt or other kind of goods, open a store for a sixty-day sale and then quit the business and yet escape the license tax which many cities and towns place on itinerant merchants.

Auctioneers to Meet.

Auctioneers of Iowa will meet in state convention in Des Moines on Friday and Saturday, May 26 and 27.

The state has been divided into districts and efforts have ben made to notify every crier in the state of the coming meeting. A large convention is expected.

Bills for the benefit of the profession, to be introduced later in the general assembly, will be drafted at the meeting.

The officers are: President, C. E. Luther, Grand Junction; vice-president, T. A. Wildman, Perry; secretary, H. A. Dunlap, Iowa City; treasurer, Sim T. Huber, Sioux City; chaplain, Major Marshall, Mount Ayr. Program committee—P. N. Gibson, West Liberty; Thomas Marshall, Iowa City; Fred Morrison, Lone Tree, and H. A. Dunlap, Iowa City.

Carroll Has Ten Days Yet.

Governor Carroll has ten more days in which to sign or reject the bills which are now on his desk. Owing to his work in adjusting the Muscatine labor trouble he has been unable to give any of the left-over bills his careful consideration.

There is much speculation as to whether he will veto the omnibus insurance bill, designed to correct ambiguities in the insurance law.

That he is opposed to many provsions of the bill is known but whether he will consider that opposition sufficient to induce him to veto the entire measure is unknown.

The Clarkson mining bill, re-writing the mining laws of the state, also remains unsigned.

Strong Healthy Women

If a woman is strong and healthy in a womanly way, motherhood means to her but little suffering. The trouble lies in the fact that the many women suffer from weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism and are unfitted for motherhood. This can be remedied.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Cures the weaknesses and disorders of women. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in motherhood, making them healthy, strong, vigorous, virile and elastic.

"Favorite Prescription" banishes the indispositions of the period of expectancy and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It quickens and vitalizes the feminine organs, and insures a healthy and robust baby. Thousands of women have testified to its marvelous merits.

It Makes Weak Women Strong. It Makes Sick Women Well.

Hancock County Institute and Summer School, June 7-28

The Hancock County Institute and Summer School will be held at Garner, June 7 to 28.

In planning the Institute with an eighteen day session, we are attempting to make it as beneficial as possible to those who are in attendance. There will be inspirational and helpful talks and addresses on educational subjects followed by a thorough review of the common and First grade branches.

Prof. C. E. Colgrove, of the Iowa State Teachers College, whose life has been an inspiration and help to many of the best teachers of Iowa, will be with us for five lectures.

Dr. Payne will deliver five lectures, illustrated, on Geography and travel. Dr. Payne is considered one of the strongest Institute workers in the country.

Dr. Kenford, state lecturer on Tuberculosis, will address the Institute on the causes and prevention of this dread disease.

The review work will be well taken care of with Supt. Kies of Britt in charge of Arithmetic, History and Civics; Supt. Sunderlin of Garner, Grammar, Economics. Physics and Algebra; and Miss Tierney. experienced in rural and grade school work, will have charge of Reading, Physiology. Music and Method work.

In planning for the Institute work we have tried to anticipate the desires and needs of all. We recognize two classes of persons who will attend. In the first are a number of teachers who have had considerable experience and who hold certificates good for two, three or five years. In the second class are those who are attempting to secure a certificate or who desire to obtain a higher grade of certificate than they now hold.

The first week, June 7-10, is for all, but more especially for the experienced teachers. During this time all of the lectures and special work will be given and June 10th the Rural graduation exercises will be held. The remaining days will be given up entirely to review work.

Plan to be on hand the first day. Come with spirit of giving and receiving help.

Yours truly,
J. R BAGGS,
County Superintendent.

FARMER SWINDLED

F. C. Cannon Bilked of $3,000 Which He Held As Trustee

BOGUS FARM HAND ASSISTED

Files Report With Court That Farm Hand and Attorney Secured Money Held for Brother's Estate.

Des Moines, May 15.—His kindness in acting as the executor of the will of his brother, Thompson Cannon, has cost F. C. M. Cannon, a farmer living near Des Moines, $3,000 and has taught him to distrust new farm hands and look closely into the character of the attorneys he employs.

Thompson Cannon died several months ago, leaving $3,000 in cash in a bank in Des Moines. He asked that his brother, F. C. M. Cannon, act as executor of the will. A short time after Thompson's death, a man giving his name as Amos Hunt, asked for employment on the Cannon farm. Cannon explained to Hunt that he was the executor of the estate of his brother and in one of their conversations, Hunt recommended that Cannon consult an alleged attorney in Des Moines whose name was said to be Edmund Pronter.

Pronter, he said, had just moved to Des Moines and had not yet established an office here. Hunt brought Cannon to Des Moines where he met Pronter. Pronter's first instruction was that the money be taken from the bank in which it was deposited and placed in another which he recommended. "Just give me an order to draw that money and I will deposit it to your credit in the bank," the so-called Pronter is alleged to have said to Cannon.

Cannon had but little time in which to catch his train for home and he signed an order authorizing Pronter as his attorney to take the money from the bank. They made arrangements to meet in Des Moines the next day.

The next day came, but it did not bring forth Pronter. The little pigs on the Cannon farm went without their dinner, for Hunt was not there to feed them. The matter was taken up with the authorities, but as yet they have failed to find any trace of the men who so cleverly swindled Cannon out of the money his brother had entrusted to his keeping.

KIDNEY TROUBLE CAUSES LUMBAGO

Remarkable Story About Great Remedy

I cannot refrain from writing to say that your Swamp-Root has benefited me greatly. Last year I had a severe attack of lumbago. Was bad for a long time, and on seeing your advertisement, I determined to give it a trial. I did so and in two weeks was cured. I gave a bottle to a poor woman who could scarcely walk. She came to me in four days to tell me she was all right and most thankful. I had another attack last November and was so bad that I could not rise from my chair without assistance and could hardly lace up my boots. I at once sent for more Swamp-Root and after taking two bottles, I am more than glad that I am well again. My age being seventy-three, I am the more convinced of the excellence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

Yours very truly,

Some Antique Mugs.

The college collector of antiques stopped off at Bacon Ridge.

"Good day, sir," he said, addressing the postmaster. "I am collecting old-fashioned articles and would like to know if I could find anything like that in this hamlet. Say antique mugs, for instance."

Uncle Jason stroked his chin whiskers.

"Antique mugs! By hek, I know the very place where thar be two of them now."

"You do? Here's a good cigar. Now where can I find these antique mugs?"

"Why, down on Main street, in Hiram Spruceby's shop. Grandad Wheatley and Pap Simmons are in there getting shaved, and by hek, when it comes to antique mugs, I reckon thars' be the oldest in the country, stranger."

Had His Troubles.

"Michael Dolan, an' is it yourself?"

"Yes; sure it is."

"Well, ye know thot bletherin' spalpeen, Widdy Castigan's second husband?"

"That I do."

"He bet me a bob to a pint of whisky I couldn't swally an egg without breakin' the shell uv it."

"An' ye did it?"

"I did."

"Then phwats ailin' ye?"

"It's doon there," laying his hand on the lower part of his waist coat. "If I jump about I'll break it and cut me stomach wid the shell, an' if I kape quiet it'll hatch and I'll have a Shanghai rooster scratchin' me inside."

If You Have Money.

Laundry work at home would be much more satisfactory if the right Starch were used. In order to get the desired stiffness, it is usually necessary to use so much starch that the beauty and fineness of the fabric is hidden behind a paste of varying thickness, which not only destroys the appearance, but also affects the wearing quality of the goods. This trouble can be entirely overcome by using Defiance Starch, as it can be applied much more thinly because of its greater strength than other makes.

Husband Who Had "Married Money" Acknowledged the Truth to His Friend's Query.

Apropos of a beautiful young wife, worth $40,000,000, who had just divorced her penniless husband in order to marry again, Henry E. Dixey, the comedian, said at a dinner in New York:

"The young man who marries for money has none too easy a time of it. His rich wife is likely to tire of him and throw him out in a few years, or else she is likely to limit his allowance to 25 or 50 cents a day.

"'I married money,' a man once said to me.

"'Wasn't there a woman attached to it?' I asked.

"'Yes, you bet there was,' he exploded. 'So much attached to it that she never parted with a penny.'"

Difficult to Answer.

Explaining the happenings of the sixth day of the creation, Miss Frances Hartz read to her Sabbath school class: "And the Lord God formed man out of the dust of the ground."

"Well," spoke up one kid, "that's nothin' new. Did he put him in the sun to dry, the way we do our mud pies?"

Miss Hartz discreetly slurred the answer and proceeded with her lesson.—Cleveland Leader.

To the Childish Mind.

Dorothy Ullman of E. Eighty-fourth street, is a very literal young person. To her mother's definition of the All-Seeing Eye she returned a question as to the size of the eye.

"Can God see everything?" she continued.

"Yes, dear. He can see everything at all times."

That afternoon Dorothy escorted her mother down town. Before an optician's display she stopped. Then, "Mother," she asked, pointing to the big winking eye in the window: "Is God's eye as big as this?"—Cleveland Leader.

"Kicking the Bucket."

When we speak facetiously of some one for whom we have no reverence as having "kicked the bucket" we employ a phrase that would seem to be a piece of latter-day slang, but, as a matter of fact, it dates back to old England, when, about the year 1725, one Bolsover hung himself to a beam while standing on the bottom of a bucket and then kicked the bucket away. Although at first used only in cases of suicide, it has been applied in the course of years to any death, without distinction.

Very Much Attached.

Swenson—Why do you always hear a ship referred to as "she"?

Benson—I guess it is because she sometimes becomes very much attached to a buoy.

Many a girl would promise to marry a man if she thought he wouldn't be so silly as to expect her to live up to her promise.

Eskimo Tested Efficacy of Tele Scheme, and Realized He Ha Been Deceived.

An interesting story is told re ing the efforts of an Eskimo to struct a telephone line. The E came into possession of a piece o of considerable length and never ing seen wire before he asked P sor McMillan of the Peary north expedition what it was and w was used for. He was told that the man strung it on poles stuck i ground and a voice talking to strument at one end could be he the other end. After some searc next morning the Eskimo was to be engaged in telephone con tion work of his own. He stuck sticks in the ground and hun wire on them. He held one e the wire to his mouth and talk it at the top of his voice. Th ran as fast as he could to the end and held the wire to his ea the expectation of hearing his words repeated.

When he failed to hear any the expression on his face re his opinion of his white friend.

Can't Get Away From It

Is it possible to nourish, strengthen and Rebuild the Brain by Food?

Every man who thinks uses up part of the brain each day. Why don't it all disappear and leave an empty skull in say a month of brain work? Because the man rebuilds each day.

If he builds a little less than he destroys, brain fag and nervous prostration result sure. If he builds back a little more each day, the brain grows stronger and more capable. That also is sure. Where does man get the material to rebuild his brain? Is it from air, sky or the ice of the Arctic sea? When you come to think about it, the rebuilding material must be in the food and drink.

That also is sure.

Are the brain rebuilding materials found in all food? In a good variety but not in suitable proportion in all.

To illustrate: we know bones are made largely of lime and magnesia taken from food; therefore to make healthy bone structure we must have food containing these things. We would hardly feed only sugar and fat to make healthy bone structure in a growing child.

Likewise if we would feed in a skillful manner to insure getting what the brain requires for strength and rebuilding, we must first know what the brain is composed of and then select some article or articles (there are more than one) that contain these elements.

Analysis of brain by an unquestionable authority, Geoghegan, shows of Mineral Salts, Phosphoric Acid and Potash combined (Phosphate of Potash) 2.91 per cent of the total, 5.33 of all mineral Salts.

This is over one-half.

Beaunis, another authority, shows "Phosphoric Acid combined" and Potash 73.44 per cent from a total of 101.07.

Considerable more than one-half of Phosphate of Potash.

Analysis of Grape-Nuts shows: Potassium and Phosphorus (which join and make Phosphate of Potash) is considerable more than one-half of all the mineral salts in the food.

Dr. Geo. W. Carey, an authority on the constituent elements of the body, says: "The gray matter of the brain is controlled entirely by the inorganic cell-salt, Potassium Phosphate (Phosphate of Potash). This salt unites with albumen and by the addition of oxygen creates nerve fluid or the gray matter of the brain. Of course, there is a trace of other salts and other organic matter in nerve fluid, but Potassium Phosphate is the chief factor and has the power within itself to attract, by its own law of affinity, all things needed to manufacture the elixir of life."

Further on he says: "The beginning and end of the matter is to supply the lacking principle, and in molecular form, exactly as nature furnishes it in vegetables, fruits and grain. To supply deficiencies—this is the only law of cure."

The natural conclusion is that if Phosphate of Potash is the needed mineral element in brain and you use food which does not contain it, you have brain fag because its daily loss is not supplied.

On the contrary, if you eat food known to be rich in this element, you place before the life forces that which nature demands for brain-building.

Mind does not work well on a brain that is broken down by lack of nourishment.

A peaceful and evenly poised mind is necessary to good digestion.

Worry, anxiety, fear, hate, etc., etc., directly interfere with or stop the flow of Ptyalin, the digestive juice of the mouth, and also interfere with the flow of the digestive juices of stomach and pancreas.

Therefore, the mental state of the individual has much to do (more than suspected) with digestion.

Brain is made of Phosphate of Potash as the principal Mineral Salt, added to albumen and water.

Grape-Nuts contain that element as more than one-half of all its mineral salts.

A healthy brain is important, if one would "do things" in this world.

A man who sneers at "Mind" sneers at the best and least understood part of himself. That part which some folks believe links us to the Infinite.

Mind asks for a healthy brain upon which to act, and Nature has defined a way to make a healthy brain and renew it day by day as it is used up from work of the previous day.

Nature's way to rebuild is by the use of food which supplies the things required. Brain rebuilding material is certainly found in

IOWA HEALTH BOARD

15

Legislature Doubles Secretary's Salary and Reduces Fund

ONLY $2,600 FOR REAL WORK

Comparison With Amounts Furnished by Other States Shows Iowa as Twenty-ninth in List of Thirty-two.

Des Moines.—Sec. Sumner of the board of health, in looking over the appropriation for his department, found that while the legislature had doubled his salary, making it $2,400, that the board will actually have $300 less for health work than it had under the old appropriation. One item of $5,000 is for the state board of health, and from this the salary of the secretary is paid. Under the old plan a salary of a clerk had to be paid out of this, which left $2,900 for actual health work. Now the clerk is provided for by appropriation, and with a doubled salary to come out of the $5,000, there is $2,600 for actual health work. But the $4,700 increase given by the legislature is in appropriations for the other bureaus and does not include the secretary's salary.

Of the thirty-two states which make appropriations for state board of health work, twenty-nine have larger appropriations than Iowa. This state was at the tail end of the list until the last legislature got busy. The present appropriation for the department is $12,000. It was formerly $7,900.

The following are the appropriations:

Pennsylvania, $1,500,000; New York, $152,000; Massachusetts, $140,500; Illinois, $77,000; Florida, $75,000; New Jersey, $72,000; District of Columbia, $67,000; Ohio, $65,000; Indiana, $50,000; Texas, $48,000; Kansas, $46,000; Colorado, $45,000; Virginia, $40,000; California, $37,000; Kentucky, $30,000; Missouri, $30,000; Vermont, $26,500; Minnesota, $26,500; Michigan, $25,500; Connecticut, $24,500; Georgia, $21,500; Washington, $21,250; Rhode Island, $20,000; Utah, $20,000; South Carolina, $18,000; Alabama, $16,000; Maryland, $16,000; Maine, $15,250; New Hampshire, $13,600; Iowa, $12,600; North Carolina, $12,500; Wisconsin, $11,500.

Advice on Babcock Tester.

"June 1st is the time for the licenses which users of the Babcock tester must buy, to become operative," said Food and Dairy Commissioner Barney. "I am now sending out blank applications to dairymen and creameries all over the state. The law provides that the licenses issued to operators of the Babcock tester shall become effective after May 31st. This gives the operators of these tests a comparatively short time in which to procure them. They are required to pay into this department the sum of $2.50 for each license. Another thing that the operators should understand is that if a farmer procures a license, it does not give his hired man the legal right to operate a tester on that man's farm."

Age of Oysters.

Oysters grow only during the summer and especially during the long, warm summers at that, and are scarcely big enough for the mouth before the third year. It is easy after looking over a bunch of shells to tell how old an oyster is. A summer hump and the winter sink come across the shell every year, but after the seventh or tenth year full growth comes; then, by looking at the sinks between the humps it is hard to tell anything more about Miss Oyster's age. Oysters live to be twenty years old.

WHAT I WENT THROUGH

Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Natick, Mass. — "I cannot express what I went through during the change of life before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in such a nervous condition I could not keep still. My limbs were cold, I had creepy sensations, and I could not sleep nights. I was finally told by two physicians that I also had a tumor. I read one day of the wonderful cures made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and it has made me a well woman. My neighbors and friends declare it had worked a miracle for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth its weight in gold for women during this period of life. If it will help others you may publish my letter."—Mrs. NATHAN B. GREATON, 51 N. DES MOINES LETTER

Des Moines, Iowa, May 15—A long step toward securing state control of public utilities will be taken in Iowa when Judge J. H. Henderson of Indianola, assumes the duties of the newly created office "Commerce Counsel," July 1.

This new officer whose salary is $5,000 per year will have as his special duties the defending of the people's rights and under the new law he may institute prosecutions against any public utility corporation for the purpose of compelling that corporation to furnish the commodity which it dispenses aa a reasonable cost. He is given access to all reports filed by corporations with the state.

Much depends on his activities for it is conceded that if he makes a success of his office it is but a question of a few years until the present Board of Railroad Commissioners will be enlarged to a Public Utilities Commission to superintend all utility corporations with the Corporation Counsel as its legal officer.

As has been recently indicated by statements of President Mudge of the Rock Island Railroad Company, Geo. N. Reynolds, President of the Continental and Commercial National Bank of Chicago, and President Vail of the Western Union, control of utility corporations is bound to come and should be welcomed by corporations desiring but honest returns on their investment. When the new Commerce Counsel begins his work it is expected there will be considerable adjustment of utility rates throughout the state. An effort will be made to adjust rates so as to give the people the commodity at the lowest possible figure while permitting the corporations to make a reasonable return on its capital invested. State regulation should not prevent progress but should encourage investment in utility plants which must necessarily be operated on a business basis under the new regime. As has been said "the control should be sufficiently unrestricting to encourage the intrtduction and demonstration of the value of any new or novel enterprise and should allow sufficient reward for the initiative, enterprise, risk and imagination of the adventurers behind such enterprises. It should discriminate between the useful adventurers or promoters, pioneers in fact, and these pirates or sharks, who on the strength of other successes, extravagantly capitalize undeveloped ideas, and exchange the worthless securities for the savings of deluded and credulous investors. Corporate contrel and restriction should always exist to a sufficient degree to prevent such speculative promoting and such stock-jobbing schemes."

Judge Henderson who tackles the first job in Iowa of controlling public utilities is a well known and well tried lawyer. He has served on the district bench and is conceded to be an able practitioner. When he assumes his duties July 1 he will have as a capable assistant Mr. Dwight N. Lewis, who for fifteen years or more has been secretary of the Iowa Board of Railway Commissioners and is also a lawyer.

LIKE RAT IN A TRAP

EMPEROR PAUL OF RUSSIA WAS KILLED BY CONSPIRATORS.

Courage of Assassins Was Keyed Up by Liberal Potations of Champagne—Officers Get Revenge on Tyrant Monarch.

The blow was to be struck on the 11th of March. Platon Zoubov gave a supper on that evening, and all the generals and officers who were in the conspiracy were invited. Champagne was drunk freely and great excitement prevailed.

At 11:30 Pahlen returned and asked if everything was ready. Yes, was the reply. At midnight the conspirators, divided into two groups, marched towards the palace. Arrived at the palace, the first band marched towards the emperor's dressing room, adjoining his bedroom, whilst Pahlen went to the apartments of the empress and arousing the lady-in-waiting, told her to inform Maria Eodorovna.

The noise, however, awoke the emperor. He jumped out of bed and made for a secret door which communicated with the empress's apartments. But he himself had previously ordered this door to be locked, and whether it was that the key was not in the lock or that he could not find it in his excitement, he was caught like a mouse in a trap.

The emperor of all the Russias, who, only a few hours before, had terrorized a vast empire and held millions in trembling sway, crept into a chimney to hide himself. Entering the room and finding the bed empty the conspirators thought that the emperor had escaped. Some, like Zoubov, lost courage and wished to retire, but General Bennigsen checked him, and, searching the room, discovered Paul in the chimney. They dragged him down by the legs. He was shivering and speechless.

At that moment Bibikov, commanding a section of the soldiers of the Semenovsky Regiment, arrived in the anteroom. The conspirators, on hearing the noise, were again frightened and Bennigsen rushed out to see what was happening. Paul was now loudly shouting for help and trying to escape. The conspirators, maddened by their furious hatred of the tyrant and by their fear of danger, struggled to hold him back. Zoubov struck Paul with his tabatiere. Several officers threw themselves on the desperate emperor and one of them removed his scarf and tied it around the autocrat's throat. Paul still resisted for a while, but they tightened the knot and when Bennigsen returned he was met with the words, "It is done." Paul had breathed his last.

The officers whom he had tortured for four years had taken their revenge.—From Rappopor's "The Curse of the Romanovs."

Why Men Are Needed.

The disadvantage of an Adamless Eden were humorously shown when Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, militant English suffragette, arrived at the headquarters of the Women's Graduate club of the University of Pennsylvania.

Miss Pankhurst came in a taxicab, with a big steamer trunk beside the chauffeur and a miscellaneous collection of shawl-strapped rugs, traveling bags and small hand baggage.

The trunk was deposited on the sidewalk, in the snow. The club is composed exclusively of women members, and they were in a quandary how to get the heavy trunk to the room on the the third floor, which had been assigned to Miss Pankhurst. The maids at the club refused to carry the trunk upstairs and some one was sent next door to seek assistance. There was not a man to be found in the neighborhood.

Finally the newspaper men who were interviewing the young English woman took in the situation and volunteered to take the trunk upstairs. After it had been hustled up two flights, Miss Pankhurst placidly resumed her interview.

The patrons of the Klemme schools will be gratified to learn that the board has contracted with Miss Emelia Lenz to teach the primary room again next year. Miss Lenz has taught this room for several years and has given universal satisfaction. Miss Laura Newton, who has given good service as teacher of the intermediate room the past year, will teach near Charles City next year, and did not apply for a position in the Klemme schools. No other teachers have so far been elected for next year. The board now has under consideration the advisability of adding another room and until this question is settled will probably not elect the balance of the corps of instructors. They will meet again tomorrow evening, we understand.

Some Fine Violins

The writer this week had the privilege of examining and hearing played one of H. L. Ludeke's violins which he made last year in August and we were surprised at the sweetness in tone and the beautiful finish of the instrument. Mr. Ludeke has made some twenty six violins during late years at his home near Klemme, and if the one we saw is an example, he has a valuable collection of instruments.

A New Cement Crossing

As another result of the public-spiritedness of the citizens of Klemme, there is now a new cement crossing on main street between the two lumber yard properties. This is on railroad ground and the town did not feel like putting it in, so our citizens subscribed liberally, donating money and labor, and the crossing was put in last Monday. The members of the street and alley committee bossed the job and put in some good hard labor also. Such enterprise is to be commended, and is what helps to make Klemme the biggest little town in Hancock county.

Supreme Court Rules Against Standard Oil Company

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and its nineteen subsidiary corporations were declared by the Supreme Court of the United States to be a conspiracy and combination in restraint of trade. It also was held to be monopolizing interstate commerce in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. The giant corporation was ordered to dissolve within six months.

A decision in the tobacco trust case, which was expected at the same time, was not announced, and may be given on May 29th.

The incapacity of the Republican party in the senate to control a caucus edict without the aid of the insurgents was demonstrated in the senate when, after more than two hours of effort, and as a result of seven ballots, the senate failed to elect Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire as president pro tempore to succeed Senator Frye.

• • •

Country and city were arrayed against each other at the Canadian reciprocity hearing before the senate finance committee at Washington. Farmers from Minnesota and North Dakota denounced the agreement as iniquitous, while members of boards of trade from cities along the international boundary indorsed it unqualifiedly.

• • •

The decalogue and the golden rule as standards for laws and government are recommended to congress in a joint resolution prepared by Representative Pepper of Iowa at the request of the Christian party.

• • •

Vicious assaults on the Canadian reciprocity bill marked the hearing on that measure by the U. S. senate finance committee. Farmers from the border states, fishermen from Gloucester, Mass.; manufacturers of wire cloth for paper making and manufacturers of book, wrapping and news print paper all poured forth their protests against the bill.

Domestic

The passengers and crew of the New York and Cuban Mail Steamship company's liner Merida, sunk after a collision with the United Fruit company's steamship Admiral Farragut off Cape Henry, arrived at Norfolk, Va., safe, after being twice transshipped. Not a soul was lost and only one person, a woman passenger, was slightly injured.
